Important Information

Date: ________________________ BNC#: ________________________

One of Social Security's highest priorities is to support the efforts of beneficiaries with disabilities who want to work. The Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) programs include several employment support provisions commonly referred to as work incentives, or special rules that help you to receive, or continue to receive benefits even if you are working. We need more information to see if any of these incentives apply to you. If you are just now applying for disability benefits, the information you give us helps us decide if you can receive benefits. If you are currently receiving disability benefits, the information you give us helps us decide if your benefits can continue.

The information we ask for includes:

- Employment History – This includes your dates of employment, wages or salary earned, and any special pay you received (e.g., sick and vacation pay, disability pay from your employer, and workers' compensation, etc.).
- Special Employment Conditions – If you receive more supervision than other workers doing the same job, have fewer or simpler tasks to complete, are given additional or longer breaks, or have a job coach/mentor who performs some of your work tasks, you may be working under special conditions. We may need to contact your employer to verify your special work conditions.
- Work Expenses related to your disability – If you work and have a disability, you may need certain items or services to assist you (e.g., co-pays for prescription drugs, medical device expenses, special transportation, counseling fees, expenses related to a service animal, etc.)

We may ask for proof of any of the information you provide.
