AN ACT

To amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

2 That this Act, with the following table of contents, may be cited as the "Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979".

LIMITATION ON TOTAL FAMILY BENEFITS IN DISABILITY

SEC. 2. (a) Section 208(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "except as provided by paragraph (3)" in paragraph (1) (in the matter preceding subparagraph (A)) and inserting in lieu thereof "except as provided by paragraphs (3) and (6)";

(2) by redesignating paragraphs (6), (7), and (8) as paragraphs (7), (8), and (9), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new paragraph:

"(6) Notwithstanding any of the preceding provisions of this subsection other than paragraphs (2)(A), (3)(C), and (5) (but subject to section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)), the total monthly benefits to which beneficiaries may be entitled under sections 202 and 223 for any month on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual entitled to disability insurance benefits (whether or not such total benefits are otherwise subject to reduction under this subsection but in lieu of any reduction under this subsection which would otherwise be applicable) shall be reduced (before the application of section 224) to the smaller of—

"(A) 80 percent of such individual’s average indexed monthly earnings (or 100 percent of his primary insurance amount, if larger), or

"(B) 150 percent of such individual’s primary insurance amount.”.

(b)(1) Section 203(a)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out “paragraph (7)” and inserting in lieu thereof “paragraph (8)".

(2) Section 203(a)(8) of such Act, as redesignated by subsection (a)(2) of this section, is amended by striking out “paragraph (6)” and inserting in lieu thereof “paragraph (7)”.

(3) Section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)(I) of such Act is amended by striking out “section 203(a) (6) and (7)” and inserting in lieu thereof "section 203(a) (7) and (8)’’.

(4) Section 215(i)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: “Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, such revision of maximum family benefits shall be subject to paragraph (6) of section 202(a) (as added by section 2(a)(2) of the Disability Insurance Amendments of 1970)."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual whose initial eligibility for benefits (determined under sections 215(a)(3)(B) and 215(a)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act, as applied for this purpose) begins after 1978, and whose initial entitlement to disability insurance benefits (with respect to the period of disability involved) begins after 1979.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF DROP OUT YEARS FOR YOUNGER DISABLED WORKERS

Sec. 2. (a) Section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2)(A) The number of an individual's benefit computation years equals the number of elapsed years reduced—

"(i) in the case of an individual who is entitled to old-age insurance benefits (except as provided in the second sentence of this subparagraph), or who has died, by 5 years; and

"(ii) in the case of an individual who is entitled to disability insurance benefits, by the number of years equal to one-fifth of such individual's elapsed years (disregarding any resulting fractional part of a year), but not by more than 5 years.

Clause (ii), once applicable with respect to any individual, shall continue to apply for purposes of determining such individual's primary insurance amount after his attainment of age 65 or any subsequent eligibility for disability insurance benefits unless prior to the month in which he attains such age or becomes so eligible there occurs a period of at least 12 consecutive months for which he was not entitled to a disability insurance benefit. If an individual described in clause (ii) is determined in accordance with regulations of the Secretary to have been responsible for providing (and to have provided) the principal care of a child (of such individual or his or her spouse) under the age of 6 throughout more than 6 full months in any calendar year which is included in such individual's elapsed years, but which is not disregarded pursuant to clause (ii) or to subparagraph (B) (in determining such individual's benefit computation years) by reason of the reduction in the number of such individual's elapsed years under clause (ii); the number by which such elapsed years are reduced under this subparagraph pursuant to clause (ii) shall be increased by one (up to a combined total not exceeding 5) for each such calendar year; except that (I) no calendar year shall be disregarded by reason of this sentence (in determining such individual's benefit computation years) unless the individual provided such care throughout more than 6 full months in such year, (II) the particular calendar years to be disregarded under this sentence (in determining such benefit computation years) shall be those years (not otherwise disregarded under clause (ii)) for which the total of such individual's wages and self-employment income, after adjustment under paragraph (2), is the smallest; and (III) this sentence shall apply only to the extent that its application would result in a higher primary insurance amount. The number of an individual's benefit computation years as determined under this subparagraph shall in no case be less than 2.
(b) Section 223(a)(2) of such Act is amended by inserting "and section 215(b)(2)(A)(ii)" after "section 202(q)" in the first sentence.
(e) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual whose initial entitlement to disability insurance benefits (with respect to the period of disability involved) begins on or after January 1, 1980; except that the third sentence of section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act (as added by such amendments) shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable for months after December 1980.
Sec. 4. (a) The Commissioner of Social Security shall develop and carry out experiments and demonstration projects designed to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of various alternative methods of treating the work activity of disabled beneficiaries under the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program, including such methods as a reduction in benefits based on earnings, designed to encourage the return to work of disabled beneficiaries to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds.

(b) The experiments and demonstration projects developed under subsection (a) shall be of sufficient scope and shall be carried out on a wide enough scale to permit a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration while giving assurance that the results derived from the experiments and projects will obtain generally in the operation of the disability insurance program without committing such program to the adoption of any prospective system either locally or nationally.

(c) In the case of any experiment or demonstration project under subsection (a), the Secretary may waive compliance with the benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII of the Social Security Act insofar as is necessary for a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration. No such experiment or project shall be actually placed in operation unless at least ninety days prior thereto a written report, prepared for purposes of notification and information only and containing a full and complete description thereof, has been transmitted by the Commissioner of Social Security to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate.

Periodic reports on the progress of such experiments and demonstration projects shall be submitted by the Commissioner to such committees. When appropriate, such reports shall include detailed recommendations for changes in administration or law, or both, to carry out the objectives stated in subsection (a).

(d) The Commissioner of Social Security shall submit to the Congress no later than January 1, 1983, a final report on the experiments and demonstration projects carried out under this section together with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(e) Section 204 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) Expenditures made for experiments and demonstration projects under section 4 of the Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979 shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, as determined appropriate by the Secretary.".
EXTRAORDINARY WORK EXPENSES DUE TO SEVERE DISABILITY

SEC. 6. Section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the third sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to the individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary for that purpose; whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions."

PROVISION OF TRIAL WORK PERIOD FOR DISABLED WIDOWS AND WIDowers; EXTENSION OF ENTITLEMENT TO DISABILITY INSURANCE AND RELATED BENEFITS

SEC. 6. (a)(1) Section 222(c)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "section 223 or 202(d)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 223, 202(d), 202(e), or 202(f)".
(2) Section 222(e)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, in the case of an individual entitled to widow's or widower's insurance benefits under section 202 (e) or (f) who became entitled to such benefits prior to attaining age 60, with the month in which such individual becomes so entitled."

(3) The amendments made by this subsection shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b)(1)(A) Section 223(a)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, if later (and subject to subsection (e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual's trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)."

(B) Section 202(d)(1)(G) of such Act is amended by—

(i) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as clauses (I) and (II), respectively,

(ii) by inserting "the later of (i)" immediately before "the third month", and

(iii) by striking out "or (if later)" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "(or, if later, and subject to section 223(e); the fifteenth month following the end of"
such individual's trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)), or (ii)''.

(C) Section 202(c)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "or, if later (and subject to section 222(e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual's trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)."

(D) Section 202(f)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "or, if later (and subject to section 223(e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual's trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)."

(2) Section 223 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(e) No benefit shall be payable under subsection (d), (e), or (f) of section 202 or under subsection (a)(1) to an individual for any month after the third month in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the 15-month period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)."

(3) Section 226(b) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "ending with the month" in the matter following paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "ending (subject to the last sentence of this subsection) with the month" and

(B) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "For purposes of this subsection; an individual who has had a period of trial work which ended as provided in section 222(c)(4)(A), and whose entitlement to benefits or status as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary as described in paragraph (2) has subsequently terminated, shall be deemed to be entitled to such benefits or to occupy such status (notwithstanding the termination of such entitlement or status) for the period of consecutive months throughout all of which the physical or mental impairment, on which such entitlement or status was based, continues, but not in excess of 24 such months."

(4) The amendments made by this subsection shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability or blindness (whichever may be applicable) has not been determined to have ceased prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

Elimination of Requirement That Months in Medicare Waiting Period Be Consecutive

Sec. 7. (a)(1)(A) Section 226(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "consecutive" in clauses (A) and (B).

(2) Section 1811 of such Act is amended by striking out "consecutive".

(3) Section 1837(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "consecutive".

(4) Section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 is amended by striking out "consecutive" each place it appears.

(b) Section 226 of the Social Security Act is amended by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g), and by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

"(f) For purposes of subsection (b) (and for purposes of section 1837(g)(1) of this Act and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974), the 24 months for which an individual has to have been entitled to specified monthly benefits on the basis of disability in order to become entitled to hospital insurance benefits on such basis effective with any particular month (or to be deemed to have enrolled in the supplementary medical insurance program, on the basis of such entitlement, by reason of section 1837(f)), where such individual had been entitled to specified monthly benefits of the same type during a previous period which terminated—
"(1) more than 60 months before that particular month in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (A)(i) or (B) of subsection (b)(2), or shall not include any month which occurred during such previous period."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to hospital insurance or supplementary medical insurance benefits for months after the month in which this Act is enacted.

DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS; FEDERAL REVIEW OF STATE AGENCY ALLOWANCES

SEC. 8. (a) Section 221(a) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a)(1) In the case of any individual, the determination of whether or not he is under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and of the day such disability began, and the determination of the day on which such disability ceases, shall be made by a State agency in any State that notifies the Secretary in writing that it wishes to make such disability determinations commencing with such month as the Secretary and the State agree upon, but only if (A) the Secretary has not found, under subsection (b)(1), that the State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with the applicable provisions of this section or rules issued thereunder, and (B) the State has not notified the Secretary, under subsection (b)(2), that it does not wish to make such determinations. If the Secretary once makes the finding described in clause (A) of the preceding sentence, or the State gives the notice referred to in clause (B) of such sentence, the Secretary may thereafter determine whether (and, if so, beginning with which month and under what conditions) the State may make again disability determinations under this paragraph.

(2) The disability determinations described in paragraph (1) made by a State agency shall be made in accordance with the pertinent provisions of this title and the standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary pertaining to matters such as disability determinations; the class or classes of individuals with respect to which a State may make disability determinations (if it does not wish to do so with respect to all individuals in the State); and the conditions under which it may choose not to make all such determinations. In addition, the Secretary shall promulgate regulations specifying, in such detail as he deems appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States. The regulations may, for example, specify matters such as—

"(A) the administrative structure and the relationship between various units of the State agency responsible for disability determinations;

"(B) the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, and other individuals or organizations performing tasks for the State agency, and standards for the availability to applicants and beneficiaries of facilities for making disability determinations;

"(C) State agency performance criteria, including the rate of accuracy of decisions; the time periods within which determinations must be made; the procedures for and the scope of review by the Secretary;
and, as he finds appropriate, by the State, of its performance in individual cases and in classes of cases;
and rules governing access of appropriate Federal officials to State offices and to State records relating to its administration of the disability determination function;

"(D) fiscal control procedures that the State agency may be required to adopt,
"(E) the submission of reports and other data, in such form and at such time as the Secretary may require, concerning the State agency's activities relating to the disability determination process, and

"(F) any other rules designed to facilitate, or control, or assure the equity and uniformity of the State's disability determinations."

(b) Section 221(b) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(b)(1) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and other written guidelines, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his finding, make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

"(2) If a State, having notified the Secretary of its intent to make disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), no longer wishes to make such determinations, it shall notify the Secretary in writing of that fact; and, if an agency of the State is making disability determinations at the time such notice is given, it shall continue to do so for not less than 180 days. Thereafter, the Secretary shall make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1)."

"(e)(1) The Secretary (in accordance with paragraph (2)) shall review determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)). As a result of any such review, the Secretary may determine that an individual is not under a disability (as so defined) or that such individual's disability began on a day later than that determined by such agency, or that such disability ceased on a day earlier than that determined by such agency. Any review by the Secretary of a State agency determination under the preceding provisions of this paragraph shall be made before any action is taken to implement such determination and before any benefits are paid on the basis thereof.

"(2) In carrying out the provisions of paragraph (1) with respect to the review of determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)), the Secretary shall review—

"(A) at least 15 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1980;

"(B) at least 35 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1981; and
“(c) at least 65 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in any fiscal year after the fiscal year 1981.”.

(d) Section 221(d) of such Act is amended by striking out “(a)” and inserting in lieu thereof “(a), (b)”.

(e) The first sentence of section 221(e) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “which has an agreement with the Secretary” and inserting in lieu thereof “which is making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”,

(2) by striking out “as may be mutually agreed upon” and inserting in lieu thereof “as determined by the Secretary”, and

(3) by striking out “carrying out the agreement under this section” and inserting in lieu thereof “making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”.

(f) Section 221(g) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “has no agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting in lieu thereof “does not undertake to perform disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), or which has been found by the Secretary to have substantially failed to make disability determinterminations in a manner consistent with his regulations and guidelines”, and

(2) by striking out “not included in an agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting in lieu thereof “for whom no State undertakes to make disability determinations”.

(g) The amendments made by this section shall be effective beginning with the twelfth month following the month in which this Act is enacted. Any State that, on the effective date of the amendments made by this section, has in effect an agreement with the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare under section 221(a) of the Social Security Act (as in effect prior to such amendments) will be deemed to have given to the Secretary the notice specified in section 221(a)(1) of such Act as amended by this section, in lieu of continuing such agreement in effect after the effective date of such amendments. Thereafter, a State may notify the Secretary in writing that it no longer wishes to make disability determinations, effective not less than 180 days after it is given.

(h) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall submit to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate by January 1, 1980, a detailed plan on how he expects to assume the functions and operations of a State disability determination unit when this becomes necessary under the amendments made by this section. Such plan should assume the uninterrupted operation of the disability determination function and the utilization of the best qualified personnel to carry out such function. If any amendment of Federal law or regulation is required to carry out such plan, recommendations for such amendment should be included in the plan for action by such committees, or for submittal by such committees with appropriate recommendations to the committees having jurisdiction over the Federal civil service and retirement laws.

INFORMATION TO ACCOMPANY SECRETARY'S DECISIONS AS TO CLAIMANT'S RIGHTS

SEC. 9: (a) Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentences: "Any such decision by the Secretary shall contain a statement of the case setting forth (1) a citation and discussion of the pertinent law and regulation; (2) a list of the evidence of record and a summary of the evidence; and (3) the Secretary's determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to decisions made on and after the first day of the second month following the month in which this Act is enacted.
LIMITATION ON PROSPECTIVE EFFECT OF APPLICATION

Sec. 10. (a) Section 202(j)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2) An application for any monthly benefits under this section filed before the first month in which the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits shall be deemed a valid application (and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month) only if the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits before the Secretary makes a final decision on the application and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary)."

(b) Section 216(i)(2)(G) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(and shall be deemed to have been filed on such first day)" immediately after "shall be deemed a valid application" in the first sentence;

(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).", and

(3) by striking out the second sentence.

(c) Section 223(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month)" immediately after "shall be deemed a valid application" in the first sentence;

(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made; or if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).", and

(3) by striking out the second sentence.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall apply to applications filed after the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON COURT REMANDS

SEC. 11: The sixth sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out all that precedes "and the Secretary shall" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown before he files his answer; remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and it may at any time order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, but only upon a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there is good cause for the failure to incorporate such evidence into the record in a prior proceeding;”.

TIME LIMITATIONS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS

SEC. 12: The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall submit to the Congress, no later than January 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of appropriate time limitations governing decisions on claims for benefits under title II of the Social Security Act. Such report shall specifically recommend—

(1) the maximum period of time (after application for a payment under such title is filed) within which the initial decision of the Secretary as to the rights of the applicant should be made;

(2) the maximum period of time (after application for reconsideration of any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary on such reconsideration should be made;

(3) the maximum period of time (after a request for a hearing with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary upon such hearing (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made; and

(4) the maximum period of time (after a request for review by the Appeals Council with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is made) within which the decision of the Secretary upon such review (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made.

In determining the time limitations to be recommended, the Secretary shall take into account both the need for expeditious processing of claims for benefits and the need to assure that all such claims will be thoroughly considered and accurately determined.

VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES FOR DISABLED INDIVIDUALS

Sec. 18. (a) Section 222(d) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"Costs of Rehabilitation Services From Trust Funds

"(d)(1) For the purpose of making vocational rehabilitation services more readily available to disabled individuals who are—

"(A) entitled to disability insurance benefits under section 223, entitled to child's insurance benefits under section 202(d) after having attained age 18 (and are under a disability); entitled to widow's insurance benefits under section 202(e) prior to attaining age 60; or entitled to widower's insurance benefits under section 202(f) prior to attaining age 60;

to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds as a result of rehabilitating such individuals into substantial gainful activity, there are authorized to be transferred from the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund each fiscal year such sums as may be necessary to enable the Secretary to reimburse—

(i) the general fund in the Treasury of the United States for the Federal share, and

of the reasonable and necessary costs of vocational rehabilitation services furnished such individuals (including services during their waiting periods), under a State plan for vocational rehabilitation services approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (20 U.S.C. 701 et seq.), which result in their performance of substantial gainful activity which lasts for a continuous period of 12 months, or which result in their employment for a continuous period of 12 months in a sheltered workshop meeting the requirements applicable to a nonprofit rehabilitation facility under paragraphs (8) and (10)(L) of section 7 of such Act (29 U.S.C. 706 (8) and (10)(L)). The determination that the vocational rehabilitation services contributed to the successful return of such individuals to substantial gainful activity or their employment in sheltered workshops, and the determination of the amount of costs to be reimbursed under this subsection; shall be made by the Commissioner of Social Security in accordance with criteria formulated by him.

"(2) Payments under this subsection shall be made in advance or by way of reimbursement, with necessary adjustments for overpayments and underpayments.

"(2) Money paid from the Trust Funds under this subsection for the reimbursement of the costs of providing services to individuals who are entitled to benefits under section 223 (including services during their waiting periods), or who are entitled to benefits under section 202(d) on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of such individuals, shall be charged to the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund, and all other money paid from the Trust Funds under this subsection shall be charged to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund. The Secretary shall determine according to such methods and procedures as he may deem appropriate—
"(A) the total amount to be reimbursed for the cost of services under this subsection, and

"(B) subject to the provisions of the preceding sentence, the amount which should be charged to each of the Trust Funds.

"(4) For the purposes of this subsection the term 'vocational rehabilitation services' shall have the meaning assigned it in title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (20 U.S.C. 701 et seq.), except that such services may be limited in type, scope, or amount in accordance with regulations of the Secretary designed to achieve the purpose of this subsection.

"(5) The Secretary is authorized and directed to study alternative methods of providing and financing the costs of vocational rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries under this title to the end that maximum savings will result to the Trust Funds. On or before January 1, 1980, the Secretary shall transmit to the President and the Congress a report which shall contain his findings and any conclusions and recommendations he may have.”.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to fiscal years beginning after September 30, 1981.
CONTINUED PAYMENT OF BENEFITS TO INDIVIDUALS UNDER VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION PLANS

SEC. 14. (a) Section 225 of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 225.", and by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment to an individual of benefits based on disability (as described in the first sentence of subsection (a)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment on which the individual's entitlement to such benefits is based has or may have ceased if—

"(1) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973; and

"(2) the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls."

(b) Section 225(a) of such Act (as designated under subsection (a) of this section) is amended by striking out "this section" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "this subsection".
PAYMENT FOR EXISTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE

SEC. 15. (a) Section 223(d)(5) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to evidence supplied on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 16. Section 204 of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 4(e) of this Act) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(c) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure, out of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund (as determined appropriate by the Secretary), such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under section 221, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably nec-necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(g)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to such determinations. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations.”.

PERIODIC REVIEW OF DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS

SEC. 4-7-. Section 4 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(h) In any case where an individual is or has been determined to be under a disability, unless a finding is or has been made that such disability is permanent, the case shall be reviewed by the applicable State agency or the Secretary (as may be appropriate), for purposes of continuing eligibility, at least once every 3 years. Reviews of cases under the preceding sentence shall be in addition to; and shall not be considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required or provided for under or in the administration of this title.”.

That this Act may be cited as the “Social Security Disability Amendments of 1979”.

LIMITATION ON TOTAL FAMILY BENEFITS IN DISABILITY CASES

Sec. 101. (a) Section 203(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "except as provided by paragraph (3)" in paragraph (1) (in the matter preceding subparagraph (A)) and inserting in lieu thereof "except as provided by paragraphs (3) and (6)";

(2) by redesignating paragraphs (6), (7), and (8) as paragraphs (7), (8), and (9), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new paragraph:

"(6) Notwithstanding any of the preceding provisions of this subsection other than paragraphs (3)(A), (3)(C), and (5) (but subject to section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)), the total monthly benefits to which beneficiaries may be entitled under sections 202 and 223 for any month on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual entitled to disability insurance benefits, whether or not such total benefits are otherwise subject to reduction under this subsection but after any reduction under this subsection which would otherwise be applicable, shall be, reduced or further reduced, (before the application of section 224) to the smaller of—

"(A) 85 percent of such individual's average indexed monthly earnings (or 100 percent of his primary insurance amount, if larger), or

"(B) 160 percent of such individual's primary insurance amount."

(b)(1) Section 203(a)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out "paragraph (7)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (8)".
(2) Section 203(a)(8) of such Act, as redesignated by subsection (a)(2) of this section, is amended by striking out "paragraph (6)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (7)".

(3) Section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)(III) of such Act is amended by striking out "section 203(a) (6) and (7)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 203(a) (7) and (8)".

(4) Section 215(i)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, such revision of maximum family benefits shall be subject to paragraph (6) of section 203(a) (as added by section 101(a)(3) of the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1979).".

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual who first becomes eligible for benefits (determined under sections 215(a)(3)(B) and 215(a)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act, as applied for this purpose) after 1978, and who first becomes entitled to disability insurance benefits after 1979.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF DROPOUT YEARS FOR YOUNGER DISABLED WORKERS

Sec. 102. (a) Section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:
"(2)(A) The number of an individual’s benefit computation years equals the number of elapsed years reduced—

“(i) in the case of an individual who is entitled to old-age insurance benefits (except as provided in the second sentence of this subparagraph), or who has died, by 5 years, and

“(ii) in the case of an individual who is entitled to disability insurance benefits, by 1 year or, if greater, the number of years equal to one-fifth of such individual’s elapsed years (disregarding any resulting fractional part of a year), but not by more than 5 years.

Clause (ii), once applicable with respect to any individual, shall continue to apply for purposes of determining such individual’s primary insurance amount for purposes of any subsequent eligibility for disability or old-age insurance benefits unless prior to the month in which he attains such age or becomes so eligible there occurs a period of at least 12 consecutive months for which he was not entitled to a disability or an old-age insurance benefit. The number of an individual’s benefit computation years as determined under this subparagraph shall in no case be less than 2.”.

(b) Section 223(a)(2) of such Act is amended by inserting “and section 215(b)(2)(A)(ii)” after “section 202(q)” in the first sentence.
(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual who first becomes entitled to disability insurance benefits after 1979.

PROVISIONS RELATING TO MEDICARE WAITING PERIOD FOR RECIPIENTS OF DISABILITY BENEFITS

SEC. 103. (a)(1)(A) Section 226(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “consecutive” in clauses (A) and (B).

(B) Section 226(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out “consecutive” in the matter following paragraph (2).

(2) Section 1811 of such Act is amended by striking out “consecutive”.

(3) Section 1837(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out “consecutive”.

(4) Section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 is amended by striking out “consecutive” each place it appears.

(b) Section 226 of the Social Security Act is amended by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g), and by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

“(f) For purposes of subsection (b) (and for purposes of section 1837(g)(1) of this Act and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974), the 24 months for which an individual has to have been entitled to specified monthly benefits on the basis of disability in order to become entitled to hospital insurance benefits on such basis effective with any particular month (or to be deemed to have enrolled in the supplementary medical insurance program, on the basis of such entitlement, by reason of section 1837(f)), where such individual had been entitled to specified monthly benefits of the same type during a previous period which terminated—

"(1) more than 60 months before that particular month in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (A)(i) or (B) of subsection (b)(2), or shall not include any month which occurred during such previous period."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to hospital insurance or supplementary medical insurance benefits for services provided after June 1980.

CONTINUATION OF MEDICARE ELIGIBILITY

Sec. 104. (a) Section 226(b) of such Act is amended—
(1) by striking out "ending with the month" in the matter following paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "ending (subject to the last sentence of this subsection) with the month", and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "For purposes of this subsection, an individual who has had a period of trial work which ended as provided in section 222(c)(4)(A), and whose entitlement to benefits or status as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary as described in paragraph (2) has subsequently terminated, shall be deemed to be entitled to such benefits or to occupy such status (notwithstanding the termination of such entitlement or status) for the period of consecutive months throughout all of which the physical or mental impairment, on which such entitlement or status was based, continues, but not in excess of 24 such months."

(b) The amendment made by this section shall become effective on July 1, 1980, and shall apply with respect to any individual whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to that date.

ELIMINATION OF WAITING PERIOD FOR TERMINALLY ILL INDIVIDUAL

Sec. 105. (a) The first sentence of section 223(a)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended, in clause (ii) thereof—
(1) by inserting "(I)" immediately after "but only if", and

(2) by inserting "or (II) he has a terminal illness (as defined in subsection (e))," immediately after "the first month in which he is under such disability, ".

(b) Section 223 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"Definition of Terminal Illness

"(e) As used in this section, the term ‘terminal illness’ means, in the case of any individual, a medically determinable physical impairment which is expected to result in the death of such individual within the next 12 months and which has been confirmed by two physicians in accordance with the appropriate regulations of title XX."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to applications for disability insurance benefits under section 223 of the Social Security Act filed—

(1) in or after the month in which this Act is enacted, or

(2) before the month in which this Act is enacted if—

(A) notice of the final decision of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare has not been given to the applicant before such month, or
(B) the notice referred to in subparagraph (A) has been so given before such month but a civil action with respect to such final decision is commenced under section 205(g) of the Social Security Act (whether before, in, or after such month) and the decision in such civil action has not become final before such month;

except that no monthly benefits under title II of the Social Security Act shall be payable by reason of the amendments made by this section for any month before October 1980.

TITLE II—PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY BENEFITS UNDER SSI

BENEFITS FOR INDIVIDUALS WHO PERFORM SUBSTANTIAL GAINFUL ACTIVITY DESPITE SEVERE MEDICAL IMPAIRMENT

Sec. 201. (a) Title XVI of the Social Security Act is amended by adding after section 1618 the following new section:

"Sec. 1619. (a) Any individual who is an eligible individual (or eligible spouse) by reason of being under a disability, and would otherwise be denied benefits by reason of section 1611(e)(4), or who ceases to be an eligible individual (or eligible spouse) because his earnings have demonstrated a capacity to engage in substantial gainful activity, shall nevertheless qualify for a monthly benefit equal to an amount determined under section 1611(b)(1) (or, in the case of an individual who has an eligible spouse, under section 1611(b)(2)), and for purposes of titles XIX and XX of this Act shall be considered a disabled individual receiving supplemental security income benefits under this title, for so long as the Secretary determines that—

“(1) such individual continues to have the disabling physical or mental impairment on the basis of which such individual was found to be under a disability, and continues to meet all non-disability-related requirements for eligibility for benefits under this title; and

“(2) the income of such individual, other than income excluded pursuant to section 1612(b), is not equal to or in excess of the amount which would cause him to be ineligible for payments under section 1611(b) (if he were otherwise eligible for such payments).

“(b) Any individual who would qualify for a monthly benefit under subsection (a) except that his income exceeds the limit set forth in subsection (a)(2), and any blind individual who would qualify for a monthly benefit under section
1611 except that his income exceeds the limit set forth in subsection (a)(2), for purposes of titles XIX and XX of this Act, shall be considered a blind or disabled individual receiving supplemental security income benefits under this title for so long as the Secretary determines under regulations that—

"(1) such individual continues to be blind or continues to have the disabling physical or mental impairment on the basis of which he was found to be under a disability and, except for his earnings, continues to meet all non-disability-related requirements for eligibility for benefits under this title;

"(2) the income of such individual would not, except for his earnings, be equal to or in excess of the amount which would cause him to be ineligible for payments under section 1611(b) (if he were otherwise eligible for such payments);

"(3) the termination of eligibility for benefits under title XIX or XX would seriously inhibit his ability to continue his employment; and

"(4) such individual’s earnings are not sufficient to allow him to provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the benefits which would be available to him in the absence of such earnings under this title and titles XIX and XX."
(b)(1) Section 1616(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(3) Any State (or political subdivision) making supplementary payments described in subsection (a) shall have the option of making such payments to individuals who receive benefits under this title under the provisions of section 1619, or who would be eligible to receive such benefits but for their income."

(2) Section 212(a) of Public Law 93–66 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(4) Any State having an agreement with the Secretary under paragraph (1) may, at its option, include individuals receiving benefits under section 1619 of the Social Security Act, or who would be eligible to receive such benefits but for their income, under the agreement as though they are aged, blind, or disabled individuals as specified in paragraph (2)(A)."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on July 1, 1980, but shall remain in effect only for a period of three years after such effective date.

(d) The Secretary shall provide for separate accounts with respect to the benefits payable by reason of the amendments made by this section so as to provide for evaluation of the effects of such amendments on the programs established by titles II, XVI, XIX, and XX of the Social Security Act.
EARNED INCOME IN SHELTERED WORKSHOPS

Sec. 202. (a) Section 1612(a)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" after the semicolon at the end of subparagraph (A); and

(2) by adding after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

"(C) remuneration received for services performed in a sheltered workshop or work activities center; and".

(b) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to remuneration received in months after June 1980.

Sec. 203. (a) Section 1614(f)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "under age 21" and inserting in lieu thereof "under age 18".

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on July 1, 1980; except that the amendment made by such subsection shall not apply, in the case of any child who, in June 1980, was 18 or over and received a supplemental security income benefit for such month, during any period for which such benefit would be greater without the application of such amendment.

Sec. 301. (a)(1) Section 225 of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "(a)" after "Sec. 225.", and by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment to an individual of benefits based on disability (as described in the first sentence of subsection (a)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment, on which the individual’s entitlement to such benefits is based, has or may have ceased, if—

“(2) the Secretary determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls.”.
(2) Section 225(a) of such Act (as designated under subsection (a) of this section) is amended by striking out "this section" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "this subsection".

(b) Section 1631(a) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment of the benefit of any individual who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by reason of disability (as determined under section 1614(a)(3)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment, on which the individual's eligibility for such benefit is based, has or may have ceased, if—

"(A) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and

"(B) the Secretary determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls."
(c) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on July 1, 1980, and shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to that date.

EXTRAORDINARY WORK EXPENSES DUE TO SEVERE DISABILITY

Sec. 302. (a) Section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the third sentence the following new sentence: “In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (whether or not paid by such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe.”.
(b) Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (whether or not paid by such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe.”.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to expenses incurred on or after July 1, 1980.

REENTITLEMENT TO DISABILITY BENEFITS

Sec. 303. (a)(1) Section 222(c)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “section 223 or 202(d)” and inserting in lieu thereof “section 223, 202(d), 202(e), or 202(f)”.

H.R. 3236—pp——4
(2) Section 222(c)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, in the case of an individual entitled to widow's or widower's insurance benefits under section 202 (e) or (f) who became entitled to such benefits prior to attaining age 60, with the month in which such individual becomes so entitled."

(b)(1)(A) Section 223(a)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "or the third month following the month in which his disability ceases." at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, subject to subsection (e), the termination month. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the first month after the period of 15 consecutive months following the end of such period of trial work in which such individual engages in or is determined to be able to engage in substantial gainful activity.".
(B) Section 202(d)(1)(G) of such Act is amended—

(i) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as clauses (III) and (IV), respectively, and

(ii) by striking out "the third month following the month in which he ceases to be under such disability" and inserting in lieu thereof "or, subject to section 223(e), the termination month (and for purposes of this subparagraph, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the first month after the period of 15 consecutive months following the end of such period of trial work in which such individual engages in or is determined to be able to engage in substantial gainful activity),".

last day of such third month)." at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "subject to section 223(e), the termination month (unless she attains age 65 on or before the last day of such termination month). For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which her disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the first month after the period of 15 consecutive months following the end of such period of trial work in which such individual engages in or is determined to be able to engage in substantial gainful activity."

(D) Section 202(f)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "the third month following the month in which his disability ceases (unless he attains age 65 on or before the last day of such third month)." at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "subject to section 223(e), the termination month (unless he attains age 65 on or before the last day of such termination month). For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the first month after the period of 15 consecutive months following the end of such period of trial work in which such individual engages in or is determined to be able to engage in substantial gainful activity.”.

(2) Section 223 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(e) No benefit shall be payable under subsection (d)(1)(B)(ii), (e)(1)(B)(ii), or (f)(1)(B)(ii) of section 202 or under subsection (a)(1) to an individual for any month, after the third month, in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the 15-month period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A).”.

“(F) For purposes of this title, an individual whose trial work period has ended by application of paragraph (4)(D)(i) shall, subject to section 1611(e)(4), nonetheless be considered to be disabled through the end of the month preceding the termination month. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the earlier of (i) the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (ii) the first month, after the period of 15 consecutive months following the end of such period of trial work, in which such individual engages in or is determined to be able to engage in substantial gainful activity.”.

(B) Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out “paragraph (4)” and inserting in lieu thereof “subparagraph (F) or paragraph (4)”.

(2) Section 1611(e) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

“(4) No benefit shall be payable under this title, except as provided in section 1619, with respect to an eligible individual or his eligible spouse who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by application of section 1614(a)(3)(F) for any month in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the fifteen-month period fol-owing the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 1614(a)(4)(D)(i).”.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on July 1, 1980, and shall apply with respect to any individual whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to that date.

Sec. 304. (a) Section 221(a) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“(a)(1) In the case of any individual, the determination of whether or not he is under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and of the day such disability began, and the determination of the day on which such disability ceases, shall be made by a State agency, notwithstanding any other provision of law, in any State that notifies the Secretary in writing that it wishes to make such disability determinations commencing with such month as the Secretary and the State agree upon, but only if (A) the Secretary has not found, under subsection (b)(1), that the State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with the applicable provisions of this section or rules issued thereunder, and (B) the State has not notified the Secretary, under subsection (b)(2), that it does not wish to make such determinations. If the Secretary once makes the finding described in clause (A) of the preceding sentence, or the State gives the notice referred to in clause (B) of such sentence, the Secretary may thereafter determine whether (and, if so, beginning with which month and under what conditions) the State may again make disability determinations under this paragraph.

“(2) The disability determinations described in paragraph (1) made by a State agency shall be made in accordance with the pertinent provisions of this title and the standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary pertaining to matters such as disability determinations, the class or classes of individuals with respect to which a State may make disability determinations (if it does not wish to do so with respect to all individuals in the State), and the conditions under which it may choose not to make all such determinations. In addition, the Secretary shall promulgate regulations specifying, in such detail as he deems appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States. The regulations may, for example, specify matters such as—

“(B) the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, and other individuals or organizations performing tasks for the State agency, and standards for the availability to applicants and beneficiaries of facilities for making disability determinations,

“(C) State agency performance criteria, including the rate of accuracy of decisions, the time periods within which determinations must be made, the procedures for and the scope of review by the Secretary, and, as he finds appropriate, by the State, of its performance in individual cases and in classes of cases, and rules governing access of appropriate Federal officials to State offices and to State records relating to its administration of the disability determination function,

“(D) fiscal control procedures that the State agency may be required to adopt, and

“(E) the submission of reports and other data, in such form and at such time as the Secretary may require, concerning the State agency's activities relating to the disability determination.
Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the secretary to take any action except pursuant to law or to regulations promulgated pursuant to law.”.

“(b)(1) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and other written guidelines, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his finding, and after he has complied with the requirements of paragraph (3), make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

“(2) If a State, having notified the Secretary of its intent to make disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), no longer wishes to make such determinations, it shall notify the Secretary in writing of that fact, and, if an agency of the State is making disability determinations at the time such notice is given, it shall continue to do so for not less than 180 days, or (if later) until the Secretary has complied with the requirements of paragraph (3). Thereafter, the Secretary shall make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

“(3)(A) The Secretary shall develop and initiate all appropriate procedures to implement a plan with respect to any partial or complete assumption by the Secretary of the disability determination function from a State agency, as provided in this section, under which employees of the affected State agency who are capable of performing duties in the disability determination process for the Secretary shall, notwithstanding any other provision of law, have a preference over any other individual in filling an appropriate employment position with the Secretary (subject to any system established by the Secretary for determining hiring priority among such employees of the State agency).

“(B) The Secretary shall not make such assumption of the disability determination function until such time as the Secretary of Labor determines that, with respect to employees of such State agency who will be displaced from their employment on account of such assumption by the Secretary and who will not be hired by the Secretary to perform duties in the disability determination process, the State has made fair and equitable arrangements to protect the interests of employees so displaced. Such protective arrangements shall include only those provisions which are provided under all applicable Federal, State and local statutes including, but not limited to, (1) the preservation of rights, privileges, and benefits (including continuation of pension rights and benefits) under existing collective-bargaining agreements; (2) the continuation of collective-bargaining rights; (3) the assignment of affected employees to other jobs or to retraining programs; (4) the protection of individual employees against a worsening of their positions with respect to their employment; (5) the protection of health benefits and other fringe benefits; and (6) the provision of severance pay, as may be necessary.”.

“(c)(1) The Secretary (in accordance with paragraph (2)) shall review determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are or are not under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)). As a result of any such review, the Secretary may determine that an individual is or is not under a disability (as so defined) or that such individual’s disability began on a day earlier or later than that determined by such agency, or that such disability ceased on a day earlier or later than that determined by such agency. Any review by the Secretary of a State agency determination under the preceding provisions of this paragraph shall be made before any action is taken to implement such determination.

“(2) In carrying out the provisions of paragraph (1) with respect to the review of determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are or are not under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)), the Secretary shall review—

“(B) at least 35 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1982,

and

(d) Section 221(d) of such Act is amended by striking out “(a)” and inserting in lieu thereof “(a), (b)”.

(e) The first sentence of section 221(e) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “which has an agreement with the Secretary” and inserting in lieu thereof “which is making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”,

(2) by striking out “as may be mutually agreed upon” and inserting in lieu thereof “as determined by the Secretary”, and

(3) by striking out “carrying out the agreement under this section” and inserting in lieu thereof “making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”.

(f) Section 221(g) of such Act is amended—
(1) by striking out "has no agreement under subsection (b)" and inserting in lieu thereof "does not undertake to perform disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), or which has been found by the Secretary to have substantially failed to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and guidelines", and

(g) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall implement a program of reviewing, on his motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges as a result of hearings under section 221(d) of the Social Security Act; he shall report to the Congress by January 1, 1982, on his progress; in his report, he shall indicate the percentage of such decisions being reviewed and describe the criteria for selecting decisions to be reviewed and the extent to which such criteria take into account the reversal rates for individual administrative law judges by the Secretary (through the Appeals Council or otherwise), and the reversal rate of State agency determinations by individual administrative law judges.
(h) The amendments made by this section shall be effective beginning with the twelfth month following the month in which this Act is enacted. Any State that, on the effective date of the amendments made by this section, has in effect an agreement with the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare under section 221(a) of the Social Security Act (as in effect prior to such amendments) will be deemed to have given to the Secretary the notice specified in section 221(a)(1) of such Act as amended by this section, in lieu of continuing such agreement in effect after the effective date of such amendments. Thereafter, a State may notify the Secretary in writing that it no longer wishes to make disability determinations, effective not less than 180 days after it is given.

(i) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall submit to the Congress by July 1, 1980, a detailed plan on how he expects to assume the functions and operations of a State disability determination unit when this becomes necessary under the amendments made by this section, and how he intends to meet the requirements of section 221(b)(3) of the Social Security Act. Such plan should assume the uninterrupted operation of the disability determination function and the utilization of the best qualified personnel to carry out such function. If any amendment of Federal law or regulation is required to carry out such plan, recommendations for such amendment should be included in the report.

INFORMATION TO ACCOMPANY SECRETARY'S DECISIONS AS TO CLAIMANT'S RIGHTS

SEC. 305. (a) Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: "Any such decision by the Secretary which involves a determination of disability and which is in whole or in part unfavorable to such individual shall contain a statement of the case, in understandable language, setting forth a discussion of the evidence, and stating the Secretary's determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based."

(b) Section 1631(c)(1) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence thereof the following new sentence: "Any such decision by the Secretary which involves a determination of disability and which is in whole or in part unfavorable to such individual shall contain a statement of the case, in understandable language, setting forth a discussion of the evidence, and stating the Secretary's determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to decisions made on or after the first day of the 13th month following the month in which this Act is enacted.

SEC. 306. (a) Section 202(j)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2) An application for any monthly benefits under this section filed before the first month in which the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits shall be deemed a valid application (and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month) only if the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits before the Secretary makes a final decision on the application and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary)."

(b) Section 216(i)(2)(G) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(and shall be deemed to have been filed on such first day)" immediately after "shall be deemed a valid application" in the first sentence,

(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether

(3) by striking out the second sentence.

(c) Section 223(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting “(and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month)” immediately after “shall be deemed a valid application” in the first sentence,

(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made, or if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).”, and

(3) by striking out the second sentence.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall apply to applications filed after the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON COURT REMANDS

SEC. 307. The sixth sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out all that precedes “and the Secretary shall” and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “The court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown before he files his answer, remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and it may at any time order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, but only upon a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there is good cause for the failure to incorporate such evidence into the record in a prior proceeding;”.

TIME LIMITATIONS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS

SEC. 308. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall submit to the Congress, no later than July 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of appropriate time limitations governing decisions on claims for benefits under title II of the Social Security Act. Such report shall specifically recommend—

(1) the maximum period of time (after application for a payment under such title is filed) within which the initial decision of the Secretary as to the rights of the applicant should be made;

(2) the maximum period of time (after application for reconsideration of any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary on such reconsideration should be made;

(3) the maximum period of time (after a request for a hearing with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary upon such hearing (whether affirmaing, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made; and

(4) the maximum period of time (after a request for review by the Appeals Council with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is made) within which the decision of the Secretary upon such review (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made.

In determining the time limitations to be recommended, the Secretary shall take into account both the need for expeditious processing of claims for benefits and the need to assure that all such claims will be thoroughly considered and accurately determined.

PAYMENT FOR EXISTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE

Sec. 309. (a) Section 223(d)(5) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required and requested by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to evidence requested on or after July 1, 1980.
PAYMENT OF CERTAIN TRAVEL EXPENSES

Sec. 310. (a) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(j) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure, out of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, or the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund (as determined appropriate by the Secretary), such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under this title, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title."

(b) Section 1631 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"Payment of Certain Travel Expenses

"(h) The Secretary shall pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under this title, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably nec-ecessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 1614(e)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations.”.

“(i) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure out of the Trust Fund such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations.

SEC. 311. (a) Section 221 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(i) In any case where an individual is or has been determined to be under a disability, the case shall be reviewed by the applicable State agency or the Secretary (as may be appropriate), for purposes of continuing eligibility, at least once every 3 years; except that where a finding has been made that such disability is permanent, such reviews shall be made at such times as the Secretary determines to be appropriate. Reviews of cases under the preceding sentence shall be in addition to, and shall not be considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required or provided for under or in the administration of this title.

(b) The amendment made by this section shall become effective on the first day of the thirteenth month that begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SCOPE OF FEDERAL COURT REVIEW

Sec. 312. Section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "if supported by substantial evidence" and inserting in lieu thereof "unless found to be arbitrary and capricious".

REPORT BY SECRETARY

Sec. 313. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall submit to the Congress not later than January 1, 1985, a full and complete report as to the effects produced by reason of the preceding provisions of this Act and the amendments made thereby.

(1) striking out “and” at the end of clause (1),
(2) inserting “and” at the end of clause (2), and
(3) adding after and below clause (2) the following new clause:

“(3) equal to 90 percent (rather than the percent specified in clause (1) or (2)) of so much of the sums expended during such quarter as are attributable to the planning, design, development, installation or enhancement of an automatic data processing and information retrieval system which the Secretary finds meets the requirements specified in section 454(16);”.
(b) Section 454 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (14),

(2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (15) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and

(3) by adding after paragraph (15) the following new paragraph:

"(16) provide, at the option of the State, for the establishment, in accordance with an (initial and annually updated) advance automatic data processing planning document approved under section 452(d), of an automatic data processing and information retrieval system designed effectively and efficiently to assist management in the administration of the State plan, in the State and localities thereof, so as (A) to control, account for, and monitor (i) all the factors in the child support enforcement collection and paternity determination process under such plan (including, but not limited to, (I) identifiable correlation factors (such as social security numbers, names, dates of birth, home addresses and mailing addresses (including postal ZIP codes) of any individual with respect to whom child support obligations are sought to be established or enforced and with respect to any person to whom such support obligations are owing) to assure sufficient compatibility among the systems of different jurisdictions to permit periodic screening to determine whether such individual is paying or is obligated to pay child support in more than one jurisdiction, (II) checking of records of such individuals on a periodic basis with Federal, intra- and inter-State, and local agencies, (III) maintaining the data necessary to meet the Federal reporting requirements on a timely basis, and (IV) delinquency and enforcement activities), (ii) the collection and distribution of support payments (both intra- and inter-State), the determination, collection and distribution, of incentive payments both inter- and intra-State, and the maintenance of accounts receivable on all amounts owed, collected and distributed, and (iii) the costs of all services rendered, either directly or by interfacing with State financial management and expenditure information, (B) to provide interface with records of the State's aid to families with dependent children program in order to determine if a collection of a support payment causes a change affecting eligibility for or the amount of aid under such program, (C) to provide for security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system, and (D) to provide management information on all cases under the State plan from initial referral or application through collection and enforcement."

(c) Section 452 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d)(1) The Secretary shall not approve the initial and annually updated advance automatic data processing planning document, referred to in section 454(16), unless he finds that such document, when implemented, will generally carry out the objectives of the management system referred to in such subsection, and such document—

"(A) provides for the conduct of, and reflects the results of, requirements analysis studies, which include consideration of the program mission, functions, organization, services, constraints, and current support, of, in, or relating to, such system,

"(B) contains a description of the proposed management system referred to in section 455(a)(3), including a description of information flows, input data, and output reports and uses,

"(C) sets forth the security and interface requirements to be employed in such management system,

"(D) describes the projected resource requirements for staff and other needs, and the resources available or expected to be available to meet such requirements,"
“(E) contains an implementation plan and backup procedures to handle possible failures,

“(F) contains a summary of proposed improvement of such management system in terms of qualitative and quantitative benefits, and

“(2)(A) The Secretary shall through the separate organizational unit established pursuant to subsection (a), on a continuing basis, review, assess, and inspect the planning, design, and operation of, management information systems referred to in section 455(a)(3), with a view to determining whether, and to what extent, such systems meet and continue to meet requirements imposed under section 452(d)(1) and the conditions specified under section 454(16).

“(B) If the Secretary finds with respect to any statewide management information system referred to in section 455(a)(3) that there is a failure substantially to comply with criteria, requirements, and other undertakings, prescribed by the advance automatic data processing planning document theretofore approved by the Secretary with respect to such system, then the Secretary shall suspend his approval of such document until there is no longer any such failure of such system to comply with such criteria, requirements, and other undertakings so prescribed.”.
(d) Section 452 of the Social Security Act is further amended by inserting after subsection (d) (as added by subsection (c) of this section) the following new subsection:

“(c) The Secretary shall provide such technical assistance to States as he determines necessary to assist States to plan, design, develop, or install and provide for the security of, the management information systems referred to in section 455(a)(3) of this Act.”.

(e) The amendments made by this section shall take effect on January 1, 1980, and shall be effective only with respect to expenditures, referred to in section 455(a)(3) of the Social Security Act (as amended by this Act), made on or after such date.

AFDC MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEM

Sec. 407. (a) Section 403(a)(3) of the Social Security Act is amended by—

(1) striking out “and” at the end of subparagraph (B) (as added by section 402(a) of this Act);

(2) redesignating subparagraph (C) thereof (as redesignated by section 402(a) of this Act) as subparagraph (E); and

(3) by adding after subparagraph (B) (as redesignated by such section) the following new subparagraphs:
“(C) 90 per centum of so much of the sums expended during such quarter (commencing with the quarter which begins April 1, 1980) as are attributable to the planning, design, development, or installation of such statewide mechanized claims processing and information retrieval systems as (i) meet the conditions of section 402(a)(30), and (ii) the Secretary determines are likely to provide more efficient, economical, and effective administration of the plan and to be compatible with the claims processing and information retrieval systems utilized in the administration of State plans approved under title XIX, and State programs with respect to which there is Federal financial participation under title XX,

“(D) 75 per centum of so much of the sums expended during such quarter (commencing with the quarter which begins April 1, 1980) as are attributable to the operation of systems (whether such systems are operated directly by the State or by another person under contract with the State) of the type described in subparagraph (C) (whether or not designed, developed, or installed with assistance under such subparagraph) and which meet the conditions of section 402(a)(30), and”.

(A) by striking out "and" at the end of subparagraph (28),

(B) by striking out the period at the end of subparagraph (29) and inserting in lieu of such period the following: "; and", and

(C) by adding after and below subparagraph (29) thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(30) at the option of the State, provide, effective April 1, 1980 (or at the beginning of such subsequent calendar quarter as the State shall elect), for the establishment and operation, in accordance with an (initial and annually updated) advance automatic data processing planning document approved under subsection (d), of an automated statewide management information system designed effectively and efficiently, to assist management in the administration of the State plan for aid to families with dependent children approved under this part, so as (A) to control and account for (i) all the factors in the total eligibility determination process under such plan for aid (including, but not limited to, (I) identifiable correlation factors (such as social security numbers, names, dates of birth, home addresses, and mailing addresses (including postal ZIP codes), of all applicants and recipients of such aid and the relative with whom any child who is such an applicant or recipient is living) to assure sufficient compatibility among the systems of different jurisdictions to permit periodic screening to determine whether an individual is or has been receiving benefits from more than one jurisdiction, (II) checking records of applicants and recipients of such aid on a periodic basis with other agencies, both intra- and inter-State, for determination and verification of eligibility and payment pursuant to requirements imposed by other provisions of this Act), (ii) the costs, quality, and delivery of funds and services furnished to applicants for and recipients of such aid, (B) to notify the appropriate officials of child support, food stamp, social service, and medical assistance programs approved under title XIX whenever the case becomes ineligible or the amount of aid or services is changed, and (C) to provide for security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system.”.

“(d)(1) The Secretary shall not approve the initial and annually updated advance automatic data processing planning document, referred to in subsection (a)(30), unless he finds that such document, when implemented, will generally carry out the objectives of the statewide management system referred to in such subsection, and such document—

"(A) provides for the conduct of, and reflects the results of, requirements analysis studies, which include consideration of the program mission, functions, organization, services, constraints, and current support, of, in, or relating to, such system,

"(B) contains a description of the proposed statewide management system referred to in section 403(a)(3)(D), including a description of information flows, input data, and output reports and uses,

"(C) sets forth the security and interface requirements to be employed in such statewide management system,

"(D) describes the projected resource requirements for staff and other needs, and the resources available or expected to be available to meet such requirements,

"(E) includes cost-benefit analyses of each alternative management system, data processing services and equipment, and a cost allocation plan containing the basis for rates, both direct and indirect, to be in effect under such statewide management system,

"(F) contains an implementation plan with charts of development events, testing descriptions, proposed acceptance criteria, and backup and fallback procedures to handle possible failure of contingencies, and “(G) contains a summary of proposed improvement of such statewide management system in terms of qualitative and quantitative benefits.

“(2)(A) The Secretary shall, on a continuing basis, review, assess, and inspect the planning, design, and operation of, statewide management information systems referred to in section 403(a)(3)(C), with a view to determining whether, and to what extent, such systems meet and continue to meet requirements imposed under such section and the conditions specified under subsection (a)(30) of this section.

“(B) If the Secretary finds with respect to any statewide management information system referred to in section 403(a)(3)(C) that there is a failure substantially to comply with criteria, requirements, and other undertakings, prescribed by the advance automatic data processing planning document theretofore approved by the Secretary with respect to such system, then the Secretary shall suspend his approval of such document until there is no longer any such failure of such system to comply with such criteria, requirements, and other undertakings so prescribed.”.

(c) Title IV of the Social Security Act is further amended by inserting after section 411 the following new section:
"TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR DEVELOPING MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS

"Sec. 412. The Secretary shall provide such technical assistance to States as he determines necessary to assist States to plan, design, develop, or install and provide for the security of, the management information systems referred to in section 403(a)(3)(C) of this Act."

(d) The amendments made by this section shall take effect on April 1, 1980.

EXPENDITURES FOR THE OPERATION OF STATE PLANS FOR CHILD SUPPORT

Sec. 408. (a) Section 455(b)(2) of such Act is amended by striking out "The Secretary" and inserting in lieu thereof "Subject to subsection (d), the Secretary".

(b) Section 455 is further amended by adding after subsection (c) thereof (as added by section 405 of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(d) Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, no amount shall be paid to any State under this section for the quarter commencing July 1, 1980, or for any succeeding quarter, prior to the close of such quarter, unless for the period consisting of all prior quarters for which payment is authorized to be made to such State under subsection (a), there shall have been submitted by the State to the Secretary, with respect to each quarter in such period (other than the last two quarters in such period), a full and complete report (in such form and manner and containing such information as the Secretary shall prescribe or require) as to the amount of child support collected and disbursed and all expenditures with respect to which payment is authorized under subsection (a).”.

(c)(1) Section 403(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(A) by striking out “and” at the end of clause (A), and

(B) by adding immediately before the semicolon at the end of clause (B) the following: “, and (C) reduced by such amount as is necessary to provide the ‘appropriate reimbursement of the Federal Government’ that the State is required to make under section 457 out of that portion of child support collections retained by it pursuant to such section”.

(2) The amendments made by paragraph (1) shall be effective in the case of calendar quarters commencing after the date of enactment of this Act.

ACCESS TO WAGE INFORMATION FOR PURPOSES OF CARRYING OUT STATE PLANS FOR CHILD SUPPORT

Sec. 409. (a) Part D of title IV of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:
"ACCESS TO WAGE INFORMATION

"SEC. 463. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary shall make available to any State (or political subdivision thereof) wage information (other than returns or return information as defined in section 6103(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954), including amounts earned, period for which it is reported, and name and address of employer, with respect to an individual, contained in the records of the Social Security Administration, which is necessary for purposes of establishing, determining the amount of, or enforcing, such individual's child support obligations which the State has undertaken to enforce pursuant to a State plan described in section 454 which has been approved by the Secretary under this part, and which information is specifically requested by such State or political subdivision for such purposes.

"(b) The Secretary shall establish such safeguards as are necessary (as determined by the Secretary under regulations) to insure that information made available under the provisions of this section is used only for the purposes authorized by this section.

"(c) For disclosure of return information (as defined in section 6103(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954) contained in the records of the Social Security Administration for purposes described in paragraph (a), see section 6103(l)(7) of such Code.”

(b) Section 3304(a) of the Federal Unemployment Tax Act is amended by redesignating paragraph (17) as paragraph (18) and by inserting after paragraph (16) the following new paragraph:

“(17)(A) wage and other relevant information (including amounts earned, period for which reported, and name and address of employer), with respect to an individual, contained in the records of the agency administering the State law which is necessary (as jointly determined by the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare in regulations) for purposes of establishing, determining the amount of, or enforcing, such individual’s child support obligations which the State has undertaken to enforce pursuant to a State plan described in section 454 of the Social Security Act which has been approved by such Secretary under part D of title IV of such Act, and which information is specifically requested by such State or political subdivision for such purposes, and

information is used only for the purposes authorized under subparagraph (A);”.

“(7) Disclosure of certain return information to Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and to state and local welfare agencies.—

“(A) Disclosure by Social Security Administration to Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.—Officers and employees of the Social Security Administration shall, upon request, disclose return information with respect to net earnings from self-employment (as defined in section 1402(a)) and wages (as defined in section 3121(a), or 3401(a)), which has been disclosed to them as provided by paragraph (1)(A) of this subsection, to other officers and employees of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for a necessary purpose described in section 463(a) of the Social Security Act.

the Social Security Administration shall, upon written request, disclose return information with respect to net earnings from self-employment (as defined in section 1402(a) and wages as defined in section 3121(a), or 3401(a)), which has been disclosed to them as provided by paragraph (1)(A) of this subsection, directly to officers and employees of an appropriate State or local agency, body, or commission for a necessary purpose described in section 463(a) of the Social Security Act.

"(C) DISCLOSURE BY AGENCY ADMINISTERING STATE UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION LAWS.—Officers and employees of a State agency, body, or commission which is charged under the laws of such State with the responsibility for the administration of State unemployment compensation laws approved by the Secretary of Labor as provided by section 3304 shall, upon written request, disclose return information with respect to wages (as defined in section 3306(b)) which has been disclosed to them as provided by this title directly to officers and employees of an appropriate State or local agency, body, or commission for a necessary purpose described in section 3304(a) (16) or (17)."
(2) Section 6103(n) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended to read as follows:

"(n) Certain Other Persons.—Pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Secretary—

"(1) Returns and return information may be disclosed to any person, including any person described in section 7513(a), to the extent necessary in connection with the processing, storage, transmission, and reproduction of such returns and return information, and the programing, maintenance, repair, testing, and procurement of equipment, for purposes of tax administration, and

"(2) Return information disclosed to officers or employees of a State or local agency, body, or commission as provided in subsection (l)(7) may be disclosed by such officers or employees to any person to the extent necessary in connection with the processing and utilization of such return information for a necessary purpose described in section 463(a) of the Social Security Act."

(3) Paragraph (3)(A) of section 6103(p) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended by striking out "“(l)(1) or (4)(B) or (5)” and inserting in lieu thereof ““(l)(1), (4)(B), (5), or (7)”".
(4) Paragraph (4) of section 6103(p) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended by striking out "agency, body, or commission described in subsection (d) or (l)(3) or (6)" and inserting in lieu thereof "agency, body, or commission described in subsection (d) or (l)(3), (6), or (7)".

(5) Subparagraph (F)(i) of paragraph (4) of section 6103(p)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended by striking out "an agency, body, or commission described in subsection (d) or (l)(6)" and inserting in lieu thereof "an agency, body, or commission described in subsection (d) or (l)(6) or (7)".

(6) The first sentence of paragraph (2) of section 7213(a) of the Internal Revenue Code is amended by striking out "subsection (d), (l)(6), or (m)(4)(B)" and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (d), (l)(6) or (7), or (m)(4)(B)".

(d) The amendments made by this section shall take effect on January 1, 1980.

TITLE V—OTHER PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN SOCIAL SECURITY AND SSI BENEFITS

SEC. 501. (a) Part A of title XI of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:
"ADJUSTMENT OF RETROACTIVE BENEFIT UNDER TITLE II ON ACCOUNT OF SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME BENEFITS

"Sec. 1132. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, in any case where an individual—

"(1) makes application for benefits under title II and is subsequently determined to be entitled to those benefits, and

"(2) was an individual with respect to whom supplemental security income benefits were paid under title XVI (including State supplementary payments which were made under an agreement pursuant to section 1616(a) or an administration agreement under section 212 of Public Law 93–66) for one or more months during the period beginning with the first month for which a benefit described in paragraph (1) is payable and ending with the month before the first month in which such benefit is paid pursuant to the application referred to in paragraph (1), the benefits (described in paragraph (1)) which are otherwise retroactively payable to such individual for months in the period described in paragraph (2) shall be reduced by an amount equal to so much of such supplemental security income benefits (including State supplementary payments) described in paragraph (2) for such month or months as would not have been paid with respect to such individual or his eligible spouse if the individual had received the benefits under title II at the times they were regularly due during such period rather than retroactively; and from the amount of such reduction the Secretary shall reimburse the State on behalf of which such supplementary payments were made for the amount (if any) by which such State’s expenditures on account of such supplementary payments for the period involved exceeded the expenditures which the State would have made (for such period) if the individual had received the benefits under title II at the times they were regularly due during such period rather than retroactively. An amount equal to the portion of such reduction remaining after reimbursement of the State under the preceding sentence shall be covered into the general fund of the Treasury.”.

(b) Section 204 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(e) For payments which are adjusted by reason of payment of benefits under the supplemental security income program established by title XVI, see section 1132.”.

(c) Section 1631(b) of such Act is amended by—

(1) inserting “(1)” immediately after “(b)”, and

(2) adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:
“(2) For payments for which adjustments are made by reason of a retroactive payment of benefits under title II, see section 1132.”.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be applicable in the case of payments of monthly insurance benefits under title II of the Social Security Act entitlement for which is determined after March 31, 1980.

EXTENSION OF NATIONAL COMMISSION ON SOCIAL SECURITY

Sec. 502. (a) Section 361(a)(2)(F) of the Social Security Amendments of 1977 is amended by striking out “a term of two years” and inserting in lieu thereof “a term which shall end on April 1, 1981”.

(b) Section 361(c)(2) of the Social Security Amendments of 1977 is amended by striking out all that follows the semicolon and inserting in lieu thereof “and the Commission shall cease to exist on April 1, 1981.”.

TIME FOR MAKING OF SOCIAL SECURITY CONTRIBUTIONS WITH RESPECT TO COVERED STATE AND LOCAL EMPLOYEES

Sec. 503. (a) Subparagraph (A) of section 218(e)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“(A) that the State will pay to the Secretary of the Treasury, within the thirty-day period immediately following the last day of each calendar month, amounts equivalent to the sum of the taxes which would be imposed by sections 3101 and 3111 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 if the services for which wages were paid in such month to employees covered by the agreement constituted employment as defined in section 3121 of such Code; and”.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall be effective with respect to the payment of taxes (referred to in section 218(e)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act, as amended by subsection (a)) on account of wages paid on or after July 1, 1980.

(c) The provisions of section 7 of Public Law 94–202 shall not be applicable to any regulation which becomes effective on or after July 1, 1980, and which is designed to carry out the purposes of subsection (a) of this section.

ELIGIBILITY OF ALIENS FOR SSI BENEFITS

Sec. 504. (a) Section 1614(a)(1)(B) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“(B) is a resident of the United States, and is either (i) a citizen, or (ii) an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence, or otherwise permanently residing in the United States under color of law (including any alien who is lawfully present in the United States as a result of the application of the provisions of section 203(a)(7) or who has been paroled into the United States as a refugee under section 212(d)(5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act) and who has resided in the United States throughout the 3-year period immediately preceding the month in which he applies for benefits under this title. For purposes of clause (ii), an alien shall not be required to meet the 3-year residency requirement if (I) such alien has been lawfully admitted to the United States as a refugee as a result of the application of the provisions of section 203(a)(7) or has been paroled into the United States as a refugee under section 212(d)(5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, or has been granted political asylum by the Attorney General, (II) the support agreement with respect to such alien under section 216 of the Immigration and Nationality Act is excused and unenforceable pursuant to subsection (c) of such section, (III) the sponsor of such alien (as defined in section 216 of the Immigration and Nationality Act) fails to provide support for such alien under the terms of the support agreement as required under such section 216, and such alien affirmatively demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that he did not participate in any fraud, collusion, or misrepresentation on the part of the sponsor, that he believed in good faith that the sponsor had adequate financial resources to support him, and that he could not have reasonably foreseen the refusal or inability of the sponsor to comply with the support agreement (provided that the 3-year residency requirement shall not apply only for the period during which such sponsor fails to provide support under such agreement), or (IV) such alien is blind (as determined under paragraph (2)) or disabled (as determined under paragraph (3)) and the medical condition which caused his blindness or disability arose after the date of his admission to the United States for permanent residence. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the medical condition which caused his blindness or disability shall be presumed to have arisen prior to the date of his admission to the United States for permanent residence if it was reasonable to believe, based upon evidence available on or before such date of admission, that such medical condition existed and would result in blindness or disability within 3 years after such date of admission, and the medical condition which caused his blindness or disability shall be presumed to have arisen after such date of admission to the United States for permanent residence if the existence of such medical condition was not known on or before such date of admission, or, if the existence of such medical condition was known, it was not reasonable to believe, based upon evidence available on or before such date of admission, that such medical condition would result in blindness or disability within 3 years after such date of admission.”.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply only with respect to aliens applying for supplemental security income benefits under title XVI of the Social Security Act on or after January 1, 1980.

AUTHORITY FOR DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS

Sec. 505. (a)(1) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall develop and carry out experiments and demonstration projects designed to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of (A) various alternative methods of treating the work activity of disabled beneficiaries under the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program, including such methods as a reduction in benefits based on earnings, designed to encourage the return to work of disabled beneficiaries and (B) altering other limitations and conditions application to such disabled beneficiaries (including, but not limited to, lengthening the trial work period, altering the 24-month waiting period for medicare benefits, altering the manner in which such program is administered, earlier referral of beneficiaries for rehabilitation, and greater use of employers and others to develop, perform, and otherwise stimulate new forms of rehabilitation), to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds, or to otherwise promote the objectives or facilitate the administration of title II of the Social Security Act.

(2) The experiments and demonstration projects developed under paragraph (1) shall be of sufficient scope and shall be carried out on a wide enough scale to permit a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration while giving assurance that the results derived from the experiments and projects will obtain generally in the operation of the disability insurance program without committing such program to the adoption of any particular system either locally or nationally.

(3) In the case of any experiment or demonstration project under paragraph (1), the Secretary may waive compliance with the benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII of the Social Security Act insofar as is necessary for a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration. No such experiment or project shall be actually placed in operation unless at least ninety days prior thereto a written report, prepared for purposes of notification and information only and containing a full and complete description thereof, has been transmitted by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate. Periodic reports on the progress of such experiments and demonstration projects shall be submitted by the Secretary to such committees. When appropriate, such reports shall include detailed recommendations for changes in administration or law, or both, to carry out the objectives stated in paragraph (1).

(4) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall submit to the Congress no later than January 1, 1983, a report on the experiments and demonstration projects with respect to work incentives carried out under this section together with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(5) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(k) Expenditures made for experiments and demonstration projects under section 505(a) of the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1979 shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, as determined appropriate by the Secretary.”.

(b) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is authorized to waive any of the requirements, conditions, or limitations of title XVI of the Social Security Act (or to waive them only for specified purposes, or to impose additional requirements, conditions, or limitations) to such extent and for such period as he finds necessary to carry out one or more experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects which, in his judgment, are likely to assist in promoting the objectives or facilitate the administration of such title. Any costs for benefits under or administration of any such project (including planning for the project and the review and evaluation of the project and its results), in excess of those that would have been incurred without regard to the project, shall be met by the Secretary from amounts available to him for this purpose from appropriations made to carry out such title. The costs of any such project which is carried out in coordination with one or more related projects under other titles of such Act or any other Act shall be allocated among the appropriations available for such projects and any Trust Funds involved, in a manner determined by the Secretary, taking into consideration the programs (or types of benefits) to which the project (or part of a project) is most closely related or which the project (or part of a project) is intended to benefit. If, in order to carry out a project under this subsection, the Secretary requests a State to make supplementary payments (or makes them himself pursuant to an agreement under section 1616 of such Act), or to provide medical assistance under its plan approved under title XIX of such Act, to individuals who are not eligible therefor, or in amounts or under circumstances in which the State does not make such payments or provide such medical assistance, the Secretary shall reimburse such State for the non-Federal share of such payments or assistance from amounts appropriated to carry out title XVI of such Act.

(c) Any requirements of title II of Public Law 93–348 otherwise held applicable are hereby waived with respect to conditions of payment of benefits under title II or XVI of the Social Security Act or to coverage, or copayments, deductibles, or other limitations on payment for services (whether of general application or in effect only on a trial or demonstration basis) under programs established under titles XVIII and XIX of such Act. Notwithstanding the first sentence of this subsection, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare in carrying out, approving, or reviewing any application for, any experimental, pilot, or demonstration project pursuant to the Social Security Act or this Act shall apply any appropriate requirements of title II of Public Law 93–348 and any regulations promulgated thereunder in making his decision on whether to approve such application.

(d) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress a final report with respect to all experiments and demonstration projects carried out under this subsection no later than five years after the date of the enactment of this Act.
INCLUSION IN WAGES OF FICA TAXES PAID BY EMPLOYER

Sec. 506. (a) Section 209(f) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(f) The payment by an employer (without deduction from the remuneration of the employee) (1) of the tax imposed upon an employee under section 3101 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (A) for wages paid for domestic service in a private home of the employer, or (B) if such employer is a 'small business concern' as that term is employed in the administration of section 7(a) of the Small Business Act (relating to business loans), or (C) if such employer is a State or political subdivision thereof, or (D) if such employer is a private nonprofit organization, which is exempt from income tax under section 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or (2) of any payment required from an employee under a State unemployment compensation law;".

(b) Section 3121(a)(6) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended to read as follows:

"(6) the payment by an employer (without deduction from the remuneration of the employee)—

"(A) of the tax imposed upon an employee under section 3101 of this Code (i) for wages paid for domestic service in a private home of the employer, or (ii) if such employer is a 'small business concern' as that term is employed in the administration of section 7(a) of the Small Business Act (relating to business loans), or (iii) if such employer is a State or political subdivision thereof, or (iv) if such employer is a private non-profit organization, which is exempt from income tax under section 501(a), or

"(B) of any payment required from an employee under a State unemployment compensation law;"

(c) The amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to remuneration paid after December 31, 1980.

VOLUNTARY CERTIFICATION OF MEDICARE SUPPLEMENTAL HEALTH INSURANCE POLICIES

Sec. 507. (a) Title XVIII of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Sec. 1882. (a) The Secretary shall establish a procedure whereby medicare supplemental policies (as defined in subsection (g)) may be certified by the Secretary as meeting minimum standards set forth in subsection (c). Such procedure shall provide an opportunity for any insurer to submit any such policy, and such additional data as the Secretary finds necessary, to the Secretary for his examination and for his certification thereof as meeting the standards set forth in subsection (c). Such certification shall remain in effect, if the insurer files a statement with the Secretary no later than December 31 of each year stating that the policy continues to meet the standards set forth in subsection (c), and if the insurer submits such additional data as the Secretary finds necessary to independently verify the accuracy of such notarized statement. Where the Secretary determines such a policy meets (or continues to meet) the required standards, he shall authorize the insurer to have printed on such policy an emblem which the Secretary shall cause to be designed for use as an indication that a policy has received the Secretary’s certification. The Secretary shall provide each State insurance commissioner with a list of all the policies which have received his certification.

"(b) Any medicare supplemental policy issued in any State which has established under State law a regulatory program providing for the application of minimum standards with respect to such policies equal to or more stringent than the standards provided for under subsection (c) shall be deemed (for so long as the Secretary finds such State program continues to require compliance with such standards) to meet the standards set forth in subsection (c)."
“(c) The Secretary shall not certify under this section any medicare supplemental policy for any period, nor continue a certification for any period, unless he finds that for such period such policy—

“(1) meets standards set forth by the Secretary with respect to adequacy of coverage (either in a single policy or, in the case of nonprofit hospital and medical service associations, in one or more policies issued in conjunction with one another), but such standards shall not require coverage in excess of coverage of the part A medicare deductible and the following coverage required under section 7(1)(2) of the ‘NAIC Model Regulation to Implement the Individual Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Act’, adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on June 6, 1979:

“(A) coverage of part A medicare eligible expenses for hospitalization to the extent not covered under part A from the 61st day through the 90th day in any medicare benefit period;

“(B) coverage of part A medicare eligible expenses incurred as daily hospital charges during use of medicare’s lifetime hospital inpatient reserve days;
“(C) upon exhaustion of all medicare hospital inpatient coverage, including the lifetime reserve days, coverage of 90 percent of all medicare part A eligible expenses for hospitalization not covered by medicare, subject to a lifetime maximum benefit of an additional 365 days; and

“(D) coverage of 20 percent of the amount of medicare eligible expenses under part B regardless of hospital confinement, subject to a maximum calendar year out-of-pocket deductible of $200 of such expenses and to a maximum benefit of at least $5,000 per calendar year;

“(2) is written in simplified language, and in a form, which can be easily understood by purchasers;

“(3) does not limit or preclude liability under the policy for a period longer than 6 months because of a health condition existing before the policy is effective;

“(4) contains a prominently displayed ‘no loss cancellation clause’ enabling the insured to return the policy within 30 days of the date of receipt of the policy (or the certificate issued thereunder) with return in full of any premium paid;

“(5) can be expected (as estimated for such period, not to exceed one year, to the maximum extent appropriate, on the basis of actual claims experience and premiums for such policy and in accordance with accepted actuarial principles and practices) to return to policyholders in the form of aggregate benefits provided under the policy, at least 75 percent of the aggregate amount of premiums collected in the case of group policies, and at least 60 percent of the aggregate amount of premiums collected in the case of individual policies; and

"(6) contains a written statement, in such form as the Secretary may prescribe, for prospective purchasers of such information as the Secretary shall prescribe relating to (A) the policy's premium, coverage in relation to the coverage and exclusions under medicare, and renewability provisions, and (B) the identification of the insurer and its agents.

"(d)(1) Whoever knowingly or willfully makes or causes to be made or induces or seeks to induce the making of any false statement or representation of a material fact with respect to the compliance of any policy with the standards set forth in subsection (c) or in regulations promulgated pursuant to such subsection, or with respect to the use of the emblem designed by the Secretary under subsection (a), shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both."
“(2) Whoever falsely assumes or pretends to be acting, or misrepresents in any way that he is acting under the authority of or in association with, the program of health insurance established by this title, or any Federal agency, for the purpose of selling or attempting to sell insurance, or in such pretended character demands, or obtains money, paper, documents, or anything of value, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

“(3)(A) Whoever knowingly sells a health insurance policy to an individual entitled to benefits under part A or enrolled under part B of this title, with knowledge that such policy substantially duplicates health benefits to which such individual is otherwise entitled, other than benefits to which he is entitled under a requirement of State or Federal law (other than this title), shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

“(B) For purposes of this paragraph, benefits which are payable to or on behalf of an individual without regard to other health benefit coverage of such individual, shall not be considered as duplicative.

“(C) This paragraph shall not apply with respect to the selling of a group policy or plan of one or more employers or labor organizations, or of the trustees of a fund established by one or more employers or labor organizations (or combination thereof), for employees or former employees (or combination thereof) or members or former members (or combination thereof) of the labor organizations.

"(4)(A) Whoever knowingly, directly or through his agent, mails or causes to be mailed any matter for a prohibited purpose (as determined under subparagraph (B)) shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

"(B) A prohibited purpose means the advertising, solicitation, or offer for sale of a medicare supplemental policy (or a certificate issued thereunder), or the delivery of such a policy (or a certificate issued thereunder), into any State in which such policy or certificate has not been approved by the State commissioner or superintendent of insurance. For purposes of this paragraph any medicare supplemental policy (or a certificate issued thereunder) shall be deemed to be approved by the State commissioner or superintendent of insurance of such State if (i) it has been approved by the commissioners or superintendents of insurance in the States in which more than 30 percent of such policies or certificates are sold, or (ii) such State has in effect a law which the commissioner or superintendent of insurance has determined gives him the authority to review, and to approve, or effectively bar from sale in the State, such policy or certificate; except that such a policy or certificate shall not be deemed to be approved by a State commissioner or superintendent of insurance if such State requests to the Secretary that such policy or certificate be subject to such State's approval.

"(C) This paragraph shall not apply in the case of a person who mails or causes to be mailed a medicare supplemental policy (or certificate issued thereunder) into a State if such person has ascertained that the party insured under such policy to whom (or on whose behalf) such policy or certificate is mailed is located in such State on a temporary basis.

"(D) This paragraph shall not apply in the case of a person who mails or causes to be mailed a duplicate copy of a medicare supplemental policy (or of a certificate issued thereunder) previously issued to the party to whom (or on whose behalf) such duplicate copy is mailed, if such policy or certificate expires not more than 12 months after the date on which the duplicate copy is mailed.

"(e) The Secretary shall provide to all individuals entitled to benefits under this title (and to the extent feasible, individuals about to become so entitled) such information as will permit such individuals to evaluate the value of medicare supplemental policies to them and the relationship of any such policies to benefits provided under this title.
"(f)(1)(A) The Secretary shall, in consultation with Federal and State regulatory agencies, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, private insurers, and organizations representing consumers and the aged, conduct a comprehensive study and evaluation of the comparative effectiveness of various State approaches to the regulation of medicare supplemental policies in (i) limiting marketing and agent abuse, (ii) assuring the dissemination of such information to individuals entitled to benefits under this title (and to other consumers) as is necessary to permit informed choice, (iii) promoting policies which provide reasonable economic benefits for such individuals, (iv) reducing the purchase of unnecessary duplicative coverage, (v) improving price competition, and (vi) establishing effective State programs as described in subsection (b).

"(B) Such study shall also address the need for standards or certification of health insurance policies sold to individuals eligible for benefits under this title, other than medicare supplemental policies.

"(C) The Secretary shall, no later than July 1, 1981, submit a report to the Congress on the results of such study and evaluation, accompanied by such recommendations as the Secretary finds warranted by such results with respect to the need for legislative or administrative changes to accomplish the objectives set forth in subparagraphs (A) and (B), including the need for a mandatory Federal regulatory program to assure the marketing of appropriate types of Medicare supplemental policies, and such other means as he finds may be appropriate to enhance effective State regulation of such policies.

"(2) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress on January 1, 1982, and periodically as may be appropriate thereafter (but not less often than once every 2 years), a report evaluating the effectiveness of the certification procedure and the criminal penalties established under this section, and shall include in such reports an analysis of—

"(A) the impact of such procedure and penalties on the types, market share, value, and cost to individuals entitled to benefits under this title of Medicare supplemental policies which have been certified by the Secretary;

"(B) the need for any changes in the certification procedure to improve its administration or effectiveness; and

"(C) whether the certification program and criminal penalties should be continued.

"(g) For purposes of this section, a Medicare supplemental policy is a health insurance policy or other health benefit plan offered by a private entity to individuals who are entitled to have payment made under this title, which provides reimbursement for expenses incurred for services and items for which payment may be made under this title but which are not reimbursable by reason of the applicability of deductibles, coinsurance amounts, or other limitations imposed pursuant to this title; but does not include any such policy or plan of one or more employers or labor organizations, or of the trustees of a fund established by one or more employers or labor organizations (or combination thereof), for employees or former employees (or combination thereof) or members or former members (or combination thereof) of the labor organizations.

"(h) The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary for the effective, efficient, and equitable administration of the certification procedure established under this section."

(b) The amendment made by this section shall become effective on the date of the enactment of this Act, except that the provisions of paragraph (4) of section 1882(d) of the Social Security Act (as added by this section) shall become effective on January 1, 1982.

(c)(1) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall issue final regulations to implement the certification procedure established under section 1882(a) of the Social Security Act not later than October 1, 1980. No policy shall be certified and no policy may be issued bearing the emblem authorized by the Secretary under such section, until January 1, 1982. On and after January 1, 1982, policies certified by the Secretary may bear such emblem, including policies which were issued prior to January 1, 1982, and were subsequently certified, and insurers may notify holders of such certified policies issued prior to January 1, 1982, using such emblem in the notification.

(2)(A) The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall not implement the certification program established under section 1882(a) of the Social Security Act with respect to any State unless he makes a finding, based on the study carried out under section 1882(f)(1)(A)(vi) of such Act and information submitted by such State, that such State cannot be expected to have established, by January 1, 1982, a program meeting the requirements of section 1882(c) of the Social Security Act. If the Secretary makes such a finding, and such finding is not disapproved under subparagraph (B), he shall implement such program under section 1882(a) with respect to medicare supplemental policies sold in such State, until such time as such State meets the requirements of section 1882(b) of such Act.

(B)(i) Any finding by the Secretary under subparagraph (A) shall be transmitted in writing to the Senate Committee on Finance and the House of Representatives Committees on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and Ways and Means.

(ii) The findings of the Secretary shall not become effective until 60 days after transmittal of the report to the Congress. In counting such days the continuity of a session of Congress is broken only by an adjournment of the Congress sine die, and the days on which either House is not in session because of an adjournment of more than three days to a day certain are excluded in the computation of the period indicated.

TITLE VI—A PROVISION RELATING TO THE IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY ACT

SUPPORT OF ALIENS

Sec. 601. (a) Chapter 2 of title II of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Sec. 216. (a) No alien shall be admitted to the United States for permanent residence unless (1) at the time of application for admission an agreement described in subsection (b) with respect to such alien has been submitted to, and approved by, the Attorney General (in the case of an alien applying while in the United States) or the Secretary of State (in the case of an alien applying while outside the United States), or (2) such alien presents evidence to the satisfaction of the Attorney General or Secretary of State (as may be appropriate) that he has other means to provide the rate of support described in subsection (b). The provisions of this section shall not apply to any alien who is admitted as a refugee under section 203(a)(7), paroled as a refugee under section 212(d)(5), or granted political asylum by the Attorney General.

“(b) The agreement referred to in subsection (a) shall be signed by a person (hereinafter in this section referred to as the ‘immigration sponsor’) who presents evidence to the satisfaction of the Attorney General or Secretary of State (as may be appropriate) that he will provide to the alien the financial support required by this subsection, and such agreement shall constitute a contract between the United States and the immigration sponsor. Such agreement shall be in such form and contain such information as the Attorney General or Secretary of State (as may be appropriate) may require. In such agreement the immigration sponsor shall agree to provide as a condition for the admission of the alien, for the full three-year period beginning on the date of the alien’s admission, such financial support (or equivalent in kind support) as is necessary to maintain the alien’s income at a dollar amount equal to the amount such alien would receive in benefits under title XVI of the Social Security Act, including State supplementary benefits payable in the State in which such alien resides under section 1616 of such Act and section 212 of the Act of July 9, 1973 (Public Law 93–66), if such alien were an 'aged, blind, or disabled individual' as defined in section 1614(a) of the Social Security Act. A copy of such agreement shall be filed with the Attorney General and shall be available upon request by any party authorized to enforce such agreement under subsection (c).

"(c)(1) Subject to paragraphs (3) and (4), the agreement described in subsection (b) may be enforced with respect to an alien against his immigration sponsor in a civil action brought by the Attorney General or by the alien. Such action shall be brought in the United States district court for the district in which the immigration sponsor resides or in which such alien resides, without regard to the amount in controversy.

"(2) Subject to paragraph (4), for the purpose of assuring the efficient use of funds available for public welfare, the agreement described in subsection (b) may be enforced with respect to an alien against his immigration sponsor in a civil action brought by any State (or the Northern Mariana Islands), or political subdivision thereof, which is making payments to, or on behalf of, such alien under any program based on need. Such action may be brought in the United States district court for the district in which the immigration sponsor resides or in which such alien resides, if the amount in controversy is $10,000 or more (or without regard to the amount in controversy if the action cannot be brought in any State court), or in the State courts for the State in which the immigration sponsor resides or in which such alien resides, without regard to the amount in controversy.

"(3) The right granted to an alien under paragraph (1) to bring a civil action to enforce an agreement described in subsection (b) shall terminate upon the commencement of a civil action to enforce such agreement brought by the Attorney General under paragraph (1) or by a State (or political subdivision thereof) under paragraph (2).

"(4) The agreement described in subsection (b) shall be excused and unenforceable against the immigration sponsor or his estate if—

"(A) the immigration sponsor dies or is adjudicated as bankrupt under the Bankruptcy Act,

"(B) the alien is blind or disabled from causes arising after the date of admission for permanent residence (as determined under section 1614(a) of the Social Security Act),

"(C) the sponsor affirmatively demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that his financial resources subsequent to the date of entering into the support agreement have diminished for reasons beyond his control and that he is financially incapable of supporting the alien, or

"(D) judgment cannot be obtained in court because of circumstances unforeseeable to the alien at the time of the agreement.

"(d)(1) If an agreement under subsection (b) becomes excused and unenforceable under the provisions of subsection (c)(4)(C) on account of the sponsor's inability to financially support the alien, such agreement shall remain excused and unenforceable only for so long as such sponsor remains unable to support the alien (as determined by the Attorney General), but in no case shall the agreement be enforceable after the expiration of the three-year period designated in the agreement. The sponsor shall not be responsible for support of the alien for the time during which the agreement was excused and unenforceable, except as provided in paragraph (2).

"(2)(A) If the Attorney General determines that a sponsor intentionally reduced his income or assets for the purpose of excusing a support agreement, and such agreement was excused as a result of such reduction, the sponsor shall be responsible for the support of the alien in the same manner as if such agreement had not been excused, and shall be responsible for repayment of any public assistance provided to such alien during the time such agreement was so excused.

(b) The table of contents for chapter 2 of title II of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

(c) Section 212(a)(15) of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by inserting before the semicolon the following: “, or who fail to meet the requirements of section 216”.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to aliens applying for immigrant visas or adjustment of status to permanent resident on or after the first day of the fourth month following the date of the enactment of this Act.
Amend the title so as to read: "An Act to amend the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability programs, and for other purposes."

Passed the House of Representatives September 6, 1979.

Attest: EDMUND L. HENSHAW, JR.,
Clerk.

Passed the Senate January 31 (legislative day, January 3), 1980.

Attest: J. S. KIMMITT, Secretary.
SENATE PASSES DISABILITY LEGISLATION

On January 31 the Senate concluded debate and passed H.R. 3236, the "Social Security Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979," by a vote of 87-1. On December 5, the Senate began debate on the bill, agreeing to adopt two additional Finance Committee amendments. Final debate occurred on January 30 and 31. With the exception of the modifications described below, the Senate passed the Finance Committee-reported version of H.R. 3236 (See Legislative Report No. 4). The House and Senate must now reach agreement on the differences between their respective bills.

Senate Floor Amendments

- Modification of Senate Finance Committee Amendment to Count Employer Payment of an Employee's Portion of the Social Security Tax as Wages for Social Security Tax Purposes -- Thurmond (R, SC)

  Under present law, any employer payment of the employee portion of the FICA tax is not counted as wages to the employee for social security purposes. The Senate Finance Committee provision would have counted employer payment of the employee share of FICA tax as wages to the employee except for domestic employees. The Senate-passed amendment extends the exclusion to State and local governments, small business employers (as defined by the Small Business Administration), including farmers, and tax-exempt institutions from the change in law. The provision would be effective with respect to remuneration paid after December 31, 1980.

- Elimination of the Waiting Period in Terminal Illness Cases -- Bayh (D, IN)

  In cases where a person has an impairment that has been confirmed by two physicians that is expected to result in death within 12 months (the bill does not spell out the reference point of the 12-month period), the 5-month disability waiting-period requirement would be eliminated. Thus, social security disability benefit payments could be made for the first full month of disability. Benefits would not be payable for months before October 1980.

- Make Sponsors' Agreements of Support of Aliens Legally Binding -- Percy (R, IL)

  Would amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to make sponsors' agreements of support for aliens legally binding for a 3-year period; exceptions are provided for refugees, aliens granted political asylum, aliens who become blind or disabled because of a medical condition arising after entry, and for sponsors who die or suffer an unforeseeable change in financial circumstances. The amendment also modifies the 3-year residency requirement for SSI eligibility on the part of aliens (added to the bill by the Senate Finance Committee): if a sponsor, without good cause, fails to comply with his support agreement, SSI benefits would be payable to the alien without regard to the 3-year residency requirement while the Federal Government pursues enforcement of the agreement.

Protect State Employees Where a State Disability Determination Process is Federalized -- Nelson (D, WI)

The Secretary of HEW would be required to develop a plan to provide State employees who are capable of performing duties in the disability determination process a hiring preference, notwithstanding any other preference in law, when the Secretary partially or fully assumes the disability determination function of a State agency. The Secretary could not assume such function until the Secretary of Labor determines that the State has made arrangements to protect employees who will not be hired under every applicable Federal, State, and local statute.

Limit Federal Right to Regulate State Agencies Making Disability Determinations -- Talmadge (D, GA)

The Secretary, in promulgating regulations describing performance standards and other criteria for State agencies making disability determinations (which would take the place of the current State agreements), would be prohibited from taking any action except those authorized by law or regulations pursuant to law.

The Secretary will undertake a program of review of disability decisions by administrative law judges (ALJ's) and will report to the Congress by January 1, 1982, on the percentage of decisions being reviewed. The report will also describe the criteria for selecting those to be reviewed and the extent to which individual ALJ reversal rates and other factors are taken into account.

Provide for Voluntary Certification of Medicare Supplemental Health Insurance Policies (MediGap) -- Baucus (D, MT)

The Secretary would establish a voluntary program which would certify Medicare supplemental health insurance (known as MediGap) policies which meet certain minimum standards. Final regulations to announce the certification procedures would be issued by October 1, 1980, with actual issuance of seals of certification to begin January 1, 1982. The proposal would require a finding based on a study by the Secretary to be submitted to the Congress that State programs are inadequate before implementation of the voluntary certification program.

The proposal would also require the Secretary to make information available to persons entitled to Medicare to help them evaluate such private health insurance policies and provide increased penalties for insurers and their agents for misrepresentation.

William J. Driver
Commissioner
Mr. LONG. I thank the Senator. Mr. President, I look forward to the day when we will have the bill before us and will be discussing it.

Between now and then, however, if our plans can be assured, we are going to be here with a major health bill. I hope it will point us to what will be in the best interests of the Nation.

We will have something that is broader, I hope, than just a catastrophic illness insurance bill. But I hope it will at least cover catastrophic illness.

We will certainly try to provide the best answers in both areas.

Mr. President, I move that the Senate insist on its amendments to the bill H.R. 3236, I ask for a conference with the House thereon, and that the Chair appoint conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to, and the Presiding Officer (Mr. Exon) appointed Messrs. LONG, TALMADGE, RIBICOFF, NELSON, BAUCUS, DOLE, DANFORTH, and DURENBERGER conferees on the part of the Senate.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill H.R. 3236 be printed as amended by the Senate.

Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed.

Mr. ROBERT C. BYRD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The title was amended so as to read:

An Act to amend the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability programs, and for other purposes.
APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON HR. 3236, DISABILITY INSURANCE AMENDMENTS OF 1979

Mr. ULLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 3236) to amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Mowea). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, is it the expectation of the chairman this bill will move to conference promptly, or what is his expectation?

Mr. ULLMAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONABLE. I yield to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. ULLMAN. That certainly is the intention of the chairman, just as rapidly as we can go to conference, hopefully tomorrow.

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. ULLMAN)?

Mr. ROUSSELOT. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, can the gentleman briefly describe what this bill is?

Mr. ULLMAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROUSSELOT. I yield to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. ULLMAN. As the gentleman knows, this is a bill out of the Subcommittee on Social Security that tightens up on the disability provision.

The gentleman from the subcommittee will be happy to respond.

Mr. ROUSSELOT. Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, is this the Pickle bill; is it not?

Mr. PICKLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROUSSELOT. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PICKLE. This is the disability bill that offers a great deal of work incentive for people who are disabled so they would be urged to go back to work and can have protection by having extended work-type periods in that type of protection.

It makes other changes, but it is the bill that we passed last week, and we are just now getting to the conference on it.

Mr. ROUSSELOT. I appreciate the gentleman's explanation.

I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. ULLMAN)? The Chair hears none and, without objection, appoints the following conferees: Messrs. ULLMAN, Corman, Pickle, Jacobs, Cotter, Rangel, Conable, Archer, and Duncan of Tennessee.

There was no objection.

SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY AMENDMENTS

H.R. 3236

Comparison of House and Senate Bills
With Existing Law
I. PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>ITEM</th>
<th>PRESENT LAW</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Limit on family disability insurance benefits.</td>
<td>The social security disability insurance program (DI) determines the amount of benefits payable based on an individual's previous earnings. The formula for determining disability benefits is the same as for retirement benefits. The benefit level is arrived at by applying a formula to the average indexed earnings the individual had over the course of a period of years which approximates the number of years in which he could reasonably have been expected to be in the work force. For a retired worker, this period is equal to the number of years between the ages of 21 and 62. For a disabled worker, the number of years of earnings to be averaged ends with the year before he became disabled. In either case, the resulting averaging period is reduced by 5. The basic benefit amount may be increased if the worker has a dependent spouse or children. Benefits for the spouse are payable if the spouse is over age 62 or if the spouse is caring for minor or disabled children. Benefits for children are payable if they are under age 18 or are disabled (as a result of a disability which existed in childhood) or if they are full-time students over age 18 but under age 22. The combined benefit for the worker and all dependents is limited by a family maximum provision to no more than 150 to 188 percent of the worker's benefit alone.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Reduction in dropout years.</td>
<td>Disabled workers are allowed to exclude up to 5 years of low earnings in averaging their earnings. However, at least 2 years of earnings are used in the benefit computation.</td>
</tr>
The House bill would limit total DI family benefits to the smaller of 80 percent of the worker's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) or 150 percent of the worker's primary insurance amount (PIA). Under the provision, no family benefit would be reduced below 100 percent of the worker's primary benefit.
The limitation would be effective with respect to individuals becoming entitled to benefits on or after January 1, 1980, based on disabilities that began after calendar year 1978. (Sec. 2, pp. 2–4.)

The House provision would exclude years of low earnings in the computation of disability benefits according to the following schedule:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Worker's age:</th>
<th>Number of dropout years</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>

</tr>
<tr>

</tr>
</tbody>

The provision would also allow workers to drop out additional low years if in those years the worker provided principal care of a child under age 6. In no case would the number of dropout years exceed 5.
The provision of fewer dropout years applies to disabled workers who first become entitled to benefits after 1979. The amendment allowing additional dropout years for childcare would be effective for monthly benefits payable for months after 1980. (Sec. 3, pp. 4–6.)

The Senate bill would limit total DI family benefits to the smaller of 85 percent of the worker's AIME or 160 percent of the worker's PIA. As under the House bill, no family benefit would be reduced below 100 percent of the worker's primary benefit.

Same effective date as House bill except the limitation would not apply to individuals who join the benefit rolls on or after January 1, 1980, who were on the rolls (or had a period of disability) at any time prior to calendar year 1980. (Sec. 101, pp. 33–35.)

The Senate bill would exclude years of low earnings in the computation of benefits according to the following schedule:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Worker's age:</th>
<th>Number of dropout years</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Under 32</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>42 through 46</td>

<tr>

<td>5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

No similar provision.

The provision of fewer dropout years applies to disabled workers who first become entitled to benefits after 1979. The provision would not apply to individuals who join the benefit rolls on or after January 1, 1980, who were on the rolls (or had a period of disability) at any time prior to calendar year 1980. (Sec. 102, pp. 35–37.)
3. Elimination of second medicare waiting period. Beneficiaries of disability insurance must wait 24 consecutive months after becoming entitled to benefits to become eligible for medicare. If a beneficiary loses his eligibility and then becomes disabled again, another 24-consecutive-month waiting period is required before medicare-coverage is resumed.

4. Extension of medicare for an additional 36 months. Medicare coverage ends when disability insurance benefits cease.

5. Funding for vocational rehabilitation services for disabled individuals. Provides for reimbursement from social security trust funds to State vocational rehabilitation agencies for the cost of vocational rehabilitation services furnished to disability insurance beneficiaries. Purpose of the payment is to accrue savings to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating the maximum number of beneficiaries into productive activity. Total amount of the funds that may be made available for such reimbursement may not, in any year, exceed 1½ percent of the social security disability benefits paid in the previous year.
The House provision would eliminate the requirement that a person who becomes disabled a second time must undergo another 24 consecutive month waiting period before medicare coverage is available to him. The amendment would apply to workers becoming disabled again within 60 months, and to disabled widows, or widowers and adults disabled since childhood becoming disabled again within 84 months.

The provision would be effective in the month after enactment. (Sec. 7, pp. 12–14.)

The House provision would extend medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered. (The first 12 months of the 36-month period would be part of the new 24-month trial work period described on pp. 12–13.)

Effective for fiscal 1982, eliminates trust fund financing for rehabilitation services but provides trust fund reimbursement for the Federal share (80%) to the General fund of the U.S. Treasury and to the States for twice the State share (20% x 2) of rehabilitation services which result in the performance by a rehabilitated individual of substantial gainful activity (SGA) for a continuous period or 12 months or which result in employment for 12 consecutive months in a sheltered workshop. Directs the Secretary of HEW to study alternative methods of providing and financing the costs of rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries in order to realize maximum savings to the trust funds and submit a report with recommendations to the President and the Congress by January 1, 1980. (Sec. 13, pp. 25–28.)

The provision would be effective after June 1980. (Sec. 103, pp. 37–39.)

Same as House bill.

The provision applies to disability beneficiaries whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to July 1980. (Sec. 104, pp. 38–39.)

No change from present law. For vocational rehabilitation demonstration and experiment authority see p. 36 of this print.

The waiting period is the earliest period of 5 consecutive months in which an individual is under a disability. An individual is determined disabled if he is unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or is expected to last for not less than 12 months. If an individual becomes disabled and applies for benefits in the same month, the waiting period will be satisfied 5 months after the month of application. With all other conditions of eligibility having been met, benefits will be due for the sixth month after the month in which the disabling condition begins, and will be paid on the third day of the seventh month.

The waiting period cannot begin until the individual is insured for benefits (i.e., the individual has satisfied the quarters of coverage requirements). If the disabling condition begins before an individual is insured for benefits, the waiting period can begin only with the first month in which the individual has insured status.

If a worker is applying for benefits after having been entitled to DI benefits previously (or had a previous period of disability) within 5 years prior to the current application, the waiting period requirement does not have to be met again.
The Senate bill would eliminate the waiting period for persons with a terminal illness, i.e., "a medically determinable physical impairment which is expected to result in the death of such individual within the next 12 months and which has been confirmed by two physicians in accordance with the appropriate regulations of title XX." The provision would be effective for applications filed in or after the month of enactment, or for disability decisions not yet rendered by the Social Security Administration or the courts prior to the month of enactment. Benefits would be payable beginning October 1980. (Bayh floor amendment adopted by a vote of 70 to 23), (Sec. 105, pp. 39–41).

<td>1. Benefits for individuals who engage in employment activity.</td>
<td>Under present law, an individual may qualify for SSI disability payments only if and for so long as he “is unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than twelve months.” The Secretary of HEW is required to prescribe the criteria for determining when services performed or earnings derived from employment demonstrate an individual’s ability to engage in substantial gainful activity (SGA). As of July 1, 1979, the level of earnings established by the Secretary for determining whether an individual is engaging in SGA was $280 a month. An individual who in fact has earnings above this level (1) cannot become eligible for SSI disability and (2) if already eligible will (after a 9-month trial work period) cease to be eligible.</td>
No provision. However, H.R. 3464 provides for the "substantial gainful activity" (SGA) earnings limit, currently $280 a month, to be raised to the level at which an applicant's or recipient's monthly countable earnings equal the basic Federal SSI benefit for that month. Based on the July 1, 1979, monthly Federal SSI benefit of $208, under the bill the SGA earnings limit would be $481 a month for a disabled individual with no excludable "impairment related work expenses" and $690 a month if the individual had an eligible spouse.

In determining countable earnings for purposes of the SGA earnings limit, a person's gross monthly earnings would be reduced by the first $65 of such earnings and 50 percent of remaining earnings. In addition, individuals whose disabilities are sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation necessitating special assistance in order for them to work would be allowed an "impairment related work expense disregard." Such individuals would be allowed to reduce their countable earnings for purposes of SGA by an amount equal to the cost of specified services, devices, or other items which, because of their disability, they must have in order to be able to work, regardless of who pays for the necessary services. This "impairment related work expense disregard" would be applied to an individual's earnings before the "50 percent of remaining earnings disregard" is applied.

Provides that a disabled recipient who loses his eligibility for regular SSI benefits because of performance of SGA would become eligible for a special benefit status which would entitle him to cash benefits equivalent to those he would be entitled to receive under the regular SSI program. Persons who receive these special benefits would be eligible for medicaid and social services on the same basis as regular SSI recipients. States would have the option of supplementing the special Federal benefits. When the individual's earnings exceeded the amount which would cause the cash benefit to be reduced to zero (as of July 1979, $481 for individual and $690 if the individual has an eligible spouse), the special benefit status would be terminated and the individual would not thereafter be eligible for any cash benefits under the Federal program unless he could again establish his eligibility for SSI under the rules of existing law, including the SGA limitation—now $280 per month.

When earnings rise to the point that the special benefit status is terminated, the individual would nevertheless retain eligibility for medicaid and social services, if the Secretary found (1) that termination of eligibility for these benefits would seriously inhibit the individual's ability to continue his employment, and (2) the individual's earnings were not sufficient to allow him to provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the cash and other benefits that would be available to him in the absence of earnings. The provision allowing continuation of eligibility for medicaid and social services for persons whose earnings make them ineligible for cash benefits would also apply to SSI recipients who are blind.

The Senate provisions would be effective for 3 years during which the Department would be required to provide for a separate accounting of funds expended under this provision.

No provision. However, H.R. 3464 includes a provision identical to the Senate provision. (Sec. 6, p. 9.)

Provides that the deeming of parents' income and resources would be limited to disabled or blind children under age 18, whether or not the person is in school or training. Children receiving SSI who, on the effective date of the provision, are age 18 to 21 would be protected against loss of benefits due to this change. (Sec. 203, p. 45.)

III. PROVISIONS AFFECTING DISABILITY RECEPIENTS UNDER PRESENT LAW

1. Termination of benefits for persons in vocational rehabilitation programs.

Under present law an individual is not entitled to DI and SSI benefits after he has medically recovered, regardless of whether he has completed the program of vocational rehabilitation in which he has been enrolled.

2. Treatment of work expenses.

a. Deduction of impairment-related work expenses in determining substantial gainful activity (SGA).

Regulations issued under present law provide that in determining whether an individual is performing SGA, extraordinary expenses incurred by the individual in connection with his employment and because of his impairment are to be deducted to the extent that such expenses exceed what his expenses would be if he were not impaired. Regulations specify that expenses for medication or equipment which the individual requires to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions may not be considered work related, and may not be deducted even if they are also essential to the individual's employment.

b. Deduction of impairment-related work expenses in determining SSI benefit.

In determining eligibility for and the amount of SSI benefits for the aged, blind and disabled, the first $65 of monthly earnings plus one-half of remaining earnings are disregarded.

In addition, for blind and disabled applicants and recipients, the cost of an approved plan for self-support is disregarded.

And, for the blind only, expenses reasonably attributable to the earnings of income (i.e., "work related expenses") are disregarded.

For purposes of title II (DI), provides for a deduction from earnings of costs to the individual of extraordinary impairment-related work expenses, attendant care costs, and the cost of medical devices, equipment, and drugs and services (necessary to control an impairment) for purposes of determining whether an individual is engaging in substantial gainful activity, regardless of whether these items are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions. (Sec. 5, pp. 8-9.)

For purposes of title XVI (SSI), H.R. 3464 includes the same provision as H.R. 3236, but also provides that the deduction would apply even where the individual does not pay the cost of the impairment-related work expenses (i.e., where the cost is paid by a third party). (Sec. 302, pp. 48-49.)

There is no provision in the House bills giving the Secretary authority to specify in regulations the type of care, services, and items that may be deducted. H.R. 3464 provides that the Secretary may prescribe amounts which may be deducted in the case of items furnished without cost to the individual (by a third party). (Sec. 2.)

H.R. 3464 provides, in determining a person's monthly SSI payment, for a deduction from earnings of the costs of extraordinary impairment-related work expenses that are paid for by the individual.

Same provision, but also provides that the deduction would apply even where the individual does not pay the cost of the impairment-related work expenses (i.e., where the cost is paid by a third party). (Sec. 302, pp. 48-49.)

Includes the same provision with respect to SSI as H.R. 3464. (Sec. 302, pp. 48-49.)

Adds language to both titles II and XVI giving the Secretary the authority to specify in regulations the type of care, services, and items that may be deducted, and provides that the amounts to be deducted shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe. (Sec. 302, pp. 48-49.)

Effective date.—Applies to expenses incurred on or after July 1, 1980.

No provision.
2. Treatment of work expenses—Continued
   c. Deduction of normal work expenses in determining SSI benefit.

3. Extension of the trial work period.
   Under the DI and SSI programs, when an individual completes a 9-month trial work period, and then in a subsequent month performs work constituting substantial gainful activity (SGA), his benefits are terminated. He obtains benefits for the first month in which he performs SGA (after the trial work period has ended) and for the 2 months immediately following. Under the DI program, widows and widowers are not entitled to a trial work period.

   Under the SSI program, an individual who has lost eligibility for disability benefits because of earnings in excess of the SGA limit must reapply as a new applicant in order to reestablish eligibility for SSI disability payments.

4. Disability determinations; Federal review of State agency decisions.
   a. Administration by State agencies.
   Present law provides for disability determinations to be performed by State agencies under an agreement negotiated by the State and the Secretary of HEW. Unlike the grant-in-aid programs, the relationship is contractual and State laws and practices are controlling with regard to many administrative aspects. State agencies make the determinations based on guidelines provided by the Department and the costs of making the determinations are paid from the disability trust fund in the case of DI claimants, or from general revenues in the case of SSI.
H.R. 3464 provides for a "standard work related expense disregard" equal to 20 percent of gross earnings in the determination of a disabled applicant's or recipient's monthly SSI payment. Effective date.—July 1, 1980.

Extends trial work period to 24 months. In the last 12 months of the 24-month period the individual would not receive cash benefits while engaging in substantial work activity, but could automatically be reinstated to active benefit status if a work attempt fails.

The provision also provides that the same trial work period would be applicable to disabled widows, and widowers (who are not permitted a trial work period at all under existing law). (Sec. 6, p. 9.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment for individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased before enactment.

H.R. 3464 provides the same extension of trial work period for SSI recipients as for DI beneficiaries.

In addition, H.R. 3464 provides that a person who loses DI or SSI disability status due to earnings in excess of the SGA limit would be considered presumptively disabled if he or she reapplies for SSI benefits within 4 years following the loss of disability status. Such an individual would begin receiving SSI payments immediately upon a determination that he or she meets the income and assets tests and would continue to receive benefits unless and until it was determined that the disability requirements were not met. (Sec. 4.) Effective July 1, 1980.

Requires that disability determinations be made by State agencies according to regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary. Requires the Secretary to issue regulations specifying performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability function "in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States." Certain operational areas are cited (p. 57) as "examples" of what the regulations may specify.

Same as House bill, except includes two floor amendments which:
(1) Delete as an example of the kinds of matters which the Secretary's regulations may cover: "any other rules designed to facilitate or control or assure the equity and uniformity of the State's disability decision."
(2) Add language specifying that "Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the Secretary to take any action except pursuant to law or to regulations promulgated pursuant to law." (Sec. 304, pp. 55–58.)

b. Federal review of State agency decisions.

Under current administrative procedures of the Social Security Administration, approximately 5 percent of disability claims adjudicated by the State disability determination units are reviewed by Federal examiners. The Secretary has authority to revise favorable decisions with respect to DI beneficiaries. He may revise both favorable and unfavorable decisions in SSI. This review occurs after the benefit has been awarded, i.e., it is a postadjudicative review. This is on sample basis and varies from 2 percent in the larger States to 25 percent in the smaller States.

No provision for preadjudicative review of SSI determinations is contained in H.R. 3464.

(Sec. 304, pp. 60-61.)

(The Senate committee report specifies that SSA will determine if these percent requirements should be higher or lower on an individual State basis and that these review procedures will also be applied to the SSI program. Percent requirements would apply only for the DI program.)

The Secretary would be given the authority to revise decisions that are unfavorable to DI claimants. (Sec. 304, p. 55.)

Under a floor amendment, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare would be required to implement a program of reviewing, on his motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges as a result of hearings under section 221 (d) of the Social Security Act. He would be required to report to Congress by January 1, 1982, on the progress of this program. In his report, he must indicate the percentage of such decisions being reviewed and describe the criteria for selecting decisions to be reviewed and the extent to which such criteria take into account the reversal rates for individual administrative law judges by the Secretary (through the Appeals Council or otherwise), and the reversal rate of State agency determinations by individual administrative law judges. H.R. 3464 (Sec. 7) contains identical provision for SSI applicants.

Effective date.—July 1, 1980.

Provides that an application will be valid only if the applicant is found to meet the eligibility requirements no later than the month in which the decision is made by the ALJ on the basis of a hearing. This has the effect of foreclosing the introduction of new evidence with respect to a previously filed application after the decision is made at the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) hearing, but would not affect remand authority to remedy an insufficiently documented case or other defect. (Sec. 10, pp. 21–23.)

Effective date.—Applies to applications filed after the month in which the Act is enacted.

Same provision. (Sec. 308, pp. 65–66.)

The committee report states that although the bill makes this change on a statutory basis only in DI inasmuch as SSI, unlike DI, does not specify the period of validity for an application but leaves that matter to be determined through regulations, the committee would expect the same rule to be followed in both SSI and DI, as is the case under current law.

Effective date.—Same.

Limits the absolute authority of the Secretary of HEW to remand court cases. Requires that such remands would be discretionary with the court upon a showing by the Secretary of good cause. A second provision relates to remands by the court. The bill would provide that a remand would be authorized only on a showing that there is new evidence which is material, and that there was good cause for failure to incorporate it into the record in a prior proceeding. (Sec. 11, pp. 23–24.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

Same provision. (Sec. 307, pp. 66–67.)

Effective date.—Same.

Requires the Secretary of HEW to submit a report to Congress recommending appropriate time limits for the various levels of adjudication of Title II cases. In recommending the limits, the Secretary shall give adequate consideration to both speed and quality of adjudication. (Sec. 12, pp. 24–25.)

Effective date.—Report due by January 1, 1980.

Effective date.—Report due by July 1, 1980.

Provides that any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employment of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required by the Secretary for making determinations of disability, shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence. (Sec. 15, pp. 29-30.)

Effective date.—For evidence supplied on or after the date of enactment.

Provides permanent authority for payment of the travel expenses of individuals (and their representatives in the case of reconsideration and ALJ hearings) resulting from participation in various phases of the adjudication process. (Sec. 16, pp. 30-31.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

(No provision in H.R. 3464.)

Same provision except stipulates that payment for evidence will be made to the provider only when such evidence is "requested" and required by the Secretary. (Sec. 309, p. 69.)

Effective date.—For evidence requested on or after July 1, 1980.

Same provision which is extended to include SSI and medicare. However, the limitation on air travel costs was omitted in the title II authority. (Sec. 310, pp. 69-71.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

Provides that there will be a review of the status of disabled beneficiaries whose disability has not been determined to be permanent at least once every three years. This review shall be in addition to, and shall not be considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required. (Sec. 17, p. 31.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment. The committee report states "the provision should apply to all new determinations of disability after the date of enactment and that reviews and scheduling of necessary medical examinations for all current disability cases be completed no later than 3 years after the date of enactment."

No provision.

Same provision except that even cases where the initial prognosis shows the probability that the condition will be permanent will be subject to review made at such times as the Secretary determines to be appropriate. (Sec. 311, pp. 71-72.)

Effective date.—The thirteenth month after enactment.

Modifies the scope of Federal court review so that the Secretary's determinations with respect to facts in Title II and Title XVI would be final, unless found to be arbitrary and capricious. The substantial evidence requirement would be deleted. (Sec. 312, p. 72.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

Requires that the Secretary of HEW shall provide to Congress by January 1985, a full and complete report as to the effects produced by the first three titles of the bill, which relate to the DI and SSI disability programs. (Sec. 313, p. 72.)
1. AFDC work requirement.
   a. Employment search requirement.
      AFDC recipients who are not specifically exempt are required to register for manpower services, training, and employment as a condition of AFDC eligibility.

   b. Termination of assistance.
      There is a 60-day counseling period during which assistance may not be terminated despite an individual's refusal to participate in WIN so long as the individual accepts counseling and other services aimed at persuading the individual to participate in a WIN program.
      Assistance may be terminated "for so long as" an individual (who has been certified by the welfare agency as ready for employment or training) refuses without good cause to participate in WIN. Under court interpretation WIN sanctions may be applied only "for so long as" there is refusal, thus allowing a recipient to move on and off AFDC without being subject to any specific period during which his benefits may be terminated.

   c. Support units.
      States must have special units to provide supportive services to WIN registrants.

   d. State matching funds.
      States must provide 10 percent of the cost of the WIN program; matching for manpower activities may be in cash or in kind; matching for supportive services must be in cash.

   e. Treatment of public service employment earnings.
      An error in drafting the 1971 WIN amendments leaves unclear whether income from WIN public service employment (PSE) is excluded in determining AFDC benefits. Under one district court decision all such income must be excluded, with the result that a recipient receives both his full PSE salary plus his full AFDC benefit. The effect has been to end WIN PSE programs in that district.

   f. Individuals exempt from WIN.
      Certain categories of AFDC recipients are exempt from the WIN registration requirement, including children under 16; persons caring for a child under 6; persons who are ill or needed as caretaker of someone in the home who is ill; or persons who are remote from a WIN project.

2. Matching for AFDC antifraud activities.

Federal matching for AFDC administrative costs, including antifraud activities, is limited to 50 percent.

3. Use of IRS to collect child support for non-AFDC families.

Authorizes States to use the Federal income tax mechanism for collecting support payments for families receiving AFDC, if the State had made diligent and reasonable efforts to collect the payments without success and the amount sought is based on noncompliance with a court order for support. States have access to IRS collection procedures only after certification of the amount of the child support obligation by the Secretary of HEW. The State must agree to reimburse the U.S. for any costs involved in making the collection.

4. Safeguards restricting disclosure of certain information under AFDC and Social Services.

Title IV (AFDC) restricts the disclosure of information on AFDC recipients to purposes directly connected with (1) the AFDC program, SSI, Medicaid, or Title XX social services programs; (2) any investigation, prosecution, or criminal or civil proceeding related to the administration of the program; or (3) the administration of any other federally assisted program providing assistance or services based on need. The disclosure to any committee or legislative body of information which identifies by name or address any such applicant or recipient is prohibited. Title XX (social services) restricts the disclosure of information on Title XX recipients to purposes directly connected with the administration of the Title XX program, AFDC, title IV-B Child Welfare Services, SSI or Medicaid.

HEW guidelines exempt audit committees from the "legislative body" exclusion. Several States, however, do not honor the HEW exemption.

5. Federal matching for child support activities performed by court personnel.

Requires that State child support plans provide for entering into cooperative arrangements with appropriate courts and law enforcement officials to assist the child support agency in administering the program. Federal regulations allow States to claim Federal matching for the compensation of district attorneys, attorneys general, and similar public attorneys and prosecutors and their staff. However, States may not

In order to qualify for this increased match, a State system would have to include certain specified characteristics, including (1) ability to provide data on AFDC eligibility factors, (2) capacity for verification of factors with other agencies, (3) capability for notifying child support, food stamp, social services, and medicaid programs of changes in AFDC eligibility and benefit amount, (4) compatibility with systems in other jurisdictions, and (5) security against unauthorized access to or use of data in the system.    c. Disclosure of tax return information.

   Under the Internal Revenue Code, tax return information may be disclosed by IRS (1) to the Social Security Administration for purposes of administering the Social Security Act, and (2) to Federal, State and local child support agencies for establishing and enforcing child support obligations under the child support program. SSA may not transfer information it receives from IRS to State and local agencies. Information must be obtained by the agencies directly from IRS.

Present regulations, in effect since 1959, require each State to deposit contributions with the Federal Reserve Bank and file wage reports of covered employees with HEW within 1 month and 15 days after the close of each calendar quarter. Public Law 94–202 was enacted in 1976 to assure adequate consideration of any change in the deposit requirements. Public Law 94–202 requires that at least 18 months must elapse between the publication of regulations changing the deposit schedule and the effective date of the change. On November 20, 1978, HEW published final regulations to become effective July 1, 1980, which will require more frequent deposits by the States. The new regulations will require the States to make deposits within 15 days after the end of each of the first 2 months of the calendar quarter and within 1 month and 15 days after the end of the final month of the quarter.</td>

(1) Requires an alien to reside in the United States for 5 years before he would be eligible for SSI. The provision would not apply to refugees, or to aliens who are suffering from blindness or disability on the basis of conditions which arose after the time they were admitted to the United States. (Sec. 504, pp. 102–103.)

(2) The provision would also not apply in cases in which the support order is unenforceable under the Immigration and Nationality Act, or in cases in which the sponsor fails to provide support and the alien demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that he did not participate in fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the sponsor, that he believed that the sponsor had adequate resources to support him, and that he could not have reasonably foreseen the refusal or inability of the sponsor to comply with the support agreement.

Effective date.—Applies to aliens applying for SSI benefits under title XVI on or after January 1, 1980.

(3) Amends the Immigration and Nationality Act to make the sponsor's affidavit of support a legally enforceable contract. The sponsor must agree that for 3 years after admission of the alien he will provide such financial support (or equivalent in-kind support) as is necessary to maintain the alien's income at an amount equal to the amount the alien would receive if he were eligible for SSI (including any State supplementary payment). The agreement could be enforced with respect to an alien against his sponsor in a civil action brought by the Attorney General or by the alien in a U.S. District Court. It could also be enforced by any State or political subdivision which is making payments to the alien under any program based on need. In the latter case, the action could be brought in a U.S. District Court if the amount in controversy were $10,000 or more, or in the State courts without regard to the amount in controversy. The agreement could be excused and unenforceable under certain specified circumstances, including death or bankruptcy of the sponsor. Also, provides that the sponsor, who intentionally reduces his income or assets in order to be excused from his agreement, will be responsible for the repayment of any public assistance provided the alien during the time the agreement was excused. (Sec. 601, pp. 128–128.)

Effective date.—Applies with respect to aliens applying for visas beginning with the first day of the fourth month following enactment.
5. Work incentive and other demonstration projects under the disability insurance and supplemental security income programs.
   a. Waiver of benefit requirements for projects to test ways to stimulate return to work by disability beneficiaries.
   b. Other disability insurance demonstration projects.
   c. Demonstration projects to promote objectives of the SSI program.

The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare has no authority to waive requirements under titles II, XVI, and XVIII of the Social Security Act to conduct experimental or demonstration projects.
The House bill authorizes waiver of benefit requirements of the DI and Medicare programs to allow demonstration projects by the Social Security Administration to test ways in which to stimulate a return to work by disability beneficiaries, and requires periodic reports and a final report on the findings by January 1, 1983. (Sec. 4, pp. 6–8.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

No provision. However, H.R. 3464 includes the same demonstration authority as provided in the Senate bill, but with specified restrictions. The Secretary would not be authorized to carry out any project that would result in a substantial reduction in any individual's total income and resources as a result of his participation in the project. The Secretary could not require an individual to participate in a project and would have to assure that the voluntary participation of individuals in any project is obtained through an informed written consent agreement which satisfies requirements established by the Secretary. The Secretary would also have to assure that any individual could revoke at any time his voluntary agreement to participate. The Secretary, to the extent feasible, would be required to include recipients under age 18. The Secretary would also be required to include projects necessary to ascertain the feasibility of treating alcoholics and drug addicts to prevent the onset of irreversible medical conditions which may result in permanent disability. (Sec. 5.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

Similar provision but requires interim report by January 1, 1983 and final by 5 years after date of enactment. (Sec. 505, p. 105.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

The Senate provision also authorizes waivers in the case of other disability insurance demonstration projects which SSA may wish to undertake, such as study of the effects of lengthening the trial work period, altering the 24-month waiting period for Medicare benefits, altering the way the disability program is administered, earlier referral of beneficiaries for rehabilitation, and greater use of private contractors, employers and others to develop, perform or otherwise stimulate new forms of rehabilitation. (Sec. 505, pp. 105–109.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

Authorizes experiments and demonstration projects which are likely to promote the objectives or improve the administration of the SSI program. The provision provides for allocation of costs of all such demonstration projects to the programs to which the project is most closely related. In the case of the SSI program, the Secretary is authorized to reimburse the States for the non-Federal share of payments or costs for which the State would not otherwise be liable. (Sec. 505, pp. 109–110.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.
5. Work incentive and other demonstration projects under the disability insurance and supplemental security income programs—Con.

d. Waiver of certain provisions of human experimentation statute.

e. Reporting requirement.

6. Inclusion in wages of FICA taxes paid by the employer.

Sec. 209(f) of the Social Security Act and Sec. 3121(a)(6) of the Internal Revenue Code provide that payment by the employer of the employee F.I.C.A. tax liability is excluded from the definition of wages for social security payroll tax and benefit purposes. Although such a payment by the employer constitutes additional compensation includable for income tax purposes, existing law specifically exempts such an amount of additional compensation from social security taxes. The net effect is that, for a given level of total compensation (wages + employer payment of the employee share of social security tax), somewhat lower social security taxes would be payable by the employer if he pays the employee F.I.C.A. tax instead of withholding it from the employee's wages.

a. Voluntary Medi-Gap policy certification.

No provision. However, the Committees on Ways and Means and Interstate and Foreign Commerce have reported similar provisions. The Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee provision authorizes the Secretary to specify "loss ratios" for policies.

No provision. However, the Committees on Ways and Means and Interstate and Foreign Commerce have reported similar provisions. The Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee provision authorizes the Secretary to specify "loss ratios" for policies.

No provision.

Authorizes waiver of certain nonmedical requirements of the human experimentation statute (such as conditions of payment of benefits or copayments, deductibles or other limitations), but requires that the Secretary in reviewing any application for any experimental, pilot or demonstration project pursuant to the Social Security Act would take into consideration the human experimentation law and regulations in making his decision on whether to approve the application. (Sec. 505, pp. 105-109.)

Effective date.—Upon enactment.

A final report on the projects authorized by this section would be due 5 years from enactment. (Sec. 505, p. 109.)

Requires that with respect to remuneration paid after 1980 any amounts of employee F.I.C.A. taxes paid by an employer will be considered to constitute wages for both social security tax and benefit purposes. Provides further that (a) this change will not apply in the case of payments made on behalf of employees of small businesses (as defined in section 7(a) of the Small Business Act), State and local governments, nonprofit organizations, and (b) persons employed as domestics. (Section 506, pp. 110-111.)

Requires the Secretary to establish, effective January 1, 1982, a voluntary certification program for nongroup medicare supplemental policies in States that fail to establish equivalent or more stringent programs. To be certified, a policy would have to: meet minimum standards with respect to benefits; be written in simplified language and contain certain explanatory information; provide a waiting period of no more than 6 months for preexisting conditions; contain a 30-day "no loss cancellation clause"; and be expected to pay benefits to subscribers equal to 75 percent of premiums in the case of groups and 60 percent in the case of individual coverage.

No provision. However, the Committees on Ways and Means and Interstate and Foreign Commerce have reported similar Federal penalty provisions. The Ways and Means provision includes penalties for: furnishing false information to obtain certification; and posing as a Federal agent to sell Medi-Gap policies. The Interstate and Foreign Commerce provision includes these penalties and penalties for: selling duplicative policies; and selling Medi-Gap policies by mail in States which have not approved, or are deemed not to have approved, their sale.

No provision. However, the Ways and Means Committee and the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee reported a similar provision.

The Secretary would submit a report on or before July 1, 1981, to the Committees on Finance, Ways and Means, and Interstate and Foreign Commerce which identifies States which he finds cannot be expected to have established an acceptable certification program by January 1, 1982. The Federal program would be put into effect on January 1, 1982, in States that are so identified unless legislation to the contrary is enacted.

Upon conviction, a fine of up to $25,000 and imprisonment for up to 5 years could be assessed for:

- Furnishing false information to obtain certification;
- Posing as a Federal agent to sell Medi-Gap policies;
- Knowingly selling duplicative policies;
- Selling Medi-Gap policies by mail in States which have not approved, or are deemed not to have approved, their sale.

The Secretary, in consultation with regulatory agencies, insurers and consumers, would study, and submit a report to Congress by July 1, 1981, concerning: the effectiveness of various State approaches to regulation of Medi-Gap; and the need for standards for health insurance policies sold to the elderly which are not subject to voluntary certification.

On January 1, 1982, and at least every 2 years thereafter, the Secretary would report on the effectiveness of the voluntary certification program and criminal penalties established by the bill.

1 The estimates shown for each provision take account of the provisions that precede it in the table.
2 Estimates are based on the assumptions in the President's 1981 budget. The estimated reduction in long-range average expenditures represents the total net change in both benefits and administrative expenses over the next 75 years. The total reduction does not equal the sum of the components because of rounding.

*Additional administrative expenses are less than $1,000,000.

*An increase of less than $500,000.

*None.

*An increase of less than 0.005 percent.

*Cost/savings depend on the nature of the experiment, administrative costs for current plans could be as much as $15,000,000 over several years.

*Costs will depend on how many States no longer make determinations. If all States drop out, the cost could be $13,000,000 ($9,000,000 for title II, $4,000,000 for title XVI) per year, excluding any pension costs.

1 House bill: Sets SGA level at point where countable earnings equal the applicable SSI payment standard and excludes from earnings for SGA purposes: $65; an amount equal to the cost of any impairment-related work expenses; and one-half the remaining earnings. Senate bill: Retains present SGA level and excludes from earnings for SGA purposes certain impairment-related work expenses, whether paid for by recipient or some one else (subject to limitations on kinds of care and service and on amounts of earnings excludable).

2 Less than $1,000,000 increase in cost.

A blind or disabled person would continue to be eligible for medicaid and social services even if his income was at or above the “breakeven” point (and he was no longer getting benefit) if it is determined, under regulations, that the person:

Would be seriously inhibited in continuing his employment through loss of medicaid and social services eligibility; and

Does not have earnings high enough to allow him to provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the SSI benefits, medicaid and social services he would have in the absence of earnings.

A provision would expire at the end of 3 years.

1 House bill: Would exclude, in addition to current exclusions (first $65 and one-half the remaining monthly earnings), 20 percent of gross earnings, and the cost of impairment-related work expenses paid by the individual, both of which would be applied before deduction of the one-half exclusion. Senate bill: No provision.

House bill: Provides SSA general experimentation authority with the following qualifications:
- Participation must be voluntary;
- Total income and resources of a person must not be reduced as a result of an experiment; and
- There must be a project to ascertain the feasibility of treating drug addicts and alcoholics to prevent permanent disability.

Senate bill: Delete House qualifications and consolidate SSI experimentation authority with OASDI and medicare authority as described under H.R. 3236 provisions.

House and Senate bills: Terminate parental deeming at age 18, with qualification that the benefits to recipients 18–20 years old in June 1980 to whom deeming applies will not be reduced as a result.

House bill: Requires that any decision notice from the Secretary contain a statement of the case citing pertinent law and regulations, a summary of the evidence, and reasons for the decision. Senate bill: Require that disability denial notices be expressed in language understandable to the claimant and include a discussion of the evidence and reasons why the disability claim was denied.

House bill: No provision. Senate bill: Treats all pay received in sheltered workshops as earned income.

House bill: No provision. Senate bill: Provide 3-year residency requirement for entitlement to SSI benefits. (Exceptions provided for refugees and for aliens whose medical condition which caused their blindness or disability arose after they entered the United States.)

House bill: No provision. Senate bill: Provide that entitlement under both programs would be considered as a totality, so that if payment under title II is delayed and this results in a higher title XVI payment, the adjustment made would be the net difference in the total payment. Also, provide for accounting adjustments for such adjustments between social security trust funds and general revenues, and, where necessary, States.

³ SSA maintains this provision cannot be accurately estimated; however, CBO estimates a cost ranging from $10,000,000 for fiscal year 1980 to $31,000,000 for fiscal year 1984.

² Estimators cannot make estimates at this time. When more data are available, a cost estimate will be made.

Note: The above estimates are based on assumed enactment of H.R. 3236 in March 1980.

SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY AMENDMENTS OF 1980

MAY 13, 1980.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. ULLMAN, from the committee of conference, submitted the following

CONFERENCE REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 3236]

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3236) to amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the text of the bill and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

That this Act may be cited as the "Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980".

TITLE I—PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY BENEFITS UNDER OASDI PROGRAM

Sec. 101. (a) Section 203(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—
by redesignating paragraphs (6), (7), and (8) as paragraphs (7), (8), and (9), respectively; and by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new par-paragraph:
"(6) Notwithstanding any of the preceding provisions of this subsection other than paragraphs (3)(A), (3)(C), and (5) (but subject to section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)), the total monthly benefits to which beneficiaries may be entitled under sections 202 and 223 for any month on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual entitled to disability insurance benefits, whether or not such total benefits are otherwise subject to reduction under this subsection but after any reduction under this subsection which would otherwise be applicable, shall be, reduced or further reduced (before the application of section 224) to the smaller of—"(A) 85 percent of such individual's average indexed monthly earnings (or 100 percent of his primary insurance amount, if larger); or
"(B) 150 percent of such individual's primary insurance amount.".
(b)(1) Section 203(a)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out "paragraph (7)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (8)".
(2) Section 203(a)(5) of such Act, as redesignated by subsection (a)(2) of this section, is amended by striking out "paragraph (6)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (7)".
(3) Section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)(III) of such Act is amended by striking out "section 203(a) (62 and (7)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 203(a) (7) and (8)".
(4) Section 215(i)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, such revision of maximum family benefits shall be subject to paragraph (6) of section 203(a) (as added by section 101(a)(3) of the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980)."
(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual who first becomes eligible for benefits (determined under sections 215(a)(3)(B) and 215(a)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act, as applied for this purpose) after 1978, and who first becomes entitled to disability insurance benefits after June 30, 1980.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF DROPOUT YEARS FOR YOUNGER DISABLED WORKERS

Sec. 102. (a) Section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:
"(2)(A) The number of an individual's benefit computation years equals the number of elapsed years reduced—
"(i) in the case of an individual who is entitled to old-age insurance benefits (except as provided in the second sentence of this subparagraph), or who has died, by 5 years, and
"(ii) in the case of an individual who is entitled to disability insurance benefits, by the number of years equal to one-fifth of such individual's elapsed years (disregarding any resulting fractional part of a year), but not by more than 5 years.
Clause (ii), once applicable with respect to any individual, shall continue to apply for purposes of determining such individual’s primary insurance amount for purposes of any subsequent eligibility for disability or old-age insurance benefits unless prior to the month in which such eligibility begins there occurs a period of at least 12 consecutive months for which he was not entitled to a disability or an old-age insurance benefit. If an individual described in clause (ii) is living with a child (of such individual or his or her spouse) under the age of 3 in any calendar year which is included in such individual’s computation base years, but which is not disregarded pursuant to clause (ii) or to subparagraph (B) (in determining such individual’s benefit computation years) by reason of the reduction in the number of such individual’s elapsed years under clause (ii), the number by which such elapsed years are reduced under this subparagraph pursuant to clause (ii) shall be increased by one (up to a combined total not exceeding 3) for each such calendar year; except that (I) no calendar year shall be disregarded by reason of this sentence (in determining such individual’s benefit computation years) unless the individual was living with such child substantially throughout the period in which the child was alive and under the age of 3 in such year and the individual had no earnings as described in section 203(f)(5) in such year, (II) the particular calendar years to be disregarded under this sentence (in determining such benefit computation years) shall be those years (not otherwise disregarded under clause (ii)) which, before the application of section 215(f), meet the conditions of subclause (I), and (III) this sentence shall apply only to the extent that its application would not result in a lower primary insurance amount. The number of an individual’s benefit computation years as determined under this subparagraph shall in no case be less than 2."

(b) Section 223(a)(2) of such Act is amended by inserting “and section 215(b)(2)(A)(ii)” after “section 202(q)” in the first sentence.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual who first becomes entitled to disability insurance benefits on or after July 1, 1980; except that the third sentence of section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act (as added by such amendments) shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable for months beginning on or after July 1, 1981.

Sec. 103. (a)(1)(A) Section 226(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “consecutive” in clauses (A) and (B).
(B) Section 226(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out “consecutive” in the matter following paragraph (2).
(2) Section 1811 of such Act is amended by striking out “consecutive”.
(3) Section 1837(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out “consecutive”.
(4) Section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 is amended by striking out “consecutive” each place it appears.
Section 226 of the Social Security Act is amended by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g), and by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

"(f) For purposes of subsection (b) (and for purposes of section 1837(g)(1) of this Act and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974), the 24 months for which an individual has to have been entitled to specified monthly benefits on the basis of disability in order to become entitled to hospital insurance benefits on such basis effective with any particular month or to be deemed to have enrolled in the supplementary medical insurance program, on the basis of such entitlement, by reason of section 1837(f)), where such individual had been entitled to specified monthly benefits of the same type during a previous period which terminated—

"(1) more than 60 months before the month in which his current disability began in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (A)(i) or (B) of subsection (b)(2), or shall not include any month which occurred during such previous period."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to hospital insurance or supplementary medical insurance benefits for services provided on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Sec. 104. (a) Section 226(b) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "ending with the month" in the matter following paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "ending (subject to the last sentence of this subsection) with the month"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence:

"For purposes of this subsection, an individual who has had a period of trial work which ended as provided in section 222(c)(4)(A), and whose entitlement to benefits or status as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary as described in paragraph (2) has subsequently terminated, shall be deemed to be entitled to such benefits or to occupy such status (notwithstanding the termination of such entitlement or status) for the period of consecutive months throughout all of which the physical or mental impairment, on which such entitlement or status was based, continues, and throughout all of which such individual would have been entitled to monthly insurance benefits under title II or as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary had such individual been unable to engage in substantial gainful activity, but not in excess of 24 such months."

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to any indi-individual whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

TITLE II—PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY BENEFITS UNDER THE SSI PROGRAM

SEC. 201. (a) Part A of title XVI of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 1619. (a) Any individual who is an eligible individual (or eligible spouse) by reason of being under a disability and was eligible to receive benefits under section 1611(b) or under this section for the month preceding the month for which eligibility for benefits under this section is now being determined, and who would otherwise be denied benefits by reason of section 1611(e)(4) or ceases to be an eligible individual (or eligible spouse) because his earnings have demonstrated a capacity to engage in substantial gainful activity, shall nevertheless qualify for a monthly benefit equal to an amount determined under section 1611(b)(1) (or, in the case of an individual who has an eligible spouse, under section 1611(b)(2)), and for purposes of titles XIX and XX of this Act shall be considered a disabled individual receiving supplemental security income benefits under this title, for so long as the Secretary determines that—

"(1) such individual continues to have the disabling physical or mental impairment on the basis of which such individual was found to be under a disability, and continues to meet all non-disability-related requirements for eligibility for benefits under this title; and

"(2) the income of such individual, other than income excluded pursuant to section 1612(b), is not equal to or in excess of the amount which would cause him to be ineligible for payments under section 1611(b) (if he were otherwise eligible for such payments).

"(b) For purposes of titles XIX and XX, any individual under age 65 who, for the month preceding the first month in the period to which this subsection applies, received—

"(i) a payment of supplemental security income benefits under section 1611(b) on the basis of blindness or disability,

"(ii) a supplementary payment under section 1616 of this Act or under section 212 of Public Law 93-66 on such basis,

"(iii) a payment of monthly benefits under subsection (a), or

"(iv) a supplementary payment under section 1616(c)(3), shall be considered to be a blind or disabled individual receiving supplemental security income benefits for so long as the Secretary determines under regulations that—

"(1) such individual continues to be blind or continues to have the disabling physical or mental impairment on the basis of which he was found to be under a disability and, except for his earnings, continues to meet all non-disability-related requirements for eligibility for benefits under this title;
(2) the income of such individual would not, except for his earnings, be equal to or in excess of the amount which would cause him to be ineligible for payments under section 1611(b) (if he were otherwise eligible for such payments);
(3) the termination of eligibility for benefits under title XIX or XX would seriously inhibit his ability to continue his employment; and

(3) Any State (or political subdivision) making supplementary payments described in subsection (a) shall have the option of making such payments to individuals who receive benefits under this title under the provisions of section 1619, or who would be eligible to receive such benefits but for their income."

(2) Section 212(a) of Public Law 93-66 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:
(4) Any State having an agreement with the Secretary under paragraph (1) may, at its option, include individuals receiving benefits under section 1619 of the Social Security Act, or who would be eligible to receive such benefits but for their income, under the agreement as though they are aged, blind, or disabled individuals as specified in paragraph (2)(A)."

(c) Part A of title XVI of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by subsection (a) of this section) the following new section:

"MEDICAL AND SOCIAL SERVICES FOR CERTAIN HANDICAPPED PERSONS"

"Sec. 1620. (a) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to establish and carry out a 3-year Federal-State pilot program to provide medical and social services for certain handicapped individuals in accordance with this section.
(b)(1) The total sum of $18,000,000 shall be allotted to the States for such program by the Secretary, during the period beginning September 1, 1981, and ending September 30, 1984, as follows:
(A) The total sum of $6,000,000 shall be allotted to the States for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1982 (which for purposes of this section shall include the month of September 1981).
(B) The total sum of $6,000,000, plus any amount remaining available (after the application of paragraph (4)) from the allotment made under subparagraph (A), shall be allotted to the States for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983.
(C) The total sum of $6,000,000, plus any amount remaining available (after the application of paragraph (4)) from the allotments made under subparagraphs (A) and (B), shall be allotted to the States for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1984.
(2) The allotment to each State from the total sum allotted under paragraph (1) for any fiscal year shall bear the same ratio to such total sum as the number of individuals in such State who are over age 17 and under age 65 and are receiving supplemental security income benefits as disabled individuals in such year (as determined by the Secretary on the basis of the most recent data available) bears to the total number of such individuals in all the States. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term 'supplemental security income benefits' includes payments made pursuant to an agreement under section 1616(a) of this Act or under section 212(b) of Public Law 93–66.

"(3) At the beginning of each fiscal year in which the pilot program under this section is in effect, each State that does not intend to use the allotment to which it is entitled for such year (or any allotment which was made to it for a prior fiscal year), or that does not intend to use the full amount of any such allotment, shall certify to the Secretary the amount of such allotment which it does not intend to use, and the State's allotment for the fiscal year (or years) involved shall thereupon be reduced by the amount so certified.

"(4) The portion of the total amount available for allotment for any particular fiscal year under paragraph (1) which is not allotted to States for that year by reason of paragraph (3) (plus the amount of any reductions made at the beginning of such year in the allotments of States for prior fiscal years under paragraph (3)) shall be reallocated in such manner as the Secretary may determine to be appropriate to States which need, and will use, additional assistance in providing services to severely handicapped individuals in that particular year under their approved plans. Any amount reallocated to a State under this paragraph for use in a particular fiscal year shall be treated for purposes of this section as increasing such State's allotment for that year by an equivalent amount.

"(c) In order to participate in the pilot program and be eligible to receive payments for any period under subsection (d), a State (during such period) must have a plan, approved by the Secretary as meeting the requirements of this section, which provides medical and social services for severely handicapped individuals whose earnings are above the level which ordinarily demonstrates an ability to engage in substantial gainful activity and who are not receiving benefits under section 1611 or 1619 or assistance under a State plan approved under section 1902, and which—

"(1) declares the intent of the State to participate in the pilot program;

"(2) designates an appropriate State agency to administer or supervise the administration of the program in the State;

"(3) describes the criteria to be applied by the State in determining the eligibility of any individual for assistance under the plan and in any event requires a determination by the State agency to the effect that (A) such individual's ability to continue his employment would be significantly inhibited without such assistance and (B) such individual's earnings are not sufficient to allow him to provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the cash and other benefits that would be available to him under this title and titles XIX and XX in the absence of those earnings;

"(4) describes the process by which the eligibility of individuals for such assistance is to be determined (and such process may not involve the performance of functions by any State agency or entity which is engaged in making determinations of disability for purposes of disability insurance or supplemental security income benefits except when the use of a different agency or entity to perform those functions would not be feasible;

"(5) describes the medical and social services to be provided under the plan;

"(6) describes the manner in which the medical and social services involved are to be provided and, if they are not to be provided through the State's medical assistance and social services programs under titles XIX and XX (with the Federal payments being made under subsection (d) of this section rather than under those titles), specifies the particular mechanisms and procedures to be used in providing such services; and

"(7) contains such other provisions as the Secretary may find to be necessary or appropriate to meet the requirements of this section or otherwise carry out its purpose.

The plan under this section may be developed and submitted as a separate State plan, or may be submitted in the form of an amendment to the State's plan under section 2003(d)(1).

"(d)(1) From its allotment under subsection (b) for any fiscal year (and any amounts remaining available from allotments made to it for prior fiscal years), the Secretary shall from time to time pay to each State which has a plan approved under subsection (c) an amount equal to 75 per centum of the total sum expended under such plan (including the cost of administration of such plan) in providing medical and social services to severely handicapped individuals who are eligible for such services under the plan.

"(2) The method of computing and making payments under this section shall be as follows:

"(A) The Secretary shall, prior to each period for which a payment is to be made to a State, estimate the amount to be paid to the State for such period under the provisions of this section.

"(B) From the allotment available therefor, the Secretary shall pay the amount so estimated, reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum (not previously adjusted under this subsection) by which he finds that his estimate of the amount to be paid the State for any prior period under this section was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such period under this section.

"(e) Within nine months after the date of the enactment of this section, the Secretary shall prescribe and publish such regulations as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the pilot program and otherwise implement this section.

"(f) Each State participating in the pilot program under this section shall from time to time report to the Secretary on the operation and results of such program in that State, with particular emphasis upon the work incentive effects of the program. On or before October 1, 1983, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress a report on the program, incorporating the information contained in the State reports along with his findings and recommendations.

(d) The amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) shall become effective on January 1, 1981, but shall remain in effect only for a period of three years after such effective date.
(e) The Secretary shall provide for separate accounts with respect to the benefits payable by reason of the amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) so as to provide for evaluation of the effects of such amendments on the programs established by titles II, XVI, XIX, and XX of the Social Security Act.

SEC. 202. (a) Section 1612(a)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended—
(1) by striking out "and" after the semicolon at the end of subparagraph (A); and
(2) by adding after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:
"(C) remuneration received for services performed in a sheltered workshop or work activities center; and"
(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply only with respect to remuneration received in months after September 1980.

SEC. 203. (a) Section 1614(f)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "under age 21" and inserting in lieu thereof "under age 18"
(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on October 1, 1980; except that the amendment made by such subsection shall not apply, in the case of any child who, in September 1980, was 18 or over and received a supplemental security income benefit for such month, during any period for which such benefit would be greater without the application of such amendment.

TITLE III—PROVISIONS AFFECTING DISABILITY RECIPIENTS UNDER OASDI AND SSI PROGRAMS; ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. (a)(1) Section 225 of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 225."
(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment to an individual of benefits based on disability (as described in the first sentence of subsection (a)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment, on which the individual’s entitlement to such benefits is based, has or may have ceased, if—
(1) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and
(2) the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls."

(2) Section 225(a) of such Act (as designated under subsection (a) of this section) is amended by striking out "this section," each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "this subsection."

(b) Section 1631(a) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment of the benefit of any individual who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by reason of disability (as determined under section 1614(a)(3)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment, on which the individual's eligibility for such benefit is based, has or may have ceased, if—

"(A) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and

"(B) the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

EXTRAORDINARY WORK EXPENSES DUE TO SEVERE DISABILITY

SEC. 302. (a)(1) Section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the third sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe.";

(2) Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe.";

(b) Section 1612(b)(4)(B) of such Act is amended by striking out "plus one-half of the remainder thereof, and (ii)" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "(ii) such additional amounts of earned income of such individual (for purposes of determining the amount of his or her benefits under this title and of determining his or her eligibility for such benefits for consecutive months of eligibility after the initial month of such eligibility), if such individual's disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, as may be necessary to pay the costs (to such individual) of attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions, except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe, (iii) one-half of the amount of earned income not excluded after the application of the preceding provisions of this subparagraph, and (iv)"

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to expenses incurred on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 303. (a)(1) Section 222(c)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "section 223 or 202(d)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 223, 202(d), 202(e), or 202(f)".

(2) Section 222(c)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, in the case of an individual entitled to widow's or widower's insurance benefits under section 202(e) or (f) who became entitled to such benefits prior to attaining age 60, with the month in which such individual becomes so entitled."

(b)(1)(A) Section 223(a)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "or the third month following the month in which his disability ceases...", at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, subject to subsection (e), the termination month. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.

(B) Section 202(d)(1)(G) of such Act is amended—

(i) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as clauses (III) and (IV), respectively, and

(ii) by striking out “the third month following the month in which he ceases to be under such disability” and inserting in lieu thereof “or, subject to section 223(e), the termination month (and for purposes of this subparagraph, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.”.

(C) Section 202(e)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out “the third month following the month in which her disability ceases (unless she attains age 65 on or before the last day of such third month).” at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof “subject to section 223(e), the termination month (unless she attains age 65 on or before the last day of such termination month). For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which her disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.”.

third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.”

“(e) No benefit shall be payable under subsection (d)(1)(B)(ii), (e)(1)(B)(ii), or (f)(1)(B)(ii) of section 202 or under subsection (a)(1) of this section to an individual for any month, after the third month, in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the 15-month period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A).”

“(F) For purposes of this title, an individual whose trial work period has ended by application of paragraph (4)(D)(i) shall, subject to section 1611(e)(4), nonetheless be considered (except for purposes of section 1631(a)(5)) to be disabled through the end of the month preceding the termination month. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the earlier of (i) the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (ii) the first month, after the period of 15 consecutive months following the end of such period of trial work, in which such individual engages in or is determined to be able to engage in substantial gainful activity.”

(B) Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out “paragraph (4)” and inserting in lieu thereof “subparagraph (F) or paragraph (4)”.

(2) Section 1611(e) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

“(4) No benefit shall be payable under this title, except as provided in section 1619 (or section 1616(c)(3)), with respect to an eligible individual or his eligible spouse who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by application of section 1614(a)(3)(F) for any month, after the third month, in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the fifteen-month period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 1614(a)(4)(D)(i).”

(d) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to any individual whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

SEC. 304. (a) Section 221(a) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a)(1) In the case of any individual, the determination of whether or not he is under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 222(d)) and of the day such disability began, and the determination of the day on which such disability ceases, shall be made by a State agency, notwithstanding any other provision of law, in any State that notifies the Secretary in writing that it wishes to make such disability determinations commencing with such month as the Secretary and the State agree upon, but only if (A) the Secretary has not found, under subsection (b)(1), that the State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with the applicable provisions of this section or rules issued thereunder, and (B) the State has not notified the Secretary, under subsection (b)(2), that it does not wish to make such determinations. If the Secretary once makes the finding described in clause (A) of the preceding sentence, or the State gives the notice referred to in clause (B) of such sentence, the Secretary may thereafter determine whether (and, if so, beginning with which month and under what conditions) the State may again make disability determinations under this paragraph.

"(2) The disability determinations described in paragraph (1) made by a State agency shall be made in accordance with the pertinent provisions of this title and the standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary pertaining to matters such as disability determinations, the class or classes of individuals with respect to which a State may make disability determinations (if it does not wish to do so with respect to all individuals in the State), and the conditions under which it may choose not to make all such determinations. In addition, the Secretary shall promulgate regulations specifying, in such detail as he deems appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States. The regulations may, for example, specify matters such as—

"(A) the administrative structure and the relationship between various units of the State agency responsible for disability determinations;

"(B) the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, and other individuals or organizations performing tasks for the State agency, and standards for the availability to applicants and beneficiaries of facilities for making disability determinations;

"(C) State agency performance criteria, including the rate of accuracy of decisions, the time periods within which determinations must be made, the procedures for and the scope of review by the Secretary, and, as he finds appropriate, by the State, its performance in individual cases and in classes of cases, and rules governing access of appropriate Federal officials to State offices and to State records relating to its administration of the disability determination function.

"(D) fiscal control procedures that the State agency may be required to adopt, and

"(E) the submission of reports and other data, in such form and at such time as the Secretary may require, concerning the State agency's activities relating to the disability determination.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the Secretary to take any action except pursuant to law or to regulations promulgated pursuant to law.

(b) Section 221(b) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(b)(1) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and other written guidelines, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his finding, and after he has complied with the requirements of paragraph (3), make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

"(2) If a State, having notified the Secretary of its intent to make disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), no longer wishes to make such determinations, it shall notify the Secretary in writing of that fact, and, if an agency of the State is making disability determinations at the time such notice is given, it shall continue to do so for not less than 180 days, or (if later) until the Secretary has complied with the requirements of paragraph (3). Thereafter, the Secretary shall make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

"(3)(A) The Secretary shall develop and initiate all appropriate procedures to implement a plan with respect to any partial or complete assumption by the Secretary of the disability determination function from a State agency, as provided in this section, under which employees of the affected State agency who are capable of performing duties in the disability determination process for the Secretary shall, notwithstanding any other provision of law, have a preference over any other individual in filling an appropriate employment position with the Secretary (subject to any system established by the Secretary for determining hiring priority among such employees of the State agency) unless any such employee is the administrator, the deputy administrator, or assistant administrator (or his equivalent) of the State agency, in which case the Secretary may accord such priority to such employee.

"(B) The Secretary shall not make such assumption of the disability determination function until such time as the Secretary of Labor determines that, with respect to employees of such State agency who will be displaced from their employment on account of such assumption by the Secretary and who will not be hired by the Secretary to perform duties in the disability determination process, the State has made fair and equitable arrangements to protect the interests of employees so displaced. Such protective arrangements shall include only those provisions which are provided under all applicable Federal, State and local statutes including, but not limited to, (i) the preservation of rights, privileges, and benefits (including continuation of pension rights and benefits) under existing collective-bargaining agreements; (ii) the continuation of collective-bargaining rights; (iii) the assignment of affected employees to other jobs or to retraining programs; (iv) the protection of individual employees against a worsening of their positions with respect to their employment; (v) the protection of health benefits and other fringe benefits; and (vi) the provision of severance pay, as may be necessary.

"(c)(1) The Secretary may on his own motion or as required under paragraphs (2) and (3) review a determination, made by a State agency under this section, that an individual is or is not under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and, as a result of such review, may modify such agency's determination and determine that such individual either is or is not under a disability (as so defined) or that such individual's disability began on a day earlier or later than that determined by such agency, or that such disability ceased on a day earlier or later than that determined by such agency. A review by the Secretary on his own motion of a State agency determination under this paragraph may be made before or after any action is taken to implement such determination.

"(2) The Secretary (in accordance with paragraph (3)) shall review determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)). Any review by the Secretary of a State agency determination under this paragraph shall be made before any action is taken to implement such determination.

"(3) In carrying out the provisions of paragraph (2) with respect to the review of determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)), the Secretary shall review—

"(A) at least 15 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1981,
"(B) at least 35 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1982, and

(d) Section 221(d) of such Act is amended by striking out "(a)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(a), (b)."

(e) The first sentence of section 221(e) of such Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out "which has an agreement with the Secretary" and inserting in lieu thereof "which is making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1),"
"(2) by striking out "as may be mutually agreed upon," and inserting in lieu thereof "as determined by the Secretary," and
"(3) by striking out "carrying out the agreement under this section" and inserting in lieu thereof "making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)."

(f) Section 221(g) of such Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out "has no agreement under subsection (b)" and inserting in lieu thereof "does not undertake to perform disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), or which has been found by the Secretary to have substantially failed to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and guidelines," and
(2) by striking out "not included in an agreement under subsection (b)" and inserting in lieu thereof "for whom no State undertakes to make disability determinations".

(g) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall implement a program of reviewing, on his own motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges as a result of hearings under section 221(d) of the Social Security Act, and shall report to the Congress by January 1, 1982, on his progress.

(h) The amendments made by subsections (a), (b), (d), (e), and (f) shall be effective beginning with the twelfth month following the month in which this Act is enacted. Any State that, on the effective date of the amendments made by this section, has in effect an agreement with the Secretary of Health and Human Services under section 221(a) of the Social Security Act (as in effect prior to such amendments) will be deemed to have given to the Secretary the notice specified in section 221(a)(1) of such Act as amended by this section, in lieu of continuing such agreement in effect after the effective date of such amendments. Thereafter, a State may notify the Secretary in writing that it no longer wishes to make disability determinations, effective not less than 180 days after the notification is given.

(i) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress by July 1, 1980, a detailed plan on how he expects to assume the functions and operations of a State disability determination unit when this becomes necessary under the amendments made by this section, and how he intends to meet the requirements of section 221(b)(3) of the Social Security Act. Such plan should assume the uninterrupted operation of the disability determination function and the utilization of the best qualified personnel to carry out such function. If any amendment of Federal law or regulation is required to carry out such plan, recommendations for such amendment should be included in the report.

INFORMATION TO ACCOMPANY SECRETARY'S DECISIONS
SEC. 305. (a) Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence:
"Any such decision by the Secretary which involves a determination of disability and which is in whole or in part unfavorable to such individual shall contain a statement of the case, in understandable language, setting forth a discussion of the evidence, and stating the Secretary's determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based."

(b) Section 1631(c)(1) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence thereof the following new sentence: "Any such decision by the Secretary which involves a determination of disability and which is in whole or in part unfavorable to such individual shall contain a statement of the case, in understandable language, setting forth a discussion of the evidence, and stating the Secretary's deternmination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to decisions made on or after the first day of the 13th month following the month in which this Act is enacted.
LIMITATION ON PROSPECTIVE EFFECT OF APPLICATION

Sec. 306. (a) Section 202(j)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“(2) An application for any monthly benefits under this section filed before the first month in which the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits shall be deemed a valid application (and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month) only if the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits before the Secretary makes a final decision on the application and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).”

(b) Section 216(i)(2)(G) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting “(and shall be deemed to have been filed on such first day)” immediately after “shall be deemed a valid application” in the first sentence,

(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).”, and

(3) by striking out the second sentence.

(c) Section 223(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting “(and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month)” immediately after “shall be deemed a valid application” in the first sentence,

(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).”, and

(3) by striking out the second sentence.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall apply to applications filed after the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON COURT REMANDS

Sec. 307. The sixth sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out all that precedes “and the Secretary shall” and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “The court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown before he files his answer, remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and it may at any time order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, but only upon a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there is good cause for the failure to incorporate such evidence into the record in a prior proceeding.”
TIME LIMITATIONS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS

SEC. 308. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress, no later than July 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of appropriate time limitations governing decisions on claims for benefits under title II of the Social Security Act. Such report shall specifically recommend—

(1) the maximum period of time (after application for a payment under such title is filed) within which the initial decision of the Secretary as to the rights of the applicant should be made;

(2) the maximum period of time (after application for reconsideration of any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary on such reconsideration should be made;

(3) the maximum period of time (after a request for a hearing with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary upon such hearing (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made; and

(4) the maximum period of time (after a request for review by the Appeals Council with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is made) within which the decision of the Secretary upon such review (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made.

In determining the time limitations to be recommended, the Secretary shall take into account both the need for expeditious processing of claims for benefits and the need to assure that all such claims will be thoroughly considered and accurately determined.

PAYMENT FOR EXISTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE

SEC. 309. (a) Section 223(d)(5) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required and requested by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to evidence requested on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 310. (a) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(f) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure, out of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, or the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund (as determined appropriate by the Secretary), such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under this title, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations.

"Payment of Certain Travel Expenses

(h) The Secretary shall pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under this title, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 1614(e)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations."

(c) Section 1817 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure out of the Trust Fund such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations."

Sec. 311. (a) Section 221 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) In any case where an individual is or has been determined to be under a disability, the case shall be reviewed by the applicable State agency or the Secretary (as may be appropriate), for purposes of continuing eligibility, at least once every 3 years; except that where a finding has been made that such disability is permanent, such reviews shall be made at such times as the Secretary determines to be appropriate. Reviews of cases under the preceding sentence shall be in addition to, and shall not be considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required or provided for under or in the administration of this title."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on January 1, 1982.

REPORT BY SECRETARY

Sec. 312. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress not later than January 1, 1985, a full and complete report as to the effects produced by reason of the preceding provisions of this Act and the amendments made thereby.

TITLE IV—PROVISIONS RELATING TO AFDC AND CHILD SUPPORT PROGRAMS

WORK REQUIREMENT UNDER THE AFDC PROGRAM

Sec. 401. (a) Section 402(a)(19)(A) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out all that follows "(A)" and precedes clause (i), and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "that every individual, as a condition of eligibility for aid under this part, shall register for manpower services, training, employment, and other employment-related activities (including employment search, not to exceed eight weeks in total in each year) with the Secretary of Labor as provided by regulations issued by him, unless such individual is—";

(d) Section 402(a)(19)(F) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out, "and for so long as any child, relative, or individual (certified to the Secretary of Labor pursuant to subparagraph (G)) in the matter preceding clause (i), and inserting in lieu thereof "(and for such period as is prescribed under joint regulations of the Secretary and the Secretary of Labor) any child, relative or individual"; and
(2) by inserting "and" after the semicolon at the end of clause
(iv), and striking out all that follows.
(e) Section 402(a)(19)(G) of such Act is amended—
(1) by inserting "(which will, to the maximum extent feasible, be located in the same facility as that utilized for the administration of programs established pursuant to section 432(b) (1), (2), or (3))" immediately after "administrative unit" in clause
(i);
(2) by striking out "subparagraph (A)," in clause (ii), and in-serting in lieu thereof "subparagraph (A) of this paragraph (I)";
(3) by striking out "part C" where it first appears in clause
(ii) and inserting in lieu thereof "section 432(b) (1), (2), or (3)";
and
(4) by striking out "employment or training under part C," in clause (ii) and inserting in lieu thereof "employment or training under section 432(b) (1), (2), or (3), (II) such social and supportive services as are necessary to enable such individuals as deter-dined appropriate by the Secretary of Labor actively to engage in other employment-related (including but not limited to employment search) activities, as well as timely payment for necessary employment search expenses, and (III) for a period deemed appropriate by the Secretary of Labor after such an individual accepts employment, such social and supportive services as are reasonable and necessary to enable him to retain such employment."
(f) Section 402(a)(19) of such Act is further amended—
(1) by striking out "and" at the end of subparagraph (F);
(2) by adding "and" after the semicolon at the end of subpar-agraph (G); and
(3) by adding after subparagraph (G) the following new sub-paragraph:
"(H) that an individual participating in employment search activities shall not be referred to employment opportunities which do not meet the criteria for appropriate work and training to which an individual may otherwise be assigned under section 432(b) (1), (2), or (3)".
(g) Section 403(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "part C" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 432(b) (1), (2), or (3)".
(h) Section 403(d)(1) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "In determining the amount of the expenditures made under a State plan for any quarter with respect to social and supportive services pursuant to section 402(a)(19)(G), there shall be included the fair and reasonable value of goods and services furnished in kind from the State or any political subdivision thereof."
(i) The amendments made by this section (other than those made by subsections (c) and (d)) shall take effect on September 30, 1980, and the joint regulations referred to in section 402(a)(19)(F) of the Social Security Act (as amended by this section) shall be promulgated on or before such date, and take effect on such date.
USE OF INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE TO COLLECT CHILD SUPPORT FOR NON-AFDC FAMILIES

Sec. 402. (a) The first sentence of section 452(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "(or undertaken to be collected by such State pursuant to section 454(6))" immediately after "assigned to such State".

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect July 1, 1980.

SAFEGUARDS RESTRICTING DISCLOSURE OF CERTAIN INFORMATION UNDER AFDC AND SOCIAL SERVICE PROGRAMS

Sec. 403. (a) Section 402(a)(9) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of clause (B); and
(2) by striking out "and the safeguards" and all that follows and inserting in lieu thereof the following:
"and (D) any audit or similar activity conducted in connection with the administration of any such plan or program by any governmental entity which is authorized by law to conduct such audit or activity; and the safeguards so provided shall prohibit disclosure, to any committee or legislative body (other than an entity referred to in clause (D) with respect to an activity referred to in such clause), of any information which identifies by name or address any such applicant or recipient;".

(b) Section 2003(d)(1)(B) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "provides that" and inserting in lieu thereof "provides safeguards which restrict";
(2) by striking out "will be restricted";
(3) by inserting "(A)" after "connected with"; and
(4) by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof the following:
"and (B) any audit or similar activity conducted in connection with the administration of any such plan or program by any governmental entity which is authorized by law to conduct such audit or activity; and the safeguards so provided shall prohibit disclosure, to any committee or legislative body (other than an entity referred to in clause (B) with respect to an activity referred to in such clause), of any information which identifies by name or address any such applicant or recipient;".

(c) The amendments made by this section shall take effect on September 1, 1980.

FEDERAL MATCHING FOR CHILD SUPPORT DUTIES PERFORMED BY CERTAIN COURT PERSONNEL

Sec. 404. (a) Section 455 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(c)(1) Subject to paragraph (2), there shall be included, in determining amounts expended by a State during any quarter for the operation of the plan approved under section 454, so much of the expenditures of courts of such State and its political subdivisions (excluding expenditures for or in connection with judges and other individuals making judicial determinations, but not excluding expenditures for or in connection with their administrative and sup-" port personnel) as are attributable to the performance of services which are directly related to, and clearly identifiable with, the operation of such plan.

"(2) The aggregate amount of the expenditures which are included pursuant to paragraph (1) for the quarters in any calendar year shall be reduced (but not below zero) by the total amount of expenditures described in paragraph (1) which were made by the State for the 12-month period beginning January 1, 1978.

"(3) The State agency may, if the law (or procedures established thereunder) of the State so provides, pay so much of the amount it receives under subsection (a) for any quarter as is payable by reason of the provisions of this subsection directly to the courts of the State (or political subdivisions thereof) furnishing the services on account of which the payment is payable."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to expenditures made by States on an after July 1, 1980.

CHILD SUPPORT MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEM

SEC. 405. (a) Section 455(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (1);
(2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof ", and"; and
(3) by adding after and below paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

"(3) equal to 90 percent (rather than the percent specified in clause (1) or (2)) of so much of the sums expended during such quarter as are attributable to the planning, design, development, installation or enhancement of an automatic data processing and information retrieval system which the Secretary finds meets the requirements specified in section 454(16);"

(b) Section 454 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (14),
(2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (15) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and
(3) by adding after paragraph (15) the following new paragraph:

"(16) provide, at the option of the State, for the establishment, in accordance with an (initial and annually updated) advance automatic data processing planning document approved under section 452(d), of an automatic data processing and information retrieval system designed effectively and efficiently to assist management in the administration of the State plan, in the State and localities thereof, so as (A) to control, account for, and monitor (i) all the factors in the child support enforcement collection and paternity determination process under such plan (including, but not limited to, (I) identifiable correlation factors (such as social security numbers, names, dates of birth, home addresses and mailing addresses (including postal ZIP codes) of any individual with respect to whom child support obligations are sought to be established or enforced and with respect to any person to whom such support obligations are owing) to assure sufficient compatibility among the systems of different jurisdictions to permit periodic screening to determine whether such in-
individual is paying or is obligated to pay child support in more than one jurisdiction, (II) checking of records of such individuals on a periodic basis with Federal, intra- and inter-State, and local agencies, (III) maintaining the data necessary to meet the Federal reporting requirements on a timely basis, and (IV) delinquency and enforcement activities, (ii) the collection and distribution of support payments (both intra- and inter-State), the determination, collection and distribution, of incentive payments both inter- and intra-State, and the maintenance of accounts receivable on all amounts owed, collected and distributed, and (iii) the costs of all services rendered, either directly or by interfacing with State financial management and expenditure information, (B) to provide interface with records of the State's aid to families with dependent children program in order to determine if a collection of a support payment causes a change affecting eligibility for or the amount of aid under such program, (C) to provide for security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system, and (D) to provide management information on all cases under the State plan from initial referral or application through collection and enforcement.

"(d)(1) The Secretary shall not approve the initial and annually updated advance automatic data processing planning document, referred to in section 454(16), unless he finds that such document, when implemented, will generally carry out the objectives of the management system referred to in such subsection, and such document—

"(A) provides for the conduct of, and reflects the results of, requirements analysis studies, which include consideration of the program mission, functions, organization, services, constraints, and current support, of, in, or relating to, such system,

"(B) contains a description of the proposed management system referred to in section 455(a)(3), including a description of information flows, input data, and output reports and uses,

"(C) sets forth the security and interface requirements to be employed in such management system,

"(D) describes the projected resource requirements for staff and other needs, and the resources available or expected to be available to meet such requirements,

"(E) contains an implementation plan and backup procedures to handle possible failures,

"(F) contains a summary of proposed improvement of such management system in terms of qualitative and quantitative benefits, and

"(G) provides such other information as the Secretary determines under regulation is necessary.

"(2)(A) The Secretary shall through the separate organizational unit established pursuant to subsection (a), on a continuing basis, review, assess, and inspect the planning, design, and operation of, management information systems referred to in section 455(a)(3), with a view to determining whether, and to what extent, such systems meet and continue to meet requirements imposed under paragraph (1) and the conditions specified under section 454(16)."
"(B) If the Secretary finds with respect to any statewide management information system referred to in section 455(a)(3) that there is a failure substantially to comply with criteria, requirements, and other undertakings, prescribed by the advance automatic data processing planning document theretofore approved by the Secretary with respect to such system, then the Secretary shall suspend his approval of such document until there is no longer any such failure of such system to comply with such criteria, requirements, and other undertakings so prescribed."

(d) Section 452 of the Social Security Act is further amended by adding after subsection (d) (as added by subsection (c) of this section) the following new subsection:

"(e) The Secretary shall provide such technical assistance to States as he determines necessary to assist States to plan, design, develop, or install and provide for the security of, the management information systems referred to in section 455(a)(3)."

(e) The amendments made by this section shall take effect on July 1, 1981, and shall be effective only with respect to expenditures, referred to in section 455(a)(3) of the Social Security Act (as amended by this Act), made on or after such date.

AFDC MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEM

Sec. 406. (a) Section 403(a)(3) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of subparagraph (A);
(2) by redesignating subparagraph (B) as subparagraph (C); and
(3) by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following new subparagraph:

"(B) 90 per centum of so much of the sums expended during such quarter as are attributable to the planning, design, development, or installation of such statewide mechanized claims processing and information retrieval systems as (i) meet the conditions of section 402(a)(30), and (ii) the Secretary determines are likely to provide more efficient, economical, and effective administration of the plan and to be compatible with the claims processing and information retrieval systems utilized in the administration of State plans approved under title XIX, and State programs with respect to which there is Federal financial participation under title XX, and".

(A) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (28);
(B) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (29) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and
(C) by adding after paragraph (29) the following new paragraph:

"(30) at the option of the State, provide for the establishment and operation, in accordance with an (initial and annually updated) advance automatic data processing planning document approved under subsection (d), of an automated statewide management information system designed effectively and efficiently, to assist management in the administration of the State plan for aid to families with dependent children approved under this part, so as (A) to control and account for (i) all the factors in the total eligibility determination process under such plan for aid (including but not limited to (I) identifiable correlation factors (such as social security numbers, names, dates of birth, home addresses, and mailing addresses (including postal ZIP codes), of all applicants and recipients of such aid and the relative with whom any child who is such an applicant or recipient is living) to assure sufficient compatibility among the systems of different jurisdictions to permit periodic screening to determine whether an individual is or has been receiving benefits from more than one jurisdiction, (II) checking records of applicants and recipients of such aid on a periodic basis with other agencies, both intra- and inter-State, for determination and verification of eligibility and payment pursuant to requirements imposed by other provisions of this Act), (ii) the costs, quality, and delivery of funds and services furnished to applicants and recipients of such aid, (B) to notify the appropriate officials of child support, food stamp, social service, and medical assistance programs approved under title XIX whenever the case becomes ineligible or the amount of aid or services is changed, and (C) to provide for security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system.

(2) Section 402 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d)(1) The Secretary shall not approve the initial and annually updated advance automatic data processing planning document, referred to in subsection (a)(30), unless he finds that such document, when implemented, will generally carry out the objectives of the statewide management system referred to in such subsection, and such document—

"(A) provides for the conduct of, and reflects the results of, requirements analysis studies, which include consideration of the program mission, functions, organization, services, constraints, and current support, of, in, or relating to, such system,

"(B) contains a description of the proposed statewide management system, including a description of information flows, input data, and output reports and uses,

"(C) sets forth the security and interface requirements to be employed in such statewide management system,

"(D) describes the projected resource requirements for staff and other needs, and the resources available or expected to be available to meet such requirements,

"(E) includes cost-benefit analyses of each alternative management system, data processing services and equipment, and a cost allocation plan containing the basis for rates, both direct and indirect, to be in effect under such statewide management system,

"(F) contains an implementation plan with charts of development events, testing descriptions, proposed acceptance criteria, and backup and fallback procedures to handle possible failure of contingencies, and

"(G) contains a summary of proposed improvement of such statewide management system in terms of qualitative and quantitative benefits."
“(A) The Secretary shall, on a continuing basis, review, assess, and inspect the planning, design, and operation of statewide management information systems referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B), with a view to determining whether, and to what extent, such systems meet and continue to meet requirements imposed under such section and the conditions specified under subsection (a)(30) of this section.

“(B) If the Secretary finds with respect to any statewide management information system referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B) that there is a failure substantially to comply with criteria, requirements, and other undertakings, prescribed by the advance automatic data processing planning document theretofore approved by the Secretary with respect to such system, then the Secretary shall suspend his approval of such document until there is no longer any such failure of such system to comply with such criteria, requirements, and other undertakings so prescribed.”

(c) Part A of title IV of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

“TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR DEVELOPING MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS

“SEC. 413. The Secretary shall provide such technical assistance to States as he determines necessary to assist States to plan, design, develop, or install and provide for the security of, the management information systems referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B) of this Act.”

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to expenditures made during calendar quarters beginning on or after July 1, 1981.

CHILD SUPPORT REPORTING AND MATCHING PROCEDURES

SEC. 407. (a) Section 455(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “The Secretary” and inserting in lieu thereof “Subject to subsection (d), the Secretary”.

(b) Section 455 of such Act is further amended by adding after subsection (c) (as added by section 404 of this Act) the following new subsection:

“(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no amount shall be paid to any State under this section for any quarter, prior to the close of such quarter, unless for the period consisting of all prior quarters for which payment is authorized to be made to such State under subsection (a), there shall have been submitted by the State to the Secretary, with respect to each quarter in such period (other than the last two quarters in such period), a full and complete report (in such form and manner and containing such information as the Secretary shall prescribe or require) as to the amount of child support collected and disbursed and all expenditures with respect to which payment is authorized under subsection (a).”

(c) Section 403(b)(2) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “and” at the end of clause (A); and

(2) by adding immediately before the semicolon at the end of clause (B) the following: “; and (C) reduced by such amount as is necessary to provide the ‘appropriate reimbursement of the Federal Government’ that the State is required to make under section 457 out of that portion of child support collections tained by it pursuant to such section".

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be effective in the case of calendar quarters commencing on or after January 1, 1981.

ACCESS TO WAGE INFORMATION FOR PURPOSES OF CARRYING OUT
STATE PLANS FOR CHILD SUPPORT

SEC. 408. (a)(1) Subsection (l) of section 6103 of the Internal Revecue Code of 1954 (relating to disclosure of returns and return information for purposes other than tax administration) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(7) DISCLOSURE OF CERTAIN RETURN INFORMATION BY SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION TO STATE AND LOCAL CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Upon written request, the Commissioner of Social Security shall disclose directly to officers and employees of a State or local child support enforcement agency return information from returns with respect to net earnings from self-employment (as defined in section 1402), wages (as defined in section 3121(a) or 3401(a)), and pay-mements of retirement income which have been disclosed to the Social Security Administration as provided by paragraph (l) or (5) of this subsection.

"(B) RESTRICTION ON

DISCLOSURE.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall disclose returninformation under sub-paragraph (A) only for purposes of, and to the extent necessary in, establishing and collecting child support obligations from, and locating, individuals owing such obligations. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term

'child support obligations' only includes obligations which are being enforced pursuant to a plan described in section

454 of the Social Security Act which has been approved by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under part D of title IV of such Act.

"(C) STATE OR LOCAL CHILD SUPPORT

ENFORCEMENT

AGENCY.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'State or local child support enforcement agency' means any agency of a State or political subdivision thereof operating pursuant to a plan described in subparagraph (B).

) (2)(A) Subparagraph (A) of section 6103(p)(3) of such Code (relating to records of inspection and disclosure) is amended by striking out "(l)(1) or (4)(B) or (5)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(l)(1), (4)(B), (5), or (7)".

(B) Paragraph (4) of section 6103(p) of such Code (relating to safeguards) is amended by striking out "(l)(3) or (6)" in so much of such paragraph as precedes subparagraph (A) thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "(l)(3), (6), or (7)".

(C) Clause (i) of section 6103(p)(4)(F) of such Code is amended by striking out "(l)(6)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(l)(6) or (7)".

(D) The first sentence of paragraph (2) of section 7213(a) of such

Code is amended by striking out "subsection (d), (l)(6), or (m)(4)(B)" and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (d), (l)(6) or (7), or (m)(4)(B)".

The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b)(1) Section 303 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d)(1) The State agency charged with the administration of the State law—

"(A) shall disclose, upon request and on a reimbursable basis, directly to officers or employees of any State or local child support enforcement agency any wage information contained in the records of such State agency, and

"(B) shall establish such safeguards as are necessary (as determined by the Secretary of Labor in regulations) to insure that information disclosed under subparagraph (A) is used only for purposes of establishing and collecting child support obligations from, and locating, individuals owing such obligations.

For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term ‘child support obligations’ only includes obligations which are being enforced pursuant to a plan described in section 454 of this Act which has been approved by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under part D of title IV of this Act.

"(2) Whenever the Secretary of Labor, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency charged with the administration of the State law, finds that there is a failure to comply substantially with the requirements of paragraph (1), the Secretary of Labor shall notify such State agency that further payments will not be made to the State until he is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure. Until the Secretary of Labor is so satisfied, he shall make no further certification to the Secretary of the Treasury with respect to such State.

"(3) For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘State or local child support enforcement agency’ means any agency of a State or political subdivision thereof operating pursuant to a plan described in the last sentence of paragraph (1)."

(2) Paragraph (2) of section 304(a) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “subsection (b) or (c)” and inserting in lieu thereof “subsection (b), (c), or (d)”. (3) The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect on July 1, 1980.

TITLE V—OTHER PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN SOCIAL SECURITY AND SSI BENEFITS

Sec. 501. (a) Part A of title XI of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting immediately after section 1126 the following new section:

"ADJUSTMENT OF RETROACTIVE BENEFITS UNDER TITLE II ON ACCOUNT OF SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME BENEFITS

"Sec. 1127. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, in any case where an individual—

"(1) makes application for benefits under title II and is subsequently determined to be entitled to those benefits, and
“(2) was an individual with respect to whom supplemental security income benefits were paid under title XVI (including State supplementary payments which were made under an agreement pursuant to section 1616(a) or an administration agreement under section 212 of Public Law 93-66) for one or more months during the period beginning with the first month for which a benefit described in paragraph (1) is payable and ending with the month before the first month in which such benefit is paid pursuant to the application referred to in paragraph (1), the benefits (described in paragraph (1)) which are otherwise retroactively payable to such individual for months in the period described in paragraph (2) shall be reduced by an amount equal to so much of such supplemental security income benefits (including State supplementary payments) described in paragraph (2) for such month or months as would not have been paid with respect to such individual or his eligible spouse if the individual had received the benefits under title II at the times they were regularly due during such period rather than retroactively; and from the amount of such reduction the Secretary shall reimburse the State on behalf of which such supplementary payments were made for the amount (if any) by which such State’s expenditures on account of such supplementary payments for the period involved exceeded the expenditures which the State would have made (for such period) if the individual had received the benefits under title II at the times they were regularly due during such period rather than retroactively. An amount equal to the portion of such reduction remaining after reimbursement of the State under the preceding sentence shall be covered into the general fund of the Treasury.”

“(e) For payments which are adjusted by reason of payment of benefits under the supplemental security income program established by title XVI, see section 1127.”

(c) Section 1631(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting “(1)” immediately after “(b)”, and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

“(2) For payments for which adjustments are made by reason of a retroactive payment of benefits under title II, see section 1127.”

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be applicable in the case of payments of monthly insurance benefits under title II of the Social Security Act entitlement for which is determined on or after the first day of the thirteenth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Sec. 502. (a) Section 361(a)(3)(XF) of the Social Security Amendments of 1977 is amended by striking out “a term of two years” and inserting in lieu thereof “a term which shall end on April 1, 1981”.

(b) Section 361(c)(2) of the Social Security Amendments of 1977 is amended by striking out all that follows the semicolon and inserting in lieu thereof “and the Commission shall cease to exist on April 1, 1981.”
TIME FOR MAKING OF SOCIAL SECURITY CONTRIBUTIONS WITH RESPECT TO COVERED STATE AND LOCAL EMPLOYEES

SEC. 503. (a) Subparagraph (A) of section 218(e)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(A) that the State will pay to the Secretary of the Treasury, within the thirty-day period immediately following the last day of each calendar month, amounts equivalent to the sum of the taxes which would be imposed by sections 3101 and 3111 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 if the services for which wages were paid in such month to employees covered by the agreement constituted employment as defined in section 3121 of such Code; and"

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall be effective with respect to the payment of taxes (referred to in section 218(e)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act, as amended by subsection (a)) on account of wages paid on or after July 1, 1980.

(c) The provisions of section 7 of Public Law 94—202 shall not be applicable to any regulation which becomes effective on or after July 1, 1980, and which is designed to carry out the purposes of subsection (a) of this section.

SEC. 504. (a) Section 1614(f) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(3) For purposes of determining eligibility for and the amount of benefits for any individual who is an alien, such individual's income and resources shall be deemed to include the income and resources of his sponsor and such sponsor's spouse (if such alien has a sponsor) as provided in section 1621. Any such income deemed to be income of such individual shall be treated as unearned income of such individual."

(b) Part A of title XVI of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 201(c) of this Act) the following new section:

"ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR'S INCOME AND RESOURCES TO ALIENS

"SEC. 1621. (a) For purposes of determining eligibility for and the amount of benefits under this title for an individual who is an alien, the income and resources of any person who (as a sponsor of such individual's entry into the United States) executed an affidavit of support or similar agreement with respect to such individual, and the income and resources of the sponsor's spouse, shall be deemed to be the income and resources of such individual (in accordance with subsections (b) and (c)) for a period of three years after the individual's entry into the United States. Any such income deemed to be income of such individual shall be treated as unearned income of such individual.

"(b)(1) The amount of income of a sponsor (and his spouse) which shall be deemed to be the unearned income of an alien for any year shall be determined as follows:

"(A) The total yearly rate of earned and unearned income (as determined under section 1612(a)) of such sponsor and such sponsor's spouse (if such spouse is living with the sponsor) shall be determined for such year.

"(B) The amount determined under subparagraph (A) shall be reduced by an amount equal to (i) the maximum amount of the Federal benefit under this title for such year which would be payable to an eligible individual who has no other income and who does not have an eligible spouse (as determined under section 1611(b)(1)), plus (ii) one-half of the amount determined under clause (i) multiplied by the number of individuals who are dependents of such sponsor (or such sponsor's spouse if such spouse is living with the sponsor), other than such alien and such alien's spouse.

"(C) The amount of income which shall be deemed to be unearned income of such alien shall be at a yearly rate equal to the amount determined under subparagraph (B). The period for determination of such amount shall be the same as the period for determination of benefits under section 1611(c).

"(2) The amount of resources of a sponsor (and his spouse) which shall be deemed to be the resources of an alien for any year shall be determined as follows:

"(A) The total amount of the resources (as determined under section 1613) of such sponsor and such sponsor's spouse (if such spouse is living with the sponsor) shall be determined.

"(B) The amount determined under subparagraph (A) shall be reduced by an amount equal to (i) $1,500 in the case of a sponsor who has no spouse with whom he is living, or (ii) $2,250 in the case of a sponsor who has a spouse with whom he is living.

"(C) The resources of such sponsor (and spouse) as determined under subparagraphs (A) and (B) shall be deemed to be resources of such alien in addition to any resources of such alien.

"(c) In determining the amount of income of an alien during the period of three years after such alien's entry into the United States, the reduction in dollar amounts otherwise required under section 1612(a)(2)(A)(i) shall not be applicable if such alien is living in the household of a person who is a sponsor (or such sponsor's spouse) of such alien, and is receiving support and maintenance in kind from such sponsor (or spouse), nor shall support or maintenance furnished in cash or kind to an alien by such alien's sponsor (to the extent that it reflects income or resources which were taken into account in determining the amount of income and resources to be deemed to the alien under subsection (a) or (b)) be considered to be income of such alien under section 1612(a)(2)(A).

"(d)(1) Any individual who is an alien shall, during the period of three years after entry into the United States, in order to be an eligible individual or eligible spouse for purposes of this title, be required to provide to the Secretary such information and documentation with respect to his sponsor as may be necessary in order for the Secretary to make any determination required under this section, and to obtain any cooperation from such sponsor necessary for any such determination. Such alien shall also be required to provide to the Secretary such information and documentation as the Secretary may request and which such alien or his sponsor provided in support of such alien's immigration application.

"(2) The Secretary shall enter into agreements with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General whereby any information available to such persons and required in order to make any determination under this section will be provided by such persons to the Secretary, and whereby such persons shall inform any sponsor of an alien, at the time such sponsor executes an affidavit of support or similar agreement, of the requirements imposed by this section.

"(e) Any sponsor of an alien, and such alien, shall be jointly and severally liable for an amount equal to any overpayment made to such alien during the period of three years after such alien's entry into the United States, on account of such sponsor's failure to provide correct information under the provisions of this section, except where such sponsor was without fault, or where good cause for such failure existed. Any such overpayment which is not repaid to the Secretary or recovered in accordance with section 1631(b) shall be withheld from any subsequent payment to which such alien or such sponsor is entitled under any provision of this Act.

"(f)(1) The provisions of this section shall not apply with respect to any individual who is an 'aged, blind, or disabled individual' for purposes of this title by reason of blindness (as determined under section 1614(a)(2)) or disability (as determined under section 1614(a)(3)), from and after the onset of the impairment, if such blindness or disability commenced after the date of such individual's admission into the United States for permanent residence.

"(2) The provisions of this section shall not apply with respect to any alien who is—

"(A) admitted to the United States as a result of the application, prior to April 1, 1980, of the provisions of section 203(a)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act;

"(B) admitted to the United States as a result of the application, after March 31, 1980, of the provisions of section 207(c)(1) of such Act;

"(C) paroled into the United States as a refugee under section 212(d)(5) of such Act; or

"(D) granted political asylum by the Attorney General.

"(c) The amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to individuals applying for supplemental security income benefits under title XVI of the Social Security Act for the first time after September 30, 1980.

AUTHORITY FOR DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS

Sec. 505. (a)(1) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall develop and carry out experiments and demonstration projects dedigned to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of
(A) various alternative methods of treating the work activity of disabled beneficiaries under the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program, including such methods as a reduction in benefits based on earnings, designed to encourage the return to work of disabled beneficiaries and (B) altering other limitations and conditions applicable to such disabled beneficiaries (including, but not limited to, lengthening the trial work period, altering the 24-month waiting period for medicare benefits, altering the manner in which such program is administered, earlier referral of beneficiaries for rehabilitation, and greater use of employers and others to develop, perform, and otherwise stimulate new forms of rehabilitation), to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds, or to otherwise promote the objectives or facilitate the administration of title II of the Social Security Act.

(2) The experiments and demonstration projects developed under paragraph (1) shall be of sufficient scope and shall be carried out on a wide enough scale to permit a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration while giving assurance that the results derived from the experiments and projects will obtain generally in the operation of the disability insurance program without committing such program to the adoption of any particular system either locally or nationally.

(3) In the case of any experiment or demonstration project under paragraph (1), the Secretary may waive compliance with the benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII of the Social Security Act insofar as is necessary for a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration. No such experiment or project shall be actually placed in operation unless at least ninety days prior thereto a written report, prepared for purposes of notification and information only and containing a full and complete description thereof, has been transmitted by the Secretary to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate. Periodic reports on the progress of such experiments and demonstration projects shall be submitted by the Secretary to such committees. When appropriate, such reports shall include detailed recommendations for changes in administration or law, or both, to carry out the objectives stated in paragraph (1).

(4) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress no later than January 1, 1983, a report on the experiments and demonstration projects with respect to work incentives carried out under this subsection together with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(5) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new subsection added by section 310(a) of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(k) Expenditures made for experiments and demonstration projects under section 505(a) of the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980 shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, as determined appropriate by the Secretary.".

(b) Section 1110 of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" after "Sec. 1110. (a)";
(2) by striking out "for (1)" and "(2)" and inserting in lieu thereof "for (A)" and "(B)" respectively;
(3) by redesignating subsections (b) and (c) as paragraphs (2) and (3), respectively;
(4) by striking out "under subsection (a)" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "under paragraph (1)";
(5) by striking out "purposes of this section" and inserting in lieu thereof "purposes of this subsection"; and
(6) by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b)(1) The Secretary is authorized to waive any of the requirements, conditions, or limitations of title XVI (or to waive them only for specified purposes, or to impose additional requirements, conditions, or limitations) to such extent and for such period as he finds necessary to carry out one or more experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects which, in his judgment, are likely to assist in promoting the objectives or facilitate the administration of such title. Any costs for benefits under or administration of any such project (including planning for the project and the review and evaluation of the project and its results), in excess of those that would have been incurred without regard to the project, shall be met by the Secretary from amounts available to him for this purpose from appropriations made to carry out such title. The costs of any such project which is carried out in coordination with one or more related projects under other titles of this Act shall be allocated among the appropriations available for such projects and any Trust Funds involved, in a manner determined by the Secretary, taking into consideration the programs (or types of benefit) to which the project (or part of a project) is most closely related or which the project (or part of a project) is intended to benefit. If, in order to carry out a project under this subsection, the Secretary requests a State to make supplementary payments (or makes them himself pursuant to an agreement under section 1616), or to provide medical assistance under its plan approved under title XIX, to individuals who are not eligible therefor, or in amounts or under circumstances in which the State does not make such payments or provide such medical assistance, the Secretary shall reimburse such State for the non-Federal share of such payments or assistance from amounts appropriated to carry out title XVI.

"(2) With respect to the participation of recipients of supplemental security income benefits in experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects under this subsection—

"(A) the Secretary is not authorized to carry out any project that would result in a substantial reduction in any individual's total income and resources as a result of his or her participation in the project;

"(B) the Secretary may not require any individual to participate in a project; and he shall assure (i) that the voluntary participation of individuals in any project is obtained through informed written consent which satisfies the requirements for informed consent established by the Secretary for use in any experimental, pilot, or demonstration project in which human subjects are at risk, and (ii) that any individual's voluntary agreement to participate in any project may be revoked by such individual at any time;

"(C) the Secretary shall, to the extent feasible and appropriate, include recipients who are under age 18 as well as adult recipients; and

"(D) the Secretary shall include in the projects carried out under this section such experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects as may be necessary to ascertain the feasibility of treating alcoholics and drug addicts to prevent the onset of irreversible medical conditions which may result in permanent disability, including programs in residential care treatment centers.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS FOR DEMONSTRATION PROJECT RELATING TO THE TERMINALLY ILL

SEC. 506. (a) The Secretary of Health and Human Services is authorized to provide for the participation, by the Social Security Administration, in a demonstration project relating to the terminally ill which is currently being conducted within the Department of Health and Human Services. The purpose of such participation shall be to study the impact on the terminally ill of provisions of the disability programs administered by the Social Security Administration and to determine how best to provide services needed by persons who are terminally ill through programs over which the Social Security Administration has administrative responsibility.

(b) For the purpose of carrying out this section there are authorized to be appropriated such sums (not in excess of $2,000,000 for any fiscal year) as may be necessary.

VOLUNTARY CERTIFICATION OF MEDICARE SUPPLEMENTAL HEALTH INSURANCE POLICIES

SEC. 507. (a) Title XVIII of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 1882. (a) The Secretary shall establish a procedure whereby medicare supplemental policies (as defined in subsection (g)(1)) may be certified by the Secretary as meeting minimum standards and requirements set forth in subsection (c). Such procedure shall provide an opportunity for any insurer to submit any such policy, and such additional data as the Secretary finds necessary, to the Secretary for his examination and for his certification thereof as meeting the standards and requirements set forth in subsection (c). Such certification shall remain in effect if the insurer files a notarized statement with the Secretary no later than June 30 of each year stating that the policy continues to meet such standards and requirements and if the insurer submits such additional data as the Secretary finds necessary to independently verify the accuracy of such notarized statement. Where the Secretary determines such a policy meets (or continues to meet) such standards and requirements, he shall authorize the insurer to have printed on such policy (but only in accordance with such requirements and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe) an emblem which the Secretary shall cause to be designed for use as an indication that a policy has received the Secretary's certification. The Secretary shall provide each State commissioner or superintendent of insurance with a list of all the policies which have received his certification.

"(b)(1) Any medicare supplemental policy issued in any State which the Supplemental Health Insurance Panel (established under paragraph (2)) determines has established under State law a regulatory program that shall be deemed (for so long as the Panel finds that such State regulatory program continues to meet the standards and requirements of this paragraph) to meet the standards and requirements set forth in subsection (c).

"(A) provides for the application of standards with respect to such policies equal to or more stringent than the NAIC Model Standards (as defined in subsection (g)(2)(A));"
"(B) includes a requirement equal to or more stringent than the requirement described in subsection (c)(2); and

"(2)(A) There is hereby established a panel (hereinafter in this section referred to as the 'Panel') to be known as the Supplemental Health Insurance Panel. The Panel shall consist of the Secretary, who shall serve as the Chairman, and four State commissioners or superintendents of insurance, who shall be appointed by the President and serve at his pleasure. Such members shall first be appointed not later than December 31, 1980.

"(B) A majority of the members of the Panel shall constitute a quorum, but a lesser number may conduct hearings.

"(C) The Secretary shall provide such technical, secretarial, clerical, and other assistance as the Panel may require.

"(D) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this paragraph.

"(E) Members of the Panel shall be allowed, while away from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the Panel, travel expenses (including per diem in lieu of subsistence) in the same manner as persons employed intermittently in the Government service are allowed expenses under section 5703 of title 5, United States Code.

"(c) The Secretary shall certify under this section any medicare supplemental policy, or continue certification of such a policy, only if he finds that such policy—

"(1) meets or exceeds (either in a single policy or, in the case of nonprofit hospital and medical service associations, in one or more policies issued in conjunction with one another) the NAIC Model Standards; and

"(2) can be expected (as estimated for the entire period for which rates are computed to provide coverage, on the basis of incurred claims experience and earned premiums for such period and in accordance with accepted actuarial principles and practices) to return to policyholders in the form of aggregate benefits provided under the policy, at least 75 percent of the aggregate amount of premiums collected in the case of group policies and at least 60 percent of the aggregate amount of premiums collected in the case of individual policies.

For purposes of paragraph (2), policies issued as a result of solicitations of individuals through the mails or by mass media advertising (including both print and broadcast advertising) shall be deemed to be individual policies.

"(d)(1) Whoever knowingly or willfully makes or causes to be made or induces or seeks to induce the making of any false statement or representation of a material fact with respect to the compliance of any policy with the standards and requirements set forth in subsection (c) or in regulations promulgated pursuant to such subsection, or with respect to the use of the emblem designed by the Secretary under subsection (a), shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

"(2) Whoever falsely assumes or pretends to be acting, or misrepresents in any way that he is acting, under the authority of or in association with, the program of health insurance established by this title, or any Federal agency, for the purpose of selling or attempting to sell insurance, or in such pretended character demands, or obtains money, paper, documents, or anything of value, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

"(3)(A) Whoever knowingly sells a health insurance policy to an individual entitled to benefits under part A or enrolled under part B of this title, with knowledge that such policy substantially duplicates health benefits to which such individual is otherwise entitled, other than benefits to which he is entitled under a requirement of State or Federal law (other than this title), shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

"(B) For purposes of this paragraph, benefits which are payable to or on behalf of an individual without regard to other health benefit coverage of such individual, shall not be considered as duplicative.

"(C) Subparagraph (A) shall not apply with respect to the selling of a group policy or plan of one or more employers or labor organizations, or of the trustees of a fund established by one or more employers or labor organizations (or combination thereof), for employees or former employees (or combination thereof) or for members or former members (or combination thereof) of the labor organizations.

"(4)(A) Whoever knowingly, directly or through his agent, mails or causes to be mailed any matter for a prohibited purpose (as determined under subparagraph (B)) shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

"(B) For purposes of subparagraph (A), a prohibited purpose means the advertising, solicitation, or offer for sale of a medicare supplemental policy, or the delivery of such a policy, in or into any State in which such policy has not been approved by the State commissioner or superintendent of insurance. For purposes of this paragraph, a medicare supplemental policy shall be deemed to be approved by the commissioner or superintendent of insurance of a State if—

(i) the policy has been certified by the Secretary pursuant to subsection (c) or was issued in a State with an approved regulatory program (as defined in subsection (g)(2)(B));

(ii) the policy has been approved by the commissioners or superintendents of insurance in States in which more than 30 percent of such policies are sold; or

(iii) the State has in effect a law which the commissioner or superintendent of insurance of the State has determined gives him the authority to review, and to approve, or effectively bar from sale in the State, such policy;

except that such a policy shall not be deemed to be approved by a State commissioner or superintendent of insurance if the State notifies the Secretary that such policy has been submitted for approval to the State and has been specifically disapproved by such State after providing appropriate notice and opportunity for hearing pursuant to the procedures (if any) of the State.

(C) Subparagraph (A) shall not apply in the case of a person who mails or causes to be mailed a medicare supplemental policy into a State if such person has ascertained that the party insured under such policy to whom (or on whose behalf) such policy is mailed is located in such State on a temporary basis.

(D) Subparagraph (A) shall not apply in the case of a person who mails or causes to be mailed a duplicate copy of a medicare supplemental policy previously issued to the party to whom (or on whose behalf) such duplicate copy is mailed, if such policy expires not more than 12 months after the date on which the duplicate copy is mailed.

(e) The Secretary shall provide to all individuals entitled to benefits under this title (and, to the extent feasible, to individuals about to become so entitled) such information as will permit such individuals to evaluate the value of medicare supplemental policies to them and the relationship of any such policies to benefits provided under this title.

(f)(1)(A) The Secretary shall, in consultation with Federal and State regulatory agencies, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, private insurers, and organizations representing consumers and the aged, conduct a comprehensive study and evaluation of the comparative effectiveness of various State approaches to the regulation of medicare supplemental policies in (i) limiting marketing and agent abuse, (ii) assuring the dissemination of such information to individuals entitled to benefits under this title (and to other consumers) as is necessary to permit informed choice, (iii) promoting policies which provide reasonable economic benefits for such individuals, (iv) reducing the purchase of unnecessary duplicative coverage, (v) improving price competition, and (vi) establishing effective approved State regulatory programs described in subsection (b).

(C) The Secretary shall, no later than January 1, 1982, submit a report to the Congress on the results of such study and evaluation, accompanied by such recommendations as the Secretary finds warranted by such results with respect to the need for legislative or administrative changes to accomplish the objectives set forth in subparagraphs (A) and (B), including the need for a mandatory Federal regulatory program to assure the marketing of appropriate types of medicare supplemental policies, and such other means as he finds may be appropriate to enhance effective State regulation of such policies.

(2) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress no later than July 1, 1982, and periodically as may be appropriate thereafter (but not less often than once every 2 years), a report evaluating the effectiveness of the certification procedure and the criminal penalties established under this section, and shall include in such reports an analysis of—

(A) the impact of such procedure and penalties on the types, market share, value, and cost to individuals entitled to benefits under this title of medicare supplemental policies which have been certified by the Secretary;

(B) the need for any change in the certification procedure to improve its administration or effectiveness; and

(C) whether the certification program and criminal penalties should be continued.

(g)(1) For purposes of this section, a medicare supplemental policy is a health insurance policy or other health benefit plan offered by a private entity to individuals who are entitled to have payment made under this title, which provides reimbursement for expenses incurred for services and items for which payment may be made under this title but which are not reimbursable by reason of the applicability of deductibles, coinsurance amounts, or other limitations imposed pursuant to this title; but does not include any such policy or plan of one or more employers or labor organizations, or of the trustees of a fund established by one or more employers or labor organizations (or combination thereof), for employees or former employees (or combination thereof) or for members or former members (or combination thereof) of the labor organizations. For purposes of this section, the term 'policy' includes a certificate issued under such policy.

(2) For purposes of this section:

(A) The term 'NAIC Model Standards' means the 'NAIC Model Regulation to Implement the Individual Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Act', adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on June 6, 1979, as it applies to medicare supplement policies.

(B) The term 'State with an approved regulatory program' means a State for which the Panel has made a determination under subsection (b)(1).

(C) The State in which a policy is issued means—

(i) in the case of an individual policy, the State in which the policyholder resides; and

(ii) in the case of a group policy, the State in which the holder of the master policy resides.

(h) The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary for the effective, efficient, and equitable administration of the certification procedure established under this section. The Secretary shall first issue final regulations to implement the certification procedure established under subsection (a) not later than March 1, 1981.

(i)(1) No medicare supplemental policy shall be certified and no such policy may be issued bearing the emblem authorized by the Secretary under subsection (a) until July 1, 1982. On and after such date policies certified by the Secretary may bear such emblem, including policies which were issued prior to such date and were subsequently certified, and insurers may notify holders of such certified policies issued prior to such date using such emblem in the notification.

(ii)(A) The Secretary shall not implement the certification program established under subsection (a) with respect to policies issued in a State unless the Panel makes a finding that such State cannot be expected to have established, by July 1, 1982, an approved State regulatory program meeting the standards and requirements of subsection (b)(1). If the Panel makes such a finding, the Secretary shall implement such program under subsection (a) with respect to medici-

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3236) to amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment to the text of the bill struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The House recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment which is a substitute for the House bill and the Senate amendment. The difference between the House bill, the Senate amendment, and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted below, except for clerical corrections, conforming changes made necessary by agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clarifying changes.
TITLE I—PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY INSURANCE

(Sec. 101)

Present law.—The social security disability insurance program (DI) determines the amount of benefits payable based on an individual's previous earnings. The formula for determining disability benefits is the same as for retirement benefits. The benefit level is arrived at by applying a formula to the average indexed monthly earnings the individual had over the course of a period of years which approximates the number of years in which he could reasonably have been expected to be in the work force. For a retired worker, this period is equal to the number of years between the ages of 21 and 62. For a disabled worker, the number of years of earnings to be averaged ends with the year before he became disabled. In either case, the resulting averaging period is reduced by 5.

The basic benefit amount may be increased if the worker has a spouse or dependent children. Benefits for the spouse are payable if the spouse is over age 62 or if the spouse is caring for minor or disabled children. Benefits for children are payable if they are under age 18 or are disabled (as a result of a disability which existed in childhood) or if they are full-time students over age 18 but under age 22. The combined benefit for the worker and all dependents is limited by a family maximum provision to no more than 150 to 180 percent of the worker's benefit alone.

House bill.—The House bill limited total DI family benefits to the smaller of 80 percent of the worker's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) or 150 percent of the worker's primary insurance amount (PIA). Under the provision, no family benefit would be reduced below 100 percent of the worker's primary benefit. The limitation was effective with respect to individuals becoming entitled to benefits on or after January 1, 1980.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill limited total DI family benefits to the smaller of 85 percent of the worker's AIME or 160 percent of the worker's PIA. As under the House bill, no family benefit would be reduced below 100 percent of the worker's primary benefit. The bill provided for the same effective date as the House bill except the limitation would be effective only with respect to individuals who first became entitled to benefits on or after January 1, 1980.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to limit DI family benefits to the smaller of 85 percent of the worker's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME), as in the Senate bill, or 150 percent of the worker's primary insurance amount (PIA), as in the House bill. The limitation is effective only with respect to individuals who first become entitled to benefits on or after July 1, 1980.

(Part 102)

Present law.—Disabled workers are allowed to exclude up to 5 years of low earnings in averaging their earnings. However, at least 2 years of earnings must be used in the benefit computation.

House bill.—The House provision excluded years of low earnings in the computation of disability benefits according to the following schedule:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Worker's age:</th>
<th>Number of dropout years</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Under 27</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27 through 31</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32 through 36</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37 through 41</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>42 through 46</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47 and over</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

The provision also allowed workers to drop out additional low earnings years if in those years the worker provided principal care of a child under age 6. In no case would the number of dropout years exceed 5.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill excluded years of low earnings in the computation of disability benefits according to the following schedule:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Worker's age:</th>
<th>Number of dropout years</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Under 32</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32 through 36</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37 through 41</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>42 through 46</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47 and over</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

There was no provision for allowing additional dropout years for child care.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to exclude years of low earnings in the computation of disability benefits according to the following schedule (as in the House bill):

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Worker's age:</th>
<th>Number of dropout years</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Under 27</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27 through 31</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32 through 36</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37 through 41</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>42 through 46</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47 and over</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>

The provision also would allow a disabled worker to drop out additional years from the computation period if in those years there was a child (of such individual or his or her spouse) under age 3 living in the same household substantially throughout each such year and the disabled worker did not engage in any employment in each such year. Dropout years for periods of childcare would be provided only to the extent that the combined number of childcare dropout years and dropout years provided under the regular schedule do not exceed 3.

The new schedule of dropout years applies to disabled workers who first become entitled to benefits after June 1980. The provision continues to apply to a worker until his death unless before age 62 he ceases to be entitled to disability benefits for 12 continuous months.

The provision allowing childcare dropout years would be effective for monthly benefits payable for months after June 30, 1981.
The provision in present law which requires that at least 2 years of earnings be used in the benefit computation is retained.

Elimination of Second Medicare Waiting Period

(Sec. 103)

Present law.—Beneficiaries of disability insurance (DI) must wait 24 consecutive months after becoming entitled to benefits to become eligible for Medicare. If a beneficiary loses his eligibility and then becomes disabled again, another 24-consecutive-month waiting period is required before Medicare coverage is resumed.

House bill.—The House provision eliminated the requirement that a person who becomes disabled a second time must undergo another 24-consecutive-month waiting period after becoming reentitled to benefits before Medicare coverage is available to him. The amendment applied to workers becoming disabled again within 60 months, and to disabled widows or widowers and adults disabled since childhood becoming disabled again within 84 months.

Senate bill.—Same as House bill.

Conference agreement.—The conferees accepted the provisions of the House and Senate bills and agreed that the provision would be effective 6 months after enactment.

Extension of Medicare for an Additional 36 Months

(Sec. 104)

Present law.—Medicare coverage ends when disability insurance benefits cease.

House bill.—The House provision extended Medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered. (The first 12 months of the 36-month period was part of the new 24-month trial work period. See section 303.)

Senate bill.—Same as House bill.

Conference agreement.—The conferees accepted the provisions of the House and Senate bills and agreed to apply the new provision to disability beneficiaries whose disabilities have not been determined to have ceased prior to the 6th month after enactment.

Funding for Vocational Rehabilitation Services for Disabled Individuals

Present law.—Reimbursement from social security trust funds is now provided to State vocational rehabilitation agencies for the cost of vocational rehabilitation services furnished to disability insurance beneficiaries. The purpose of the payment is to accrue savings to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating the maximum number of beneficiaries into productive activity. The total amount of the funds that may be made available for such reimbursement may not, in any year, exceed 1½ percent of the social security disability benefits paid in the previous year.

House bill.—Effective for fiscal 1982, the House bill eliminated trust fund financing for rehabilitation services but provided trust fund reimbursement for the Federal share (80%) to the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury and to the States for twice the State share (20% × 2) of rehabilitation services which result in the performance by a rehabilitated individual of substantial gainful activity (SGA) for a continuous period of 12 months or which result in employment for 12 consecutive months in a sheltered workshop. It directed the Secretary of HHS to study alternative methods of providing and financing the costs of rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries in order to realize maximum savings to the trust funds and to submit a report with recommendations to the President and the Congress by January 1, 1980.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill made no change from present law.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed not to change the provisions of present law.

The conferees anticipate that the new method of allocating trust fund money to the States for rehabilitation of social security clients which was recently adopted administratively will continue and be intensified in the future. This method generally allocates the trust fund money based on the relative number of social security beneficiaries each State rehabilitates with earnings at the substantial gainful activity (SGA) level, provided that no State loses more than ½ of its previous year’s funding. Currently, rehabilitation is considered to have been achieved when the client has been employed for two months. The managers expect that the measure of success, i.e., rehabilitation at the SGA level, will be modified as soon as administratively feasible so that the allocation formula will be based on the State’s relative share of the total number of social security clients employed as a result of rehabilitation for no less than 6 months (although not necessarily consecutive) with earnings at the SGA level throughout the period. Furthermore, the managers expect that steps will be taken to develop procedures which will eventually result in the allocation being based on the State’s relative share of total benefit terminations brought about by vocational rehabilitation services. The conferees instruct the Social Security Administration and the Rehabilitation Services Administration (recently transferred to the Department of Education) to continue to explore the possibility of developing more timely and effective methods of measuring performance in trust fund rehabilitations. The results of these efforts should be promptly communicated to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees.
TITLE II—PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY BENEFITS UNDER THE SSI PROGRAM

(Sec. 201)

Present law.—Under present law, an individual may qualify for SSI disability payments only if and for so long as he “is unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than twelve months.” The Secretary of Health and Human Services is required to prescribe the criteria for determining when services performed or earnings derived from employment demonstrate an individual’s ability to engage in substantial gainful activity (SGA). At the present time, the level of earnings established by the Secretary for determining whether an individual is engaging in SGA is $300 a month. An individual who in fact has earnings above this level (1) cannot become eligible for SSI disability and (2), if already eligible, will (after a 9-month trial work period) cease to be eligible.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill included an amendment which, on a demonstration basis, provided that a disabled recipient who loses his eligibility for regular SSI benefits because of performance of SGA would become eligible for a special benefit status, which would entitle him to cash benefits equivalent to those he would be entitled to receive under the regular SSI program. Persons who receive these special benefits would be eligible for medicaid and social services on the same basis as regular SSI recipients. States would have the option of supplementing the special Federal benefits. When the individual’s earnings exceeded the amount which would cause the Federal SSI payment to be reduced to zero, the special benefit status would be terminated and the individual would not thereafter be eligible for any Federal SSI benefits or Federal cash benefits under the special benefits status unless he could reestablish his eligibility for SSI, which would include meeting the SGA limitation.

When a disabled SSI recipient’s earnings rise to the point that he no longer qualifies for Federal SSI benefits, State supplementary payments or the special benefit status, he would nevertheless continue to retain eligibility for medicaid and social services as though he were an SSI recipient if the Secretary found (1) that termination of eligibility for these benefits would seriously inhibit the individual’s ability to continue his employment, and (2) the individual’s earnings were not sufficient to allow him to provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the cash and other benefits that would be available to him in the absence of earnings. The provision allowing continuation of eligibility for medicaid and social services for persons whose earnings make them ineligible for cash benefits would also apply to SSI recipients who are blind.

The Senate provisions would be effective for 3 years, during which the Department would be required to provide for a separate accounting of funds expended under this provision.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill effective January 1, 1981 with the addition of a pilot program under which States could provide medical and social services to certain persons with severe impairments whose earnings exceed the substantial gainful activity limits and who are not receiving SSI, special benefits, or medicaid.

Under this pilot program, for the purpose of assisting States in providing medical or social services to certain severely handicapped persons, $18 million in Federal funds would be available to States on an entitlement basis for a 3-year period beginning September 1, 1981. $6 million would be available to States through the end of fiscal 1982. An additional $6 million would be available for each of the two following fiscal years. Funds that are not used during each of the first two years could be carried forward by the State.

Funds would be allocated among the States in proportion to the number of disabled SSI recipients aged 18 to 65. Prior to the start of each fiscal year, each State that does not intend to use its allocation would so certify to the Secretary of Health and Human Services. If a State certifies that it will not use all or some portion of its funds for any fiscal year or years, its allocation (or the unused portion thereof) for the period covered by the certification will be reallocated by the Secretary of HHS among States participating in the program that can make use of additional funds.

From the allocated funds, the Secretary of HHS would pay each State 75 percent of the costs of operating an approved plan for providing medical and social services to severely handicapped individuals who have earnings in excess of the substantial gainful activity limits and are not receiving SSI, special benefits or medicaid, if the State determines:

(1) that the absence of these benefits would significantly inhibit the individual's ability to continue his employment; and

(2) that the individual's earnings are not sufficient to allow him to provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the cash and other benefits (SSI, medicaid and title XX) that would be available to him in the absence of those earnings.

(It is not intended that States would require an individual to obtain a determination as to the level of or potential eligibility for benefits which might be payable under the SSI, medicaid, and title XX programs in the absence of his earnings. Rather it is intended that each participating State would use generally available information concerning the benefits provided in that State under these programs to establish reasonable income limits to carry out this criterion.)

The State plan would have to include (1) a statement of intent to participate in the program; (2) a designation of the agency to administer the program; (3) a description of the eligibility criteria which the State will apply and the procedures for determining eligibility (which may not involve use of the Disability Determination Service which makes disability determinations for the DI and SSI programs unless it is not feasible to use any other agency for the pilot program; and (4) a description of the services which the State intends to provide under the program. The State may submit a separate State plan or it may incorporate this plan as an amendment to its State administrative plan submitted to HHS under title XX. Under the pilot program, States could provide medical and social services through their medicaid and social services programs (not limited by eligibility criteria and scope of services under titles XIX and XX) but would receive Federal matching for those services under this provision rather than under title XIX or title XX. States could also provide services through some other mechanism if they found it appropriate.

States would be required to provide a report to HHS addressing the operation and results, emphasizing the work incentive effects, of the pilot program. On the basis of State reports, HHS would be required to report to the Congress. The report would be due not later than October 1, 1983; and should include, but not necessarily be limited to, relevant demographic information, earnings, employment information, and primary impairments of the individuals who received services under the pilot program, and the types of services they received. HHS would be required to publish final regulations to implement this program no later than nine months after the date of enactment.

(Sec. 202)

Present law.—Under present law, income from activity in a sheltered workshop that is part of an active rehabilitation program are not considered earned income for purposes of determining SSI payments, and therefore do not qualify for the earned income disregards ($65 a month plus $ of additional earnings).

Senate bill.—The Senate bill provided that remunerations received in sheltered workshops and work activities centers would be considered earned income and therefore qualify for the earned income disregards.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill and the provision would be effective October 1980.

Deeming of Parents' Income to Disabled or Blind Children

(Sec. 203)

Present law.—Present law requires that the parents' income and resources be deemed to a blind or disabled child who lives in the household with them and who is under age 18 in determining the child's eligibility for SSI, or under 21 in the case of an individual who is in school or a training program.

Senate bill.—Under the Senate bill, the deeming of parents' income and resources would be limited to disabled or blind children under age 18, whether or not the person is in school or training. Children receiving SSI who, on the effective date of the provision, are age 18 to 21 would be protected against loss of benefits due to this change.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill and the provision would be effective October 1980.

(Sec. 301)

Present law.—Under present law an individual is not entitled to DI and SSI benefits after he has medically recovered, regardless of whether he has completed the program of vocational rehabilitation in which he has been enrolled.

House bill.—The House bill provided that DI benefits will continue after medical recovery for persons in approved vocational rehabilitation plans or programs, if the Commissioner of Social Security determines that continuing in those plans or programs will increase the probability of beneficiaries going off the rolls permanently.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill included the same provision for SSI and DI beneficiaries except that the Secretary, rather than the Commissioner, would make the determination as to whether benefits should be continued.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement accepts the Senate extension of the provision to SSI beneficiaries, but adopts the House provision that the Commissioner will make the determination that benefits should be continued.

The conference committee wishes to make clear that it expects that, in most cases, medical cessation of disability will result in the termination of benefits, as now occurs in all cases. The conferees are concerned that under present vocational rehabilitation procedures many individuals have been permitted to enter approved programs even when there is a reasonable expectation of medical recovery before the termination of the program. (This is demonstrated by the fact that an increasing number of individuals have been terminated from the benefit rolls while participating in a State approved vocational rehabilitation program who were at the time of enrollment in the program diaried for reexamination on the basis of the time-limited nature of their medical impairment.) It is not the intent of this provision to continue benefits in these cases. It is the intent of the provision to consider only those exceptional cases where the disabled beneficiary is not expected at the beginning of the program to recover medically before the end of the program, but he or she does recover and is no longer considered disabled within the meaning of the Social Security Act, although some residual functional limitation still remains.

The provision is effective 6 months after enactment.
Treatment of Extraordinary Work Expenses

(Sec. 302)

Present law.—Regulations issued under present law provide that, in determining whether an individual is performing substantial gainful activity (SGA), extraordinary expenses incurred by the individual in connection with his employment, and because of his impairment, are to be deducted to the extent that such expenses exceed what his expenses would be if he were not impaired. Regulations specify that expenses for medication or equipment which the individual requires to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions may not be considered work related, and may not be deducted even if they are also essential to the individual’s employment.

House bill.—For purposes of DI, the House bill provided for a deduction from earnings of costs to the individual of extraordinary impairment-related work expenses, attendant care costs, and the cost of medical devices, equipment, and drugs and services (necessary to control an impairment) for purposes of determining whether an individual is engaging in substantial gainful activity, regardless of whether these items are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill included the same provision, but also provided that the deduction would apply even where the individual does not pay the cost of the impairment-related work expenses (i.e. where the cost is paid by a third party). The bill added language giving the Secretary the authority to specify in regulations the type of care, services, and items that may be deducted, and provided that the amounts to be deducted shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe. It also made the provision applicable to SSI.

Conference agreement.—The conferees adopted the Senate provision, but agreed that, for both programs, the disregard will be applied only where the individual paid the cost of the impairment-related expense. In addition, impairment related work expenses would be disregarded in determining the monthly SSI payment of a disabled SSI recipient. It is the intent of the conferees that the regulations developed by the Secretary to carry out these provisions shall apply in a uniform manner to the determination of the amounts which may be deducted in both the DI and SSI programs. The provision is effective six months after enactment.

(Sec. 303)

Present law.—Under the DI and SSI programs, when an individual completes a 9-month trial work period, and then in a subsequent month performs work constituting substantial gainful activity (SGA), his benefits are terminated. He obtains benefits for the first month in which he performs SGA (after the trial work period has ended) and for the 2 months immediately following. Under the DI program, widows and widowers are not entitled to a trial work period.
House bill.—The House bill, in effect, extended the trial work period under the DI program to 24 months. In the last 12 months of the 24-month period an individual who was performing substantial gainful activity immediately following the 9-month trial work period would not receive cash benefits while engaging in substantial work activity, but would automatically be reinstated to active benefit status if earnings fall below the SGA level.

The bill also provided that the same trial work period would be applicable to disabled widows and widowers (who are not permitted a trial work period at all under existing law).

Senate bill.—The Senate bill was the same as the House bill with technical language changes, and also made the provision generally applicable to the SSI program.

Conference agreement.—The conference accepted the provisions of the Senate bill, and agreed that the provision would be effective with respect to individuals whose disabilities have not been found to have terminated before the sixth month after enactment.

Administration by State Agencies

(Sec. 304 (a) (b) (e) (f) and (h))

Present law.—Present law provides for disability determinations to be performed by State agencies under an agreement negotiated by the State and the Secretary of HHS. Unlike the grant-in-aid programs, the relationship is contractual and State laws and practices are controlling with regard to many administrative aspects. State agencies make the determinations based on guidelines provided by the Department and the costs of making the determinations are paid from the disability trust fund in the case of DI claimants, or from general revenues in the case of SSI claimants, by way of advancements of funds or reimbursements to the contracting State agency. Present agreements allow both the State and the Secretary to terminate the agreement. The States generally may terminate with 12 months' notice and the Secretary may terminate if he finds the State has not complied substantially with any provision of the agreement.

House bill.—The House bill required that disability determinations be made by State agencies according to regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary. It also required the Secretary to issue regulations specifying, in such detail as he deemed appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function "in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States." Certain operational areas were cited as "examples" of what the regulations may specify.

The bill also provided that if the Secretary found that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations consistent with his regulations, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his findings, terminate State administration and make the determinations himself. In cases of termination by the State, the State would be required to continue to make disability determinations for not less than 180 days after notifying the Secretary of its intent to terminate. Thereafter, the Secretary would be required to make the determinations.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill was the same as the House bill, except that it:

(1) Deleted as an example of the kinds of matters which the Secretary's regulations may cover: "any other rules designed to facilitate or control or assure the equity and uniformity of the State's disability decision."

(2) Added language specifying that "Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the Secretary to take any action except pursuant to law or to regulations promulgated pursuant to law."

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill. The conference committee deleted the catch-all phrase of "any other rules designed to facilitate, or control, or assure the equity and uniformity of the State's disability determinations" as providing vague and unnecessary authority. The conference agreement provides that these changes will be effective beginning with the 12th month following the month in which the bill is enacted. Any State that has an agreement on the effective date of the amendment will be deemed to have given affirmative notice of wishing to make disability determinations under the regulations. Thereafter, it may give notice of termination which will be effective no earlier than 180 days after the notice is given.

(Sec. 304 (b) and (i))

Present law.—Under provisions of the Federal Personnel Manual, when the Federal Government takes over a function being carried out by a State, the Federal agency at its discretion may retain the State employees in their positions.

House bill.—The House bill required the Secretary to submit to the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Finance by January 1, 1980, a detailed plan on how he expected to assume the functions of a State disability determination unit when this became necessary. The bill further provided that the plan should assume the uninterrupted operation of the disability determination function and the utilization of the best qualified personnel to carry out that function. If any amendment of Federal law or regulation was required to carry out such plan, a recommendation for such amendment was to be included in the plan for action, or for submittal by such committees, with appropriate recommendations to the committees having jurisdiction over the Federal civil service and retirement laws.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill was the same as the House bill except that it delayed the report by the Secretary to July 1, 1980, and required a report to Congress rather than to the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance. Also it added a requirement that if the Secretary assumes the disability determination function he must assure preference to State agency employees who are capable of performing duties in the disability determination process over any other individual in filling new Federal positions.
In addition, the Secretary would be prohibited from assuming the State functions until the Secretary of Labor determined that, with respect to any displaced State employees who were not hired by the Secretary, the State had made "fair and equitable arrangements to protect the interests of employees so displaced." The protective arrangements would have to include only those provisions provided under all applicable Federal, State, and local statutes, including the preservation of rights and benefits (including continuation of pension rights and benefits) under existing collective-bargaining agreements, the continuation of collective-bargaining rights, the assignment of affected employees to other jobs or to retraining programs, the protection of individuals against a worsening of their positions with respect to employment, the protection of health benefits and other fringe benefits, and the provision of severance pay.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill except that the Secretary would not be required to provide a hiring preference to the administrator, deputy administrator, or assistant administrator (or comparable position) in the event that the Secretary found it necessary to assume the functions of a State agency. Although he would not be required to provide a preference to persons in those positions, he could do so if he determines that such action is appropriate. The effective date is the same as for the provision for administration of State agencies.

Present law.—Under current administrative procedures of the Social Security Administration, approximately 5 percent of initial disability claims adjudicated by the State disability determination units are reviewed by Federal examiners. This review occurs after the benefit has been awarded, i.e., it is a postadjudicative review. This is on a sample basis and varies from 2 percent in the larger States to 5 percent in the smaller States.

The Secretary has authority to reverse favorable decisions with respect to DI beneficiaries. He may reverse both favorable and unfavorable decisions in SSI.

House bill.—The House bill required Federal preadjudicative review of DI allowances according to the following schedule:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Decisions made in fiscal year:</th>
<th>Minimum percent reviewed</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1980</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1981</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1982 and thereafter</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Senate bill.—The Federal review of State agency decisions was to include both allowances and denials, according to the following schedule:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Decisions made in fiscal year:</th>
<th>Minimum percent reviewed</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1981</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1982</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thereafter</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The Secretary would be given the authority to reverse decisions that are unfavorable to DI claimants.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate schedule but provides (as in the House bill) for review only of allowances and continuances. The agreement follows the Senate bill as to granting authority to the Secretary to reverse denials.

The conference committee notes that the percentage requirements for preadjudicative review are nationwide requirements and that the Social Security Administration will determine whether they should be higher or lower on an individual State basis. The conferees also instruct the Secretary to report to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees by January 1982 concerning the potential effects on processing time and on the cost effectiveness of the requirement of the 65 percent review for fiscal year 1983, and thereafter. This provision is effective upon enactment.

Own-Motion Review of ALJ Decisions

(Sec. 304(g))

Present law.—After his claim has been denied by the State agency initially and on reconsideration, an applicant has the opportunity for a hearing before an administrative law judge (ALJ). In the past there had also been fairly extensive review of ALJ allowances and denials through own-motion review by the Appeals Council as authorized by the Administrative Procedure Act and the regulations of the Secretary. This own-motion review has almost been eliminated in recent years.

Senate bill.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services would be required to implement a program of reviewing, on his motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges as a result of hearings under section 221(d) of the Social Security Act (the disability determination provisions). He would be required to report to Congress by January 1, 1982, on the progress of this program. In his report, he must indicate the percentage of such decisions being reviewed and describe the criteria for selecting decisions to be reviewed and the extent to which such criteria take into account the reversal rates for individual administrative law judges by the Secretary (through the Appeals Council or otherwise), and the reversal rate of State agency determinations by individual administrative law judges.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill with a modification which strikes the language specifying what is to be included in the required report. The conferees believe the report should indicate the percentage of ALJ decisions being reviewed and describe the criteria for selecting decisions to be reviewed. The conferees are concerned that there is no formal ongoing review of social security hearing decisions. The variance in reversal rates among ALJ's and the high overall ALJ reversals of determinations made at the prehearing level indicate that there is a need for such review. The conferees recognize that, at the hearing level, the claimant appears for the first time before a decisionmaker and additional evidence is generally submitted. The conferees also recognize that there have been significant changes in State agency denial rates and that in certain areas the ALJ's and State agencies have been operating with different policy guidelines. The report should identify the effects of these factors as well as any differences in standards applied by ALJ's.

Information to Accompany Secretary's Decision

(Sec. 305)

Present law.—There is no statutory provision setting a specific amount of information to explain the decision made on a claim for benefits.

House bill.—The House bill required that any decision by the Secretary with respect to all OASDI claimants shall provide notice to the claimant which includes:

- A citation and discussion of the pertinent law and regulations,
- A list and summary of the evidence of record, and
- The Secretary's determination and the reason(s) upon which it is based.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill required that notices of disability denial to DI and SSI claimants shall contain a statement of the case, in understandable language, and include:

- A discussion of the evidence, and
- The Secretary's determination and the reason(s) upon which it is based.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill.

The conference committee wishes to make clear that the Secretary's statement of the case be brief, informal, and not technical. The conferees do not contemplate that the statement would resemble the more formal "statement of the case" approach used by the Veterans Administration (VA) in its appeals proceedings. In addition, the conference committee wishes to make clear that where a written personalized explanation has been provided explaining why the individual will no longer be entitled to disability benefits (e.g., cessations of disability, adverse reopenings of determinations, etc.) it will not be necessary to provide this information again in the actual termination notice.

The provision is effective for decisions made on or after the first day of the 13th month following the month of enactment.

(Sec. 307)

Present law.—Prior to filing an answer in a court case, the Secretary may, on his own motion, remand a case back to an ALJ. Similarly, the court itself, on its own motion or on motion of the claimant, has discretionary authority "for good cause" to remand the case back to the ALJ.

House bill.—The House bill limited the absolute authority of the Secretary of HHS to remand court cases. It required that such remands would be discretionary with the court upon a showing by the Secretary of good cause. A second provision relates to remands by the court. The bill provided that a remand would be authorized only on a showing that there is new evidence which is material, and that there was good cause for failure to incorporate it into the record in a prior proceeding.

Senate bill.—Same as House.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement includes this provision of the Senate and House bills effective upon enactment. The conferees have been informed that there are sometimes procedural difficulties which prevent the Secretary from providing the court with a transcript of administrative proceedings. Such a situation is an example of what could be considered "good cause" for remand. Where, for example, the tape recording of the claimant's oral hearing is lost or inaudible, or cannot otherwise be transcribed, or where the claimant's files cannot be located or are incomplete, good cause would exist to remand the claim to the Secretary for appropriate action to produce a record which the courts may review under 205(g) of the act. It is the hope of the conferees that remands on the basis of these breakdowns in the administrative process should be kept to a minimum so that persons appealing their decision are not unduly burdened by the resulting delay.

(Sec. 308)

Present law.—There is no limit on the time that may be taken by the Social Security Administration to adjudicate cases at any stage of adjudication. Several Federal district courts have imposed such limits at the hearing level and numerous bills have been introduced to set such limits at various levels of adjudication.

House bill.—The House bill required the Secretary to submit a report to Congress recommending appropriate time limits for the various levels of adjudication of title II cases. In recommending the limits, the Secretary was to give adequate consideration to both speed and quality of adjudication.

Senate bill.—Same as House bill.

Conference agreement.—The conferees accepted the provision of the House and Senate bills but with the Senate due date of July 1, 1980.

(Sec. 309)

Present law.—Authority does not now exist to pay physicians and other potential sources of medical evidence for medical information already in existence when a claimant files an application for disability insurance benefits. Such authority does exist in the SSI program.

House bill.—The House bill would provide that any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employment of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required by the Secretary for making determinations of disability, shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill included the same provision except that payment for evidence would be made to the provider only when such evidence is "requested" and required by the Secretary.
Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill and is effective six months after enactment.

Payment for Certain Travel Expenses
(Sec. 310)

Present law.—Explicit authority does not exist under the Social Security Act to make payments from the trust funds to individuals to cover travel expenses incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations, and to applicants, their representatives, and any reasonably necessary witnesses for travel expenses incurred to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges. Such authority now is being provided annually under appropriation acts.

House bill.—The House bill provided permanent authority for payment of travel expenses incident to medical examinations and the travel expenses of individuals (and their representatives in the case of reconsideration and ALJ hearings) resulting from participation in various phases of the DI adjudication process.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill included the same provision and extended it to include SSI and Medicare and all determinations under title II. However, a limitation on air travel costs included in the House bill was omitted in the title II authority.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill with a modification to include the limitation on air travel costs. The conference committee wishes to make it clear that this provision does not authorize reimbursement of a claimant’s travel expenses in going to and from Social Security offices to file requests for reconsideration or to discuss the reconsideration decision. It is the intent of this provision to provide reimbursement only in the cases of those claimants who are entitled, as part of the reconsideration process, to engage in a face-to-face interview with a State agency decisionmaker if this procedure is implemented by the Social Security Administration.

(Sec. 311)

Present law.—Administrative procedures now provide that a disability beneficiary’s continued eligibility for benefits be reexamined only under a limited number of circumstances (i.e., where there is a reasonable expectation that the beneficiary will show medical improvement).

House bill.—The House bill provided that there will be a review of the status of disabled beneficiaries whose disability has not been determined to be permanent at least once every three years. This review would be in addition to, and not considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill included the same provision except that even cases where the initial prognosis shows the probability that the condition will be permanent would be subject to review made at such times as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.
TITLe IV—PROVISIONS RELATING TO AFDC AND CHILD SUPPORT PROGRAMS

(Sec. 401)

Present law.—Recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children who are not specifically exempt are required to register for manpower services, training, and employment as a condition of AFDC eligibility. Those who are exempt from the registration requirement are children under age 16, persons caring for a child under age 6, persons who are ill or needed as the caretaker for someone in the home who is ill, or persons who are remote from a work incentive program (WIN) project.

Assistance may be terminated “for so long as” an individual (who has been certified by the welfare agency as ready for employment or training) refuses without good cause to participate in employment or training under WIN. Under court interpretation WIN sanctions may be applied only “for so long as” there is refusal, thus allowing a recipient to move on and off AFDC without being subject to any specific period during which his benefits may be terminated.

Federal matching for WIN programs is 90 percent. The State matching share of 10 percent may be either in cash or in kind with respect to manpower activities. State matching for supportive services must be in cash.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill added “other employment related activities” to the types of activities for which AFDC recipients are required to register. These are described in the committee report as including employment search. The bill also specifically required that necessary social and supportive services be provided during any employment search activities under the WIN program. These services would be authorized to be provided to registrants prior to certification.

The bill authorized the Secretaries of Labor and HEW (now HHS) to establish, by regulation, the period of time during which an individual would not be eligible for assistance in the case of refusal without good cause to participate in a WIN program. In addition, the present law provision for a 60-day counseling period for persons who refuse to participate was eliminated.

The bill also required that State supportive service units be co-located with manpower units to the maximum extent feasible; allowed State matching for supportive services to be in cash or in kind; clarified that income from WIN public service employment is not fully excluded in determining benefits (there would be no disregard of the first $30 a month plus one-third of additional earnings); added to the individuals who are exempt from registration for WIN, individuals who are working at least 30 hours a week.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to the Senate provision, with amendments. The conference agreement provides that the criteria for appropriate work and training to which an individual may be assigned under section 432(b) (1), (2), and (3) shall apply in the case of work to which an individual may be referred as part of employment search programs conducted under the work incentive program. In other words, job referral under the new employment search provision would be limited to jobs that meet the current WIN regulations relating to appropriate employment. (Present regulations provide limits as to reasonable travel time, provision for necessary supportive services, requirements for wages, health and safety, and others.)

In addition, the conferees agreed to limit an individual’s job search period to 8 weeks in one year, and added a requirement that there be timely reimbursement of any employment search expenses paid for by the individual.

Under the conference agreement, the provisions relating to termination of assistance and treatment of PSE earnings are effective upon enactment. Other provisions are effective September 30, 1980.

(Sec. 402)

Present law.—Present law authorizes States to use the Federal income tax mechanism for collecting support payments for families receiving AFDC, if the States have made diligent and reasonable efforts to collect the payments without success and the amount sought is based on noncompliance with a court order for support. States have access to IRS collection procedures only after certification of the amount of the child support obligation by the Secretary of Health and Human Services. The State must agree to reimburse the U.S. for any costs involved in making the collection.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill authorized use of IRS collection mechanisms in the case of families not receiving AFDC, subject to the same certification and other requirements that are now applicable in the case of families receiving AFDC.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to the Senate provision, with an effective date of July 1, 1980.

(Sec. 403)

Present law.—Current law restricts the use or disclosure of information to purposes directly connected with: AFDC, SSI, Medicaid, or the Title XX social services program; any investigation, prosecution, or criminal or civil proceeding related to the administration of these programs; or the administration of any other federally assisted program providing assistance or services based on need. Present law also prohibits the disclosure to any committee or legislative body of information which identifies by name or address any applicant for, or recipient of, such assistance or services.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill modified titles IV and XX to allow the disclosure of information regarding individuals assisted under the State's plan (1) for purposes of any authorized audit conducted in connection with the administration of the program including an audit performed by a legislative audit body, and (2) to the Committee on Finance and Committee on Ways and Means.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement includes the provisions of the Senate bill, except that disclosure of information containing names and addresses of individual recipients to the Committees on Finance and Ways and Means would not be authorized. The conferees note that this limitation pertains only to names and addresses. As under existing law, the two committees would otherwise have full access to data and findings concerning the operations of these programs and would be able to request and receive the results of program audits. The conferees note that there is a similar provision relating to disclosure of information in H.R. 3494, which is now pending before the Congress. The conferees understand that the provisions in both bills will have the same result of allowing disclosure for purposes of any authorized audit by a legislative audit entity. The provision is effective on September 1, 1980.

Present law.—Present law requires that State child support plans provide for entering into cooperative arrangements with appropriate courts and law enforcement officials to assist the child support agency in administering the program. Federal regulations allow States to claim Federal matching for the compensation of district attorneys, attorneys general, and similar public attorneys and prosecutors and their staff. However, States may not receive Federal matching for expenditures (including compensation) for, or in connection with, judges or other court officials making judicial decisions, and other supportive and administrative personnel.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill authorized Federal matching funds for expenditures of courts (including, but not limited to compensation for judges or other persons making judicial determinations and other support and administrative personnel of courts who perform Title IV-D functions), but only for those functions specifically identifiable as IV-D functions. Matching would be provided only for expenditures in excess of levels of spending in the State for these activities in calendar 1978.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to the Senate provision, with an amendment deleting the authorization for compensation of judges or other officials making judicial decisions, but allowing the authorization for expenditures for their administrative or support personnel, such as the bailiff, stenographer, and court reporter. The provision is effective for expenditures after July 1, 1980.

Present law.—Federal matching for child support administrative costs, including the cost of establishing and using management information systems, is provided at a rate of 75 percent.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill increased Federal matching to 90 percent for the costs of developing and implementing child support management information systems, retaining the present 75 percent matching rate for the costs of operating such systems. The bill required the Secretary to provide technical assistance to the States and provided that a State system must meet certain specified requirements in order to receive Federal matching. The Senate bill further required continuing review by the Secretary of HHS of State systems.

Under the bill States choosing to establish and operate systems must include as part of such systems (1) the ability to control and monitor all the factors of the support collection and paternity determination process, (2) interface with the AFDC program, (3) security against access to data, and (4) the ability to provide management information on all cases from application through collection and referral.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to the Senate amendment, with an effective date of July 1, 1981.

(Sec. 406)

Present law.—States receive 50 percent Federal matching for costs of administering their AFDC programs; there is no special funding for computer systems.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill provided 90 percent Federal matching to States for the cost of developing and implementing computerized AFDC management information systems and 75 percent for the cost of their operation. The Secretary of Health and Human Services would be required to approve State systems as a condition of Federal matching (both initially and on a continuing basis). In order to qualify for this increased match, a State system would have to include certain specified characteristics, including (1) ability to provide data on AFDC eligibility factors, (2) capacity for verification of factors with other agencies, (3) capability for notifying child support, food stamp, social services, and medicaid programs of changes in AFDC eligibility and benefit amount, (4) compatibility with systems in other jurisdictions, and (5) security against unauthorized access to or use of data in the system. The Department would be required to provide technical assistance to the States on a continuing basis.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to the Senate provision to increase to 90 percent the matching for the cost of developing and implementing computerized systems. The 90 percent matching includes the purchase or rental of computer equipment and software. However, the matching rate for operating such systems would remain at 50 percent. The provision is effective July 1, 1981.

Present law.—Present law requires that the Office of Child Support Enforcement (1) maintain adequate records (for both AFDC and non-AFDC families) of all amounts collected and disbursed, and of the costs of collection and disbursement, and (2) publish periodic reports on the operation of the program in the various States and localities and at national and regional levels and the major problems encountered in implementing the program. The law also provides that the States will maintain for both AFDC and non-AFDC families a full record of collections, disbursements, and expenditures and of all other activities related to its child support programs. An adequate State reporting system is required.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill would prohibit advance payment of the Federal share of State administrative expenses for a calendar quarter unless the State has submitted a complete report of the amount of child support collected and disbursed for the calendar quarter which ended 6 months earlier. It would also require the Department of Health and Human Services to reduce the amount of the payments to the State by the Federal share of child support collections made but not reported by the State.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to the Senate bill, with an effective date of January 1, 1981.

(Sec. 408)

Present law.—Present law requires the Secretary of HHS to make available to States and political subdivisions wage information contained in the records of the Social Security Administration which is necessary to determine eligibility for AFDC. The law requires the Secretary to establish safeguards to insure that information is used only for authorized purposes. There is no similar provision for purposes of child support.

In addition, present law requires agencies that administer State unemployment compensation to make available to States and political subdivisions wage information contained in their records which is necessary to determine eligibility for AFDC, and requires the Secretary to establish safeguards to insure that information is used only for authorized purposes. There is no similar provision for purposes of child support.

Under the Internal Revenue Code, tax return information may be disclosed by IRS (1) to the Social Security Administration for purposes of administering the Social Security Act, and (2) to Federal, State, and local child support agencies for establishing and enforcing child support obligations under the child support program. Agencies receiving this information must comply with specified safeguards. SSA may not transfer information it receives from IRS to State and local agencies. Information must be obtained by the agencies directly from IRS.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill provided the same requirement for disclosure of wage information (other than tax return information) for purposes of the child support program as exists in present law for purposes of AFDC. It also provided the same requirement for provision of wage information by State unemployment compensation agencies for purposes of the child support program as exists in present law for purposes of AFDC.

The Senate bill required SSA to disclose tax return information obtained from IRS with respect to earnings from self-employment and wages (1) to officers and employees of HHS, and (2) to officers and employees of an appropriate State or local agency, body, or commission. Information could be disclosed for purposes of establishing, determining, and enforcing child support obligations under the child support program.

Agencies or commissions authorized to receive tax return information could disclose such information to any person to the extent necessary in connection with the processing and use of information necessary for the purpose of establishing, determining, or enforcing child support obligations.

Conference agreement.—Under the conference agreement, certain tax return information must be disclosed by the Social Security Administration to State and local child support enforcement agencies, as follows.

The conferees agreed to amend the Internal Revenue Code to provide that, upon written request, the Commissioner of Social Security shall directly disclose return information with respect to net earnings from self-employment, wages, and payments of retirement income to officers and employees of a State or local child support enforcement agency. Disclosure will be allowable only for purposes of, and to the extent necessary in, establishing and collecting child support obligations from, and locating individuals owing child support obligations.

Any agency receiving information must comply with conditions specified in current law for safeguarding information. Under these safeguards, information may be used on a computer in uncoded form if the computer is used only by the child support enforcement agency. If this information is used on computer systems shared with agencies which are not child support agencies, it must be introduced into the system and coded so that it is available only to officers and employees of the child support enforcement agency. Generally, disclosure to individuals other than officers and employees of the child support enforcement agency would not be authorized; however, the information may be disclosed to the taxpayer to whom the information pertains. This provision is effective on enactment.

In addition, the conferees agree to amend title III of the Social Security Act, Grants to States for Unemployment Compensation Administration, to require the State agency administering the unemployment compensation program to disclose directly, upon request and on a reimbursable basis, to officers or employees of any State or local child support enforcement agency any wage information contained in the records of the State agency. The agency is also required to establish safeguards necessary (as determined by the Secretary of Labor in regulations) to insure that information is used only for purposes of establishing, and collecting child support obligations from, and locating, individuals owing such obligations. If the Secretary of Labor finds that the State agency has failed to comply with requirements of this provision, he must notify the agency that further payments of administrative costs will not be made to the State until he is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure. The provision is effective July 1, 1980.
TITLE V—OTHER PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

(Sec. 501)

Present law.—Under existing law, an individual eligible under both the OASDI and SSI programs, whose determination of eligibility for OASDI is delayed, can in some cases receive full payment under both programs for the same months. Because SSI benefits are determined on a quarterly basis, retroactive OASDI benefits are counted as income for purposes of reducing SSI benefits only for the quarter in which retroactive benefits are received.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill would require the Secretary to offset, against retroactive benefits under OASDI, amounts of SSI benefits paid for the same period. The amount of the offset would equal the amount of SSI that would not have been paid had OASDI benefits been paid on time. From the amount of social security benefits offset under the provision, States would be reimbursed for any amounts of State supplementary payments that would not have been paid; the remainder would be credited to general revenues.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill effective with the 13th month after the month of enactment. The conferees do not intend that this adjustment of benefit amounts will have the effect of removing any individual on a retroactive basis from his status as an eligible individual under the SSI program.

(Sec. 502)

Present law.—The terms of the members of the National Commission on Social Security are to last 2 years, and the Commission itself will expire on January 11, 1981.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill extended for 3 months the expiration date of the National Commission on Social Security and the terms of its members. Under the Senate provision, the Commission's work and the terms of its members would end on April 1, 1981, and its final report will be due on January 11, 1981.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill. The conferees request that the National Commission also examine and report on the serious administrative problems currently facing the Social Security Administration which include growing program responsibility without adequate staffing and the effect of the three reorganizations within the last five years.

(Sec. 503)

Present law.—Since 1951 coverage of State and local government employment has been provided through voluntary agreements between the Federal government and the individual States. The Social Security Act provides that the regulations of the Secretary shall be designed to make the deposit requirements imposed on the States the same, as far as practicable, as those imposed on private employers. Present regulations, in effect since 1959, require each State to deposit contributions with the Federal Reserve Bank and file wage reports of covered employees within 1 month and 15 days after the close of each calendar quarter.

Public Law 94—202 was enacted in 1976 to assure adequate consideration of any change in the deposit requirements. Public Law 94—202 requires that at least 18 months must elapse between the publication of regulations changing the deposit schedule and the effective date of the change.

On November 20, 1978, the Department published final regulations to become effective July 1, 1980, which will require more frequent deposits by the States. The new regulations will require the States to make deposits within 15 days after the end of each of the first 2 months of the calendar quarter and within 1 month and 15 days after the end of the final month of the quarter.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill required that, in lieu of the schedule of deposits called for in the regulation, effective July 1, 1980 the States would make deposits within 30 days after the end of each month. The provisions of P.L. 94—202 would not be applicable to changes in regulations that are designed to carry out this statutory change.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill.

(Sec. 504)

Present law.—In order for an alien to be eligible for supplemental security income payments under present law and regulations, he must be lawfully admitted for permanent residence or otherwise permanently residing in the United States “under color of law.” An alien seeking admission to the United States must establish that he is not likely to become a public charge. If a visa applicant does not have sufficient resources of his own, a U.S. consular officer may require assurance from a resident of the United States that the alien will be supported by a “sponsor” in the United States. Legal aliens are eligible for SSI payments 30 days after their arrival in the United States.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill required an alien to reside in the United States for 3 years before he would be eligible for SSI. The provision would not apply to refugees, or to aliens who are suffering from blindness or disability on the basis of conditions which arose after the time they were admitted to the United States. The provision would also not apply in cases in which the support agreement is unenforceable under the Immigration and Nationality Act, or in cases in which the sponsor fails to provide support and the alien demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that he did not participate in fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the sponsor, that he believed that the sponsor had adequate resources to support him, and that he could not have reasonably foreseen the refusal or inability of the sponsor to comply with the support agreement.

The Senate bill would amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to make the sponsor's affidavit of support a legally enforceable contract. The sponsor must agree that for 3 years after admission of the alien he will provide such financial support (or equivalent in-kind support) as is necessary to maintain the alien's income at an amount equal to the amount the alien would receive if he were eligible for SSI (including any State supplementary payment). The agreement could be enforced with respect to an alien against his sponsor in a civil action brought by the Attorney General or by the alien in a U.S. District Court. It could also be enforced by any State or political subdivision which is making payments to the alien under any program based on need. In the latter case, the action could be brought in a U.S. District Court if the amount in controversy were $10,000 or more, or in the State courts without regard to the amount in controversy. The agreement could be excused and unenforceable under certain specified circumstances, including death or bankruptcy of the sponsor. Also, the Senate bill provided that a sponsor who intentionally reduces his income or assets in order to be excused from his agreement would be responsible for the repayment of any public assistance provided the alien during the time the agreement was excused.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement that for purposes of eligibility for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits, legally admitted aliens who apply for SSI benefits after September 30, 1980 will be deemed to have the income and resources of their immigration sponsors available for their support for a period of 3 years after their entry into the United States, unless the alien becomes blind or disabled after entry. Under the agreement the eligibility of such aliens for SSI will be contingent upon their obtaining the cooperation of their sponsors in providing the necessary information to Social Security to carry out this provision. The provision would not apply to any alien who is (1) admitted to the United States as a result of the application, prior to April 1, 1980, of the provisions of section 203(a)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act; (2) admitted to the United States as a result of the application, after March 31, 1980, of the provisions of section 207(c)(1) of such Act; (3) paroled into the United States as a refugee under section 212(d)(5) of such Act; or (4) granted political asylum by the Attorney General.

During the 3 years after entry into the United States, an alien may be eligible for SSI benefits only if his sponsor agrees to and does provide such information as the Secretary of Health and Human Services may require to carry out this provision. The alien and sponsor shall be jointly and severally liable to repay any SSI benefits which are incorrectly paid because of the sponsor's providing of misinformation or because of his failure to report, and any such incorrect payments which are not repaid would be withheld from any subsequent payments for which the alien or sponsor are otherwise eligible under the Social Security Act.
In deeming a sponsor’s income to an alien under this provision, the alien’s SSI benefit would be reduced by the amount of any income deemed to him. Income deemed to the alien would be considered unearned income and would thus result in a dollar-for-dollar reduction in benefits (subject to the $20 a month unearned income exclusion). The amount to be deemed would be equal to the gross income of the sponsor and his spouse reduced by an amount equal to a full SSI benefit for the sponsor and an amount equal to one-half of a full SSI benefit for each other person for whom the sponsor is legally responsible. (Income of a child, e.g., AFDC or SSI payments, which is specifically provided to or on behalf of a child in the household of the sponsor would not be included.) Except for the deeming provision, the alien’s SSI benefit would be computed in the same manner as under existing law except that in-kind support and maintenance received by an alien living in the household of the sponsor (or sponsor’s spouse) shall not result in the application of the one-third reduction. Income in the form of support or maintenance in cash or kind by the sponsor (or sponsor’s spouse) would not be counted as income or resources to the extent such income or resources is taken into account in determining the amount of income and resources to be deemed from the sponsor to the alien.

On the same basis, the assets of the sponsor and his spouse would be determined as under SSI. Any resources in excess of this amount allowable under SSI ($1,500 if the sponsor is single, $2,250 for a couple) would be considered to be resources of the alien in addition to whatever resources the alien has in his own right.

Under the conference agreement, an alien applying for SSI would be required to make available to the Social Security Administration any documentation concerning his income or resources or those of his sponsor (if he has one) which he provided in support of his immigration application. The Secretary of Health, and Human Services would also be authorized to obtain copies of any such documentation from other agencies (i.e., State Department or Immigration and Naturalization Service). The Secretary of HHS would also be required to enter into cooperative arrangements with the State Department and the Justice Department to assure that persons sponsoring the immigration of aliens are informed at the time of sponsorship that, if the alien applies for public assistance, the sponsorship affidavit will be made available to the public assistance agency and the sponsor may be required to provide further information concerning his income and assets in connection with the alien’s application for assistance.

(See. 505)

Present law.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services has no authority to waive requirements under titles II, XVI, and XVIII of the Social Security Act to conduct experimental or demonstration projects.

House bill.—The House bill authorized waiver of benefit requirements of the DI and medicare programs to allow demonstration projects by the Social Security Administration to test ways in which to stimulate a return to work by disability beneficiaries, and required periodic reports and a final report on the findings by January 1, 1983.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill contained a similar provision but required an interim report by January 1, 1983 and final one by 5 years after the date of enactment. The provision further authorized experiments and demonstration projects which were likely to promote the objectives or improve the administration of the SSI program. The provision provided for allocation of costs of all such demonstration projects to the programs to which the project was most closely related. In the case of the SSI program, the Secretary was authorized to reimburse the States for the non-Federal share of payments or costs for which the State would not otherwise be liable.

The Senate provision also authorized waivers in the case of other disability insurance demonstration projects which SSA wished to undertake, such as study of the effects of lengthening the trial work period, altering the 24-month waiting period for medicare benefits, altering the way the disability program is administered, earlier referral of beneficiaries for rehabilitation, and greater use of private contractors, employers and others to develop, perform or otherwise stimulate new forms of rehabilitation.

The Senate bill further authorized waiver of certain nonmedical requirements of the human experimentation statute, P.L. 93—348 (such as conditions of payment of benefits or copayments, deductibles or other limitations), but requires that the Secretary in reviewing any application for any experimental, pilot or demonstration project pursuant to the Social Security Act would take into consideration the human experimentation law and regulations in making his decision on whether to approve the application.

Conference agreement.—The conferees agreed to the provisions of the House and Senate bills with the exception of the Senate provision authorizing waiver of certain nonmedical requirements of the human experimentation statute. This latter provision was deleted.

With respect to SSI experiments, the Secretary would not be authorized to carry out any project that would result in a substantial reduction in any individual's total income and resources as a result of his participation in the project. The Secretary could not require an individual to participate in a project and would have to assure that the voluntary participation of individuals in any project is obtained through an informed written consent agreement which satisfies requirements established by the Secretary. The Secretary would also have to assure that any individual could revoke at any time his voluntary agreement to participate. The Secretary, to the extent feasible, would be required to include recipients under age 18. The Secretary would also be required to include projects necessary to ascertain the feasibility of treating alcoholics and drug addicts to prevent the onset of irreversible medical conditions which may result in permanent disability.

The new provisions would be applicable to both applicants and beneficiaries, and would be effective upon enactment.
Provisions Relating to the Terminally Ill

(Sec. 506)

Present law.—Under the OASDI program the waiting period is the earliest period of 5 consecutive months in which an individual is under a disability. An individual is determined disabled if he is unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or is expected to last for not less than 12 months. If an individual becomes disabled and applies for benefits in the same month, the waiting period will be satisfied 5 months after the month of application. With all other conditions of eligibility having been met, benefits will be due for the sixth month after the month in which the disabling condition begins, and will be paid on the third day of the seventh month.

The waiting period cannot begin until the individual is insured for benefits (i.e., the individual has satisfied the quarters of coverage requirements). If the disabling condition begins before an individual is insured for benefits, the waiting period can begin only with the first month in which the individual has insured status.

If a worker is applying for benefits after having been entitled to DI benefits previously (or had a previous period of disability) within 5 years prior to the current application, the waiting period requirement does not have to be met again.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill eliminated the waiting period for persons with a terminal illness, i.e., a medically determinable physical impairment which is expected to result in the death of such individual within the next 12 months and which has been confirmed by two physicians in accordance with the appropriate regulations.

The provision was to be effective for applications filed in or after the month of enactment, or for disability decisions not yet rendered by the Social Security Administration or the courts prior to the month of enactment.

Benefits would be payable beginning October 1980.

Conference agreement.—The conferees did not agree to the Senate provision eliminating the waiting period for persons with a terminal illness, but in lieu thereof agreed to a provision authorizing up to $2 million a year to be used by SSA for the purpose of participating in a demonstration project relating to the terminally ill which is currently being conducted by the Department of Health and Human Services. The purpose of participation is to study the impact on the terminally ill of provisions of the disability programs administered by the Social Security Administration. It is expected that this demonstration authority and the resulting reports which will be made on demonstration projects will provide the information necessary to enable the Congress to amend the Social Security Act so as to provide the kinds of services most appropriate for individuals who are suffering from terminal illnesses.
Voluntary Certification of Medicare Supplemental Health Insurance

(Sec. 507)

Present law.—No provision in present law.

Senate bill.—Under the Senate bill, the Secretary would be required to establish, effective January 1, 1982, a voluntary certification program for medicare supplemental policies in States that fail to establish equivalent or more stringent programs. To be certified, a policy would have to: meet minimum standards with respect to benefits, simplicity of policy language, informational material for policyholders, preexisting conditions and cancellation clauses; and be expected to pay benefits to subscribers (as estimated, for a period not to exceed one year, on the basis of actual claims experience and premiums for such policy) equal to 75 percent of premiums in the case of group policies and 60 percent in the case of individual policies. The Secretary would be required to submit a report on or before July 1, 1981, to the Committees on Finance, Ways and Means, and Interstate and Foreign Commerce which identifies those States that the Secretary finds cannot be expected to have established a qualified State regulatory program by January 1, 1982. The Federal voluntary certification program would be put into effect on January 1, 1982, in States that are so identified unless legislation to the contrary is enacted.

Upon conviction, a fine of up to $25,000 and imprisonment for up to 5 years could be assessed for: (a) furnishing false information to obtain the Secretary's certification; (b) posing as a Federal agent to sell medicare supplemental policies; (c) knowingly selling duplicative policies; and (d) selling supplemental policies by mail in States which have not approved, or are deemed not to have approved, their sale.

The Secretary, in consultation with regulatory agencies, insurers and consumers, would be required to study and submit a report to the Congress by July 1, 1981, concerning the effectiveness of various State approaches to regulation of medicare supplemental policies, and the need for standards for health insurance policies sold to the elderly which are not subject to voluntary certification. On January 1, 1982, and at least every 2 years thereafter, the Secretary would be required to report on the effectiveness of the voluntary certification program and the criminal penalties established by the bill.

Conference agreement.—The conference agreement follows the Senate bill with the following modifications. The voluntary certification program would be effective July 1, 1982. To be certified under this program, a medicare supplemental policy (including any certificate issued thereunder) would have to: (a) meet or exceed the standards with respect to medicare supplemental policies set forth in the "NAIC Model Regulation to Implement the Individual Accident and Sickness Minimum Standards Act," as amended and adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on June 6, 1979 (including the standards relating to minimum benefit provisions, preexisting condition limitations, full disclosure, and requiring a no loss cancellation clause); and (b) be expected to pay benefits to subscribers (as estimated for the entire period for which rates are computed to provide coverage, on the basis of incurred claims experience and earned premiums for such period) equal to 75 percent of premiums in the case of group policies and 60 percent in the case of individual policies. (For purposes of determining whether the loss ratio requirement has been met under the voluntary certification program, policies issued as a result of solicitations of individuals through the mails or by mass media advertising would be deemed to be individual policies.) The Secretary would be empowered to authorize the use of an emblem by an insurer, in accordance with conditions to be specified by the Secretary, to indicate that a policy has been certified as meeting the standards and requirements of the voluntary certification program. It is expected that one such condition will be a requirement that the insurer agree to notify policyholders of the loss of certification in the event the Secretary determines that the policy no longer satisfies the standards and requirements of the voluntary certification program. It is also expected that the Secretary act in a manner consistent with the will of the State to prevent unfair competition in the use of the emblem.

The voluntary certification program would not be applicable to any policy issued in any State which is determined to have implemented under State law a regulatory program that provides for the application of standards with respect to all medicare supplemental policies (as defined in the Senate bill) that are equal to or more stringent than the standards relating to medicare supplemental policies contained in the NAIC Model Regulation as amended and adopted on June 6, 1979; and the loss ratio requirements for individual or group policies applied under the voluntary certification program. Such determinations as to whether a State’s regulatory program meets these standards and requirements would be made by a Supplementary Health Insurance Panel, appointed by the President, and consisting of four Insurance Commissioners (or Superintendents) and the Secretary. On or before January 1, 1982, the Panel would prepare a report (for inclusion in the report to be submitted by the Secretary on January 1, 1982) to the appropriate Committees of the House and the Senate identifying those States that the Panel finds cannot be expected to have implemented a qualified regulatory program by July 1, 1982. The Federal voluntary certification program would be put into effect on July 1, 1982, in those States so identified by the Panel. Where a State which the Panel had expected to have implemented a qualified regulatory program by July 1, 1982, has not actually done so, the voluntary certification program would be applicable to such State until the panel determines and reports to the Secretary that the State has implemented an approved program. It is expected that the Panel will act promptly and that all determinations of the Panel would be promptly submitted to the Secretary for implementation.

Although the Panel’s sole responsibility is to evaluate State regulatory programs against the test that the State program is at least equal to the NAIC standards and the prescribed loss ratio requirement, the bill includes language referring to “more stringent” standards. However, this language was not included for use as a benchmark by the Panel, but rather only to avoid the implication of any intent to encourage States to limit their regulatory programs to the minimal level. On the contrary, the conferees’ intent is to assure that States are encouraged to implement such regulatory programs as they determine are appropriate to their needs and that if a State regulatory program is at least equal to the standards and requirements provided for in the bill it would be approved by the Panel.

The delivery of a medicare supplemental policy by mail into a State which has not approved the sale of such a policy in the State would be subject to Federal criminal penalties unless such policy: (a) has been certified by the Secretary or approved by the State in which the policy is issued as meeting the standards and requirements of the voluntary certification program or the State's approved regulatory program, as the case may be, or has otherwise been deemed approved in accordance with provisions of the bill; and (b) the State into which the policy has been delivered has not specifically disapproved the policy for sale in the State.

The conferees have defined the place of issuance of a policy to be the State in which the policyholder resides in the case of an individual policy, and the State in which the holder of the master policy resides in the case of a group policy. The intent of the conferees is to allow an insurer to know which State its policy is considered to be issued in, and consequently to know whether it is issued in a State having an approved program. Nothing in this provision is intended to affect the rights of any State to regulate, in accordance with State law, policies which, under this definition, are considered to be issued in another State.

The Senate bill excludes group health policies of one or more employers or labor organizations from the definition of "medicare supplemental policy," and from the prohibition of knowingly selling a duplicative health insurance policy to a medicare-eligible individual. since such policies are not designed as supplemental policies and are sold to all age categories within the group's membership. The conferees recognize that many professional, trade and occupational associations also offer group health plans to their respective memberships. The intent is that such association, should not be treated differently than employers or labor organizations if the association: (a) is composed of individuals all of whom are actively engaged in the same profession, trade or occupation; (b) has been maintained in good faith for purposes other than the obtaining of insurance; and (c) has been in existence for at least two years prior to the date of its initial offering of such policy or plan to its members.

The Secretary's report on the results of the required study of State approaches to the regulation of supplementary policies would be submitted on January 1, 1982: and the first of the periodic reports on the effectiveness of the voluntary certification program and the criminal penalties would be due July 1, 1982.

Present law.—Sec. 209(f) of the Social Security Act and Sec. 3121 (a) (6) of the Internal Revenue Code provide that payment by the employer of the employee F.I.C.A. tax liability is excluded from the definition of wages for social security payroll tax and benefit purposes. Although such a payment by the employer constitutes additional compensation includable for income tax purposes, existing law specifically exempts such an amount of additional compensation from social security taxes. The net effect is that, for a given level of total compensation (wages plus employer payment of the employee share of social security tax), somewhat lower social security taxes would be payable by the employer if he pays the employee F.I.C.A. tax instead of withholding it from the employee's wages.

Senate bill.—The Senate bill required that, with respect to remuneration paid after 1980, any amounts of employee F.I.C.A. taxes paid by an employer will be considered to constitute wages for both social security tax and benefit purposes but that this change will not apply in the case of payments made on behalf of employees of (1) small businesses (as used in the administration of section 7(a) of the Small Business Act), (2) of State and local governments, (3) of nonprofit organizations, and (4) persons employed as domestics.

Conference agreement.—The conferees have agreed to delete this provision of the Senate bill. While the Senate amendment would narrow the scope of the present law exclusion from wages, the conferees are concerned that its enactment would lend countenance to expanded utilization of the remaining exclusion. The conferees believe that this is an important issue in its own right, deserving further study and consideration by the Congress. The result of the conferees' decision is that present law remains in force.
WAIVING CERTAIN POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST THE CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 3236, SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY AMENDMENTS OF 1980

Mr. PEPPER. Madam Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 673 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 673
Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order for Members to consider sections 303(a)(4) and 401(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) to the contrary notwithstanding, the conference report on the bill (H.R. 3236) to amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. GIAMBO), recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GIAMBO. Madam Speaker, I yield the usual 30 minutes for purposes of debate to the distinguished gentleman from Missouri (Mr. TAYLOR), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume.

May I, on behalf of the majority of the Rules Committee, commend and welcome to the floor, the distinguished gentleman from Missouri, who has recently become a member of the Committee on Rules.

I am sure that he will do his job with excellence, and he is to be commended. I wish him a long and happy life upon the Committee on Rules and many other successful handling of rules on the floor.

Madam Speaker, the resolution today is House Resolution 673. It is a rule providing for the consideration of the conference report on H.R. 3236, the Social Security Disability Amendments Act of 1979. The rules waives various points of order against consideration of the conference report.

Madam Speaker, may I just say by way of a personal expression that I oppose certain provisions of this bill, the Social Security Disability Amendments Act of 1979, but the House chose to preserve the bill as it was presented by the distinguished gentleman from Texas, my devoted friend (Mr. PEPPER). I am sure that no one could have presented the bill more ably and with more sincerity and dedication than he did. If experience proves that further amendments should be made in this act, I am sure that he will always be attentive to consideration of those proposals and will give them fair regard so that the ends of justice for the people of this country might be best served.

The rule waives section 303(a)(4) of the Congressional Budget Act, which provides that consideration of new spending authority is not in order before the adoption of the first budget resolution. This waiver is necessary because, by amending the social security disability insurance program and other sections of the Social Security Act, H.R. 3236 creates new entitlement authority beginning in fiscal year 1981.

The rule also waives section 401(b)(1) of the Budget Act which provides that it is not in order to consider legislation creating entitlement authority which would be effective before the beginning of the next fiscal year. This waiver is necessary because section 404 of the conference report creates entitlement authority which would be effective on July 1, 1980.

Section 404 allows Federal matching payments for child support duties performed by State and local court personnel. The Budget Committee supports both of these Budget Act waivers. In his letter to the distinguished chairman of the Budget Committee, the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. GIAMBO), pointed out that there is ample precedent for these waivers because of the difficulty restructuring entitlement programs without technical violations of the Congressional Budget Act. The gentleman noted that enactment of H.R. 3236, as reported by the conferees, will result in savings of $5 million in fiscal year 1980 and $70 million in fiscal year 1981. These legislative savings are assumed in the budget resolution of years 1980 and 1981 now in conference.

The rule also waives clause 3 of rule XXVIII against consideration of the conference report. This rule limits, the Members will recall, the contents of the conference report to the scope of differences between the Two Houses. This waiver in this case is needed primarily because enactment dates for various provisions of H.R. 3236 were changed by the conferees. Other compromises forged by the conferees also are technical scope violations.

A pilot project involving State services to severely handicapped individuals who are not eligible for supplemental security income payments, an expansion of a Social Security Disability Amendments Act of 1979. The rule waives the effect of social security disability programs on the terminally ill, and the standards for Federal certification of Medi-Gap insurance policies fall into this category.

I will say that I am very much pleased that the conferees brought to the House in this bill from the conference the so-called Medi-Gap bill of which I was the author in the House, which will do much to protect the elderly people in this country against many abuses which have been perpetrated against them by some unscrupulous agents of some unscrupulous insurance companies.

We had in the course of our hearings an example in the State of Illinois, I believe it was, of an elderly lady who owned a farm, who had to mortgage her farm to get I believe $15,000 to pay the premiums on some 70 or 80 insurance policies, which over a course of 2 or 3 years had been sold to her by unscrupulous agents of some unscrupulous insurance companies.

We find, for example, the growth of the practice of selling insurance by mail. That would mean that the District of Columbia could sell an elderly person in my State of Florida an insurance policy by mail. If there were fraud perpetrated upon that purchaser, the only redress would be for that individual to come to the District of Columbia and get a lawyer and bring suit here, with all the attendant expense and difficulty that it would entail.

Sometimes there are cancer policies, which would especially appeal to fraud. In many cases, the obligation of the insurance policy would be in a long circuitous sentence that a Philadelphia lawyer could hardly unravel or understand. Yet it was a practice to take advantage of these policies with many people.

So this Medi-Gap bill adopts the principle of what we call the Good Housekeeping Seal, whereby the companies may submit their policies and, their practices to a Government agency and if they have done nothing to stop them, there will be a certificate of issue and we hope the elderly will be advised when somebody comes up with what looks like maybe a questionable insurance policy. That individual could say, "I want to see your certificate." Have you in your policy that your policies are fair and your practices are fair?"

So I want to commend the distinguished gentleman from Texas and others who had a part in this conference for including this provision in the conference report.

Finally, the rule waives clause 4 of rule XXVIII, which would permit points of order based on germaneness. This waiver is needed for several reasons. First, the other body chose to include changes in the SSI disability program in its version of the bill. These revisions were not contained in the House version of H.R. 3236, but were addressed in H.R. 3464, the SSI disability amendments of 1979, which passed the House on June 6, 1979, by a vote of 374 to 3.

Second, the conference report of H.R. 3236 passed by the other body contains amendments for aid to families with dependent children and child support programs. Similar items were considered by the House when it passed H.R. 4094, the Social Welfare Reform Amendments of 1979, which was passed by the House on November 7, 1979, by a vote of 222 to 184.

Third, the other body included a provision establishing a program designed to eliminate abuses in the sale of Medi-Gap insurance to the elderly. The conference agreed to adopt this provision.

Madam Speaker, this rule will allow the House to work its will on the excellent work of the conference, and I urge my colleagues to support both the rule and this conference report.

Madam Speaker, I yield to my distinguished friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Biaggi).

Mr. BIAGGI. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I would like to take this opportunity to commend the distinguished gentleman from Florida for his extraordinary work and his leadership in investigating the Medi-Gap insurance frauds that the elderly are subject to and abiding commitment to the elderly.

Mr. PEPPER. Madam Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from New York very much for his kind words.

While this Medi-Gap amendment bears my name, and I have worked, of course, on it; but it is the work of the Select Committee on Aging and one of those who made the most significant contribution to its passage, growing out of our long hearings on the subject, was the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. Biaggi).

Madam Speaker, I yield to the able gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Taylor).

Mr. TAYLOR. Madam Speaker, the distinguished gentleman from Florida was very generous in his praise and for that I want to express my appreciation of the opportunity of speaking on the Select Committee on Rules and for the cordiality that has been accorded me since I assumed that position.

Madam Speaker, House Resolution 673 is a rule waiving certain points of order relating to the Select Committee on Rules, which prohibits the authorization of new spending authority before the first budget resolution is adopted. According to the testimony we received in the Rules Committee from the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Pickle) and the gentleman from California (Mr. Coatsman), this waiver is necessary because the conference report contains several sections involving what may be defined as new entitlements which begin in fiscal 1981, and, as my colleagues are aware, we have not yet adopted the fiscal 1981 first concurrent resolution on the budget.

The second waiver is also a budget waiver—section 401(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 which provides for a final grant of entitlement authority before October 1 of the current calendar year. This waiver is necessitated by the fact that one section of the conference report includes what may be defined as a 1980 entitlement with respect to SSI.

The rule also waives clause 3 of rule XXVIII which limits the contents of a conference report to the scope of the differences between the two houses. Again, as was testified before the Rules Committee, because of the effort to spread out startup administrative costs so that they would not be a burden either to the administration or to the congressional budget, and because of a concern that the conference maintain the promise of the House that the Select Committee on Aging and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Pepper) that no benefit changes would affect anyone currently on the rolls, several effective dates were changed in the conference report to dates later than either H.R. 4094 or S. 28 which limits the contents of a conference report to the scope of the differences between the two houses.

The fourth waiver in this rule is against clause 4 of rule XXVIII—the germaneness rule on conference reports. In this regard, I think it should be noted that the Senate combined H.R. 3336, regarding the social security disability program, H.R. 3464, a House-passed bill which makes changes related to the supplemental security income disability program. The Senate also made several changes in the SSI program, including changes regarding the eligibility criteria for benefits. The germaneness problems arise from two sources: First, the Senate added to this bill several provisions regarding the AFDC program and, second, the Senate added to this bill a program to increase protection for our citizens purchasing the so-called Medi-Gap health insurance policies which are designed to provide additional health protections which are designed to provide additional health protections in areas not covered or not fully covered by Medicare. This particular legislative proposal has had as its chief proponents our esteemed colleagues on the Rules Committee and the chairman of the Select Committee on Aging, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Pepper).

These two provisions may not have been germane to the original bill as passed by the House, but they are germane to the final bill.

And finally, this rule was unanimously adopted by the Rules Committee on a voice vote. For these reasons, I urge adoption of the rule.

Mr. PEPPER. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may need to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. Pickle).

Mr. PICKLE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. PICKLE. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of this rule. As chairman of the subcommittee which originated this legislation, I can testify that it has had a long and complicated history. But, it is a good bill, and the House ought to complete action on it. There is nothing in this bill which has not already been the subject of long study and debate, and it is time to move on to other matters.

A waiver of points of order is necessary because the Senate combined the original House bill H.R. 3236 with portions of other House-passed legislation, especially H.R. 3464, and because the Senate also added to this legislation a program of increased control over the so-called Medi-Gap policies. It is also necessary because the bill has been under consideration for some time. This prompted the conferees to change some effective dates so that they would be reasonable and so that no current beneficiaries would be accidentally affected by changes in the program.

A waiver is also needed because the timing of consideration of this legislation encounters difficulties with certain portions of the Budget Act. However, the Budget Committee has reviewed these matters and has given its approval to a waiver.

I urge, therefore, that this rule be passed so that the House can proceed expeditiously and complete action on the conference report.

Madam Speaker, may I also say in response to the gentleman from Florida, that as chairman of the subcommittee which originated the legislation and which is the subcommittee attempted to bring out a good bill, we recognize that the gentleman from Florida did not agree with all provisions of the bill and the gentleman from Florida showed his opposition in the Committee on Rules and on the floor; but the gentleman did it in a manner that was meritorious and in a gentlemanly fashion that is so typical of the services of the gentleman from Florida.

We did make some modifications with the Senate. The bill we passed may not be perfect and we will have to study and watch it in the years to come. We will do that and I give the gentleman that assurance.

I also would recognize the part the gentleman played in the Medi-Gap insurance. While we did not include in the conference report the amendment exactly as recommended by the other body, we have checked it back with the States and said, "You must get your house in order," and we give them time to do it. We leave it to the States so that we do not get into the question of jurisdiction of the Congress over insurance matters.

Madam Speaker, the committee has been asked two questions about the national panel. First, we have been asked is it the intent that the panel make independent determinations with respect to whether a State regulatory program includes standards which are equal to or more stringent than the standards contained in the model regulation approved by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners?

The answer is that the national panel would independently make the determinations, using criteria and detailed definitions based upon the language of this act which it, rather than the Department of Health and Human Services, develops.

Second, we have been asked since there may be situations in which a State implements a regulatory program after January 1, 1982, and before July 1, 1982, when the voluntary certification program is effective, is it the intent that the panel promptly review the State program and make its determination on a timely basis?

It was the understanding of the conferees that in every case, both prior to and after the effective date of the volun-

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 3236,
SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY AMENDMENTS OF 1980

Mr. PICKLE. Madam Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 3236) to amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program, and for other purposes.

The Speaker read the title of the bill.

The Speaker pro tempore. Pursuant to the provisions of clause 2, rule XXVIII, the conference report is considered as having been read.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of May 13, 1980.)

The Speaker pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. PICKLE) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. PICKLE. Madam Speaker, I yield myself 30 minutes.

Mr. PICKLE. Madam Speaker, I call on the House earlier adopted the rule on this conference report. The chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. ULLMAN) would be here to present the conference report but because the gentleman is in-aid to the provisions of clause 2, rule XXVIII, the conference report is considered as having been read.

The real importance of this legislation, Madam Speaker, is not so much the changes we made in the cap or the drop-out years, but in the incentive for the return to work of people who are disabled or handicapped. We are trying to remove from these people this heavy sword that hangs over their heads that they might not have a sufficient work trial period, that they might lose their medicare or that they might lose their eligibility for these programs and that in turn if they could not get reduction on certain extra impairment expenses, that would be held against them with respect to their SGA amount.

Madam Speaker, we have given them these assurances and that kind of incentive to return to work we think is the most important part of this whole bill and will prove to be so in time to come.

We have made other changes in the area that have been mentioned, particularly in the Medi-Gap field and I commend the gentleman from Florida (Mr. PEPPER) for his cooperation.

Madam Speaker, this bill is a good bill. It should be adopted. I recommend it to the House for immediate passage.

I reserve the balance of my time.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. MURTHA). The gentleman from New York (Mr. CONABLE) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER).

(Mr. ARCHER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I support the conference report on H.R. 3236.

The basic bill, designed to make improvements in the disability insurance program, began life 6 years ago in the Ways and Means Committee's Subcommittee on Social Security. In its slow and cautious development, a number of proposals—some of them mine—were considered, but eventually set aside, because they were deemed too controversial.

The aim was to prepare a bill that would enhance the program yet be of such moderate dimensions that both Houses of the Congress could approve it rather easily. Despite this effort to produce legislation that would be universally acceptable, H.R. 3236 as ever, never drew the same opposition before it finally was approved by this body, 235 to 162, about 8 months ago, in September 1979.

Nearly 5 months later, on January 31 of this year, the other body approved the bill, but by the time it reached here, had been amended numerous amendments, most of them dealing with public assistance portions of the Social Security Act.

In keeping with the slow progress of the bill itself, the conference on H.R. 3236 consumed weeks. Although a few provisions related to the disability insurance program required extensive discussion before agreement could be reached, most of the controversy within the conference centered on items outside the social security system's fundamental elements.

One of the most difficult items to resolve was the so-called Medi-Gap amendment, to provide some control over health insurance policies sold as supplements to medicare. The conference agreement, attained after days of negotiations, would establish a voluntary certification program, effective in July 1982. The program would not apply in States with standards for such policies which meet, or exceed, standards set by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

Although the resolution of this issue hardly could be termed ideal, it does represent what a majority of conference felt was a workable compromise—and the only one possible within the framework of that conference.

With respect to the amendments related to public assistance, I think it can be said fairly that they mark an overall improvement in the law. Let me just cite one example. Under current law, an alien could not be made eligible for public assistance under the supplemental security income (SSI) program only 30 days after arriving on our shores. Under the conference agreement, a legal alien would not automatically be eligible for SSI during the first 3 years of residence in this country. Within that period, an alien could receive SSI payments only in limited circumstances, in large part because of income and resources of the immigration sponsor would be taken into account in determining the alien's SSI eligibility.

This one amendment dates back to legislation offered several years ago by our colleagues in the California. It does not equal the original, and some of us would prefer a more rigid set of restrictions, but the conference agreement is a long step in the right direction, and it is infinitely better than present law.

As far as the primary legislation in this conference report is concerned, there were relatively slight differences between the approaches taken by this body and those taken by the other body. Therefore, agreements were reached more easily, and the end result is one that I can endorse.
H.R. 3236 would, among many other things, lower maximum family benefits in future disability insurance cases, but not to a punitive extent. Under current law, it is possible for total payment to a disabled worker and dependents to exceed, in purchasing power, the net income with which the family had when the worker was well and on the job. The bill would reduce that possibility, affecting relatively few disability insurance cases.

This, and a few other changes in the bill, were designed to curb some disincentives to work. An even greater number of provisions were designed to improve incentives to work, and these incentives to work. An even greater number of provisions were designed to improve incentives to work. An even greater number of provisions were designed to improve incentives to work.

The Percy-Corcoran provision closes this loophole by requiring 3 years of residency in the United States for an alien—other than a political refugee—to qualify for SSI, unless blind or disabled subsequent to entering this country. Also, their sponsors are required to agree in a legally enforceable affidavit to support the alien for 3 years at a level necessary to maintain the alien's income at the amount to which the alien would be entitled, if he were eligible for SSI.

While the final version of this provision is not as strong as my original bill, I believe that the documentation which is required to be submitted to the Secretary of Health and Human Services by the sponsor and immigrant in order that an alien may be eligible for SSI benefits during the 3 years after entry provides sufficient safeguards so that the abuses of our immigration laws will be curbed.

I would, therefore, urge my colleagues to accept this provision which will correct this situation which has outraged the American public for several years and vote for the conference agreement.

Mr. ARCHER. I thank the gentleman for his comments.

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a further comment?

Mr. ARCHER. I will be happy to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, not only our former colleague from California, the late Bill Kelchum, but Senator Percy also took a considerable interest in this. So, the gentleman's interest is shared by a fine legislator from his State. There was a good deal of interest in it.

I must say, the fact that we are clamp- ing down here illustrates the disarray we have relative to the issue of immigrants in this country. If we are permitting a flood of immigrants to come in without sponsorship and screening, it is an interesting commentary that those who are backed by responsible people are now being held to a much tighter standard than previously by this provision. I think the provision is entirely appropriate so that we have got to our whole refugee and immigrant policy in better shape than it is, or we are going to have massive contradictions similar to this incurring from the influx of immigrants. Florida taking place at the same time, by agreement and by widespread approval, when we are tightening the requirements made of immigrants who are sponsored into this country.

Mr. ARCHER. I thank the gentleman for his comments, and I thank him for yielding the time to me.
individual State has not acted by that time, the Secretary of Health and Human Services will be required to establish a voluntary certification program for Medicare supplemental policies.

These Medi-Gap provisions closely resemble Medi-Gap provisions which have been reported by both the Ways and Means Committee and the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committees. These are important protections to our elderly population when they consider buying Medicare supplementary policies. This bill saves money in both fiscal years 1980 and 1981. This bill will save $50 million in 1980 and $70 million in 1981 which is substantially more than the savings anticipated by the first budget resolution passed by the House for 1981. The 5 years savings of this bill are substantial.

This bill is an important piece of legislation which should be enacted into law. I urge your support.

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 6 minutes.

(Mr. CONABLE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, the conference report on the H.R. 3363 should improve a number of programs under the Social Security Act.

The conferees agonized many days to bring forth this package, and it is better than I expected it would be when we started.

Under title II of the Social Security Act, it offers encouragement to those disabled people who want to work; it reduces glaring disparities between payments to younger and to older beneficiaries; it removes some obvious work disincentives, and it arrives at a compromise Federal and State Government position, with regard to the frequency with which collected pay-rollover taxes must be deposited.

In the supplemental security income (SSI) program, which uses public assistance to the aged, blind and disabled persons, the conference report permits the continuation of medicaid and other services to recipients with severe disabilities who earn above the standard. In addition, the report restricts substantially the eligibility of legal aliens for SSI benefits.

Under both the SSI and title II programs, the report gives beneficiaries credit for extraordinary work expenses; it extends their trial work period from 9 to 24 months; it assures claimants a better explanation as to why they are denied benefits, and it permits payment to claimants for costly travel to undergo medical exams requested by the Government.

Under current law, State agencies make initial disability determinations through agreements between the States and the Federal Government. The conference report replaces those agreements with Federal regulations, and allows the Secretary of Health and Human Services to assume a State agency's function under the regulations are not being followed. The report also requires the Secretary to provide a detailed advance report as to how such a takeover would be carried out, without disruption of service, and it assures that in such cases, preference will be given to employees in filling new Federal positions.

The conferees adopted, with modifications, most of the amendments made by the other body with respect to the program of aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) and child support. In both AFDC and child support, large and small, these are good amendments. One of them would require AFDC recipients, not specifically exempt, to register for employment-related activities, including job search programs. Others would offer greater Federal matching to finance lump-sum payments in computer systems for both AFDC and child support.

More specifically with respect to changes made in the disability insurance program, there is one which I feel warrants special emphasis. It has to do with a reduction in the number of years which may be "dropped out" in determining a disabled worker's benefits. A benefit is based upon average covered earnings, and in compiling that average under current law, the worker's five lowest earnings' years may be "dropped out."

Younger workers obviously have fewer earnings' years to take into account than older workers, and because earnings' levels have increased rapidly and dramatically in recent times, younger workers have increasingly higher average earnings and, consequently, disproportionately higher benefits. To reduce this benefit disparity, H.R. 3363 limits the number of "drop-out years" for younger disabled workers. Those under 27 have no drop-out years, those aged 27 to 32 have 1; those 32 to 37 have 2; those 37 to 42 have 3; those 42 to 47 have 4, and those aged 47 and older have 5.

The same provision makes an allowance for young parents who leave the labor force to bear children and care for them in their early years. It allows a young disabled worker to drop out as many as 3 years for child care. In no case, however, could the combined number of child care drop-out years and the drop-out years provided under the new schedule exceed 3.

In effect, this is a very modest recognition of the adverse impact which the social security system has upon women—in this case, young mothers. The provision applies equally to men, of course, but its primary application is to the increasing numbers of women workers who otherwise would lose up to 3 years of earnings for benefit computation purposes, during their child-bearing years.

Other parts of the conference report already have been described in considerable detail, Mr. Speaker. I do not wish to indulge in redundancy. Therefore, I would quickly sum up by saying that whereas I continue to disapprove in principle the propriety of the other body to decorate House-passed measures with so many amendments, which are unrelated to the basic legislation, I do endorse this particular conference report and commend it to my colleagues.

Mr. CORMAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONABLE. I yield to the gentleman from California.

(Mr. CORMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CORMAN. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding. I just wanted to say that I support this conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to insert at this point in the Record a summary of the major provisions of the conference agreement affecting the SSI, AFDC, and child support enforcement programs:

SSI disability—Under the conference agreement, a disabled SSI recipient who loses his eligibility for regular SSI benefits because his earnings exceed the substantial gainful activity (SGA) earnings limitation (65%0 a month), but who continues to be medically disabled, would be eligible for a special benefit status, which would entitle him to cash benefits equivalent to those he would be entitled to receive under the regular SSI program. Persons who receive these special benefits would be eligible for medicaid and social services on the same basis as regular SSI recipients. States would have the option of supplementing the Federal benefits. When the individual's earnings exceeded the amount which would cause them to become ineligible for Federal SSI benefits or Federal cash benefits (to be reduced to zero), the special benefit status would be terminated and the individual would not thereafter be eligible for any Federal SSI benefits or Federal cash benefits. Persons who receive these special benefits would continue to retain eligibility for these benefits if he would thereafter be unable to inhibit the individual's ability to continue his employment, and (2) the individual's earnings did not exceed, or provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the cash and other benefits that would be available to him in the absence of earnings. The provision allows the retention of eligibility for medicaid and social services for persons whose earnings make them ineligible for cash benefits would also apply to SSI recipients who are blind.

The provisions would be effective for 3 years, during which the Department would be required to provide for a separate accounting of funds expended under this provision.

In addition, there would be established, effective January 1, 1981, a pilot program under which States could provide medical and social services to certain persons with severe impairments whose earnings exceed the substantial gainful activity (SGA) limitations and who are not receiving SSI, special benefits, or medicaid.

Under this pilot program, for the purpose of assisting States in providing medical or social services to certain severely handicapped persons, $18 million in Federal funds would be available for a 3-year period beginning September 1, 1981, $5 million would be available to States through the end of fiscal 1983. An additional $3 million would be available for each of the two following fiscal years. Funds that are not used during each of the first two years could be carried forward by the State.

Funds would be allocated among the States in proportion to the number of disabled SSI recipients aged 16 to 65. Prior to the start of each fiscal year, each State that does not intend to use its allocation would...
Deeming of parents’ income to disabled or blind children.—Under the conference agreement, the deeming of parents’ income and resources would be limited to disabled or blind children under age 21 who are receiving SSI and who are deemed to be in need of assistance. The deeming of parents’ income would not be limited to the income disregards provided in section 203(c) of the Social Security Act (20 U.S.C. 903(c)).

Sponsors of aliens in the United States.—Under the conference agreement, the Secretary of HHS would be required to publish regulations implementing the provisions of section 205(a) (1) of the Social Security Act (20 U.S.C. 962(a)(1)) and section 212(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(21)).

Additional resources for States.—Under the conference agreement, the Secretary of HHS would be required to make available to the States a minimum of $66 per month for each child receiving SSI, plus an amount equal to two-thirds of the remaining earnings (not limited by eligibility criteria and scope of services under titles XIX and XXI) but capped at one-third of the remaining earnings.

Deeming of parents’ income to disabled or blind children.—Under the conference agreement, the deeming of parents’ income and resources would be limited to disabled or blind children under age 21 who are receiving SSI and who are deemed to be in need of assistance. The deeming of parents’ income would not be limited to the income disregards provided in section 203(c) of the Social Security Act (20 U.S.C. 903(c)).

Sponsors of aliens in the United States.—Under the conference agreement, the Secretary of HHS would be required to publish regulations implementing the provisions of section 205(a) (1) of the Social Security Act (20 U.S.C. 962(a)(1)) and section 212(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(21)).

Additional resources for States.—Under the conference agreement, the Secretary of HHS would be required to make available to the States a minimum of $66 per month for each child receiving SSI, plus an amount equal to two-thirds of the remaining earnings (not limited by eligibility criteria and scope of services under titles XIX and XXI) but capped at one-third of the remaining earnings.
ments of the SSI program to permit demonstration projects aimed at improving the program. With respect to such SSI experiments, the Secretary would not be authorized to carry out any project that would result in a substantial reduction in any individual's total income and resources due to his participation in the project. The Secretary could not require an individual to participate in a project and would have to assure that the volunteer participation of individuals in any project is obtained through an informed written consent agreement which satisfies requirements established by the Secretary. The Secretary would also have to include projects necessary to ascertain the feasibility of treating alcoholics and drug addicts free of charge, or in treatment facilities under the WIN program. These services would be authorized to be provided to registrants prior to certification.

The agreement authorizes the Secretaries of Labor and HHS to establish, as required by the law, the period of time during which an individual would not be eligible for assistance in the case of refusal without cause. The period would be 90 days. In addition, the present law provision for a 60-day counseling period for persons who refuse to participate was eliminated.

The conference agreement provides that State supportive service units be colocated with manpower units to the maximum extent feasible; allows State administrative agencies for work in cash or in kind; clarifies that income from WIN public service employment is not fully excluded in determining eligibility for AFDC; the present 75 percent matching rate for the costs of operating such systems. The agreement requires the Secretary to provide technical assistance necessary to establish and operate systems not included in that a State System must meet certain specified requirements in order to receive Federal matching. There would be continuing matching until December 31, 1981.

Under the agreement States choosing to establish and operate systems must include as part of such systems (1) the ability to control and monitor all the factors of the system and to establish management information systems, (2) interface with the AFDC program, (3) security against access to data, and (4) the ability to provide management information systems. Information, in the presentation of the agreement.

The provision is effective July 1, 1981.

AFDC management information systems.—The conference agreement provides 80 percent Federal funding for States to replace their existing systems to develop and implement computerized AFDC management information systems. The Secretary would be required to approve State systems as a condition of Federal matching (both initially and on a continuing basis). In order for States to receive 80 percent of Federal funds, the system would have to include certain specified requirements, including (1) ability to include reports, (2) capacity for verification of factors with other agencies, (3) capability for notifying child support, food stamp, social services, and other public assistance programs of child support obligations from, and locating individuals owing child support obligations. Any agency receiving information must comply with the law for safeguarding information. Under these safeguards, information may be used on a computer in un-coded form if the computer is used only by the child support enforcement agency. If this information is used on computer systems shared with agencies which are not child support agencies, the information may be un-coded so that it is available only to the officer, performing duties of the child support enforcement agency. Generally, disclosure to individuals is not authorized. However, the Secretary may authorize a State to disclose information on a limited basis.

The provision is effective July 1, 1980.

Disclosure of information for AFDC and title XX.— For purposes of titles IV and XX of the Social Security Act and the provisions of the Social Security Act relating to termination of assistance for AFDC recipients, the conference agreement permits the disclosure of information regarding individuals assisted under the State's plan for purposes of any authorized enforcement proceedings or the administration of the program including an audit performed by a legislative body.

The agreement authorizes the Secretary of Labor and Health and Human Services to establish, by regulation, a program to permit disclosure of information contained in the records of the State agency, certain tax return information must be introduced into the system, pursuant to judges and other individuals making judicial determinations, but not excluded exceptions. The law also contains regulations with their administrative and support personnel) but only for functions specifically identified as IV-D functions.

The provision is effective July 1, 1981.

Child support enforcement. The conference agreement adds to the definition of "other employment-related activities (including employment search)." The agreement also specifies that necessary social and supportive services be provided during any employment search activities included in a "WIN" program. These services would be authorized to be provided to registrants prior to certification.

The agreement authorizes the Secretaries of Labor and HHS to establish, as required by the law, the period of time during which an individual would not be eligible for assistance in the case of refusal without cause. Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, I agree with the gentleman that the gentleman from California (Mr. CORMAN) has made a significant contribution to this measure.

Mr. PICKLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I urge approval of the conference report on H.R. 3236. The bill makes needed improvements in the social security disability program. It also makes changes in the SSI, AFDC, and child support program and provides for increased supervision of Medicare supplemental—or Medigap—policies.

This legislation has been some time in the making. It began over 5 years ago with an extensive study of the social security disability program by the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Social Security. Work and further study of the issues raised then, and on new issues they were discovered, has continued in a series of reports and hearings each year since that time.

Few programs are more difficult to administer—but few programs also are more important to the American people—than the social security disability program. American people deserve a well run disability program and this legislation is definitely a step in that direction.

The long history of this bill has shown that it is possible for members of both parties to adopt a spirit of compromise and cooperation to work together for the common good. I am extremely proud to have been associated with the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Mr. ULLMAN, with the ranking minority member, Mr. CORMAN, and with all the members of the Social Security Subcommittee especially Congressman ANDREW JACOBS, and Congressman BILL ARCHER, who worked very hard on this legislation and who stuck to what they knew was right. I also want to commend the members of the Ways and Means Committee, particularly my fellow subcommittee chairman, Mr. CORMAN, who joined me in a very complicated conference and who worked hard there to bring this bill before the House.

Nearly all factions which expressed views one way or another on this bill are now working together. I particularly want to commend my good friend the Honorable CLAUS FEPPE. This distinguished gentleman is a most able legislator but in a courteous and exemplary manner. I also want to commend the chairman of the Rules Committee for his constancy in seeing that there is ample time for all parties to express their views.

H.R. 3236 enjoyed an unanimous vote in committee and passed the House by a 73 vote margin, although it was at that time somewhat controversial. But the House shall have on record that it was an act of courtesy and wisdom and I believe that it should be even more persuaded now—that this is a good bill which will lay the groundwork for a better disability program in the future.

The legislation enjoys the endorsement as well of the Honorable Patricia Harris, Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services.

The real importance of this legislation is not in the changes in future benefits occasioned by the sections on the cap and dropout years. The real significance is that this bill will give work incentives to disabled citizens across the land, enable disabled persons to lead productive lives without a sword continually hanging over their heads that they will lose their benefits. The bill removes that fear and gives encouragement and support through an extended trial work period, though the bill also provides for deductions of impairment related expenses in computing eligibility for benefits. These are changes that will cost money, but in the long run they will be the most important parts of this bill.

Because the Senate added several features to the bill, it now addresses many other important issues. Among those I mentioned at the beginning of my statement. But I would point out to the House that these generally are matters which have already been considered and approved by the Senate or which enjoy substantial support in this body.

Again, therefore, I urge approval of this report.

I would also like to include in the Record a summary of the bill and a detailed statement of the Conference decisions, and the material is as follows:

Summary of The Social Security Disability Amendment 980 H.R. 3236

The bill makes major improvements in the social security and Supplemental Security Income disability programs to improve work incentives. At the core of the bill are the following provisions which make changes in the SSI, AFDC, and Child support programs and provides a voluntary certification program for medicare supplemental policies (medigap).

Disability insurance work incentives. To make needed corrections in the benefit formula and to enable more disabled beneficiaries to return to work despite their impairments, H.R. 3236 would (a) provide a limitation on family benefits to ensure that benefits are based on an individual's previous earnings; (b) reduce the disparity between young and old disabled workers by introducing a schedule of variable drop-out years; (c) extend the present trial work period for disabled workers; (d) provide a trial work period for disabled widows and widowers; (e) deduct from the supplemental work expenses, attendant care costs, etc. from earnings in determining SGA; (f) extend medicaid coverage for an additional 36 months to disabled beneficiaries and those who are blind; (g) eliminate the second 24-month medicare waiting period where a person again becomes disabled; (h) provide demonstration and waiver authority for the study of various alternative ways of stimulating disabled workers to return to work.

Disability program accountability.—To improve program accountability, the bill provides a regulatory scheme to govern the State agencies which determine disability, a Federal review of State allowances on a pre-decision basis and a periodic review of individuals on the rolls with nonpermanent disabilities, a more extensive review of ALJ decisions, and the publication of a more detailed notice of denial of disability benefits.

Legal aliens.—SSI.—In determining whether a legal alien meets the income eligibility criteria for SSI, the income resources of his immigration sponsor would be deemed to be available for his support for a period of 3 years after entry into the U.S. It will be determined whether he maintains the cooperation of the sponsor in providing necessary information.

Disability SSI recipients.—The bill would require states to demonstrate that the SSI recipient who loses his eligibility for regular SSI benefits because he increases his earnings above the SSI benefit level, but who continues to be medically disabled, would be eligible for a special benefit status entitling him to benefits on the same basis as any other individual. The bill extends the SSI benefit level to those who are entitled to Medicare benefits and who are entitled to SSI benefits, but who were injured before becoming disabled and who are entitled to Medicare benefits for the first time because they are entitled to SSI benefits.

Cost of Bill.—H.R. 3236 provides substantial increases in benefits for individuals and in general revenue as follows: $6 million in 1980, $70 million in 1981, rising to $1.1 billion in 1985.

H.R. 3236 as approved by Committee—Provisions relating to Disability Insurance

1. Work Incentive Sections

(Section 101)

Present Law. The social security disability insurance program (DI) determines the amount of disability benefits payable based on an individual's previous earnings. The formula for determining disability benefits is the same as that used to determine retirement benefits. A disability determination is arrived at by applying a formula to the average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) the individual had over the course of a period of years which approximates the number of years in which he could reasonably have been expected to be in the work force. For a retired worker, this period is equal to the number of years between the ages of 21 and 62. For a disabled worker, the number of years of earnings to be averaged is the number of years before the worker became disabled. In either case, the resulting averaging period is reduced by 5.

The basic benefit amount (the primary insurance amount—PIA) may be increased if the worker has a spouse or dependent children. Benefits for the spouse are payable if the spouse is over age 62 or if the spouse is caring for a disabled child who is under age 18 or disabled (as a result of a disability which existed in childhood) or if they are both disabled and the non-disabled worker is under age 22. The combined benefit for the worker and all dependents is limited by a family maximum provision to no more than 150% to 180% of the worker's benefit alone.

Conference Action. The bill limits total DI family benefits to the smaller of 65 percent of the worker's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME), or the worker's primary insurance amount (PIA). Under the provision, no family benefit would be reduced below 100 percent of the worker's primary benefit.

Scope and Effective Date. The limitation is effective only with respect to individuals who first become entitled to benefits on or after July 1, 1980.

Reduction in Dropout Years (Sec. 102)

Present Law. Disabled workers are allowed to exclude up to 5 years of low earnings in averaging their earnings. However, at least 2 years of earnings must be used in the benefit computation.

Conference Action. The bill excluded years of low earnings in the computation of disability benefits according to the following schedule:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Workers age at disablement:</th>
<th>dropout years</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Under 27</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27 through 31</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32 through 38</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37 through 41</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>42 through 47</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47 and over</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>

The provision also would allow a disabled worker to drop out additional low years of earnings, if in those years there was a child (of the worker or his or her spouse) under age 3 living in the same household and the disabled worker did not engage in any employment in each such year. In no case would the number of such dropout years exceed 3. Further, dropout years for periods of child care would be provided only to the extent that the combined number of child care dropout years and dropout years provided under the regular schedule do not exceed 3.

Effective Date. The new schedule of dropout years applies to disabled workers who first became entitled to benefits after June 1983. The provision continues to apply to a benefit that began before age 62 he ceases to be entitled to disability benefits for 12 continuous months.

Elimination of second medicare waiting period (Sec. 103)

Present Law. Beneficiaries of disability insurance (DI) must wait 24 consecutive months after becoming entitled to benefits before Medicare coverage is available to them. The amendment applied to workers becoming disabled after July 1, 1980. The provision made the DI worker as eligible as the disabled widows or widowers and adult disabled as a result of childhood becoming disabled again within 64 months.

Conference Action. The conference accepted the provisions of the House and Senate bills and agreed that the provision would be effective 6 months after enactment.

Extension of Medicare coverage an additional 36 months (Sec. 104)

Present Law. Medicare coverage ends when disability insurance benefits cease.

Conference Action. The bill extends Medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered. (The first 12 months of the recoupments is part of the new 24 month trial work period. See section 303.) The new provision applies to disability beneficiaries whose disabilities have not been ceased prior to the 6th month after enactment.

Funding for vocational rehabilitation services for disabled individuals (Sec. 105)

Present Law. Reimbursement from social security trust funds is now provided to State vocational rehabilitation agencies for the cost of vocational rehabilitation services furnished to disability insurance beneficiaries. The purpose of the payment is to accelerate the result of rehabilitation the maximum number of beneficiaries into productive activity. The formula may be adjusted by the Secretary of Health and Human Services so that any reimbursement may not, in any year, exceed 1 1/2 percent of the social security disability benefits paid in the preceding fiscal year.

The House bill eliminated, effective for fiscal 1982, trust fund financing for rehabilitation services but provided trust fund reimbursement to the Public Health Service (90%) and to the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury (10%) for the first $3,000 of rehabilitation costs which may be made available for such reimbursement may not, in any year, exceed 1 1/2 percent of the social security disability benefits paid in the preceding fiscal year.

The bill provides that 6 months of the 36 month period was part of the 24 month trial work period. The Secretary of Health and Human Services is required to submit a report to the Congress which shall include a recommendation for the length of the trial work period under current law.

Conference Action. The bill requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to specify the type of care, services and items that may be deducted, and may not be deducted, and any limitations for determining whether these items are also needed to enable beneficiary to engage in substantial gainful activity, regardless of whether these items are also needed to enable beneficiary to engage in substantial gainful activity, regardless of whether they are also essential to the individual's employment.

Extension of the trial work period (Sec. 303)

Present Law. Under the DI and SSI programs, an individual may not receive DI or SSI benefits and cash benefits, and be allowed to have income, in excess of the SGA level, attributable to substantial gainful activity (SGA). DI beneficiaries who have been engaged in SGA work at the SGA level and have not completed the trial work period may not receive SSI benefits if they engage in SGA work at the SGA level during the trial work period. The trial work period would be applicable to DI workers before becoming reentitled to benefits before Medicare coverage is available to the SGA level. The amendment applied to workers becoming disabled after July 1, 1980. The provision made the DI worker as eligible as the disabled widows or widowers and adult disabled as a result of childhood becoming disabled again within 64 months.

Conference Action. The conference accepted the provisions of the House and Senate bills and agreed that the provision would be effective 6 months after enactment.

Termination of benefits for persons in vocational rehabilitation programs (Sec. 301)

Present Law. Under present law an individual is not entitled to DI and SSI benefits after he has medically recovered, regardless of whether he has completed the program of vocational rehabilitation in which he has been enrolled.

Conference Action. The bill provides that DI benefits will continue after medical recovery for persons in approved vocational rehabilitation plans or programs, provided under the Social Security Act, for which the Commissioner of Social Security determines that continuing in those plans or programs will increase the probability of beneficiaries going off the rolls. The provision is effective 6 month after enactment.

Treatment of extraordinary work expenses in determining SGA (Sec. 302)

Present Law. Regulations issued under present law provide that in determining whether an individual is performing substantial gainful activity (SGA), extraordinary expenses incurred by the individual in connection with a qualified rehabilitation plan or program, if paid by Medicare, are not included in the SGA test. The regulations provide that expenses incurred by the individual in connection with a qualified rehabilitation plan or program, if paid by the Federal government, is paragraph (2) of section 226(b) of the Social Security Act, the provision would be effective 6 months after enactment.
a trial work period at all under existing law). The provision would be effective 6 months after enactment.

Work incentive and other demonstration projects under the disability insurance program (Sec. 505)

Present Law. The Secretary of Health and Human Services has no authority to waive requirements under titles II, XVI, and XIX of the Social Security Act. This conduct experimental or demonstration projects.

Conference Action. The bill authorizes waiver of benefit requirements of the DI and Medicare programs to allow demonstration projects. Such projects would be implemented by the Social Security Administration to test ways in which to stimulate a return to work by disability beneficiaries. It also authorizes waivers in the case of other disability insurance demonstration projects to allow demonstration waiver of benefit requirements of the DI and Medicare programs to allow demonstration projects.

requirements under titles II, XVI, and XIX of the Social Security Act. This conduct experimental or demonstration projects.

Conference Action. The bill authorizes waiver of benefit requirements of the DI and Medicare programs to allow demonstration projects. Such projects would be implemented by the Social Security Administration to test ways in which to stimulate a return to work by disability beneficiaries. It also authorizes waivers in the case of other disability insurance demonstration projects to allow demonstration waiver of benefit requirements of the DI and Medicare programs to allow demonstration projects.

Closing the record—Limit on prospective effect of application (Sec. 306)

Present Law. Present law provides that if an applicant satisfies the requirements for benefits at any time before the final decision of the Secretary, the application is deemed to be filed in the first month for which the requirements are met. One consequence of this provision is that the claimant is permitted to apply for benefits at any time before a final decision. Thus, a claimant, for example, could file a new claim for benefits and receive benefits at any time before a final decision. This provision is frequently referred to as the "floating application" process.

Conference Action. The conference committee provides for reopening the introduction of new evidence on a claimant's previously filed application after the decision is made at the administrative law judge (ALJ) hearing, but would not affect the requirement to remand an insufficiently documented case or other defect.

Own motion review of ALJ decisions (Sec. 304 (g))

Present Law. After his claim has been denied by the state agency in charge and on reconsideration, an applicant has the opportunity to establish eligibility until all levels of administrative review have been exhausted, i.e., until there is a final decision. Thus, a claimant, for example, could file a new claim for benefits and receive benefits at any time before a final decision. This provision is frequently referred to as the "floating application" process.

Conference Action. The conference committee provides for reopening the introduction of new evidence on a claimant's previously filed application after the decision is made at the administrative law judge (ALJ) hearing, but would not affect the requirement to remand an insufficiently documented case or other defect.

Effective Date. Upon enactment.

Time limits for decisions on benefit claims (Sec. 308)

Present Law. There is no statutory provision setting a specific amount of time to explain the decision made on a claim for benefits.

Conference Action. The bill provides for a time limit on the decision made, and after the first day of the 13th month following the month of enactment.

Scope of Federal court review—Findings of fact (Sec. 324)

Present Law. In Social Security appeals, the U.S. District Court shall have power to enter upon the pleadings and transcript of the record, a judgment affirming, modifying, or reversing the decision of the Secretary, with or without remanding the case for a hearing. The findings of the Secretary as to any fact will be conclusive.

Senate Bill. The Senate bill modified the scope of Federal court review so that the Secretary's determinations with respect to the applicability of the substantial evidence rule would be conclusive, unless found to be arbitrary and capricious. The substantial evidence requirement would be deleted.

Conference Action. The conference deleted the provisions of the Senate bill because of the uncertainty as to the ramifications of the rule proposed and the concern that the provisions would conflict with the degree of credibility which would justify elimination of the "substantial evidence rule." Appeals Council own motion review of ALJ decisions eventually should enhance the validity of the process and lead to the need for less reliance on judicial review. The conference believes that the National Commission on Social Security should exp.
peals process generally and deal specifically with such elements as the Administration proposals for judicial review in addition to alternative approaches such as a Disability Court.

The conference committee would like to reiterate what both committees stated in their reports on F.L.R. 102 that there should be a substantial evidence rule with strict adherence to its principles since the practice of some courts in making de novo factual determinations could result in what is called for in the Federal judiciary and the social security programs.

III. PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION

Administration by State agencies (Sec. 304 (a) (b) (e) (f) and (h))

Present Law. Present law provides for disability determinations to be performed by State agencies under an agreement negotiated by the State and the Secretary of Health and Human Services. Unlike the grant-in-aid programs, the relationship is contractual and State laws and practices are controlled by the Secretary. The agreement may specify many administrative aspects. State agencies make the determinations based on guidelines provided by the Department and the costs of making the determinations may be paid by Federal funds, or reimbursement to the contracting State agency. Present agreements allow both the State and the Secretary to terminate the agreement. The States generally may terminate with 12 months' notice and the Secretary may terminate if he finds the State has not compiled substantially with any provisions of the agreement.

Conference Action. The bill requires that disability determinations be made by State agencies according to regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary. It requires the Secretary to issue regulations specifying, in such detail as he deemed appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures. The bill also provides that this shall not be construed to authorize the Secretary to take any action except pursuant to law or to regulations pursuant to law.

The bill also provides that if the Secretary found that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations consistent with Federal law, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his findings, terminate State administration and make the determinations himself. The provision also allows for termination by the Secretary. The State would be required to continue to make disability determinations for not less than 180 days after notifying the Secretary of its intent to terminate. Thereafter, the Secretary would be required to make the determinations.

Effective Date. The bill provides that these changes shall be effective no earlier than 180 days after the notice is given.

Protection of State employees (Sec. 304 (b) and (h))

Present Law. Under provisions of the Federal Disability Act, the Federal Government takes over a function being carried out by a State, the Federal agency in its discretion may retain the State employees in their positions.

Conference Action. The bill requires that if the Secretary of Health and Human Services assumes the disability determination function he must retain all State agency employees who are capable of performing duties in the disability determination process over any other individual in filling new Federal positions. However, the Secretary would not be required to provide a hiring preference to the administrator, deputy administrator, or assistant administrator (or comparable position) in the event that the Secretary found it necessary to assume the functions of a State agency. Although he would not be required to provide a preference to persons in such positions, he could do so if he determines that such action is appropriate.

In addition, the Secretary would be prohibited from terminating the functions of the State determination unit when this became necessary. The plan should assume the uninterrupted operation of the disability determination unit when this became necessary.

Effective Date. Same as for the provision for continuing the functions of the State determination unit when this became necessary.

Waiver of waiting period for terminally ill (Sec. 606)

Present Law. Under the DI program the waiting period is the earliest of 6 consecutive months in which an individual is under a disability. An individual is determined disabled if he is unable to engage in substantial gainful activity as of the date last insured. The waiting period requirement does not apply to result in death or which has existed or is expected to last for not less than 12 months.

If an individual becomes disabled and applies for benefits in the same month, the waiting period begins on the sixth month after the month in which the disability condition begins and will be paid on the third day of the seventh month.

The waiting period begins until the individual is insured for benefits (i.e., the individual has satisfied the quarters of coverage requirements). If the disabling condition begins before the individual is insured for benefits, the waiting period begins only with the first month in which the individual has insured status.

The waiver applies for benefits after having been entitled to DI benefits previously (or had a previous period of disability) within 6 years prior to the current application, the waiting period requirement does not have to be met again.

Senate Bill. The Senate bill eliminated the waiting period for persons with a terminal illness, i.e., a medical condition resulting in death or which has existed or is expected to last for not less than 12 months. The Senate bill also provided that the 6-month waiting period be applied only to the first month in which the individual is insured.

The proviso was to be effective for applications filed in or after the month of enactment, or for disability decisions not yet rendered by the Social Security Administration or the courts prior to the month of enactment.

Effective Date. Same as for the provision for modifying the DI program.

Payment for existing medical evidence (Sec. 309)

Present Law. Authority does not now exist to pay physicians and other potential sources of medical evidence for medical information already provided to the Secretary by the State. The Secretary may, at his discretion, pay physicians an application for disability insurance benefits. Such authority does exist in the SSI program.

Conference Action. The bill provides that any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician, which requests reimbursement from the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence requested and required by the Secretary for making determinations of disability, shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence.

Effective Date. Six months after enactment.
May 22, 1980

Mr. PICKLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. RATCHFORD).

Mr. RATCHFORD. Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor enthusiastically to support this conference report.

As a Member who serves under the chairmanship of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. PEPPER) on the Select Committee on Aging and as a Member who in my own right served as Commissioner of the department of aging in Connecticut for a 2-year period of time, there is no question, Mr. Speaker, that there is a national scandal today in the area of Medi-Gap and in the area of abuse of the elderly. I would like to outline some of the abuses we found.

First, we found salesmen who were selling policies which clearly duplicated the coverage of medicare.

Second, we found misrepresentation by salesmen as to what the policies actually covered.

Third—and we had very vivid testimony to this effect—we found policies were sold which duplicated existing policies on the person for whom insurance was being extended.

And, fourth, we found in the area of mail sales of policies that substantial fraud existed.

The positive side was that we found there are many States that had acted and acted aggressively in this area. My own State, the State of Connecticut, earlier this year passed legislation that went substantially further than many other States. Connecticut passed legislation which established a minimum individual loss ratio of 65 percent and a minimum group loss ratio of 75 percent. Also, the Connecticut law provides that any gap in coverage that Medicare must be spelled out in writing and allows the State Commissioner of Insurance to develop the implementing regulations.

Unfortunately, there are many States that do not have this coverage, and as a result this legislation which is contained in the conference report today is needed, and it is needed badly. We found three areas nationally where coverage was needed in national legislation.

First, legislation which requires that before policies are approved by the commissioner of insurance approval, before insurance is approved, rather, it must be approved at the State level by the commissioner of insurance;

And, third and finally, the law requires that there be the creation of a program of voluntary certification in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, so it is demonstrated to the Congress to amend the Social Security Act so as to provide the kinds of services most appropriate for individuals who are suffering from terminal illnesses.

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. DUNCAN). Mr. DUNCAN of Tennessee asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. DUNCAN of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I support the conference report on H.R. 3236 because I believe it represents the best set of compromises obtainable.

H.R. 3236, as passed by this House, was designed to make the disability insurance program more responsive to the needs of both beneficiaries and insured workers, whose taxes pay the benefits. It did so mainly by offering new incentives to those who are disabled but who are trying to become successfully employed again.

In the other body, these important provisions were not altered radically. There were some differences, of course, but they were not terribly difficult to resolve.

The real problems for the conferees were posed by amendments of the other body which had nothing to do with the original contents of H.R. 3236. These unrelated provisions make changes in several different titles of the Social Security Act and involve such widely disparate subjects as runaway fathers and insurance policies to supplement medicare.

The conference report changes title IV of the Social Security Act by requiring many adult recipients of aid to families with dependent children to register not only for work but for job training programs. It whether easier access to data needed in tracking down delinquent parents in child support cases. And it increases Federal matching money for improvements in information retrieval systems for welfare programs.

The report amends title XVIII of the Social Security Act by requesting the Secretary of Health and Human Services to establish a voluntary certification program for medicare supplemental policies in States which do not provide certain standards. This was an amendment of the other body, adopted by the managers on the part of the House only after prolonged negotiations. The amendment was modified in conference so that voluntary certification would not become effective until July 1982 and so that a certified policy would have to meet or exceed State insurance commissioners, not Federal law.

The voluntary certification program would not be applicable to any policy issued in a State which has standards that “are equal to (or) are more stringent than” standards set forth in a model regulation adopted by the association of State insurance commissioners. A panel, appointed by the President and consisting of the Secretary of HHS and four State insurance commissioners, would determine whether a State had acceptable standards. The statement of managers makes it clear that the conference report phrase “more stringent than” was not designed to be a benchmark for States, but to be a helpful tool to ensure that States would not be encouraged to limit their regulatory programs to a minimal level.

Although this portion of the report is not in precisely the form that some of us would have preferred, it is a pragmatic solution to a very controversial and complex issue.

Much the same can be said of agreement reached on other sensitive issues by this conference. I doubt that any of the managers is completely satisfied with every part of the report, but I believe that every manager on the part of the House is satisfied that that is the case.

All in all, Mr. Speaker, it is a good report, worthy of approval by this body.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise to clarify for the record why I am voting in favor of the conference report on the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980 (H.R. 3236) when I voted against the original House-passed bill.

First, the conference committee version of H.R. 3236 includes the provisions of H.R. 3464, the supplemental security income disability amendments which make further cuts in social security benefits as long as I am in Congress.

Third, the committee retained and expanded the House-passed provisions in H.R. 3236 and H.R. 3464 which further reduce social security and SSI benefits for children who first qualify for benefits on or after October 1980, to reduce healthcare costs, including attendant care and medical equipment costs, in computing eligibility for OASDI and SSI benefits. This provision, effective 16 months after enactment, would apply only to those disabled individuals who pay their own expenses.

Fourth, Medicare coverage for an additional 3 years to disabled beneficiaries who return to work:

Eliminate the second 2-year waiting period for medicare benefits for those who reapply for benefits after unsuccessful attempts to work, effective 6 months after enactment.

Limit the deeming of parents' income and resources to disabled or blind children age 18 whether or not the child is in school or in training, beginning October 1980. Children between the ages of 18 and 21 who are medically recovered persons in approved vocational rehabilitation programs for individuals still disabled 6 years for both the OASDI and SSI programs including one which would eliminate the 5-month waiting period for the terminally ill to qualify for disability benefits. The conference report tightens administration of the disability insurance program and the Aid for Dependent Children (AFDC) welfare program.

The decision to vote for H.R. 3236 as reported by the conference committee has been a difficult one because of the cuts in disability benefits to future recipients which were included in the legislation. But I believe on balance the provisions in this measure before us today do more good for social security and SSI recipients than harm. I hold out some hope that the decision to cut some disability benefits can be reevaluated next year when the National Commission on Social Security submits its extensive report to Congress on January 11. The report is expected to review the adequacy of social security disability benefits and recommend improvements. This should give Congress an opportunity to test the theory behind the cuts in disability benefits that they will help encourage recipients to return to work. I look forward to this opportunity.

Mr. SHANNON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Medi-Gap provisions of the conference report on the Disability Amendments Act.

In the past 15 years since medicare was first enacted, we have witnessed a dramatic increase in health care costs in this country. Health care costs have consistently increased at rates far exceeding the increases in the cost of living.

No group has suffered more from these increases than the elderly who have had to pay more out of their pocket to participate in the medicare program and to cover the increasingly larger share of their bills which medicare does not cover.

Consequently, the elderly are increasingly turning to the purchase of private health insurance policies to fill the gaps in medicare's inadequate coverage.

It has been estimated that two-thirds of the elderly have at least one such health insurance policy and that the elderly spend almost $4 billion on these "Medi-Gap" policies each year.

The problem is that there are many abuses in the sale of these Medi-Gap policies. Hearings before the Senate and House committees have documented the fact that policies are often sold to the elderly on the understanding they will pay for items which are not covered by medicare such as out-of-hospital prescription drugs and nursing home care. By the end of the year, the cost of these policies provide payment only for medicare's copayment and deductibles. Unethical insurance agents and a small number of insurance companies have fueled the fears of the elderly by selling them excessive or duplicative insurance with very limited value. The instances of abuse have reached the point of being a national scandal.

However, even in the face of undeniable evidence of widespread abuse, up until this year no legislation had been passed by either House of Congress which would help remedy this problem.

During the Ways and Means Health Subcommittee consideration of the Medicare-Medicaid Amendments Act of 1979 (H.R. 4000) I offered an amendment which was adopted that would set up a voluntary certification program of Medicare supplemental insurance policies which is very similar to the program contained in this conference report which we are now considering.

Under both these proposals which sell Medi-Gap insurance policies can apply to the Secretary of Health and Human Resources for certification that the policy meets or surpasses certain minimum standards. If the policy meets the standards, this fact can be used in advertising and selling the policies. This should provide a competitive advantage to policy holders over the elderly and work to the disadvantage of those policies which are not worth the paper they are written on.

This program will also provide criminal penalties for agents who engage in fraudulently. Sales practices and worthless insurance policies. I urge my colleagues to protect the elderly and approve the conference report.

Mr. BIAGGI. Mr. Speaker, I rise with mixed reactions to the pending conference report to accompany H.R. 3238, the social security disability amendments. The nature of my dilemma is this. When H.R. 3238 came before the House last September, I voted against the legislation because I considered it to be a punitive and premature piece of legislation which imposed unnecessary hardships on individuals and families participating in the disability insurance program.

However, the conference report includes a vitally important provision which was one of the major initiatives of the House Select Committee on Aging on which I am very much an original member. I refer to the so-called “Medi-Gap” provisions. In November, our committee under the exemplary leadership of Chairman CLIVE PEPPER conducted a celebrated hearing on fraudulent medical sales practices and how those practices were being sold to medicare recipients to cover those items which were spending nearly $1 billion a year on unnecessary and oftentimes worthless insurance policies. The catalyst for the hearing was the testimony of medicare, when enacted in 1965 was supposed to cover 80 percent of the health care needs of seniors—today only covers 38 percent of actual needs. Included among medical items not covered by medicare are hearing aids which are needed by more than 90 percent of seniors and much of the expenses associated with catastrophic illnesses.

We learned that senior citizens by the millions purchases so-called “Medi-Gap” insurance policies sold by private companies. Specifically, more than two-thirds of the 23 million seniors in this Nation have at least one Medi-Gap policy—many have more than one. All sold some 15 million such policies estimated at a cost of $1.5 billion were sold in 1977 alone.

At our hearing—we heard one especially horrifying story by the son and daughter of one elderly woman who was duped into buying at least four Medi-Gap insurance policies at a cost of more than $30,000 in premium payments. These policies were largely duplicative and worthless.

I actually did more than just participate in the House Select Committee on Aging hearing on this subject. In advance of the actual hearing, the Select Committee which served as a catalyst for the scandal was the fact that several states, most notably from New York have in fact adopted strong regulations which require or ban the sale of loss-return insurance policies and which also bar the sale of so-called “dread disease policies.” New York State has been in the forefront in this area and I especially commend Commissioner AL Lewis from the State Insurance Commission.

The pending conference report also provides that the Secretary of Health and Human Services may issue certification to insurers who meet these standards and requirements. The conference report also intends that insurers notify policyholders of the loss certification.

The conference report does provide for certain exceptions. Included are group health policies held by one or more employers or labor organizations on grounds that these policies are not designed as supplemental coverage and are not sold directly to individuals. Also excluded are professional trade and occupational associations if the association exists for purposes other than obtaining insurance.

Finally, the conference report provides that the Secretary of Health and Human Services may issue certification to insurers who sell supplemental insurance policies through the mail in States which have not approved such policies with certain exceptions. This is vital to our commitment to consumer protection.

Over our 5-year history, the House Select Committee on Aging has been responsible for leading efforts which resulted in landmark legislation. One notable ending of mandatory retirement age 65, the Older Americans Act Amendments of 1978 with its establishment of our first national program of providing meals to the homebound elderly. Today our mark is again being felt on the legislative process. As the Senate again is exposed the fraud victimizing millions of senior citizens. It was our hearing which disclosed the unscrupulous nature of certain insurance policies to unsuspecting seniors. Finally, it was H.R. 2602 sponsored by our chairman, Mr. Pepper and cosponsored by the leadership of the committee which served as a catalyst for continued consumer fraud in Medi-Gap insurance industry.

Effective July 1, 1982, a voluntary certification program would require a medicare supplemental policy to meet or exceed standards established by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners in 1979 and pay consumers of group policies at least 75 cents on the premium dollar in benefits and for those holding individual policies the return should be at least 60 cents on the dollar.

Under the conference report, States would be required to adopt their own certification program before the Federal program could be implemented. This is consistent with the provisions of the McCarran-Ferguson Act of 1945 which in effect leaves the regulation of the insurance industry largely to the States. It should be noted that several States, most notably my home State of New York have in fact adopted strong regulations which restrict or ban the sale of loss-return insurance policies and which also bar the sale of so-called “dread disease policies.” New York State has been in the forefront in this area and I especially commend Commissioner AL Lewis from the State Insurance Commission.

Congressional Record - House  May 22, 1980

The purpose of this legislation is to provide added incentives for disabled workers to return to work and, in addition, not make disability payments attractive enough to dissuade people from returning to work.

The bill allows workers to return to work on a trial basis for 2 years without losing eligibility for benefits. It also allows disabled workers to disregard work-related expenses and medical coverage for an additional 3 years to disabled beneficiaries who return to work. In addition, the legislation eliminates the 2-year waiting period for Medicare benefits for disabled workers who find they cannot work.

The conferees labored intensely on a new Medi-Gap provision and I think the conferees decisions, on the whole, were balanced and deserve support.

Under the provision of the bill, States have until July 1, 1980, to establish their own regulations which will assure that Medi-Gap insurance policies meet or exceed the standards established by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners and have specified loss-ratios. These minimum standards will provide a reasonable basis so that older Americans will be assured that the supplemental insurance policies they purchase really provide protection.

I was glad that the conferees accepted a provision that would limit the ability of unscrupulous legally admitted aliens who apply for SSI benefits immediately after coming to the country. In the future such aliens or their sponsors must repay any SSI benefits.

There are several small but important welfare benefits and, as a whole, I believe that this legislation deserves the overwhelming support of the House.

Mr. CARTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join our distinguished colleagues in the House Select Committee on Aging, Senator Cooper of Florida. And I would like to take this opportunity to commend the Senator for his diligent efforts in bringing this matter to congressional attention—and for seeing that appropriate legislative action would be taken.

Following the Aging Committee's hearings, the Health and Environment Subcommittee held a special hearing on the problems surrounding the sale of Medicare supplemental insurance and as a result of those hearings, our Commerce Committee reported a legislation containing the voluntary Medi-Gap Proposal.

Mr. Speaker, I regret very much that this legislation is necessary. I regret that numerous examples of abusive practices have occurred with regard to the selling of Medicare supplemental insurance to the elderly of this country.

Many, too many, older Americans have been intimidated or misled into buying the so-called Medi-Gap policies, which were later found to be duplicative, unnecessary, or simply inadequate.

However, because these abuses have occurred, congressional attention has been focused on this problem. And as a result, a very reasonable approach has been developed to address the situation, any opposition.

Under the legislation, insurance companies could apply on a voluntary basis for certification of their Medi-Gap policies. And in States where reasonable procedures have already been developed to regulate such policies, when the voluntary Federal certification program would not apply. Certainly, it would be our hope that all States would adopt at least the minimum standards necessary to secure protection of their Medicare beneficiaries from any further abuses in the future. While many States have in fact taken the initiative in this field, not all have done so.

In conclusion, I urge my colleagues to support the conference report, which includes this important 'Medi-Gap' provision to help end the abuses in the sale of health insurance to Medicare beneficiaries.

I would also like to commend my distinguished colleagues—Congressman Ullman, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Congressman Conable, the ranking minority member, for their excellent work on this conference report. And I appreciate the thoughtful consideration that they have given to the Medi-Gap issue and to the many other important provisions in this legislation.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the conference agreement on H.R. 3236 because the legislation as we now still contains, essentially unchanged, the provision which caused me to oppose the bill when it was before us last September.

This legislation will reduce benefits an average of 15 percent to 18 percent for any disabled worker who first becomes entitled after July 1, 1980. Averages, however, do not tell the whole story. The limitation will not affect workers over age 47 who have no dependents eligible for benefits. It affects all younger workers and all workers with families. For all intents and purposes, this bill abandons mother's benefits because the ceiling on benefits is the same whether a worker has one dependent or
To understand what this means to a family, we have to look at how benefits are paid.

Under current law, each eligible dependent of an annuitant is entitled to a benefit equal to 50 percent of the worker’s benefit, but the total payment cannot exceed the family maximum. The limitation contained in this bill before us will provide for a maximum of one dependent. In many instances, no family benefits will be paid.

Disability benefits applications and approved claims increase gradually from December 1972 when the 50-year age limit was dropped until they reached a peak in 1975. Since that time, approved claims have dropped sharply and the number of awards per 100,000 insured workers is less now than it was in 1970—198 per 100,000 against 479 per 100,000. The disability insurance trust fund is accumulating a surplus to the point we are talking about reallocating payroll taxes from that fund to the old age and survivors trust fund.

This reduction in numbers of awards is partially due to closer Office of Disability Operations’ monitoring of the disability decisions of State agencies. It can also be attributed to the issuance of regulations setting forth, for the first time, the manner in which vocational factors—such as age, education, experience—are to be evaluated when a worker is severely disabled. The administrative ability of the Social Security Administration to supervise disability awards will be strengthened by other features of H.R. 3236.

In plain everyday English, a younger worker is not adjudged disabled unless he or she is terminally ill or so severely impaired that the possibility of a return to the labor force is virtually nonexistent.

Older workers have slightly less stringent application of vocational factors, but an older worker, frequently at the peak of lifetime earnings potential, is not found disabled if he is capable of performing most of the basic sedentary job in the economy at a normal wage.

When a decision has been made that these workers meet the disability criteria of the law, must we compound their suffering by insuring that financial hardship accompanies physical hardship? Do we force their families into our welfare rolls under the guise of a “work incentive”?

H.R. 3236 contains real work incentive features which I wholeheartedly support. I was one of the original sponsors of legislation to establish a second medicare waiting period and throughout my career I have strongly supported vocational rehabilitation services to help people enter or reenter the labor market.

When the House considered H.R. 3236 last September, it provided a “cap” on benefits of the lesser of 150 percent of a primary benefit or a maximum of 85 percent of average earnings that worker ever earned. Under current law, the maximum benefit paid to a family varies from 150 percent to 188 percent of a primary benefit. The worker with low average earnings is already “capped” at 150 percent of his or her own benefit. That low earnings worker will now be “capped” as low as 100 percent of a primary benefit.

conference on H.R. 3236 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be stated.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3236) to amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses this report, signed by all of the conferences.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of the conference report. (The conference report is printed in the House proceedings of the Recess of May 13, 1980.)

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, the conference report on H.R. 3236, the social security disability bill, represents a good compromise between the Senate and House versions of the legislation.

Both the Senate and House bills had the same overall objective: to improve the operations of the disability program by tightening up in those areas where inappropriate levels of benefits were payable under prior law or where administrative improvements were needed and by relaxing some of those provisions which unduly limited the incentives for reentry to the work force. The conference agreement also includes important demonstration projects to examine the need and feasibility for providing certain benefits and services for severely handicapped persons who do not qualify for existing disability programs because their handicap does not prevent them from continuing to engage in substantial gainful work activity.

The demonstration program in the bill for persons who have not initially qualified for the social security or SSI disability programs would be administered by the States since it deals with individuals who have no eligibility under the Federal programs. As indicated in the more detailed summary of the agreement, the Secretary of Health and Human Services would also not be expected to authorize the States to utilize the State disability determination services in operating this pilot program.

The conference agreement also includes a number of important improvements in the welfare and child support programs and a modified version of the Senate provision for voluntary certification of certain health insurance policies which are sold as supplements to Medicare coverage.

In addition, the agreement includes a provision which will carry out the intent of the Senate amendments related to the SSI eligibility of aliens by providing, in effect, that aliens who are sponsored into the country will have to look to their sponsors rather than to the welfare system for their support. This provision operates by treating the income of the sponsor as though it were the income of the alien during the period of 3 years after the alien enters the country.

In the House debate on the conference agreement last week, a summary of the bill which was inserted in the Recess summary of the bill.

incorrectly states that the sponsor's own SSI income would be exempt from this provision. That statement is not consistent with the conference report which provides that all income of the sponsor will be counted. This would include both Federal and State supplementary payments under the SSI program. This is explained in more detail in the attached summary of the bill.

This conference agreement represents the type of careful review of existing programs which is needed and demanded today. It will result in a substantial reduction in program costs. But it will also substantially improve the program. Over the next 5 years, H.R. 3236 is estimated by the Congressional Budget Office to reduce Federal expenditures by some $2.6 billion. At the same time, however, it will correct a number of aspects of existing law which disabled individuals have seen as barriers to their attempts at rehabilitation.

There follows a more detailed summary of the provisions of the conference agreement on H.R. 3236:

MAJOR PROVISIONS OF H.R. 3236—SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY AMENDMENTS OF 1980

Limit on family disability insurance benefits—H.R. 3236 will establish a maximum limitation on benefits payable to a disabled worker and his family. Under this limitation, the family benefits may not exceed the lesser of 85 percent of the average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) on which the worker's disability benefit is based or 150 percent of the different amounts of the disability benefit to the worker alone. This provision will not operate to reduce any family's benefit below 100 percent of the benefit which would be payable to the worker alone and it will apply only to workers who first become entitled to disability benefits after June 30, 1980.

Reduction in dropout years—H.R. 3236 will limit the number of years of low earnings (or no earnings) which a disabled worker may drop out from his wage history so as to increase the average wage level which forms the basis for determining the benefit amount. Under prior law, all workers were permitted to drop out five years provided that at least two years remained to be averaged. This resulted in quite high benefits for some younger workers. Under H.R. 3236, the number of dropout years allowed to a worker will be scaled according to his age under the following schedule:

Workers who would otherwise be eligible for less than 3 dropout years under the above schedule will be permitted under H.R. 3236 to drop out additional years in which they had no earnings, if in those years they were living with a child under age 3. These provisions increase the total number of dropout years to more than 3.

The limitation on the number of dropout years will apply only to workers who first become entitled to disability insurance benefits after June 30, 1980. The provision allowing additional child-care dropout years will apply only for benefits payable after June 1981.

Elimination of second Medicare waiting period—Health insurance coverage under the social security Medicare program is available to individuals who receive disability insurance benefits only after they have received those benefits for 2 years. H.R. 3236 will eliminate the second Medicare waiting period so as to provide immediate coverage for individuals who receive disability insurance benefits in the near future.

SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY AMENDMENTS OF 1980—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. ROBERT C. BYRD. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee
Under this program, a total of $18 million in federal funds will be available over the period from September 1, 1981 through September 30, 1984 to provide 70 percent Federal matching for expenditures related to providing a three-year pilot program in 33 States to examine the desirability of establishing a dollar amount of earnings to define the SGA limit. Currently this is $300 a month.

One part of the demonstration approach in H.R. 3236 would apply to individuals who initially have qualified for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability benefits under existing law, but who regain the ability to engage in employment to the extent that they would otherwise be eligible for benefits. H.R. 3236 will allow such individuals to continue in a special benefit status as though they were still disabled until their income or resources rise to the extent that they would not be reduced to zero. An individual who initially qualified for SSI disability benefits under existing law and also retain eligibility for Medicaid and social services even after his earnings raise his income above this benefit break-even point so long as he has medically determinable impairments, will also be given to qualified State agency employees (other than the administrator or deputy or assistant administrator of the agency) and that the Secretary of Health and Human Services would find it necessary to authorize the use of the State disability determination services for this program. The provision will be effective six months after enactment. The provision will be effective six months after enactment.

Deeming of parents’ incomes to disabled or blind children.—H.R. 3236 will modify the SSI rules to deem the remaining of parents’ income to eligible children so the provision will cease when the child reaches age 18, so that deeming will not apply in the case of children age 18-21 who are in school. The provision will be effective as of October 1980.

Termination of benefits for persons undergoing vocational rehabilitation.—H.R. 3236 will allow for continued payment of SSI or DI benefits to individuals who complete a program of vocational rehabilitation, even though he has medically recovered from the disability. The provision will apply only if the Commissioner of Social Security determines that completion of the program will make it more likely that the individual will become capable of engaging in substantial gainful activity for purposes of the DI and SSI programs and in determining the eligibility for SSI and DI beneficiaries (but not in determining whether an SSI applicant or DI beneficiary meets the income eligibility requirements of that program). The provision is effective six months after enactment.

Trial work period and reentitlement to benefits.—Under both the SSI and DI programs, an individual who continues to suffer from a disability and meets the disability and other eligibility requirements is allowed to engage in employment for up to 9 months without losing eligibility because of the fact that he has regained the ability to work. At the end of this 9-month trial work period, if the individual is continuing to engage in substantial gainful activity, benefits are paid for the 3-month period following the end of the trial work period. H.R. 3236 will provide for continuing technical eligibility for benefits for 15 months after the end of the 9-month trial work period. Consequently, if an individual is allowed under present law, no benefits will be paid during that additional 15-month period, if the individual in fact has earnings above the SGA level. This change will become effective six months after the enactment of the bill.
made in subsequent years. H.R. 3236 also will broaden the authority of the Secretary so as to permit Federal reversal of State agency decisions that are unfavorable to the claimant; however, the required review relates only to decisions which are finally favorable.

Own-motion review of decisions by Administrative Law Judges.—H.R. 3236 requires the Department of Health and Human Services to reinitiate a program of review on the Secretary's own motion of decisions rendered by Administrative Law Judges (ALJs) as a result of hearings related to the disability determination process.

Information to accompany Secretary's decision.—H.R. 3236 will require that SSA and the Department of Health and Human Services provide an understandable explanation of the Secretary's decision and the basis for that decision. This provision is effective 13 months following enactment.

Limitation on prospective effect of an application.—Under existing law and regulations, applications for DI and SSI benefits remain effective until a final decision is rendered on a claim. Under H.R. 3236 applications filed after the date of enactment will be effective only to the extent that the claimant can establish that a change of circumstances occurred after a date no later than the month in which a hearing decision is made by an Administrative Law Judge. Under this change, a claimant would not be able to establish that a claimant's medical condition which takes place after the hearing will no longer be relevant to that claim. (Although the individual evidence and good cause existed for the failure to incorporate it into the record in a prior proceeding. This change will be effective upon enactment.

Report on time limits for decisions on benefit claims.—H.R. 3236 requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to submit a report to Congress by January 1, 1981, containing information on various levels of adjudication of title II benefit claims. The report is to give adequate consideration to both speed and quality of the decisions. The receipt of these reports is effective on enactment.

Payment for certain travel expenses.—H.R. 3236 provides explicit authority to reimburse claimants for travel expenses incident to administrative or support personnel, such as the bailiff, stenographer, and court reporter. The provision is effective upon enactment.

Use of IRS to collect child support for non-AFDC families.—The bill authorizes States to use the information contained in the Internal Revenue Code of 1980 for collecting support payments for families who are not receiving AFDC. If the States have made diligent and reasonable efforts to collect support payments directly from the obligor, then the amount sought is based on noncompliance with a court order for support. States will be authorized to pursue enforcement only after certification of the amount of the child support obligation by the Secretary of Health and Human Services. The State may agree to modify and approve payments in making the collection. This authority, subject to the same requirements, is now available to States which owe child support obligations to the Social Security Administration.

Safeguards restricting disclosure of certain information to third parties.—The bill modifies AFDC and social service laws to allow the disclosure of information without court order for support. The disclosure is only effective for purposes of any authorized audit conducted in connection with the administration of the programs, including an audit performed by a legislative audit body. The provision is effective September 1, 1980.

Federal matching for child support activities performed by court personnel.—The bill authorizes Federal matching for expenditures of courts for functions specifically related to child support (title IV-D) and for child support administrative functions. Allowable expenditures would include compensation for judges or other court personnel who perform functions for their administrative or support personnel, such as the bailiff, stenographer, and court reporter. The provision is effective upon enactment.

AFDC management information system.—H.R. 3236 will increase Federal matching from 50 percent to 90 percent for the costs of developing and implementing State child support management information systems. These systems must have specified features in order to be eligible for this increased matching, including the ability to control and monitor all the factors of the support collection and paternity determination process, capacity for interface with the AFDC program, and the ability to furnish Federal matching for any changes in AFDC eligibility and benefit amount, compatibility with systems in other jurisdictions, and the ability to provide access to or use of data in the system. The Secretary will be required to provide technical assistance.

Child support reporting and matching procedures.—In order to improve State reporting practices, the bill will prohibit advance payment of Federal funds for child support administrative expenses for a calendar quarter unless the States have submitted a complete report of the amount of child support collections made during the calendar quarter which ended 6 months earlier. It will also require the Secretary to reduce the amount of the payments to the State for the Federal share of child support collections made but not reported by the State. This provision has an effective date of January 1, 1981.

Access to wage information for child support program.—H.R. 3236 amends the Internal Revenue Code to provide that, upon request, the Commissioner of Social Security will furnish information with respect to net earnings from self-employment, wages, and payments of retirement income to officers and employees of a State child support agency. Disclosure will be allowable only for purposes of, and to the extent necessary in, the determination and enforcement of child support obligations from, and locating, individuals owing child support obligations. Any agency receiving information must comply with conditions specified in current law for safeguarding information. This provision for disclosure is effective on enactment.

In addition, the bill amends title III of the Social Security Act to authorize the Federal agency administering the unemployment compensation program to disclose directly, upon request and on a reimbursable basis, to officers or employees of any State or local child support agency any wage information relating to the wages of any individual in any State.
contained in the records of the State agency. The agency will be required to establish safeguards necessary (as determined by the Secretary of Labor) to prevent information from being used only for purposes of the child support program. If the Secretary finds that the State agency has failed to establish safeguards with respect to the State, the Secretary must notify the agency that further payments of administrative costs will not be made to the State until he is satisfied that safeguards have been established.

The provision is effective July 1, 1980.

Relationship between social security and SSI benefits.—The bill establishes an individual eligible under both the OASDI and SSI programs, whose determination of eligibility for OASDI is delayed, can in some cases receive full payments under both programs for the same months. H.R. 3236 will require the Secretary to offset against retroactive benefits under OASDI, amounts of $81 benefits paid for the same period. The amount of the offset will equal the amount of SSI that would not have been paid had OASDI benefits been paid on time. From the amount of the offset, the Secretary to offset, against retroactive benefits under OASDI, amounts of $81 benefits paid for the same period. The amount of the offset will equal the amount of SSI that would not have been paid had OASDI benefits been paid on time. From the amount of the offset, the Secretary will be reimbursed for any amounts of State supplementary payments that would not have been paid, the remaining dollars of SSI benefits paid for the same period. The provision is effective the 13th month after the month of enactment.

Extension of the term of the National Commission on Social Security.—The bill extends for 3 months the expiration date of the National Commission on Social Security and the terms of its members. The Commission's work and the terms of the members will end April 1, 1981, and the final report will be due January 11, 1981.

Depositing of social security contributions with respect to State and local covered employment.—Effective July 1, 1980, States will be required to make deposits of social security contributions related to the wages of State and local government employees within 30 days after the end of each month. Aliens receiving SSI.—For purposes of determining eligibility for SSI benefits, legally admitted aliens who apply for SSI benefits after September 30, 1980 will, under the provisions of H.R. 3236, be deemed to have been residing in the United States for more than 5 years if they have lived in the United States for a period of 5 years after the time of entry. The obligation of these aliens for SSI will be contingent upon their obtaining the cooperation of their sponsors in providing the necessary information and the cooperation of the Social Security Administration to carry out this provision.

The provision will not apply to an alien who becomes blind or disabled after entry into the United States. It also will not apply to aliens admitted as refugees or granted political asylum after June 19, 1980.

Under this provision, the alien's SSI benefit will be reduced by the amount of any income deemed to him. Income deemed to an alien will include income which is the alien's income and will thus result in a dollar-for-dollar reduction in benefits (after the application of the benefit-payment standards). An alien whose income is $20 monthly in excess of earned or unearned income. The amount to be deemed will be equal to the gross income of the alien (less deductions allowed by the welfare law), less $15 per month for each member of the household (including the alien). The amount to be deemed will be equal to the gross income of the alien (less deductions allowed by the welfare law), less $15 per month for each member of the household (including the alien). The amount to be deemed will be equal to the gross income of the alien (less deductions allowed by the welfare law), less $15 per month for each member of the household (including the alien)

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I am particularly pleased that the Senate has approved the provision of H.R. 3236, the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980. As I stated at the time the Senate first considered this measure, it is one of the most important pieces of legislation the Congress will take up, and it will have as profound an effect on the lives of disabled Americans as all other pieces of social legislation that have been enacted.

The leadership of our distinguished chairman during the deliberations of the conference committee was crucial in our negotiations with the House conference. As I stated at the time the Senate first considered this measure, it is one of the most important pieces of legislation the Congress will take up, and it will have as profound an effect on the lives of disabled Americans as all other pieces of social legislation that have been enacted.

The chairman has already enumerated the provisions in the conference report, but I would like to comment on a few aspects of the bill. In particular, I believe the provisions for the demonstration projects are the most important part of the legislation and I am extremely pleased that many of the incentives which I have supported for several years are included in the bill. These provisions will allow individuals with severe disabilities to continue to receive cash, health benefits, and social services while working at low wages and make it easier for them to return to the disability rolls if a work attempt fails. The provisions are more than incentives, they are the safety net that the handicapped need to give them the courage and the ability to try to work.

Voluntary certification of Medicare supplemental health insurance.—H.R. 3236 will establish a mandatory Medicare supplemental program and a voluntary certification program for Medicare supplemental policies in States that fail to establish equivalent or more stringent programs. To be reimbursed under the voluntary supplemental policy would have to meet or exceed the standards for such policies as adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on June 6, 1979, including the standards relating to minimum benefit provisions, preexisting condition limitations, full disclosure, and requiring a no loss cancellation clause, and be expected to pay benefits to subscribers equal to 75 percent of premiums in the case of group policies and 60 percent in the case of individual policies. H.R. 3236 will also establish criminal penalties of up to $25,000 and imprisonment for up to five years which could be assessed for: (a) furthering any such failure. The provision is effective the 13th month after the month of enactment.

Periodic reports on the effectiveness of the voluntary certification, and the criminal penalties, are also required with the first of such reports due July 1, 1981.

The Secretary, in consultation with regulatory agencies, will be required to study and report to the Congress by January 1, 1982 on State approaches to periodic reports on the impact of the demonstration projects under the Disability Insurance and Supplemental Security Income program. The Secretary will be required to provide further information concerning his income and assets in connection with the alien's application for assistance.

The work incentive and other demonstration projects under the Disability Insurance and Supplemental Security Income programs—H.R. 3236 includes provisions which expand the benefit requirements of the DI and Medicare programs to allow demonstration projects by the Social Security Administration to test ways to encourage individuals who receive benefits to return to the disability rolls if a work attempt fails. The provisions are the most important part of the legislation and I am extremely pleased that many of the incentives which I have supported for several years are included in the bill. These provisions will allow individuals with severe disabilities to continue to receive cash, health benefits, and social services while working at low wages and make it easier for them to return to the disability rolls if a work attempt fails. The provisions are more than incentives, they are the safety net that the handicapped need to give them the courage and the ability to try to work.
The bill makes improvements in the disability insurance program which will save the DI trust fund over $3.5 billion over the next 5 years. That is an extremely important accomplishment in the light of social security financing problems and the overwhelming public sentiment favoring lower payroll taxes.

The bill also represents an important first step in toward balancing the Federal budget since overall the provisions save $5 million in fiscal year 1980 and $78 million in fiscal year 1981 going up to $1.2 billion in fiscal year 1985.

Besides the reforms in the social security and supplemental security income disability programs, the bill makes needed improvements in the AFDC, child support, and Medicare programs. These amendments will allow us to maintain better control over these programs so we can better serve recipients and taxpayers.

All in all, I believe the conference report offers a balanced package of improvements and opportunities for those entitled to disability benefits while strengthening the insurance principles of the disability insurance program. I am happy to be able to support it and I urge adoption of the conference report.

Mr. BELLMON. Mr. President, I want to express my strong support of the conference report on H.R. 3236, the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980. I am pleased to see the reforms adopted by this conference report.

The conference report provides important improvements to our social security programs. The conference report approves the conferees' recommendation to adopt a minimum loss ratio standard of at least 60 percent. States will be required to establish minimum loss ratio standards by July 1, 1982, to accompany H.R. 3236. The bill makes immediate improvements in the social security disability programs. It also makes changes in the SSI, the AFDC, and child support programs and provides for increased supervision of Medicare supplemental insurance.

Mr. President, I urge the adoption of the conference report so that senior citizens are not forced to wait any longer for these minimum loss ratio standards.

Mr. DURENBERGER. Mr. President, I rise in support of the conference report to accompany H.R. 3236. The bill makes important improvements to our Medicare programs. It will provide assurance to the elderly that the insurance policy they purchase meets basic standards for coverage and benefits.

Mr. President, I support this bill as a member of the Committee on Finance and as a conferee. But additionally, the bill contains the provisions of S. 1643, that I introduced on August 2, 1979.

S. 1643 was introduced to correct a serious drawback in our assistance to the disabled. It is intended to remove the provisions under social security law that discourage the severely disabled person from seeking employment. The bill was also intended to make it possible for both the public and private sectors to develop innovative programs to help engage in meaningful long-term employment.

Experts in the field of rehabilitation know the value of employment for the disabled person. They also know the difficult problems that exist for the disabled individual who seeks employment. The bill did not intend to do anything that would jeopardize the necessary health and financial benefits he or she receives under the various public and private programs.

Widely recognized and most important is the fact that social security programs, which provide monthly payments and medical protection, include highly restrictive provisions that discourage and often prevent people from attempting gainful work. Examples of these inhibitive provisions are:

- The low earning level constituting substantial gainful activity;
- Two consecutive years of receiving social security disability benefits required for medicare eligibility;
- One trial work period lasting 9 months, and applicable once in a person’s lifetime; and
- Reentitlement to financial and medical benefits necessitates a second waiting period similar to the initial entitlement of benefits.

Mr. President, S. 1643 corrected the inhibitive provisions cited above and encouraged beneficiaries to attempt to return to work and leave the disability rolls. These provisions which are a part of H.R. 3236 include the following:

- The allowable job trial period is extended from 9 to 24 months. During the last 12 months of the trial period the disabled person would not be eligible for cash assistance if his or her monthly salary was more than $300, but could receive medical and other benefits.
- Extraordinary expenses necessary to allow a severely handicapped person to return to work will not be counted as part of the person’s earnings if the expenses would cause the person to lose benefits.
- Beneficiaries who have returned to work, but have not been declared medically recovered, can receive medicare coverage for an additional 36 months. Under the old law, medicare coverage ends when disability insurance stops.
- Disabled persons who are forced by their disability to quit a trial work program can immediately regain medicare coverage, rather than waiting 24 months as the old law required.

The Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services can establish demonstration projects to test alternative incentives to help the disabled return to work.

Mr. President, we must do more for people who are disabled. We must change the restrictive provisions and promote improvements in the law to encourage employers to provide employment alternatives to severely disabled persons. S. 1643 and this bill are positive steps in that direction. As a result of this legislation, we can create successful ventures for both employers and employees, as one example demonstrates.

In January 1978, Control Data Corp., headquartered in Minneapolis, developed project "Homework." Homework is a homebound employment program made possible through Control Data's computer-based education system called Plato. Through "Homework," a select group of Control Data's permanently and totally disabled employees have reentered the world of work.

Due to the encouraging results of the homework experiment within Control Data, other major corporations within the United States have expressed an interest in having Control Data help them establish a homework program for their company's disabled employees.

The most significant obstacle homework has encountered since its inception is the disincentives currently contained in the social security regulations and law. Even though each homeworker has been declared permanently and totally disabled by social security, the mere fact that each person attempts to work potentially leads to a discrimination of all financial and medicare benefits. I am proud to state that certain of these disincentives have been eliminated by this legislation.

Mr. President, S. 1643 and H.R. 3236 are positive steps toward saving taxpayers' money in two respects:

- They will produce general tax revenues from earnings realized by disabled persons; and
- They will reduce the payout of benefits made by social security.

Even more important, making it possible for disabled persons to work means increased self-esteem, greater independence and a feeling of self-worth for disabled persons.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to. Mr. ROBERT C. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was agreed to.

Mr. BAKER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

TITLE I—PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY BENEFITS UNDER OASDI PROGRAM

Sec. 101. (a) Section 203(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—
(1) by striking out “except as provided by paragraph (3)” in paragraph (1) (in the matter preceding subparagraph (A)) and inserting in lieu thereof “except as provided by paragraphs (3) and (6)”;
(2) by redesignating paragraphs (6), (7), and (8) as paragraphs (7), (8), and (9), respectively; and
(3) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new paragraph:
“(6) Notwithstanding any of the preceding provisions of this subsection other than paragraphs (3)(A), (3)(C), and (5) (but subject to section 42 USC 415), the total monthly benefits to which beneficiaries may be entitled under section 202 and 223 for any month on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual entitled to disability insurance benefits, whether or not such total benefits are otherwise subject to reduction under this subsection but after any reduction under this subsection which would otherwise be applicable, shall be, reduced or further reduced (before the application of section 224) to the smaller of—
(A) 85 percent of such individual’s average indexed monthly earnings (or 100 percent of his primary insurance amount, if larger), or
(B) 150 percent of such individual’s primary insurance amount.”

(b)(1) Section 203(a)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out “paragraph (7)” and inserting in lieu thereof “paragraph (8)”.
(2) Section 203(a)(8) of such Act, as redesignated by subsection (a)(2) of this section, is amended by striking out “paragraph (6)” and inserting in lieu thereof “paragraph (7)”.

Supra.
(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual who first becomes eligible for benefits (determined under sections 215(a)(3)(B) and 215(a)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act, as applied for this purpose) after 1978, and who first becomes entitled to disability insurance benefits after June 30, 1980.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF DROPOUT YEARS FOR YOUNGER DISABLED WORKERS

Sec. 102. (a) Section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:
"(2)(A) The number of an individual's benefit computation years equals the number of elapsed years reduced—
"(i) in the case of an individual who is entitled to old-age insurance benefits (except as provided in the second sentence of this subparagraph), or who has died, by 5 years, and
"(ii) in the case of an individual who is entitled to disability insurance benefits, by the number of years equal to one-fifth of such individual's elapsed years (disregarding any resulting fractional part of a year), but not by more than 5 years.

Clause (ii), once applicable with respect to any individual, shall continue to apply for purposes of determining such individual's primary insurance amount for purposes of any subsequent eligibility for disability or old-age insurance benefits unless prior to the month in which such eligibility begins there occurs a period of at least 12 consecutive months for which he was not entitled to a disability or an old-age insurance benefit. If an individual described in clause (ii) is living with a child (of such individual or his or her spouse) under the age of 3 in any calendar year which is included in such individual's computation base years, but which is not disregarded pursuant to clause (ii) or to subparagraph (B) (in determining such individual's benefit computation years) by reason of the reduction in the number of such individual's elapsed years under clause (ii), the number by which such elapsed years are reduced under this subparagraph pursuant to clause (ii) shall be increased by one (up to a combined total not exceeding 3) for each such calendar year; except that (I) no calendar year shall be disregarded by reason of this sentence (in determining such individual's benefit computation years) unless the individual was living with such child substantially throughout the period in which the child was alive and under the age of 3 in such year and the individual had no earnings as described in section 203(a)(5) in such year, (II) the particular calendar years to be disregarded under this sentence (in determining such benefit computation years) shall be those years (not otherwise disregarded under clause (ii)) which, before the application of section 215(f), meet the conditions of subclause (I), and (III) this sentence shall apply only to the extent that its application would not result in a lower primary insurance amount. The number of an individual's benefit computation years as determined under this subparagraph shall in no case be less than 2."

(b) Section 223(a)(2) of such Act is amended by inserting "and section 215(b)(2)(A)(ii)" after "section 202(q)" in the first sentence.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual who first becomes entitled to disability insurance benefits on or after July 1, 1980; except that the third sentence of section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act (as added by such amendments) shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable for months beginning on or after July 1, 1981.

PROVISIONS RELATING TO MEDICARE WAITING PERIOD FOR RECIPIENTS OF DISABILITY BENEFITS

42 USC 426.

Sec. 103. (a)(1) A section 226(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "consecutive" in clauses (A) and (B).

(B) Section 226(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out "consecutive" in the matter following paragraph (2).

(2) Section 1811 of such Act is amended by striking out "consecutive".

(3) Section 1837(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "consecutive".

(4) Section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 is amended by striking out "consecutive" each place it appears.

(b) Section 226 of the Social Security Act is amended by redesignating subsection (a) as subsection (g), and by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

"(f) For purposes of subsection (b) (and for purposes of section 1837(g)(1) of this Act and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974), the 24 months for which an individual has to have been entitled to specified monthly benefits on the basis of disability in order to become entitled to hospital insurance benefits on such basis effective with any particular month or to be deemed to have enrolled in the supplementary medical insurance program, on the basis of such entitlement, by reason of section 1837(f)), where such individual had been entitled to specified monthly benefits of the same type during a previous period which terminated—

"(1) more than 60 months before the month in which his current disability began in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (A)(i) or (B) of subsection (b)(2),

or

shall not include any month which occurred during such previous period."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to hospital insurance or supplementary medical insurance benefits for services provided on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

42 USC 426.

Sec. 104. (a) Section 226(b) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "ending with the month" in the matter following paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "ending (subject to the last sentence of this subsection) with the month", and

graph (2) has subsequently terminated, shall be deemed to be entitled to such benefits or to occupy such status (notwithstanding the termination of such entitlement or status) for the period of consecutive months throughout all of which the physical or mental impairment, on which such entitlement or status was based, continues, and throughout all of which such individual would have been entitled to monthly insurance benefits under title II or as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary had such individual been unable to engage in substantial gainful activity, but not in excess of 24 such months.

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to any individual whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

TITLE II—PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY BENEFITS UNDER THE SSI PROGRAM

BENEFITS FOR INDIVIDUALS WHO PERFORM SUBSTANTIAL GAINFUL ACTIVITY DESPITE SEVERE MEDICAL IMPAIRMENT

Sec. 201. (a) Part A of title XVI of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"BENEFITS FOR INDIVIDUALS WHO PERFORM SUBSTANTIAL GAINFUL ACTIVITY DESPITE SEVERE MEDICAL IMPAIRMENT

"Sec. 1619. (a) Any individual who is an eligible individual (or eligible spouse) by reason of being under a disability and was eligible to receive benefits under section 1611(b) or under this section for the month preceding the month for which eligibility for benefits under this section is now being determined, and who would otherwise be denied benefits by reason of section 1611(e)(4) or ceases to be an eligible individual (or eligible spouse) because his earnings have demonstrated a capacity to engage in substantial gainful activity, shall nevertheless qualify for a monthly benefit equal to an amount determined under section 1611(b)(2), and for purposes of titles XIX and XX of this Act shall be considered a disabled individual receiving supplemental security income benefits under this title, for so long as the Secretary determines that—

"(1) such individual continues to have the disabling physical or mental impairment on the basis of which such individual was found to be under a disability, and continues to meet all non-disability-related requirements for eligibility for benefits under this title; and

"(2) the income of such individual, other than income excluded pursuant to section 1612(b), is not equal to or in excess of the amount which would cause him to be ineligible for payments under section 1611(b) (if he were otherwise eligible for such payments).

"(b) For purposes of titles XIX and XX, any individual under age 65 who, for the month preceding the first month in the period to which this subsection applies, received—

"(i) a payment of supplemental security income benefits under section 1611(b) on the basis of blindness or disability, “(ii) a supplementary payment under section 1616 of this Act or under section 212 of Public Law 93–66 on such basis,

“(iii) a payment of monthly benefits under subsection (a), or

“(iv) a supplementary payment under section 116(c)(3), shall be considered to be a blind or disabled individual receiving supplemental security income benefits for so long as the Secretary determines under regulations that—

“(1) such individual continues to be blind or continues to have the disabling physical or mental impairment on the basis of which he was found to be under a disability and, except for his earnings, continues to meet all non-disability-related requirements for eligibility for benefits under this title;

“(2) the income of such individual would not, except for his earnings, be equal to or in excess of the amount which would cause him to be ineligible for payments under section 1611(b) (if he were otherwise eligible for such payments);

“(3) the termination of eligibility for benefits under title XIX or XX would seriously inhibit his ability to continue his employment; and

“(3) Any State (or political subdivision) making supplementary payments described in subsection (a) shall have the option of making such payments to individuals who receive benefits under this title under the provisions of section 1619, or who would be eligible to receive such benefits but for their income.”.

(b)(2) Section 212(a) of Public Law 93–66 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

“(4) Any State having an agreement with the Secretary under paragraph (1) may, at its option, include individuals receiving benefits under section 1619 of the Social Security Act, or who would be eligible to receive such benefits but for their income, under the agreement as though they are aged, blind, or disabled individuals as specified in paragraph (2)(A).”.

(c) Part A of title XVI of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by subsection (a) of this section) the following new section:

“MEDICAL AND SOCIAL SERVICES FOR CERTAIN HANDICAPPED PERSONS

“Sec. 1620. (a) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to establish and carry out a 3-year Federal-State pilot program to provide medical and social services for certain handicapped individuals in accordance with this section.

“(b)(1) The total sum of $18,000,000 shall be allotted to the States for such program by the Secretary, during the period beginning September 1, 1981, and ending September 30, 1984, as follows:

“(A) The total sum of $6,000,000 shall be allotted to the States for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1982 (which for purposes of this section shall include the month of September 1981).

“(B) The total sum of $6,000,000, plus any amount remaining available (after the application of paragraph (4) from the allotment made under subparagraph (A), shall be allotted to the States for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983.

"(C) The total sum of $6,000,000, plus any amount remaining available (after the application of paragraph (4)) from the allotments made under subparagraphs (A) and (B), shall be allotted to the States for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1984.

"(2) The allotment to each State from the total sum allotted under paragraph (1) for any fiscal year shall bear the same ratio to such total sum as the number of individuals in such State who are over age 17 and under age 65 and are receiving supplemental security income benefits as disabled individuals in such year (as determined by the Secretary on the basis of the most recent data available) bears to the total number of such individuals in all the States. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term 'supplemental security income benefits' includes payments made pursuant to an agreement under section 1616(a) of this Act or under section 212(b) of Public Law 93–66.

"(3) At the beginning of each fiscal year in which the pilot program under this section is in effect, each State that does not intend to use the allotment to which it is entitled for such year (or any allotment which was made to it for a prior fiscal year), or that does not intend to use the full amount of any such allotment, shall certify to the Secretary the amount of such allotment which it does not intend to use, and the State's allotment for the fiscal year (or years) involved shall thereupon be reduced by the amount so certified.

"(4) The portion of the total amount available for allotment for any particular fiscal year under paragraph (1) which is not allotted to States for that year by reason of paragraph (3) (plus the amount of any reductions made at the beginning of such year in the allotments of States for prior fiscal years under paragraph (3)) shall be reallocated in such manner as the Secretary may determine to be appropriate to States which need, and will use, additional assistance in providing services to severely handicapped individuals in that particular year under their approved plans. Any amount reallocated to a State under this paragraph for use in a particular fiscal year shall be treated for purposes of this section as increasing such State's allotment for that year by an equivalent amount.

"(c) In order to participate in the pilot program and be eligible to receive payments for any period under subsection (d), a State (during such period) must have a plan, approved by the Secretary as meeting the requirements of this section, which provides medical and social services for severely handicapped individuals whose earnings are above the level which ordinarily demonstrates an ability to engage in substantial gainful activity and who are not receiving benefits under section 1611 or 1619 or assistance under a State plan approved under section 1902, and which—

"(1) declares the intent of the State to participate in the pilot program;

"(2) designates an appropriate State agency to administer or supervise the administration of the program in the State;

"(3) describes the criteria to be applied by the State in determining the eligibility of any individual for assistance under the plan and in any event requires a determination by the State agency to the effect that (A) such individual's ability to continue his employment would be significantly inhibited without such assistance and (B) such individual's earnings are not sufficient to allow him to provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the

cash and other benefits that would be available to him under this title and titles XIX and XX in the absence of those earnings;

"(4) describes the process by which the eligibility of individuals for such assistance is to be determined (and such process may not involve the performance of functions by any State agency or entity which is engaged in making determinations of disability for purposes of disability insurance or supplemental security income benefits except when the use of a different agency or entity to perform those functions would not be feasible);

"(5) describes the medical and social services to be provided under the plan;

"(6) describes the manner in which the medical and social services involved are to be provided and, if they are not to be provided through the State's medical assistance and social services programs under titles XIX and XX (with the Federal payments being made under subsection (d) of this section rather than under those titles), specifies the particular mechanisms and procedures to be used in providing such services; and

"(7) contains such other provisions as the Secretary may find to be necessary or appropriate to meet the requirements of this section or otherwise carry out its purpose.

The plan under this section may be developed and submitted as a separate State plan, or may be submitted in the form of an amendment to the State's plan under section 2003(d).

"(d)(1) From its allotment under subsection (b) for any fiscal year (and any amounts remaining available from allotments made to it for prior fiscal years), the Secretary shall from time to time pay to each State which has a plan approved under subsection (c) an amount equal to 75 per centum of the total sum expended under such plan in providing medical and social services to severely handicapped individuals who are eligible for such services under the plan.

"(2) The method of computing and making payments under this section shall be as follows:

"(A) The Secretary shall, prior to each period for which a payment is to be made to a State, estimate the amount to be paid to the State for such period under the provisions of this section.

"(B) From the allotment available therefor, the Secretary shall pay the amount so estimated, reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum (not previously adjusted under this subsection) by which he finds that his estimate of the amount to be paid to the State for any prior period under this section was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such period under this section.

"(e) Within nine months after the date of the enactment of this section, the Secretary shall prescribe and publish such regulations as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the pilot program and otherwise implement this section.

"(f) Each State participating in the pilot program under this section shall from time to time report to the Secretary on the operation and results of such program in that State, with particular emphasis upon the work incentive effects of the program. On or before October 1, 1983, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress a report on the program, incorporating the information contained in the State reports along with his findings and recommendations."
(d) The amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) shall become effective on January 1, 1981, but shall remain in effect only for a period of three years after such effective date.

(e) The Secretary shall provide for separate accounts with respect to the benefits payable by reason of the amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) so as to provide for evaluation of the effects of such amendments on the programs established by titles II, XVI, XIX, and XX of the Social Security Act.

Earned Income in Sheltered Workshops

Sec. 202. (a) Section 1612(a)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “and” after the semicolon at the end of subparagraph (A); and

(2) by adding after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

“(C) remuneration received for services performed in a sheltered workshop or work activities center; and”.

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply only with respect to remuneration received in months after September 1980.

Termination of Attribution of Parents’ Income and Resources When Child Attains Age 18

Sec. 203. (a) Section 1614(f)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “under age 21” and inserting in lieu thereof “under age 18”.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on October 1, 1980; except that the amendment made by such subsection shall not apply, in the case of any child who, in September 1980, was 18 or over and received a supplemental security income benefit for such month, during any period for which such benefit would be greater without the application of such amendment.

Title III—Provisions Affecting Disability Recipients Under OASDI and SSI Programs; Administrative Provisions

Sec. 301. (a)(1) Section 225 of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting “(a)” after “Sec. 225.”, and by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment to an individual of benefits based on disability (as described in the first sentence of subsection (a)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment, on which the individual’s entitlement to such benefits is based, has or may have ceased, if—

“(1) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual

may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls."

(2) Section 225(a) of such Act (as designated under subsection (a) of this section) is amended by striking out "this section" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "this subsection".

(b) Section 1631(a) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment of the benefit of any individual who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by reason of disability (as determined under section 1614(a)(3)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment, on which the individual's eligibility for such benefit is based, has or may have ceased, if—

"(A) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and

"(B) the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls.'."

Effective date.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

EXTRAORDINARY WORK EXPENSES DUE TO SEVERE DISABILITY

Sec. 302. (a)(1) Section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the third sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe.".

(2) Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe.".

(b) Section 1612(b)(4)(B) of such Act is amended by striking out "plus one-half of the remainder thereof, and (ii)" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "(ii) such additional amounts of earned income of such individual (for purposes of determining the amount of his or her benefits under this title and of determining his or her eligibility for such benefits for consecutive months of eligibility after the initial month of such eligibility), if such individual's disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, as may be necessary to pay the costs (to such individual) of attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions, except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe, (iii) one-half of the amount of earned income not excluded after the application of the preceding provisions of this subparagraph, and (iv)".

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply to expenses incurred on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

REENTITLEMENT TO DISABILITY BENEFITS

SEC. 303. (a)(1) Section 222(c)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "section 223 or 202(d)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 223, 202(d), 202(e), or 202(f)".

(2) Section 222(c)(8) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, in the case of an individual entitled to widow's or widower's insurance benefits under section 202(e) or (f) who became entitled to such benefits prior to attaining age 60, with the month in which such individual becomes so entitled.".

(b)(A) Section 223(a)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "or the third month following the month in which his disability ceases," at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, subject to subsection (e), the termination month. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.".

(B) Section 202(d)(1)(G) of such Act is amended—

(i) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as clauses (III) and (IV), respectively, and 42 USC 1382a.

42 USC 423 note.

(ii) by striking out "the third month following the month in which he ceases to be under such disability" and inserting in lieu thereof "or, subject to section 223(e), the termination month (and for purposes of this subparagraph, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity,".

(C) Section 202(e)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "the third month following the month in which her disability ceases (unless she attains age 65 on or before the last day of such third month)." at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "subject to section 223(e), the termination month (unless she attains age 65 on or before the last day of such termination month). For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which her disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which she engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.".

(D) Section 202(0)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "the third month following the month in which his disability ceases (unless he attains age 65 on or before the last day of such third month)." at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "subject to section 223(e), the termination month (unless he attains age 65 on or before the last day of such termination month). For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.".

"(e) No benefit shall be payable under subsection (d)(1)(B)(ii), (e)(1)(B)(ii), or (f)(1)(B)(ii) of section 202 or under subsection (a)(1) of this section to an individual for any month, after the third month, in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the 15-month period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)."

(c)(1)(A) Section 1614(a)(3) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(F) For purposes of this title, an individual whose trial work period has ended by application of paragraph (4)(D)(i) shall, subject to section 1611(e)(4), nonetheless be considered (except for purposes of section 1631(a)(5)) to be disabled through the end of the month preceding the termination month. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the earlier of (i) the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (ii) the first month, after the period of 15 consecutive months following the end of such period of trial work, in which such individual engages in or is determined to be able to engage in substantial gainful activity.".

(B) Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out "paragraph (4)" and inserting in lieu thereof "subparagraph (F) or paragraph (4)".

(2) Section 1611(e) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(4) No benefit shall be payable under this title, except as provided in section 1619 (or section 1616(c)(3)), with respect to an eligible individual or his eligible spouse who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by application of section 1614(a)(3)(F) for any month, after the third month, in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the fifteen-month period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 1614(a)(4)(D)(i)."

(d) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to any individual whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

Sec. 304. (a) Section 221(a) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a)(1) In the case of any individual, the determination of whether or not he is under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and of the day such disability began, and the determination of the day on which such disability ceases, shall be made by a State agency, notwithstanding any other provision of law, in any State that notifies
the Secretary in writing that it wishes to make such disability determinations commencing with such month as the Secretary and the State agree upon, but only if (A) the Secretary has not found, under subsection (b)(1), that the State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with the applicable provisions of this section or rules issued thereunder, and (B) the State has not notified the Secretary, under subsection (b)(2), that it does not wish to make such determinations. If the Secretary once makes the finding described in clause (A) of the preceding sentence, or the State gives the notice referred to in clause (B) of such sentence, the Secretary may thereafter determine whether (and, if so, beginning with which month and under what conditions) the State may again make disability determinations under this paragraph.

“(2) The disability determinations described in paragraph (1) made by a State agency shall be made in accordance with the pertinent provisions of this title and the standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary pertaining to matters such as disability determinations, the class or classes of individuals with respect to which a State may make disability determinations (if it does not wish to do so with respect to all individuals in the State), and the conditions under which it may choose not to make all such determinations. In addition, the Secretary shall promulgate regulations specifying, in such detail as he deems appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States. The regulations may, for example, specify matters such as—

“(B) the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, and other individuals or organizations performing tasks for the State agency, and standards for the availability to applicants and beneficiaries of facilities for making disability determinations,

“(C) State agency performance criteria, including the rate of accuracy of decisions, the time periods within which determinations must be made, the procedures for and the scope of review by the Secretary, and, as he finds appropriate, by the State, of its performance in individual cases and in classes of cases, and rules governing access of appropriate Federal officials to State offices and to State records relating to its administration of the disability determination function,

“(D) fiscal control procedures that the State agency may be required to adopt, and

“(E) the submission of reports and other data, in such form and at such time as the Secretary may require, concerning the State agency’s activities relating to the disability determination.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the Secretary to take any action except pursuant to law or to regulations promulgated pursuant to law.”.

(b) Section 221(b) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

“(b)(1) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and other

"(2) If a State, having notified the Secretary of its intent to make disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), no longer wishes to make such determinations, it shall notify the Secretary in writing of that fact, and, if an agency of the State is making disability determinations at the time such notice is given, it shall continue to do so for not less than 180 days, or (if later) until the Secretary has complied with the requirements of paragraph (3). Thereafter, the Secretary shall make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

"(3)(A) The Secretary shall develop and initiate all appropriate procedures to implement a plan with respect to any partial or complete assumption by the Secretary of the disability determination function from a State agency, as provided in this section, under which employees of the affected State agency who are capable of performing duties in the disability determination process for the Secretary shall, notwithstanding any other provision of law, have a preference over any other individual in filling an appropriate employment position with the Secretary (subject to any system established by the Secretary for determining hiring priority among such employees of the State agency) unless any such employee is the administrator, the deputy administrator, or assistant administrator (or his equivalent) of the State agency, in which case the Secretary may accord such priority to such employee.

"(B) The Secretary shall not make such assumption of the disability determination function until such time as the Secretary of Labor determines that, with respect to employees of such State agency who will be displaced from their employment on account of such assumption by the Secretary and who will not be hired by the Secretary to perform duties in the disability determination process, the State has made fair and equitable arrangements to protect the interests of employees so displaced. Such protective arrangements shall include only those provisions which are provided under all applicable Federal, State and local statutes including, but not limited to, (i) the preservation of rights, privileges, and benefits (including continuation of pension rights and benefits) under existing collective-bargaining agreements; (ii) the continuation of collective-bargaining rights; (iii) the assignment of affected employees to other jobs or to retraining programs; (iv) the protection of individual employees against a worsening of their positions with respect to their employment; (v) the protection of health benefits and other fringe benefits; and (vi) the provision of severance pay, as may be necessary.".

"(c) Section 221(c) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(c)(1) The Secretary may on his own motion or as required under paragraphs (2) and (3) review a determination, made by a State agency under this section, that an individual is or is not under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and, as a result of such review, may modify such agency's determination and determine that such individual either is or is not under a disability (as so defined) or that such individual's disability began on a day earlier or later than that determined by such agency, or that such disability ceased on a day earlier or later than that determined by such agency. A review by the Secretary on his own motion of a State agency determination

“(2) The Secretary (in accordance with paragraph (3)) shall review determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)). Any review by the Secretary of a State agency determination under this paragraph shall be made before any action is taken to implement such determination.

“(3) In carrying out the provisions of paragraph (2) with respect to the review of determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)), the Secretary shall review—

(A) at least 15 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1981,

(B) at least 35 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1982, and

(C) at least 65 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in any fiscal year after the fiscal year 1982.”.

(d) Section 221(d) of such Act is amended by striking out “(a)” and inserting in lieu thereof “(a), (b)”.

(e) The first sentence of section 221(e) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “which has an agreement with the Secretary” and inserting in lieu thereof “which is making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”;

(2) by striking out “as may be mutually agreed upon” and inserting in lieu thereof “as determined by the Secretary”, and

(3) by striking out “carrying out the agreement under this section” and inserting in lieu thereof “making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”.)

(f) Section 221(g) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “has no agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting in lieu thereof “does not undertake to perform disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), or which has been found by the Secretary to have substantially failed to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and guidelines”, and

(g) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall implement a program of reviewing, on his own motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges as a result of hearings under section 221(d) of the Social Security Act, and shall report to the Congress by January 1, 1982, on his progress.

(h) The amendments made by subsections (a), (b), (d), (e), and (f) shall be effective beginning with the twelfth month following the month in which this Act is enacted. Any State that, on the effective date of the amendments made by this section, has in effect an agreement with the Secretary of Health and Human Services under section 221(a) of the Social Security Act (as in effect prior to such amendments) will be deemed to have given to the Secretary the notice specified in section 221(a)(1) of such Act as amended by this section, in lieu of continuing such agreement in effect after the effective date of such amendments. Thereafter, a State may notify the Secretary in writing that it no longer wishes to make disability determinations, effective not less than 180 days after the notification is given.
(i) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress by July 1, 1980, a detailed plan on how he expects to assume the functions and operations of a State disability determination unit when this becomes necessary under the amendments made by this section, and how he intends to meet the requirements of section 221(b)(3) of the Social Security Act. Such plan should assume the uninterrupted operation of the disability determination function and the utilization of the best qualified personnel to carry out such function. If any amendment of Federal law or regulation is required to carry out such plan, recommendations for such amendment should be included in the report.

SEC. 305. (a) Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: "Any such decision by the Secretary which involves a determination of disability and which is in whole or in part unfavorable to such individual shall contain a statement of the case, in understandable language, setting forth a discussion of the evidence, and stating the Secretary's determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based.".

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to decisions made on or after the first day of the 13th month following the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON PROSPECTIVE EFFECT OF APPLICATION

SEC. 306. (a) Section 202(j)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2) An application for any monthly benefits under this section filed before the first month in which the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits shall be deemed a valid application (and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month) only if the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits before the Secretary makes a final decision on the application and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary)."

(b) Section 216(i)(2)(G) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(and shall be deemed to have been filed on such first day)" immediately after "shall be deemed a valid application" in the first sentence,

(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).".
(3) by striking out the second sentence.
(c) Section 223(b) of such Act is amended—
   (1) by inserting "(and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month)" immediately after "shall be deemed a valid application" in the first sentence,
   (2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made, or if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).", and
   (3) by striking out the second sentence.
(d) The amendments made by this section shall apply to applications filed after the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON COURT REMANDS

Sec. 307. The sixth sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out all that precedes "and the Secretary shall" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown before he files his answer, remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and it may at any time order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, but only upon a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there is good cause for the failure to incorporate such evidence into the record in a prior proceeding."

TIME LIMITATIONS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS

Sec. 308. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress, no later than July 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of appropriate time limitations governing decisions on claims for benefits under title II of the Social Security Act. Such report shall specifically recommend—
   (1) the maximum period of time (after application for a payment under such title is filed) within which the initial decision of the Secretary as to the rights of the applicant should be made;
   (2) the maximum period of time (after application for reconsideration of any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary on such reconsideration should be made;
   (3) the maximum period of time (after a request for a hearing with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary upon such hearing (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made; and
   (4) the maximum period of time (after a request for review by the Appeals Council with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is made) within which the decision of the Secretary upon such review (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made.

In determining the time limitations to be recommended, the Secretary shall take into account both the need for expeditious processing of claims for benefits and the need to assure that all such claims will be thoroughly considered and accurately determined.
PAYMENT FOR EXISTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE

Sec. 309. (a) Section 223(d)(5) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required and requested by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence."
(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to evidence requested on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Sec. 310. (a) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:
"(j) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure, out of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, or the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund (as determined appropriate by the Secretary), such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under this title, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations."
(b) Section 1631 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:
"(h) The Secretary shall pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under this title, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 1614(e)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations."

(c) Section 1817 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure out of the Trust Fund such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations.".

SEC. 311. (a) Section 221 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) In any case where an individual is or has been determined to be under a disability, the case shall be reviewed by the applicable State agency or the Secretary (as may be appropriate), for purposes of continuing eligibility, at least once every 3 years; except that where a finding has been made that such disability is permanent, such reviews shall be made at such times as the Secretary determines to be appropriate. Reviews of cases under the preceding sentence shall be in addition to, and shall not be considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required or provided for under or in the administration of this title."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on January 1, 1982.

REPORT BY SECRETARY

SEC. 312. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress not later than January 1, 1985, a full and complete report as to the effects produced by reason of the preceding provisions of this Act and the amendments made thereby.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall take effect on September 1, 1980.

FEDERAL MATCHING FOR CHILD SUPPORT DUTIES PERFORMED BY CERTAIN COURT PERSONNEL

Sec. 404. (a) Section 455 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(c)(1) Subject to paragraph (2), there shall be included, in determining amounts expended by a State during any quarter for the operation of the plan approved under section 454, so much of the expenditures of courts of such State and its political subdivisions (excluding expenditures for or in connection with judges and other individuals making judicial determinations, but not excluding expenditures for or in connection with their administrative and support personnel) as are attributable to the performance of services which are directly related to, and clearly identifiable with, the operation of such plan.

"(2) The aggregate amount of the expenditures which are included pursuant to paragraph (1) for the quarters in any calendar year shall be reduced (but not below zero) by the total amount of expenditures described in paragraph (1) which were made by the State for the 12-month period beginning January 1, 1978.

"(3) The State agency may, if the law (or procedures established thereunder) of the State so provides, pay so much of the amount it receives under subsection (a) for any quarter as is payable by reason of the provisions of this subsection directly to the courts of the State (or political subdivisions thereof) furnishing the services on account of which the payment is payable.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to expenditures made by States on or after July 1, 1980.

CHILD SUPPORT MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEM

Sec. 405. (a) Section 455(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (1);
(2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "and"; and
(3) by adding after and below paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

"(3) equal to 90 percent (rather than the percent specified in clause (1) or (2)) of so much of the sums expended during such quarter as are attributable to the planning, design, development, installation or enhancement of an automatic data processing and information retrieval system which the Secretary finds meets the requirements specified in section 454(16));"

(b) Section 454 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (14),
(2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (15) and inserting in lieu thereof "and"; and
(3) by adding after paragraph (15) the following new paragraph:

"(16) provide, at the option of the State, for the establishment, in accordance with an (initial and annually updated) advance automatic data processing planning document approved under section 452(d), of an automatic data processing and information retrieval system designed effectively and efficiently to assist management in the administration of the State plan, in the State and localities thereof, so as (A) to control, account for, and monitor (i) all the factors in the child support enforcement collection and paternity determination process under such plan (including, but not limited to, (I) identifiable correlation factors (such as social security numbers, names, dates of birth, home addresses and mailing addresses (including postal ZIP codes) of any individual with respect to whom child support obligations are sought to be established or enforced and with respect to any person to whom such support obligations are owing) to assure sufficient compatibility among the systems of different jurisdictions to permit periodic screening to determine whether such individual is paying or is obligated to pay child support in more than one jurisdiction, (II) checking of records of such individuals on a periodic basis with Federal, intra- and inter-State, and local agencies, (III) maintaining the data necessary to meet the Federal reporting requirements on a timely basis, and (IV) delinquency and enforcement activities), (ii) the collection and distribution of support payments (both intra- and inter-State), the determination, collection and distribution, of incentive payments both inter- and intra-State, and the maintenance of accounts receivable on all amounts owed, collected and distributed, and (iii) the costs of all services rendered, either directly or by interfacing with State financial management and expenditure information, (B) to provide interface with records of the State's aid to families with dependent children program in order to determine if a collection of a support payment causes a change affecting eligibility for or the amount of aid under such program, (C) to provide for security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system, and (D) to provide management information on all cases under the State plan from initial referral or application through collection and enforcement.

42 USC 652. 'c) Section 452 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d)(1) The Secretary shall not approve the initial and annually updated advance automatic data processing planning document, referred to in section 454(16), unless he finds that such document, when implemented, will generally carry out the objectives of the management system referred to in such subsection, and such document—

"(A) provides for the conduct of, and reflects the results of, requirements analysis studies, which include consideration of the program mission, functions, organization, services, constraints, and current support, of, in, or relating to, such system,

"(B) contains a description of the proposed management system referred to in section 455(a)(3), including a description of information flows, input data, and output reports and uses,

"(C) sets forth the security and interface requirements to be employed in such management system,

"(D) describes the projected resource requirements for staff and other needs, and the resources available or expected to be available to meet such requirements,

"(E) contains an implementation plan and backup procedures to handle possible failures,

"(F) contains a summary of proposed improvement of such management system in terms of qualitative and quantitative benefits, and"

“(2)(A) The Secretary shall through the separate organizational unit established pursuant to subsection (a), on a continuing basis, review, assess, and inspect the planning, design, and operation of, management information systems referred to in section 455(a)(3), with a view to determining whether, and to what extent, such systems meet and continue to meet requirements imposed under paragraph (1) and the conditions specified under section 454(16).

“(B) If the Secretary finds with respect to any statewide management information system referred to in section 455(a)(3) that there is a failure substantially to comply with criteria, requirements, and other undertakings, prescribed by the advance automatic data processing planning document theretofore approved by the Secretary with respect to such system, then the Secretary shall suspend his approval of such document until there is no longer any such failure of such system to comply with such criteria, requirements, and other undertakings so prescribed.”.

(d) Section 452 of the Social Security Act is further amended by adding after subsection (d) (as added by subsection (c) of this section) the following new subsection:

“(e) The Secretary shall provide such technical assistance to States as he determines necessary to assist States to plan, design, develop, or install and provide for the security of, the management information systems referred to in section 455(a)(3).”.

(e) The amendments made by this section shall take effect on July 1, 1981, and shall be effective only with respect to expenditures, referred to in section 455(a)(3) of the Social Security Act (as amended by this Act), made on or after such date.

AFDC MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEM

Sec. 406. (a) Section 403(a)(3) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “and” at the end of subparagraph (A);

(2) by redesignating subparagraph (B) as subparagraph (C); and

(3) by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following new subparagraph:

“(B) 90 per centum of so much of the sums expended during such quarter as are attributable to the planning, design, development, or installation of such statewide mechanized claims processing and information retrieval systems as (i) meet the conditions of section 402(a)(30), and (ii) the Secretary determines are likely to provide more efficient, economical, and effective administration of the plan and to be compatible with the claims processing and information retrieval systems utilized in the administration of State plans approved under title XIX, and State programs with respect to which there is Federal financial participation under title XX, and”.

(A) by striking out “and” at the end of paragraph (28);

(B) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (29) and inserting in lieu thereof “; and”;

and

(C) by adding after paragraph (29) the following new paragraph:
“(30) at the option of the State, provide for the establishment and operation, in accordance with an (initial and annually updated) advance automatic data processing planning document approved under subsection (d), of an automated statewide management information system designed effectively and efficiently, to assist management in the administration of the State plan for aid to families with dependent children approved under this part, so as (A) to control and account for (i) all the factors in the total eligibility determination process under such plan for aid (including but not limited to (I) identifiable correlation factors (such as social security numbers, names, dates of birth, home addresses, and mailing addresses (including postal ZIP codes), of all applicants and recipients of such aid and the relative with whom any child who is such an applicant or recipient is living) to assure sufficient compatibility among the systems of different jurisdictions to permit periodic screening to determine whether an individual is or has been receiving benefits from more than one jurisdiction, (II) checking records of applicants and recipients of such aid on a periodic basis with other agencies, both intra- and inter-State, for determination and verification of eligibility and payment pursuant to requirements imposed by other provisions of this Act), (ii) the costs, quality, and delivery of funds and services furnished to applicants for and recipients of such aid, (B) to notify the appropriate officials of child support, food stamp, social service, and medical assistance programs approved under title XIX whenever the case becomes ineligible or the amount of aid or services is changed, and (C) to provide for security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system.

(2) Section 402 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(d)(1) The Secretary shall not approve the initial and annually updated advance automatic data processing planning document, referred to in subsection (a)(30), unless he finds that such document, when implemented, will generally carry out the objectives of the statewide management system referred to in such subsection, and such document—

“(A) provides for the conduct of, and reflects the results of, requirements analysis studies, which include consideration of the program mission, functions, organization, services, constraints, and current support, of, in, or relating to, such system,

“(B) contains a description of the proposed statewide management system, including a description of information flows, input data, and output reports and uses,

“(C) sets forth the security and interface requirements to be employed in such statewide management system,

“(D) describes the projected resource requirements for staff and other needs, and the resources available or expected to be available to meet such requirements,

“(E) includes cost-benefit analyses of each alternative management system, data processing services and equipment, and a cost allocation plan containing the basis for rates, both direct and indirect, to be in effect under such statewide management system,

“(F) contains an implementation plan with charts of development events, testing descriptions, proposed acceptance criteria, and backup and fallback procedures to handle possible failure of contingencies, and
“(G) contains a summary of proposed improvement of such statewide management system in terms of qualitative and quantitative benefits.

“(2)(A) The Secretary shall, on a continuing basis, review, assess, and inspect the planning, design, and operation of, statewide management information systems referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B), with a view to determining whether, and to what extent, such systems meet and continue to meet requirements imposed under such section and the conditions specified under subsection (a)(30) of this section.

“(B) If the Secretary finds with respect to any statewide management information system referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B) that there is a failure substantially to comply with criteria, requirements, and other undertakings, prescribed by the advance automatic data processing planning document theretofore approved by the Secretary with respect to such system, then the Secretary shall suspend his approval of such document until there is no longer any such failure of such system to comply with such criteria, requirements, and other undertakings so prescribed.”.

(c) Part A of title IV of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

“TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR DEVELOPING MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS

“Sec. 413. The Secretary shall provide such technical assistance to States as he determines necessary to assist States to plan, design, develop, or install and provide for the security of, the management information systems referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B) of this Act.”.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to expenditures made during calendar quarters beginning on or after July 1, 1981.

CHILD SUPPORT REPORTING AND MATCHING PROCEDURES

Sec. 407. (a) Section 455(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “The Secretary” and inserting in lieu thereof “Subject to subsection (d), the Secretary”.

(b) Section 455 of such Act is further amended by adding after subsection (c) (as added by section 404 of this Act) the following new subsection:

“(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no amount shall be paid to any State under this section for any quarter, prior to the close of such quarter, unless for the period consisting of all prior quarters for which payment is authorized to be made to such State under subsection (a), there shall have been submitted by the State to the Secretary, with respect to each quarter in such period (other than the last two quarters in such period), a full and complete report (in such form and manner and containing such information as the Secretary shall prescribe or require) as to the amount of child support collected and disbursed and all expenditures with respect to which payment is authorized under subsection (a).”.

(c) Section 403(b)(2) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “and” at the end of clause (A); and

(2) by adding immediately before the semicolon at the end of clause (B) the following: “,” and (C) reduced by such amount as is necessary to provide the ‘appropriate reimbursement of the Federal Government’ that the State is required to make under section 457 out of that portion of child support collections retained by it pursuant to such section”.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be effective in the case of calendar quarters commencing on or after January 1, 1981.

ACCESS TO WAGE INFORMATION FOR PURPOSES OF CARRYING OUT STATE PLANS FOR CHILD SUPPORT

Sec. 408. (a)(1) Subsection (l) of section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to disclosure of returns and return information for purposes other than tax administration) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(7) DISCLOSURE OF CERTAIN RETURN INFORMATION BY SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION TO STATE AND LOCAL CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.—"

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Upon written request, the Commissioner of Social Security shall disclose directly to officers and employees of a State or local child support enforcement agency return information from returns with respect to net earnings from self-employment (as defined in section 1402), wages (as defined in section 3121(a) or 3401(a)), and payments of retirement income which have been disclosed to the Social Security Administration as provided by paragraph (1) or (5) of this subsection.

"(B) RESTRICTION ON DISCLOSURE.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall disclose return information under subparagraph (A) only for purposes of, and to the extent necessary in, establishing and collecting child support obligations from, and locating, individuals owing such obligations. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term 'child support obligations' only includes obligations which are being enforced pursuant to a plan described in section 454 of the Social Security Act which has been approved by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under part D of title IV of such Act.

"(C) STATE OR LOCAL CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGENCY.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'State or local child support enforcement agency' means any agency of a State or political subdivision thereof operating pursuant to a plan described in subparagraph (B)."

(2)(A) Subparagraph (A) of section 6103(p)(3) of such Code (relating to records of inspection and disclosure) is amended by striking out “(1)(1) or (4)(B) or (5)” and inserting in lieu thereof “(1)(1), (4)(B), (5), or (7)”.

(2)(B) Paragraph (4) of section 6103(p) of such Code (relating to safeguards) is amended by striking out “(1)(3) or (6)” in so much of such paragraph as precedes subparagraph (A) thereof and inserting in lieu thereof “(1)(3), (6), or (7)”.

(C) Clause (i) of section 6103(p)(4)(F) of such Code is amended by striking out “(1)(6)” and inserting in lieu thereof “(1)(6) or (7)”.

(D) The first sentence of paragraph (2) of section 7213(a) of such Code is amended by striking out “subsection (d), (1)(6), or (m)(4)(B)” and inserting in lieu thereof “subsection (d), (1)(6) or (7), or (m)(4)(B)”.

(3) The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b)(1) Section 303 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:
“(d)(1) The State agency charged with the administration of the State law—
“(A) shall disclose, upon request and on a reimbursable basis, directly to officers or employees of any State or local child support enforcement agency any wage information contained in the records of such State agency, and
“(B) shall establish such safeguards as are necessary (as determined by the Secretary of Labor in regulations) to insure that information disclosed under subparagraph (A) is used only for purposes of establishing and collecting child support obligations from, and locating, individuals owing such obligations. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term ‘child support obligations’ only includes obligations which are being enforced pursuant to a plan described in section 454 of this Act which has been approved by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under part D of title IV of this Act.
“(2) Whenever the Secretary of Labor, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency charged with the administration of the State law, finds that there is a failure to comply substantially with the requirements of paragraph (1), the Secretary of Labor shall notify such State agency that further payments will not be made to the State until he is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure. Until the Secretary of Labor is so satisfied, he shall make no further certification to the Secretary of the Treasury with respect to such State.
“(3) For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘State or local child support enforcement agency’ means any agency of a State or political subdivision thereof operating pursuant to a plan described in the last sentence of paragraph (1).”
(2) Paragraph (2) of section 304(a) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “subsection (b) or (c)” and inserting in lieu thereof “subsection (b), (c), or (d)”.
(3) The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect on July 1, 1980.

TITLE V—OTHER PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN SOCIAL SECURITY AND SSI BENEFITS

Sec. 501. (a) Part A of title XI of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting immediately after section 1126 the following new section:

“ADJUSTMENT OF RETROACTIVE BENEFITS UNDER TITLE II ON ACCOUNT OF SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME BENEFITS

for which a benefit described in paragraph (1) is payable and ending with the month before the first month in which such benefit is paid pursuant to the application referred to in paragraph (1), the benefits (described in paragraph (1)) which are otherwise retroactively payable to such individual for months in the period described in paragraph (2) shall be reduced by an amount equal to so much of such supplemental security income benefits (including State supplementary payments) described in paragraph (2) for such month or months as would not have been paid with respect to such individual or his eligible spouse if the individual had received the benefits under title II at the times they were regularly due during such period rather than retroactively; and from the amount of such reduction the Secretary shall reimburse the State on behalf of which such supplementary payments were made for the amount (if any) by which such State's expenditures on account of such supplementary payments for the period involved exceeded the expenditures which the State would have made (for such period) if the individual had received the benefits under title II at the times they were regularly due during such period rather than retroactively. An amount equal to the portion of such reduction remaining after reimbursement of the State under the preceding sentence shall be covered into the general fund of the Treasury.

(b) Section 204 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(e) For payments which are adjusted by reason of payment of benefits under the supplemental security income program established by title XVI, see section 1127."

(c) Section 1631(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" immediately after "(b)",

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) For payments for which adjustments are made by reason of a retroactive payment of benefits under title II, see section 1127."

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be applicable in the case of payments of monthly insurance benefits under title II of the Social Security Act entitlement for which is determined on or after the first day of the thirteenth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

EXTENSION OF NATIONAL COMMISSION ON SOCIAL SECURITY

Sec. 502. (a) Section 361(a)(2)(F) of the Social Security Amendments of 1977 is amended by striking out "a term of two years" and inserting in lieu thereof "a term which shall end on April 1, 1981".

(b) Section 361(c)(2) of the Social Security Amendments of 1977 is amended by striking out all that follows the semicolon and inserting in lieu thereof "and the Commission shall cease to exist on April 1, 1981."

TIME FOR MAKING OF SOCIAL SECURITY CONTRIBUTIONS WITH RESPECT TO COVERED STATE AND LOCAL EMPLOYEES

Sec. 503. (a) Subparagraph (A) of section 218(e)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall be effective with respect to the payment of taxes (referred to in section 218(e)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act, as amended by subsection (a)) on account of wages paid on or after July 1, 1980.

(c) The provisions of section 7 of Public Law 94–202 shall not be applicable to any regulation which becomes effective on or after July 1, 1980, and which is designed to carry out the purposes of subsection
(a) of this section.

ELIGIBILITY OF ALIENS FOR SSI BENEFITS

Sec. 504. (a) Section 1614(f) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(3) For purposes of determining eligibility for and the amount of benefits for any individual who is an alien, such individual's income and resources shall be deemed to include the income and resources of his sponsor and such sponsor's spouse (if such alien has a sponsor) as provided in section 1621. Any such income deemed to be income of such individual shall be treated as unearned income of such individual."

(b) Part A of title XVI of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 201(c) of this Act) the following new section:

"ATRIBUTION OF SPONSOR'S INCOME AND RESOURCES TO ALIENS

"Sec. 1621. (a) For purposes of determining eligibility for and the amount of benefits under this title for an individual who is an alien, the income and resources of any person who (as a sponsor of such individual's entry into the United States) executed an affidavit of support or similar agreement with respect to such individual, and the income and resources of the sponsor's spouse, shall be deemed to be the income and resources of such individual (in accordance with subsections (b) and (c)) for a period of three years after the individual's entry into the United States. Any such income deemed to be income of such individual shall be treated as unearned income of such individual.

(b)(1) The amount of income of a sponsor (and his spouse) which shall be deemed to be the unearned income of an alien for any year shall be determined as follows:

"(A) The total yearly rate of earned and unearned income (as determined under section 1612(a)) of such sponsor and such sponsor's spouse (if such spouse is living with the sponsor) shall be determined for such year

"(B) The amount determined under subparagraph (A) shall be reduced by an amount equal to (i) the maximum amount of the Federal benefit under this title for such year which would be payable to an eligible individual who has no other income and who does not have an eligible spouse (as determined under section 1611(b)(1)), plus (ii) one-half of the amount determined under clause (i) multiplied by the number of individuals who are dependents of such sponsor (or such sponsor's spouse if such spouse is living with the sponsor), other than such alien and such alien's spouse.

"(C) The amount of income which shall be deemed to be unearned income of such alien shall be at a yearly rate equal to the amount determined under subparagraph (B). The period for determination of such amount shall be the same as the period for determination of benefits under section 1611(c).

"(2) The amount of resources of a sponsor (and his spouse) which shall be deemed to be the resources of an alien for any year shall be determined as follows:

"(A) The total amount of the resources (as determined under section 1613) of such sponsor and such sponsor's spouse (if such spouse is living with the sponsor) shall be determined.

"(B) The amount determined under subparagraph (A) shall be reduced by an amount equal to (i) $1,500 in the case of a sponsor who has no spouse with whom he is living, or (ii) $2,250 in the case of a sponsor who has a spouse with whom he is living.

"(C) The resources of such sponsor (and spouse) as determined under subparagraphs (A) and (B) shall be deemed to be resources of such alien in addition to any resources of such alien.

"(c) In determining the amount of income of an alien during the period of three years after such alien's entry into the United States, the reduction in dollar amounts otherwise required under section 1612(a)(2)(A)(i) shall not be applicable if such alien is living in the household of a person who is a sponsor (or such sponsor's spouse) of such alien, and is receiving support and maintenance in kind from such sponsor (or spouse), nor shall support or maintenance furnished in cash or kind to an alien by such alien's sponsor (to the extent that it reflects income or resources which were taken into account in determining the amount of income and resources to be deemed to the alien under subsection (a) or (b)) be considered to be income of such alien under section 1612(a)(2)(A).

"(d)(1) Any individual who is an alien shall, during the period of three years after entry into the United States, in order to be an eligible individual or eligible spouse for purposes of this title, be required to provide to the Secretary such information and documentation with respect to his sponsor as may be necessary in order for the Secretary to make any determination required under this section, and to obtain any cooperation from such sponsor necessary for any such determination. Such alien shall also be required to provide to the Secretary such information and documentation as the Secretary may request and which such alien or his sponsor provided in support of such alien's immigration application.

"(2) The Secretary shall enter into agreements with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General whereby any information available to such persons and required in order to make any determination under this section will be provided by such persons to the Secretary, and whereby such persons shall inform any sponsor of an alien, at the time such sponsor executes an affidavit of support or similar agreement, of the requirements imposed by this section.

"(e) Any sponsor of an alien, and such alien, shall be jointly and severally liable for an amount equal to any overpayment made to such alien during the period of three years after such alien's entry into the United States, on account of such sponsor's failure to provide correct information under the provisions of this section, except where such sponsor was without fault, or where good cause for such failure existed. Any such overpayment which is not repaid to the Secretary... or recovered in accordance with section 1631(b) shall be withheld from any subsequent payment to which such alien or such sponsor is entitled under any provision of this Act.

"(f)(1) The provisions of this section shall not apply with respect to any individual who is an 'aged, blind, or disabled individual' for purposes of this title by reason of blindness (as determined under section 1614(a)(2)) or disability (as determined under section 1614(a)(3)), from and after the onset of the impairment, if such blindness or disability commenced after the date of such individual's admission into the United States for permanent residence.

"(2) The provisions of this section shall not apply with respect to any alien who is—

"(A) admitted to the United States as a result of the application, prior to April 1, 1980, of the provisions of section 203(a)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act;

"(B) admitted to the United States as a result of the application, after March 31, 1980, of the provisions of section 207(c)(1) of such Act;

"(C) paroled into the United States as a refugee under section 212(d)(5) of such Act; or

"(D) granted political asylum by the Attorney General."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to individuals applying for supplemental security income benefits under title XVI of the Social Security Act for the first time after September 30, 1980.

SEC. 505. (a)(1) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall develop and carry out experiments and demonstration projects designed to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of (A) various alternative methods of treating the work activity of disabled beneficiaries under the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program, including such methods as a reduction in benefits based on earnings, designed to encourage the return to work of disabled beneficiaries and (B) altering other limitations and conditions applicable to such disabled beneficiaries (including, but not limited to lengthening the trial work period, altering the 24-month waiting period for medicare benefits, altering the manner in which such program is administered, earlier referral of beneficiaries for rehabilitation, and greater use of employers and others to develop, perform, and otherwise stimulate new forms of rehabilitation), to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds, or to otherwise promote the objectives or facilitate the administration of title II of the Social Security Act.

(2) The experiments and demonstration projects developed under paragraph (1) shall be of sufficient scope and shall be carried out on a wide enough scale to permit a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration while giving assurance that the results derived from the experiments and projects will obtain generally in the operation of the disability insurance program without committing such program to the adoption of any particular system either locally or nationally.

(3) In the case of any experiment or demonstration project under paragraph (1), the Secretary may waive compliance with the benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII of the Social Security Act insofar as is necessary for a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods.
under consideration. No such experiment or project shall be actually placed in operation unless at least ninety days prior thereto a written report, prepared for purposes of notification and information only and containing a full and complete description thereof, has been transmitted by the Secretary to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate. Periodic reports on the progress of such experiments and demonstration projects shall be submitted by the Secretary to such committees. When appropriate, such reports shall include detailed recommendations for changes in administration or law, or both, to carry out the objectives stated in paragraph (1).

(4) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress no later than January 1, 1983, a report on the experiments and demonstration projects with respect to work incentives carried out under this subsection together with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(5) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new subsection added by section 310(a) of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(k) Expenditures made for experiments and demonstration projects under section 505(a) of the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980 shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, as determined appropriate by the Secretary."

42 USC 401.

(b) Section 1110 of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" after "Sec. 1110. (a)";

(2) by striking out "for (1)" and "(2)" and inserting in lieu thereof "for (A)" and "(B)", respectively;

(3) by redesignating subsections (b) and (c) as paragraphs (2) and (3), respectively;

(4) by striking out "under subsection (a)" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "under paragraph (1)";

(5) by striking out "purposes of this section" and inserting in lieu thereof "purposes of this subsection"; and

(6) by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b)(1) The Secretary is authorized to waive any of the requirements, conditions, or limitations of title XVI (or to waive them only for specified purposes, or to impose additional requirements, conditions, or limitations) to such extent and for such period as he finds necessary to carry out one or more experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects which, in his judgment, are likely to assist in promoting the objectives or facilitate the administration of such title. Any costs for benefits under or administration of any such project (including planning for the project and the review and evaluation of the project and its results), in excess of those that would have been incurred without regard to the project, shall be met by the Secretary from amounts available to him for this purpose from appropriations made to carry out such title. The costs of any such project which is carried out in coordination with one or more related projects under other titles of this Act shall be allocated among the appropriations available for such projects and any Trust Funds involved, in a manner determined by the Secretary, taking into consideration the programs (or types of benefit) to which the project (or part of a project) is most closely related or which the project (or part of a project) is intended to benefit. If, in order to carry out a project under this subsection, the Secretary requests a State to make supplementary payments (or makes them himself pursuant to an agreement under section 1616), or to provide medical assistance under its plan approved under title XIX, to individuals who are not eligible therefor, or in amounts or under circumstances in which the State does not make such payments or provide such medical assistance, the Secretary shall reimburse such State for the non-Federal share of such payments or assistance from amounts appropriated to carry out title XVI.

(2) With respect to the participation of recipients of supplemental security income benefits in experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects under this subsection—

"(A) the Secretary is not authorized to carry out any project that would result in a substantial reduction in any individual's total income and resources as a result of his or her participation in the project;

"(B) the Secretary may not require any individual to participate in a project; and he shall assure (i) that the voluntary participation of individuals in any project is obtained through informed written consent which satisfies the requirements for informed consent established by the Secretary for use in any experimental, pilot, or demonstration project in which human subjects are at risk, and (ii) that any individual's voluntary agreement to participate in any project may be revoked by such individual at any time;

"(C) the Secretary shall, to the extent feasible and appropriate, include recipients who are under age 18 as well as adult recipients; and

"(D) the Secretary shall include in the projects carried out under this section such experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects as may be necessary to ascertain the feasibility of treating alcoholics and drug addicts to prevent the onset of irreversible medical conditions which may result in permanent disability, including programs in residential care treatment centers."

(c) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress a final report with respect to all experiments and demonstration projects carried out under this section no later than five years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS FOR DEMONSTRATION PROJECT RELATING TO THE TERMINALLY ILL

SEC. 506. (a) The Secretary of Health and Human Services is authorized to provide for the participation, by the Social Security Administration, in a demonstration project relating to the terminally ill which is currently being conducted within the Department of Health and Human Services. The purpose of such participation shall be to study the impact on the terminally ill of provisions of the disability programs administered by the Social Security Administration and to determine how best to provide services needed by persons who are terminally ill through programs over which the Social Security Administration has administrative responsibility.

(b) For the purpose of carrying out this section there are authorized to be appropriated such sums (not in excess of $2,000,000 for any fiscal year) as may be necessary.
Sec. 507. (a) Title XVIII of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

42 U.S.C. 1395ss.

"SEC. 1882. (a) The Secretary shall establish a procedure whereby medicare supplemental policies (as defined in subsection (g)(1)) may be certified by the Secretary as meeting minimum standards and requirements set forth in subsection (c). Such procedure shall provide an opportunity for any insurer to submit any such policy, and such additional data as the Secretary finds necessary, to the Secretary for his examination and for his certification thereof as meeting the standards and requirements set forth in subsection (c). Such certification shall remain in effect if the insurer files a notarized statement with the Secretary no later than June 30 of each year stating that the policy continues to meet such standards and requirements and if the insurer submits such additional data as the Secretary finds necessary to independently verify the accuracy of such notarized statement. Where the Secretary determines such a policy meets (or continues to meet) such standards and requirements, he shall authorize the insurer to have printed on such policy (but only in accordance with such requirements and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe) an emblem which the Secretary shall cause to be designed for use as an indication that a policy has received the Secretary's certification. The Secretary shall provide each State commissioner or superintendent of insurance with a list of all the policies which have received his certification.

Emblem.

"(b)(1) Any medicare supplemental policy issued in any State which program, the Supplemental Health Insurance Panel (established under paragraph (2)) determines has established under State law a regulatory program that—

"(A) provides for the application of standards with respect to such policies equal to or more stringent than the NAIC Model Standards (as defined in subsection (g)(2)(A));

"(B) includes a requirement equal to or more stringent than the requirement described in subsection (c)(2); and

"(C) provides for application of the standards and requirements described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) to all medicare supplemental policies (as defined in subsection (g)(1)) issued in such State,

shall be deemed (for so long as the Panel finds that such State regulatory program continues to meet the standards and requirements of this paragraph) to meet the standards and requirements set forth in subsection (c).

Supplemental Health Insurance Panel, establishment.

"(2)(A) There is hereby established a panel (hereinafter in this section referred to as the 'Panel') to be known as the Supplemental Health Insurance Panel. The Panel shall consist of the Secretary, who shall serve as the Chairman, and four State commissioners or superintendents of insurance, who shall be appointed by the President and serve at his pleasure. Such members shall first be appointed not later than December 31, 1980.

Quorum.

"(B) A majority of the members of the Panel shall constitute a quorum, but a lesser number may conduct hearings."
“(C) The Secretary shall provide such technical, secretarial, clerical, and other assistance as the Panel may require.

“(D) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this paragraph.

“(E) Members of the Panel shall be allowed, while away from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the Panel, travel expenses (including per diem in lieu of subsistence) in the same manner as persons employed intermittently in the Government service are allowed expenses under section 5703 of title 5, United States Code.

“(c) The Secretary shall certify under this section any medicare supplemental policy, or continue certification of such a policy, only if he finds that such policy—

“(1) meets or exceeds (either in a single policy or, in the case of nonprofit hospital and medical service associations, in one or more policies issued in conjunction with one another) the NAIC Model Standards; and

“(2) can be expected (as estimated for the entire period for which rates are computed to provide coverage, on the basis of incurred claims experience and earned premiums for such period and in accordance with accepted actuarial principles and practices) to return to policyholders in the form of aggregate benefits provided under the policy, at least 75 percent of the aggregate amount of premiums collected in the case of group policies and at least 60 percent of the aggregate amount of premiums collected in the case of individual policies.

For purposes of paragraph (2), policies issued as a result of solicitations of individuals through the mails or by mass media advertising (including both print and broadcast advertising) shall be deemed to be individual policies.

“(d)(1) Whoever knowingly or willfully makes or causes to be made or induces or seeks to induce the making of any false statement or representation of a material fact with respect to the compliance of any policy with the standards and requirements set forth in subsection (c) or in regulations promulgated pursuant to such subsection, or with respect to the use of the emblem designed by the Secretary under subsection (a), shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

“(2) Whoever falsely assumes or pretends to be acting, or misrepresents in any way that he is acting, under the authority of or in association with, the program of health insurance established by this title, or any Federal agency, for the purpose of selling or attempting to sell insurance, or in such pretended character demands, or obtains money, paper, documents, or anything of value, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

“(3)(A) Whoever knowingly sells a health insurance policy to an individual entitled to benefits under part A or enrolled under part B of this title, with knowledge that such policy substantially duplicates health benefits to which such individual is otherwise entitled, other than benefits to which he is entitled under a requirement of State or Federal law (other than this title), shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.
“(B) For purposes of this paragraph, benefits which are payable to or on behalf of an individual without regard to other health benefit coverage of such individual, shall not be considered as duplicative.

“(C) Subparagraph (A) shall not apply with respect to the selling of a group policy or plan of one or more employers or labor organizations, or of the trustees of a fund established by one or more employers or labor organizations (or combination thereof), for employees or former employees (or combination thereof) or for members or former members (or combination thereof) of the labor organizations.

“(4)(A) Whoever knowingly, directly or through his agent, mails or causes to be mailed any matter for a prohibited purpose (as determined under subparagraph (B)) shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

“(B) For purposes of subparagraph (A), a prohibited purpose means the advertising, solicitation, or offer for sale of a medicare supplemental policy, or the delivery of such a policy, in or into any State in which such policy has not been approved by the State commissioner or superintendent of insurance. For purposes of this paragraph, a medicare supplemental policy shall be deemed to be approved by the commissioner or superintendent of insurance of a State if—

“(i) the policy has been certified by the Secretary pursuant to subsection (c) or was issued in a State with an approved regulatory program (as defined in subsection (g)(2)(B));

“(ii) the policy has been approved by the commissioners or superintendents of insurance in States in which more than 30 percent of such policies are sold; or

except that such a policy shall not be deemed to be approved by a State commissioner or superintendent of insurance if the State notifies the Secretary that such policy has been submitted for approval to the State and has been specifically disapproved by such State after providing appropriate notice and opportunity for hearing pursuant to the procedures (if any) of the State.

“(D) Subparagraph (A) shall not apply in the case of a person who mails or causes to be mailed a medicare supplemental policy into a State if such person has ascertained that the party insured under such policy to whom (or on whose behalf) such policy is mailed is located in such State on a temporary basis.

“(D) Subparagraph (A) shall not apply in the case of a person who mails or causes to be mailed a duplicate copy of a medicare supplemental policy previously issued to the party to whom (or on whose behalf) such duplicate copy is mailed, if such policy expires not more than 12 months after the date on which the duplicate copy is mailed.

“(e) The Secretary shall provide to all individuals entitled to benefits under this title (and, to the extent feasible, to individuals about to become so entitled) such information as will permit such individuals to evaluate the value of medicare supplemental policies to them and the relationship of any such policies to benefits provided under this title.

“(f) The Secretary shall, in consultation with Federal and State regulatory agencies, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, private insurers, and organizations representing consumers and the aged, conduct a comprehensive study and evaluation of the comparative effectiveness of various State approaches to the regulation of medicare supplemental policies in (i) limiting marketing and agent abuse, (ii) assuring the dissemination of such information to individuals entitled to benefits under this title (and to other consumers) as is necessary to permit informed choice, (iii) promoting policies which provide reasonable economic benefits for such individuals, (iv) reducing the purchase of unnecessary duplicative coverage, (v) improving price competition, and (vi) establishing effective approved State regulatory programs described in subsection (b).

“(B) Such study shall also address the need for standards or certification of health insurance policies, other than medicare supplemental policies, sold to individuals eligible for benefits under this title.

“(C) The Secretary shall, no later than January 1, 1982, submit a report to the Congress on the results of such study and evaluation, accompanied by such recommendations as the Secretary finds warranted by such results with respect to the need for legislative or administrative changes to accomplish the objectives set forth in subparagraphs (A) and (B), including the need for a mandatory Federal regulatory program to assure the marketing of appropriate types of medicare supplemental policies, and such other means as he finds may be appropriate to enhance effective State regulation of such policies.

“(2) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress no later than July 1, 1982, and periodically as may be appropriate thereafter (but not less often than once every 2 years), a report evaluating the effectiveness of the certification procedure and the criminal penalties established under this section, and shall include in such reports an analysis of—

“(A) the impact of such procedure and penalties on the types, market share, value, and cost to individuals entitled to benefits under this title of medicare supplemental policies which have been certified by the Secretary;

“(B) the need for any change in the certification procedure to improve its administration or effectiveness; and

“(C) whether the certification program and criminal penalties should be continued.

“(g)(1) For purposes of this section, a medicare supplemental policy is a health insurance policy or other health benefit plan offered by a private entity to individuals who are entitled to have payment made under this title, which provides reimbursement for expenses incurred for services and items for which payment may be made under this title but which are not reimbursable by reason of the applicability of deductibles, coinsurance amounts, or other limitations imposed pursuant to this title; but does not include any such policy or plan of one or more employers or labor organizations, or of the trustees of a fund established by one or more employers or labor organizations (or combination thereof) for employees or former employees (or combination thereof) or for members or former members (or combination thereof) of the labor organizations. For purposes of this section, the term ‘policy’ includes a certificate issued under such policy.

“(2) For purposes of this section:

“(A) The term ‘NAIC Model Standards’ means the ‘NAIC Model Regulation to Implement the Individual Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Act’, adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on June 6, 1979, as it applies to medicare supplement policies.

"(B) The term 'State with an approved regulatory program' means a State for which the Panel has made a determination under subsection (b)(1).

"(C) The State in which a policy is issued means—

"(i) in the case of an individual policy, the State in which the policyholder resides; and

"(ii) in the case of a group policy, the State in which the holder of the master policy resides.

Regulations.

"(h) The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary for the effective, efficient, and equitable administration of the certification procedure established under this section. The Secretary shall first issue final regulations to implement the certification procedure established under subsection (a) not later than March 1, 1981.

Emblem usage, effective date.

"(i)(1) No medicare supplemental policy shall be certified and no such policy may be issued bearing the emblem authorized by the Secretary under subsection (a) until July 1, 1982. On and after such date policies certified by the Secretary may bear such emblem, including policies which were issued prior to such date and were subsequently certified, and insurers may notify holders of such certified policies issued prior to such date using such emblem in the notification.

"(2)(A) The Secretary shall not implement the certification program established under subsection (a) with respect to policies issued in a State unless the Panel makes a finding that such State cannot be expected to have established, by July 1, 1982, an approved State regulatory program meeting the standards and requirements of subsection (b)(1). If the Panel makes such a finding, the Secretary shall implement such program under subsection (a) with respect to medicare supplemental policies issued in such State, until such time as the Panel determines that such State has a program that meets the standards and requirements of subsection (b)(1).

"(B) Any finding by the Panel under subparagraph (A) shall be transmitted in writing, not later than January 1, 1982, to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and shall not become effective until 60 days after the date of its transmittal to the Committees of the Congress under this subparagraph. In counting such days, days on which either House is not in session because of an adjournment sine die or an adjournment of more than three days to a day certain are excluded in the computation.
“(j) Nothing in this section shall be construed so as to affect the right of any State to regulate medicare supplemental policies which, under the provisions of this section, are considered to be issued in another State.”.

(b) The amendment made by this section shall become effective on the date of the enactment of this Act, except that the provisions of paragraph (4) of section 1882(d) of the Social Security Act (as added by this section) shall become effective on July 1, 1982.

Approved June 9, 1980.
Today I have signed H.R. 3236, the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980. This bill is the product of several years of intensive study and review conducted by this Administration and the Congress. It forms a balanced package, with amendments to strengthen the integrity of the disability programs, increase equity among beneficiaries, offer greater assistance to those who are trying to work, and improve program administration.

Since the mid-1950s the social security disability insurance (DI) program has offered protection to insured workers who have lost wages because of unexpected and often catastrophic disabilities. More recently, since 1974, the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program has provided Federal financial assistance to needy disabled persons whether or not they are covered under the disability insurance program.

Despite their medical impairments, most disabled DI and SSI beneficiaries would like to work. Often they are able to find employment either in their previous occupations or in new jobs. But returning to work can now cause a recipient to lose all his cash and medical benefits, and this formidable financial risk deters many beneficiaries from seeking or accepting serious job offers.

H.R. 3236 is designed to help disabled beneficiaries return to work by minimizing the risks involved in accepting paid employment. It does this in several ways:

-- By providing automatic reentitlement to benefits if an attempt to return to work fails within one year;

-- By continuing medical protection for up to three years after a person returns to work, and by providing immediate reentitlement to medical benefits if the individual subsequently returns to the disability rolls;

-- By taking account of an individual's disability-related work expenses in determining eligibility for benefits; and

-- By continuing---on an experimental basis for three years---cash and medical benefits to SSI recipients with low earnings.
H.R. 3236 establishes a special pilot program that will provide $18 million over a three-year period to allow States to offer medical and social services to employed handicapped people to help them continue working. It also gives the Social Security Administration new authority to test the effect of further changes in the law. Changes which show promise for helping DI and SSI beneficiaries can then be made a permanent part of the law.

H.R. 3236 adjusts the maximum limitation on disability insurance dependents' benefits. The adjustment addresses problems that exist because some disabled workers can receive cash disability benefits that are greater than their previous employment income. The adjusted benefit limitation will not apply to people currently receiving benefits. In fact, no person now receiving benefits will have his or her benefits reduced as a result of any provision in this bill. The final version of the limitation is more restrictive than the Administration proposed, and will impact adversely on some beneficiaries. Therefore, I will expect the Department of Health and Human Services to evaluate carefully its effect on new beneficiaries and be prepared to recommend any changes that may be needed.

A major provision of H.R. 3236 establishes a voluntary certification program for health insurance supplemental to Medicare--commonly referred to as "Medigap" policies--in states that do not have adequate programs of their own to control abuses in the sale of these policies. The new voluntary certification program, which I strongly and actively supported, will do the senior citizens of our country a great service.

It will ensure that approved policies meet prescribed minimum standards, and it will set penalties for furnishing fraudulent or misleading information and for other abuses.

Finally, I would like to recognize the contributions made by Congressman Jake Pickle, Congressman Al Ullman, Congressman Jim Corman, Congressman Claude Pepper, Senator Gaylord Nelson, Senator Russell Long and Senator Max Baucus. Their able leadership and cooperation were essential to the passage of this bill.

DISABILITY AMENDMENTS OF 1980

Summary of Disability Insurance Provisions

H.R. 3236 as Approved by the Conference Committee and Signed Into Law—Public Law 96-265

I. WORK INCENTIVE SECTIONS

LIMIT ON FAMILY DISABILITY INSURANCE BENEFITS (SEC. 101)

Prior Law.—The social security disability insurance program (DI) determines the amount of benefits payable based on an individual's previous earnings. The formula for determining disability benefits is the same as for retirement benefits. The benefit level is arrived at by applying a formula to the average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) the individual had over the course of a period of years which approximates the number of years in which he could reasonably have been expected to be in the work force. For a retired worker, this period is equal to the number of years between the ages of 21 and 62. For a disabled worker, the number of years of earnings to be averaged ends with the year before he became disabled. In either case, the resulting averaging period is reduced by 5.

The basic benefit amount (the primary insurance amount—PIA) may be increased if the worker has a spouse or dependent children. Benefits for the spouse are payable if the spouse is over age 62 or if the spouse is caring for minor or disabled children. Benefits for children are payable if they are under age 18 or are disabled (as a result of a disability which existed in childhood) or if they are full-time students over age 18 but under age 22. The combined benefit for the worker and all dependents is limited by a family maximum provision to no more than 150 to 188 percent of the worker's benefit alone.

Conference Action.—The bill limits total DI family benefits to the smaller of 85 percent of the worker's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) or 150 percent of the worker's primary insurance amount (PIA). Under the provision, no family benefit would be reduced below 100 percent of the worker's primary benefit.

Scope and Effective Date.—The limitation is effective only with respect to individuals who first become entitled to benefits on or after July 1, 1980.

REDUCTION IN DROPOUT YEARS (SEC. 102)

Prior Law.—Disabled workers are allowed to exclude up to 5 years of low earnings in averaging their earnings. However, at least 2 years of earnings must be used in the benefit computation.

(1)
Conference Action.—The bill excluded years of low earnings in the computation of disability benefits according to the following schedule:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Workers age at disablement</th>
<th>Number of dropout years</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Under 27</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27 through 31</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32 through 36</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37 through 41</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>42 through 46</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47 and over</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>

The provision also would allow a disabled worker to drop out additional low years of earnings, if in those years there was a child (of such individual or his or her spouse) under age 3 living in the same household substantially throughout each such year and the disabled worker did not engage in any employment in each such year. In no case would the number of such dropout years exceed 3. Further, dropout years for periods of childcare would be provided only to the extent that the combined number of childcare dropout years and dropout years provided under the regular schedule do not exceed 3.

Scope and Effective Date.—The new schedule of dropout years applies to disabled workers who first become entitled to benefits after June 1980. The provision continues to apply to a worker until his death unless before age 62 he ceases to be entitled to disability benefits for 12 continuous months.

Elimination of Second Medicare Waiting Period (Sec. 103)

Prior Law.—Beneficiaries of disability insurance (DI) must wait 24 consecutive months after becoming entitled to benefits to become eligible for medicare. If a beneficiary loses his eligibility and then becomes disabled again, another 24 consecutive month waiting period is required before medicare coverage is resumed.

Conference Action.—The bill eliminates the requirement that a person who becomes disabled a second time must undergo another 24 consecutive month waiting period after becoming reentitled to benefits before medicare coverage is available to him. The amendment applies to workers becoming disabled again within 60 months, and to disabled widows or widowers and adult disabled since childhood becoming disabled again within 84 months.

The conferees accepted the provisions of the House and Senate bills and agreed that the provision would be effective 6 months after enactment.

Extension of Medicare for an Additional 36 Months (Sec. 104)

Prior Law.—Medicare coverage ends when disability insurance benefits cease.

Conference Action.—The bill extends medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered. (The first 12 months of the 36 month period is part of the new 24 month trial work period. See section 303.) The new provision applies to disability beneficiaries whose disabilities have not been determined to have ceased prior to the 6th month after enactment.
FUNDING FOR VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES FOR DISABLED INDIVIDUALS

Prior Law.—Reimbursement from social security trust funds is now provided to State vocational rehabilitation agencies for the cost of vocational rehabilitation services furnished to disability insurance beneficiaries. The purpose of the payment is to accrue savings to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating the maximum number of beneficiaries into productive activity. The total amount of the funds that may be made available for such reimbursement may not, in any year, exceed 1½ percent of the social security disability benefits paid in the previous year.

The House bill eliminated, effective for fiscal 1982, trust fund financing for rehabilitation services but provided trust fund reimbursement for the Federal share (80 percent) to the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury and to the States for twice the State share (20 percent X 2) of rehabilitation services which result in the performance by a rehabilitated individual of substantial gainful activity (SGA) for a continuous period of 12 months or which result in employment for 12 consecutive months in a sheltered workshop. The Senate bill struck the House provision.

Conference Action.—No change from prior law.

The conferees stated that they anticipate that the new method of allocating trust fund money to the States for rehabilitation of social security clients which was recently adopted administratively will continue and be intensified in the future. This method generally allocates the trust fund money based on the relative number of social security beneficiaries each State rehabilitates with earnings at the substantial gainful activity (SGA) level, provided that no State loses more than one-third of its previous year’s funding. Currently, rehabilitation is considered to have been achieved when the client has been employed for 2 months. The managers expect that the measure of success, i.e., rehabilitation at the SGA level, will be modified as soon as administratively feasible so that the allocation formula will be based on the State’s relative share of the total number of social security clients employed as a result of rehabilitation for no less than 6 months (although not necessarily consecutive) with earnings at the SGA level throughout the period. Furthermore, the managers expect that steps will be taken to develop procedures which will eventually result in the allocation being based on the State’s relative share of total benefit terminations brought about by vocational rehabilitation services.

The conferees instruct the Social Security Administration and the Rehabilitation Services Administration recently transferred to the Department of Education to continue to explore the possibility of developing more timely and effective methods of measuring performance in trust fund rehabilitations. The results of these efforts should be promptly communicated to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees.

TERMINATION OF BENEFITS FOR PERSONS IN VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION PROGRAMS (SEC. 301)

Prior Law.—Under prior law an individual is not entitled to DI and SSI benefits after he has medically recovered, regardless of whether he has completed the program of vocational rehabilitation in which he has been enrolled.

Conference Action.—The bill provides that DI benefits will continue after medical recovery for persons in approved vocational rehabilitation plans or programs, if the Commissioner of Social Security determines that continuing in those plans or programs will increase the probability of beneficiaries going off the rolls permanently. The provision is effective 6 months after enactment.

TREATMENT OF EXTRAORDINARY WORK EXPENSES IN DETERMINING SGA (SEC. 302)

Prior Law.—Regulations issued under prior law provide that in determining whether an individual is performing substantial gainful activity (SGA), extraordinary expenses incurred by the individual in connection with his employment and because of his impairment are to be deducted to the extent that such expenses exceed what his expenses would be if he were not impaired. Regulations specify that expenses for medication or equipment which the individual requires to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions may not be considered work related, and may not be deducted even if they are also essential to the individual's employment.

Conference Action.—The bill provides for a deduction from earnings of costs to the individual of extraordinary impairment-related work expenses, attendant care costs, and the cost of medical devices, equipment, and drugs and services (necessary to control an impairment) for purposes of determining whether an individual is engaging in substantial gainful activity, regardless of whether these items are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions. The Secretary is given the authority to specify in regulations the type of care, services and items that may be deducted, and the amounts to be deducted shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe. The provision is effective six months after enactment.

EXTENSION OF THE TRIAL WORK PERIOD (SEC. 303)

Prior Law.—Under the DI and SSI programs, when an individual completes a 9 month trial work period, and then in a subsequent month performs work constituting substantial gainful activity (SGA), his benefits are terminated. He obtains benefits for the first month in which he performs SGA (after the trial work period has ended) and for the 2 months immediately following. Under the DI program, widows and widowers are not entitled to a trial work period.

Conference Action.—The bill extends, in effect, the trial work period under the DI program to 24 months. In the last 12 months of the 24 month period the individual would not receive cash benefits while engaging in substantial work activity, but would automatically be reinstated to active benefit status if earnings fall below the SGA level.

The bill also provides that the same trial work period would be applicable to disabled widows and widowers (who are not permitted a trial work period at all under existing law). The provision would be effective 6 months after enactment.
WORK INCENTIVE AND OTHER DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS UNDER THE DISABILITY INSURANCE PROGRAM (SEC. 505)

Prior Law.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services has no authority to waive requirements under titles II, XVI, and XVIII of the Social Security Act to conduct experimental or demonstration projects.

Conference Action.—The bill authorizes waiver of benefit requirements of the DI and medicare programs to allow demonstration projects by the Social Security Administration to test ways in which to stimulate a return to work by disability beneficiaries. It also authorizes waivers in the case of other disability insurance demonstration projects which SSA wished to undertake, such as study of the effects of lengthening the trial work period, altering the 24 month waiting period for medicare benefits, altering the way the disability program is administered, earlier referral of beneficiaries for rehabilitation, and greater use of private contractors, employers and others to develop, perform or otherwise stimulate new forms of rehabilitation. The bill requires an interim report by January 1, 1983 and final one by 5 years after the date of enactment. The authority would be applicable to both applicants and beneficiaries, and would be effective upon enactment.

II. PROGRAM ACCOUNTABILITY

FEDERAL REVIEW OF STATE AGENCY DECISIONS—REVERSAL OF DECISIONS (SEC. 804 (c))

Prior Law.—Under current administrative procedures of the Social Security Administration, approximately 5 percent of initial disability claims adjudicated by the State disability determination units are reviewed by Federal examiners. This review occurs after the benefit has been awarded, i.e., it is a postadjudicative review. This is on a sample basis and varies from 2 percent in the larger States to 25 percent in the smaller States.

Under prior law, the Secretary had authority to reverse favorable decisions with respect to DI beneficiaries.

Conference Action.—The bill requires Federal preadjudicative review of DI allowances according to the following schedule:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Decisions made in fiscal year:</th>
<th>Minimum percent reviewed</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1981</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1982</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1983 and thereafter</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Secretary would be given the authority to reverse decisions that are unfavorable to DI claimants.

The conferees note that the percentage requirements for pre-adjudicative review are nationwide requirements and that the Social Security Administration will determine whether they should be higher or lower on an individual State basis. The conferees also instruct the Secretary to report to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees by January 1982 concerning the potential effects on processing time and on the cost effectiveness of the requirement of the 65 percent review for fiscal year 1983, and thereafter.

Effective Date.—Upon enactment.
PERIODIC REVIEW OF DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS (SEC. 811)

Prior Law.—Administrative procedures now provide that a disability beneficiary's continued eligibility for benefits be reexamined only under a limited number of circumstances (i.e., where there is a reasonable expectation that the beneficiary will show medical improvement).

Conference Action.—The bill provides that there will be a review of the status of disabled beneficiaries whose disability has not been determined to be permanent at least once every three years. Cases where the initial prognosis shows the probability that the condition will be permanent would be subject to review at such times as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

Effective Date.—January 1982.

CLOSING THE RECORD—LIMIT ON PROSPECTIVE EFFECT OF APPLICATION (SEC. 306)

Prior Law.—Prior law provides that if an applicant satisfies the requirements for benefits at any time before a final decision of the Secretary is made, the application is deemed to be filed in the first month for which the requirements are met. One consequence of this provision is that the claimant is afforded a continuing opportunity to establish eligibility until all levels of administrative review have been exhausted, i.e., until there is a final decision. Thus, a claimant can continue to introduce new evidence at each step of the appeals process, even if it refers to the worsening of a condition or to a new condition that did not exist at the time of the initial application. This is frequently referred to as the "floating application" process.

Conference Action.—The conference bill provides for foreclosing the introduction of new evidence with respect to a previously filed application after the decision is made at the administrative law judge (ALJ) hearing, but would not affect remand authority to remedy an insufficiently documented case or other defect.

Effective Date.—Upon enactment.

OWN MOTION REVIEW OF ALJ DECISIONS (SEC. 304 (g))

Prior Law.—After his claim has been denied by the State agency initially and on reconsideration, an applicant has the opportunity for a hearing before an administrative law judge (ALJ). In the past there had also been fairly extensive review of ALJ allowances and denials through own-motion review by the Appeals Council as authorized by the Administrative Procedure Act and the regulations of the Secretary. This own-motion review has almost been eliminated in recent years.

Conference Action.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services would be required to implement a program of reviewing, on his motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges as a result of hearings under section 221(d) of the Social Security Act (the disability determination provisions). He would be required to report to Congress by January 1, 1982, on the progress of this program.

The conferees state that the report should indicate the percentage of ALJ decisions being reviewed and describe the criteria for selecting decisions to be reviewed. The conferees are concerned that there is no formal ongoing review of social security hearing decisions. The variance in reversal rates among ALJ’s and the high overall ALJ reversals of determinations made at the prehearing level indicate that there is a need for such review. The conferees recognize that, at the hearing level, the claimant appears for the first time before a decisionmaker and additional evidence is generally submitted. The conferees also recognize that there have been significant changes in State agency denial rates and that in certain areas the ALJ’s and State agencies have been operating with different policy guidelines. The report should identify the effects of these factors as well as any differences in standards applied by ALJ’s.

Effective Date.—Upon enactment.

LIMITATION ON COURT REMAND (SEC. 307)

Prior Law.—Prior to filing an answer in a court appeal of the final administrative decision, the Secretary of Health and Human Services may, on his own motion, remand the case back to an ALJ. Similarly, under prior law the court itself, on its own motion or on motion of the claimant, has discretionary authority “for good cause” to remand the case back to the ALJ.

Conference Action.—The bill limits the absolute authority of the Secretary to remand court cases. It requires that such remands would be discretionary with the court upon a showing by the Secretary of good cause. A second provision relates to remands by the court. The bill provides that a remand would be authorized only on a showing that there is new evidence which is material, and that there was good cause for failure to incorporate it into the record in a prior proceeding.

Effective Date.—Upon enactment.

INFORMATION TO ACCOMPANY SECRETARY’S DECISION (SEC. 305)

Prior Law.—There is no statutory provision setting a specific amount of information to explain the decision made on a claim for benefits.

Conference Action.—The bill requires that notices of disability denial to DI and SSI claimants shall use a statement of the case in understandable language and include: “A discussion of the evidence, and the Secretary’s determination and the reason(s) upon which it is based.”

Effective Date.—The provision is effective for decisions made on or after the first day of the 13th month following the month of enactment.

TIME LIMITS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS (SEC. 308)

Prior Law.—There is no limit on the time that may be taken by the Social Security Administration to adjudicate cases at any stage of adjudication. Several Federal district courts have imposed such limits at the hearing level and numerous bills have been introduced to set such limits at various levels of adjudication.

Conference Action.—The bill requires the Secretary to submit a report to Congress recommending appropriate time limits for the various levels of adjudication of title II cases. In recommending the limits, the Secretary was to give adequate consideration to both speed and quality of adjudication.

Effective Date.—The report is due on July 1, 1980. However, this report has not yet been submitted by the Secretary.

SCOPE OF FEDERAL COURT REVIEW—FINDINGS OF FACTS

Prior Law.—In Social Security appeals, the U.S. District Court shall have power to enter upon the pleadings and transcript of the record, a judgment affirming, modifying, or reversing the decision of the Secretary, with or without remanding the case for a hearing. The findings of the Secretary as to any fact, if supported by substantial evidence, shall be conclusive.

Senate Bill.—The Senate bill modified the scope of Federal court review so that the Secretary's determinations with respect to facts in Title II and Title XVI would be conclusive, unless found to be arbitrary and capricious. The substantial evidence requirement would be deleted.

Conference Action.—The conference deleted the provisions of the Senate bill because of the uncertainty as to the ramifications of the rule proposed and the concern that the administrative process is not operating with the degree of creditability which would justify elimination of the "substantial evidence rule." Appeals Council own-motion review of ALJ decisions eventually should enhance the validity of the process and lead to the need for less reliance on judicial review. The conferees believe that the National Commission on Social Security should examine the disability adjudication and appeals process generally and deal specifically with such elements as the Administration proposals for judicial review in addition to alternative approaches such as a Disability Court.

The conference committee would like to reiterate what both committees stated in their reports on P.L. 94-202 that the courts should interpret the substantial evidence rule with strict adherence to its principles, since the practice of some courts in making de novo factual determinations could result in very serious problems for the Federal judiciary and the social security programs.

III. PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION

ADMINISTRATION BY STATE AGENCIES (SEC. 304(a)(b)(e)(f) AND (h))

Prior Law.—Prior law provides for disability determinations to be performed by State agencies under an agreement negotiated by the State and the Secretary of Health and Human Services. Unlike the grant-in-aid programs, the relationship is contractual and State laws and practices are controlling with regard to many administrative aspects. State agencies make the determinations based on guidelines provided by the Department and the costs of making the determinations are paid from the disability trust fund in the case of DI claimants, or from general revenues in the case of SSI claimants, by way of advancements of funds of reimbursements to the contracting State agency. Present agreements allow both the State and the Secretary to terminate the agreement. The States generally may terminate with 12 months' notice and the Secretary may terminate if he finds the State has not complied substantially with any provision of the agreement.

Conference Action.—The bill requires that disability determinations be made by State agencies according to regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary. It requires the Secretary to issue regulations specifying, in such detail as he deemed appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function "in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program through the United States." Certain operational areas were cited as "examples" of what the regulations may specify. These include such items as the nature of the administrative structure, the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, performance criteria and fiscal control procedures. The bill also provides that this shall not be "construed to authorize the Secretary to take any action except pursuant to law or to regulations pursuant to law."

The bill also provides that if the Secretary finds that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations consistent with his regulations, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his findings, terminate State administration and make the determinations himself. The provision also allows for termination by the State. The State would be required to continue to make disability determinations for not less than 180 days after notifying the Secretary of its intent to terminate. Thereafter, the Secretary would be required to make the determinations.

Effective Date.—The bill provides that these changes will be effective beginning with the 12th month following the month in which the bill is enacted. Any State that has an agreement on the effective date of the amendment will be deemed to have given affirmative notice of wishing to make disability determinations under the regulations. Thereafter, it may give notice of termination which shall be effective no earlier than 180 days after the notice is given.

PROTECTION OF STATE EMPLOYEES (SEC. 804 (b) AND (i))

Prior Law.—Under provisions of the Federal Personnel Manual, when the Federal Government takes over a function being carried out by a State, the Federal agency in its discretion may retain the State employees in their positions.

Conference Action.—The bill requires that if the Secretary of Health and Human Services assumes the disability determination function he must assure preference to State agency employees who are capable of performing duties in the disability determination process over any other individual in filling new Federal positions. However, the Secretary would not be required to provide a hiring preference to the administrator, deputy administrator, or assistant administrator (or comparable position) in the event that the Secretary found it necessary to assume the functions of a State agency. Although he would not be required to provide a preference to persons in those positions, he could do so if he determines that such action is appropriate.
In addition, the Secretary would be prohibited from assuming the State functions until the Secretary of Labor determined that, with respect to any displaced State employees who were not hired by the Secretary, the State had made “fair and equitable arrangements to protect the interests of employees so displaced.” The protective arrangements would have to include only those provisions provided under all applicable Federal, State, and local statutes, including the preservation of rights and benefits (including continuation of pension rights and benefits) under existing collective-bargaining agreements, the continuation of collective-bargaining rights, the assignment of affected employees to other jobs or to retraining programs, the protection of individuals against a worsening of their positions with respect to employment, the protection of health benefits and other fringe benefits, and the provision of severance pay.

The bill also requires that the Secretary submit to the Congress by July 1, 1980, a detailed plan on how he expected to assume the functions of a State disability determination unit when this became necessary. The plan should assume the uninterrupted operation of the disability determination function and the utilization of the best qualified personnel to carry out that function. If any amendment of Federal law or regulation was required to carry out such plan, a recommendation for such amendment is to be included in the plan for action, for submittal to the Congress. The report has not yet been transmitted to the Congress.

Effective Date.—Same as for the provision for Administration by State agencies.

PAYMENT FOR EXISTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE (SEC. 309)

Prior Law.—Authority does not now exist to pay physicians and other potential sources of medical evidence for medical information already in existence when a claimant files an application for disability insurance benefits. Such authority does exist in the SSI program.

Conference Action.—The bill provides that any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employment of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence requested and required by the Secretary for making determinations of disability, shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence.

Effective Date.—Six months after enactment.

PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN TRAVEL EXPENSES (SEC. 310)

Prior Law.—Explicit authority does not exist under the Social Security Act to make payments from the trust funds to individuals to cover travel expenses incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations, and to applicants, their representatives, and any reasonably necessary witnesses for travel expenses incurred to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges. Such authority now is being provided annually under appropriation acts.

Conference Action.—The bill provides permanent authority for payment of the travel expenses of individuals (and their representatives in the case of reconsideration and ALJ hearings) resulting from participation in various phases of the adjudication process. The amount available for air travel normally shall not exceed coach fare.

Effective Date.—Upon enactment.

IV. PROVISIONS FOR TERMINALLY ILL (SEC. 506)

Prior Law.—Under the DI program the waiting period is the earliest period of 5 consecutive months in which an individual is under a disability. An individual is determined disabled if he is unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or is expected to last for not less than 12 months. If an individual becomes disabled and applies for benefits in the same month, the waiting period will be satisfied 5 months after the month of application. With all other conditions of eligibility having been met, benefits will be due for the sixth month after the month in which the disabling condition begins, and will be paid on the third day of the seventh month.

The waiting period cannot begin until the individual is insured for benefits (i.e., the individual has satisfied the quarters of coverage requirements). If the disabling condition begins before an individual is insured for benefits, the waiting period can begin only with the first month in which the individual has insured status.

If a worker is applying for benefits after having been entitled to DI benefits previously (or had a previous period of disability) within 5 years prior to the current application, the waiting period requirement does not have to be met again.

Senate Bill.—The Senate bill eliminated the waiting period for persons with a terminal illness, i.e., a medically determinable physical impairment which is expected to result in the death of such individual within the next 12 months and which has been confirmed by two physicians in accordance with the appropriate regulations.

The provision was to be effective for applications filed in or after the month of enactment, or for disability decisions not yet rendered by the Social Security Administration or the courts prior to the month of enactment.

Benefits would be payable beginning October 1980.

Conference Action.—The conferees did not agree to the Senate provision eliminating the waiting period for persons with a terminal illness, but in lieu thereof agreed to a provision authorizing up to $2 million a year to be used by SSA to participate in a demonstration project which is currently being conducted within the Department of Health and Human Services. The purpose of the project is to study the impact on the terminally ill of provisions of the disability programs administered by the Social Security Administration. It is expected that this demonstration authority and the resulting reports which will be made on demonstration projects will provide the information necessary to enable the Congress to amend the Social Security Act so as to provide the kinds of services most appropriate for individuals who are suffering from terminal illnesses.
Legislative History of H.R. 3236 (96th Congress) and Other Disability Bills Before the Social Security Subcommittee in Previous Congresses—Congressional Research Service Report

The following background paper and legislative history was prepared by David Koitz, Education and Public Welfare Division, Congressional Research Service, Library of Congress. It is a portion of a larger report prepared for Congressman Sam M. Gibbons, Chairman, Subcommittee on Oversight, Committee on Ways and Means, as background material on some hearings that the Subcommittee intends to conduct on work disincentive effects of income maintenance. It should be noted that since this paper deals solely with work disincentives it does not discuss the so-called program accountability provisions of H.R. 3236 and earlier bills. These would be provisions such as the reinstatement of preadjudicative review, review of persons on the rolls with nonpermanent disabilities, the appeals process, and the provisions relating to the State agencies which adjudicate disability.

WORK DISINCENTIVES AND DISABILITY INSURANCE

INTRODUCTION

The social security disability insurance program has been plagued by a history of underfinancing. Within 5 years after enactment in 1956, the Board of Trustees of the social security programs was forecasting that the DI program would not have sufficient resources at some future date to meet fully its benefit obligations. Over the 23-year life of the program, 1957 to 1979, the trustees reported a long-run financing deficiency on 15 separate occasions. As a result, on some six occasions Congress has had to take steps to increase the amount of tax revenues going to the program. Whether the program has been the victim of abuse or misuse by many persons finding a way to avoid work or simply the victim of a stream of inaccurate estimates of caseload and cost is difficult to answer. Nonetheless, coupling this situation with the fact that the program is supposed to provide cash benefits to a segment of the population that at least is perceived to be out of work only because of the existence of a severely disabling condition, the question of whether the program or aspects thereof inhibit work is a constant concern. An almost automatic reaction by many first-time observers of the program is to inquire whether the people benefiting from it are really unable to work.

Similar concerns are not expressed about those receiving social security retirement and survivor benefits, stemming from the view that the retirement beneficiaries and most of the survivor beneficiaries are older and no longer in their prime working years. Perhaps even there is the view that these beneficiaries are receiving benefits that are simply a matter of right when one reaches a certain advanced age. Disability, on the other hand, frequently carries the image of a younger worker forced from his job by an accident or illness leaving him with a limiting physical or mental condition. And with it, the perception that with medical care, retraining, possibly the use of a prosthetic device or the like, the individual can be restored to some sort of productive and remunerative capacity.

While this is certainly not an unreasonable perspective, it has to be framed by some understandings of the nature of the program. What was this program expected to accomplish? What has it done for 25 years? With a definition as tough as it has, at least in law, one senses that only the severest of disabled people were to be entitled to benefits. It is not only necessary for an individual to have a severely limiting impairment, but the definition requires that the individual must be unable to do almost any form of work that might exist within several regions of the country.

Certainly with this definition, it is reasonable to ask whether more than a small number of people in society could be so impaired that they might be eligible for benefits. One can imagine that even persons with a complete loss of body motion, sight, hearing, with grossly impaired mental faculties, or with other severely limiting conditions can do some form of work having remunerative value. Society must have the wherewithal to find some way of fitting these people with marketable skills or otherwise returning them to the labor force. Coupled with this view perhaps is the feeling that only a relatively small number of persons—maybe only a few hundred thousand—should be on the DI rolls, rather than the nearly 3 million currently receiving benefits. Perhaps the program even should be viewed only as a temporary stopping-off point while impaired individuals attempt to relocate themselves in the labor force, rather than as a permanent source of income until retirement age or death as it now is for most of those who join it.

But such a perspective ignores the most obvious of intentions in starting the program—namely the creation of an earlier and more adequate retirement benefit under social security. One of the first steps taken by the Congress in the social security area with regard to disability was to minimize the reduction or loss of benefits suffered by certain older workers who, because they became disabled prior to reaching retirement age, had periods of reduced or no earnings included in their earnings records for purposes of computing retirement benefits. The 1954 Social Security Amendments included a so-called “disability freeze” provision under which periods of extended total disability that occurred before age 65 would be excluded from the earnings records of retired workers (the minimum age for social security retirement benefits then was 65). In authorizing the actual payment of disability benefits 2 years later, concern principally for the older workers once again was reflected by the limitation of entitlement to DI benefits only to workers who were at least 50 years of age. The Report to the House of Representatives from the Committee on Ways and Means in 1955 on H.R. 7225 states that:

Your committee believes that retirement protection for the 70 million workers under old-age and survivors insurance is incomplete because it does not now provide a lower retirement age for those who are demonstrably retired by reason of a permanent and total disability. We recommend the closing of this serious gap in the old-age and survivors insurance system by providing for the payment of retirement benefits at age 50 to those regular workers who are forced into premature retirement because of disability.
Moreover, even with the removal of the "age-50 minimum" limitation in 1960 the program's population has remained primarily one of older workers. The average age of a DI beneficiary was between 58 and 59 in the early years of the program. In 1976, it was between 51 and 52. Some 69 percent of new awards made in 1976 went to persons 50 years of age or older. Some 29 percent went to persons 60 years of age or older.

As might be expected with persons at these ages, the types of disorders found are those typically associated with advanced age. More than 30 percent of those awarded benefits in 1976 suffered from heart and circulatory conditions. More than 18 percent had musculoskeletal disorders, the majority of whom had arthritis. Ten percent had cancer and 7 percent had respiratory impairments. Only a little more than 5 percent of awards resulted from impairments caused by accidents.

Also of significance is the fact that more than 30 percent of the persons who joined the DI roll in 1972 died within approximately 5 years after becoming entitled, and another 20 percent or so reached age 65 and were receiving social security retirement benefits.

The basic point is that the young "accident-case" stereotype hardly matches the profile of the typical newly awarded beneficiary. More likely, the newly awarded DI beneficiary resembles an individual receiving early retirement benefits from the social security retirement program.

Presenting a profile of the DI beneficiary in this manner is not intended to suggest that it is futile, given his "likely" age and disorder, to attempt to legislate changes in the program which have the objective of altering the work behavior and attitudes of the disabled, but only to implant the notion that a dramatic change in the size of the program is unlikely to result from efforts to enhance work incentives or reduce work disincentives. By the same token, it is not meant to suggest that concern for the work behavior of the disabled as it relates to the DI program has been overemphasized in recent years or that it represents an over-reaction to the growth which the program has undergone since its inception.

While the typical DI beneficiary is 51 or 52 years of age, some 31 percent of disabled workers who came onto the rolls in 1976 were under age 50. About 15 percent were under age 40. In actual numbers the under age-40 group totaled more than 84,000 persons that year. Moreover, while the introduction of younger disabled workers to the program in 1960 conceivably should have raised the overall recovery rate of the program's recipients, program data show that this did not happen. A recent Social Security Bulletin article points out that legislative changes made in the 1960-67 period increased the proportion of the DI beneficiaries whose disabilities were not likely to be permanent, but the overall recovery rate for the program did not increase accordingly. The article states that the recovery rate per thousand beneficiaries per year rose from less than 10 in 1960 to more than 30 by 1967. However, in later years it declined sharply, reaching about 15 recoveries per thousand beneficiaries in 1976. The article also points out that while the recovery rate was much higher for persons who entered the rolls under the age of 40 than it was for older workers, it was still not a substantial rate. Of the more than 54,000 persons who came onto the benefit rolls and were under age 40 in 1972, less than 11,000 (20 percent) were terminated because of medical recovery or a return to work by the end of 1975. Approximately 37,000 (68 percent) were still receiving benefits. For those who came on in the 40–49 age group, the recovery rate during that 3-year period was only 10 percent, and some 71 percent were still receiving benefits at the end of the period.

Furthermore, the growth of the system cannot be ignored. It has been dramatic, particularly in the early and mid-1970s. In 1960, 4 years after DI benefits were first authorized, 208,000 disabled workers were awarded benefits. In 1978, the number of new awards was 457,000—more than twice the number made in 1960—and this level even reflects a very substantial decline in the new award rate which took place since 1975. Since the inception of the program, nearly 8 million workers joined the benefit roll (1957–79), some 4.8 million of whom came on in the 1970–79 period. In other words, about 60 percent of those who were awarded benefits over the life of the program came on during a period which began 14 years after the program was introduced.

The growth in the number of accessions to the benefit rolls probably was due in large part to a combination of growing public awareness of the program as an early retirement possibility, more liberal benefits, and a number of adverse economic periods when relatively high unemployment either forced or enticed older workers with significant health problems to seek out alternatives to working. In short, factors affecting motivation and attitude toward working and receiving benefits, and not just the physical or mental conditions of the disabled, probably play a major role in explaining why the program is the size that it is.

In summary, interest in developing work incentives in the DI program has to be thought of principally in terms of delaying what might otherwise be early retirement. In so doing, one will probably have to be cautious not to overturn or reverse the basic purposes of providing such benefits in the first place. Some 72 percent of the disabled men and 76 percent of the disabled women on the DI rolls in 1976 were 50 years of age or older. While it might be a reasonable social goal in regard to any program providing benefits to the disabled to find ways to keep people in a productive capacity, either by giving them as few incentives as possible to come on to the benefit rolls or as many incentives as possible to return to work once they do come on, there is a fine line that has to be walked between not simply denying or reducing benefits to persons for whom they were intended and creating adequate work incentives. As the 1955 committee report of the Ways and Means Committee states:

Your committee believes that the covered worker forced into retirement after age 50 and prior to age 65 should not be required to become virtually destitute before he is eligible for benefits as he must under the assistance program. Certainly there is as great a need to protect the resources, the self-reliance, the dignity and the self-respect of disabled workers as of any other group.

We believe that everything possible should be done to support and strengthen vocational rehabilitation. Rehabilitation, where it is possible, is the most economical method of providing for disabled persons and is the most satisfactory for the individual.
Important as rehabilitation is, it cannot be a substitute for disability benefits. Many disabled persons cannot be vocationally rehabilitated and even those who can will need benefits during rehabilitation. The major proportion of the disabled people who can be successfully rehabilitated are those who are only partially disabled or who are under age 50.

Further, while creation of work incentives and removal or work disincentives in the DI program probably would have the largest potential for success among younger disabled workers, it has to be kept in mind that the younger disabled person is not the typical beneficiary of the program—he is in the minority. And while his ability to stay in or return to work is probably the greatest, he already has the most difficult time among DI applicants of getting on to the rolls because of his age, and he has a demonstrated recovery rate which, while relatively low, is already six or seven times greater than that of the age-55 disabled worker.

WORK INCENTIVE ISSUES LEADING UP TO RECENT DI LEGISLATION,

H.R. 8286

Major concerns in the 1970's about the DI program

The recent interest in the Congress in the social security DI program, which has been building up since the mid-1970's has been driven for the most part by three concerns. The first is the rising cost of the system. Originally the program was financed with a combined tax rate on the employee and the employer of .50 percent of taxable earnings. Today, after numerous legislated liberalizations and a period of expansive enrollment the combined tax rate is 1.50 percent of taxable earnings, and it is scheduled to rise in the future to an ultimate combined rate of 2.20 percent of taxable earnings. The annual cost of the system has risen from $3 billion in 1970 to an estimated $16 billion in 1980. The second concern is over repeated allegations that the program has suffered from a number of administrative failings. It is argued that the decision-making process does not always render uniform and equitable decisions from one applicant or beneficiary to another; that oversight of the State disability determination services and Administrative Law Judges (the principal entities making decisions about the existence of a disability) has not been adequate enough to avoid a loosening of the standards of eligibility; and that there has not been enough follow-up of whether a beneficiary's disabling condition continues after he joins the benefit roster. Much of this concern stems from the fact that the Social Security Administration abandoned a number of review and oversight procedures at a time when the number of new beneficiaries surged. Whether there is a cause and effect relationship here or a mere coincidence has been difficult to ascertain; however, most program experts believe that the two situations were related at least partially. Finally, there is the concern that, coupled with rising benefit levels, various aspects of the program have served to be ineffective work incentive measures or have created barriers for the beneficiary to attempt to return to work.

While these concerns overlap a great deal, the growth of the program has probably been the most visible of the three, and the one which has exerted the greatest pressure on the Congress to review the workings.

of the program. As previously mentioned, the legitimacy or illegitimacy of this growth, while having been explored by many, has been difficult to get a handle on since the extent that each possible cause of growth had on the aggregate size of the program is unclear and probably indeterminable, particularly with respect to the growth which took place during the past decade.

It has been suggested that awareness of the existence of the program has risen. Findings from the 1966 and 1972 Surveys of the Disabled conducted by the Office of Research and Statistics of the Social Security Administration show that knowledge of the program's existence did go up during the period between the two surveys. The subsequent introduction of the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program in 1974 may have further increased awareness of the program. There were significant outreach efforts initiated by the Social Security Administration as well as by public interest groups during the first few years of the SSI program intended to let the needy elderly and disabled know of the new program. This coupled with the fact that SSI recipients also may be entitled to DI benefits if they have a sufficient work record, and are required by law to file a dual application for SSI and DI benefits, may have significantly broadened the public's knowledge of the DI program. This is bolstered by the fact that more applications for DI benefits were filed in 1974 than in any other year in the history of the program. The number of DI applications increased from 1,067,500 in 1973 to 1,331,200 in 1974, almost a 25 percent increase. Moreover, the overall level of applications has not fallen significantly from that peak year. Some 1.185 million applications were filed in 1978, and 1.223 million were filed in 1979. Further, the rate of applications per thousand insured workers in the population grew throughout the early 1970s and was still some 30 to 40 percent higher in the post-SSI implementation years than the rate that existed in the 1965 to 1970 period.

However, even though awareness of the program may have grown and may explain in large part the growth in the rolls, other factors affecting the actual decision to apply for benefits also may have played a role in the growth of the program. One such factor is the increase which has occurred in the relative size of benefits. Studies done by the Office of Research and Statistics and the Office of the Actuary of the Social Security Administration point out that not only have benefits increased in absolute terms, but that the benefits have grown in terms of the amount of earnings they replace (i.e., the ratio of the disabled worker's initial benefit to his earnings before becoming disabled). The study by the Office of Research and Statistics showed that the ratio of the average benefit award given to the worker alone to his earnings in the year before the onset of his disability rose from 51 percent in 1969 to 59 percent in 1975. Further, the authors state that "one fourth of those entitled in 1969 had replacement rates of 80 percent of their previous earnings, but in 1975 this proportion had increased to 31 percent. In fact, one-fourth of the newly entitled received more in benefits than they earned while working." The actuaries' study suggested that average replacement rates for a worker with median earnings and having dependents increased from about 60 percent in 1967 to 90 percent in 1976 (as measured by the ratio of benefits received by the worker and his dependents to his after-tax earnings in the year before the onset of disability). While different periods of measure and family composition were used and different replacement values resulted, both studies point to a rather significant increase in replacement rates over the period in which enrollment in the program grew most rapidly.

Another factor which increased the value of the benefits was the introduction of Medicare coverage for DI beneficiaries in 1972. Medicare benefits can be provided after a DI beneficiary has been on the cash benefit rolls for 24 consecutive months. It is estimated that the value of Medicare protection to the DI beneficiary is more than $100 per month on average. While it is very likely that a DI applicant does not put much weight on the value of Medicare at the time he makes his decision to apply, since he will have to wait 24 months to receive such protection anyway, the loss of Medicare coverage to someone who is thinking about leaving the rolls probably poses a very serious threat, particularly if there is any question of whether or not he will be able to obtain health insurance through his employer or privately.

This leads to another possible factor contributing to the growth, namely a decline in the termination rate. A smaller percentage of the total beneficiaries left the roll each year from the inception of the program through at least the late 1970s. Much of this, as might be expected, was due to a decline in the rate of beneficiary deaths and conversions to the retirement rolls as a greater number of younger and less severely disabled persons joined the DI rolls. However, the rate of terminations due to recovery, return to work, or rehabilitation also declined in the late 1960s and early 1970s, contrary to the general intuitive feeling that it should have risen. In 1967, when there were some 1.1 million disabled workers on the rolls, 37,000 beneficiaries recovered and were terminated; yet in 1975, when there were 2 million disabled workers on the rolls only 39,000 recovered. The recovery rate actually declined from 32 persons per thousand beneficiaries in 1967 to a little higher than 16 persons per thousand beneficiaries in 1975. It has been suggested that this was due to the fact that the incentives to leave the benefit roll were eroded by the rising value of cash benefits and the concern about the loss of health insurance protection, coupled with the fear of being unable to adapt to working conditions after making the irrevocable decision to leave the rolls.

Still another possible factor contributing to the growth is that lax administration, and pressure put on the Social Security Administration by the Congress and the public during the early 1970s, to place speed ahead of accuracy in making disability determinations caused an unintended loosening of the strict definition of disability, allowing 6 The 1960 Social Security Amendments authorized DI benefits for disabled workers under age 50. The 1965 Amendments liberalized the definition of disability to permit persons into the program whose disabilities were expected to last as few as 12 months, instead of "indefinitely" as required under prior law.

7 Treitel, loc. cit.
many borderline disabled persons into the program permitting many others who had recovered to stay on. While administrative shortcomings have little to do with program awareness and the propensity on the part of the applicant or beneficiary to apply and recover, a loosening of administrative standards can have an impact on the number of persons who actually are allowed into the program and the number who actually are terminated. It even has been suggested that the relatively obscure degradation of administration over the years has been the real factor accounting for the growth. Prior to 1972, more than 70 percent of the decisions made by the State disability determination agencies to allow applicants into the program were reviewed by Federal examiners to verify their correctness. A sample review process was adopted in 1972 after which only 5 percent of the allowed cases were subjected to this review, and then only after the individual was allowed onto the rolls. In the late 1960s, approximately 10 percent of all beneficiaries were reviewed each year to ascertain whether or not they continued to be eligible. In the first half of the 1970s, only about 4 percent of the beneficiaries on the rolls were investigated annually. Whether these and other measures had a direct link on the size of the rolls is not really clear, but their timing does raise the impression that they were related events. This is bolstered by the fact that increases in the denial rate for new applicants and in the number of persons terminated in recent years have actually brought about a leveling off of the number of persons on the rolls. This shift has been attributed by some program analysts to the Social Security Administration's subtle but distinct emphasis since 1976 on improving the quality of disability decisions.

Legislative momentum in the 94th Congress and 95th Congress

The recent action on the part of Congress in changing the DI program reflects an attempt to deal with some of these problems, at least with those arising from the program's own features. This renewed interest probably began within the Committee on Ways and Means in July 1974 with the issuance of the Committee Staff Report on the Disability Insurance Program. Pointing to "chronic actuarial deficiencies," a time-consuming multi-level appeals process that carried a high reversal rate, removal of a major Federal review procedure from the claims process, and the tendency of the courts to take more and more latitude in determining who suffers from a disability for the purposes of entitlement to DI, the staff report concludes that:

* * * a number of serious problems exist in connection with the operation of the program. Some of these problems, it is hoped, are temporary, particularly those resulting from the strains that the Social Security system has undergone in connection with the implementation of the Supplemental Security Income program and the carrying out of the Social Security Administration's responsibilities under the Black Lung Program. Other problems arise out of the manner in which the program is being administered and out of the law itself. These problems, however, are not beyond the capabilities of the Social Security Administration or the Congress and they can be corrected or at least held within reasonable bounds by assuring that this admittedly complex program is administered efficiently at every level.10

Within 2 years the then new Subcommittee on Social Security of the Ways and Means Committee began exploring some of the problems with the aim of developing remedial legislation where needed. Hearings were held in February 1976 and again in May and June of that year. In September, Congressman James Burke, then Chairman of the subcommittee, introduced a disability reform measure, entitled the "Disability Insurance Amendments of 1976," H.R. 15630. Among other provisions intended to improve the administration of the program, make the definition of disability less subjective and improve the financing of the program, the bill contained a number of work-incentive measures.

The bill provided that the amount of earnings which would cause the termination of disability benefits, the so-called "substantial gainful activity" level, would automatically increase as average wages rise in the economy. It provided for a 24-month "trial work" period before earnings would terminate benefits (in lieu of the 9-month period provided under the existing law) and for the gradual reduction of benefits during the trial work period on the same basis as was done for retired people. It further eliminated the second 2-year waiting period for Medicare benefits for disabled workers who went off the rolls but whose disability recurred and who then reapplied for benefits. And finally it imposed a limit on the benefits of young disabled workers—and survivors of deceased workers—so that they could not get more in benefits than an individual retiring at age 65 who had the maximum wage base his entire working life. All these provisions were aimed at work-incentive problems perceived to interfere with beneficiary motivation in seeking work and engaging in rehabilitation.

Although not described as a work-incentive measure, the bill further provided for a limit on trust fund rehabilitation expenditures at the 1976 level with subsequent increases in future years only to adjust for inflation. This was a recommendation of the GAO which felt that this limit was desirable until such time that the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare could demonstrate that additional funds would be expended effectively in bringing about savings to the trust funds through terminations resulting from rehabilitation.

This new proposal was based in part on a 1976 GAO report which suggested that the benefit to the trust funds of providing separate rehabilitation funding for social security clients had declines substantially in the early 1970s when compared to the cost of rehabilitation. It was also based on the rather limited overall success that the separate funding procedure had attained over its first 9 years of availability, 1965 to 1974. According to a committee staff document, only about 20,000 beneficiaries had been terminated from the benefit roll as a result of rehabilitation during that period. The amount of funding provided had exceeded $200 million. Further, the number of successes represented a very small fraction of the more than 3.5 million disabled workers who had joined the DI roster during those years.

While no action was taken by the subcommittee on the bill during the remainder of that session of Congress, the bill did become a forerunner of a number of DI bills taken up by the subcommittee over the next 3 years.

Congressman Burke resubmitted his bill the following year, the Disability Insurance Amendments of 1977, H.R. 8076. Like the preceding bill, the general thrust of the new bill was to improve the administration of the program and enhance work incentives. This bill contained most of the same work incentive measures that were contained in H.R. 15630 of the 94th Congress, with four notable exceptions. First the “cap” limiting DI benefits to the maximum level payable to an age-65 retiree was dropped. That cap was aimed primarily at the situation in which a younger disabled worker could receive substantially higher benefits than his older counterpart because of the way earnings were counted for purposes of computing benefits. The differential was caused by the fact that the older worker would have a longer period of earnings used in the computation of benefits than the younger worker. Generally this resulted in the inclusion of a number of low years of earnings from the early part of the older worker’s career in his average earnings computation, which in turn tended to deflate his benefit amount. The younger worker, i.e., below age 47 at the time of entitlement to benefits, had fewer years of earnings used to compute his benefits, and the years that were used tended to be more recent than those of his older counterpart and thus higher because wage levels were generally higher when he worked. Older workers also were limited by the fact that in the past the social security wage base had not kept pace with wage growth generally particularly in the 1950s and 1960s. The wage base had been relatively low in comparison to that of recent years and thus did not allow the older worker in some instances to fully reflect his earnings in the benefit computation, at least not as fully as that of the younger worker.

The H.R. 15630 “cap” would have lessened the differential at least for the older and younger workers at higher earnings levels (i.e., those who had earnings at the social security wage base), by precluding the younger worker whose benefits were based on earnings from a period of time shorter than that used by the older worker from receiving a higher benefit than would be payable to the worker retiring at age 65 who had earnings at the wage base level or higher throughout his career.

It was recognized that the “cap” was less than a perfect solution to the overall problem of potentially excessive benefit levels, for it did little with respect to high earnings replacement which appeared to be occurring at moderate- and low-earnings levels as well as at the higher levels. However, it did serve to draw attention to at least one situation of potentially high benefits being paid out from the DI program.

With the introduction in the spring of 1977 of the “wage-indexing” decoupling measures as part of the Carter Administration’s proposal to correct the financial problems of the social security system as a whole, the H.R. 15630 “cap” was no longer seen as being necessary. One of the “wage-indexing” measures called for the indexing of earnings histories. This meant that the year-to-year earnings used to compute average monthly earnings would be increased to reflect the earnings level that they would represent if they had been earned today. Workers having a similar work background, but who worked at different points in their lives, would have roughly the same amount of earnings used in the computation of their average earnings and thus they would have similar benefit amounts. It would not matter whether the period of their covered earnings occurred recently or many years prior—their earnings would be treated as if they had been earned recently for benefit computation purposes. This change combined with other changes in the benefit formula had the effect of “leveling down” the DI benefits of younger workers, so that they would be more in line with those of older disabled workers and those payable under the retirement program.

This potential lessening of the benefit differential between the younger and older disabled worker by the decoupling measures was recognized in H.R. 8076 by the exclusion of the “cap” from the bill. However, in the introduction of the bill the Chairman remarked that it was still unclear whether the decoupling measures also would be adequate enough to avoid all situations of high earnings replacement from continuing to occur in the future, and it was suggested that the Social Security Administration might continue to examine the incidence of high replacement rates under the new benefit formula being adopted with the decoupling measures.

The second change made in H.R. 8076 from the “work incentive” measures proposed the previous year was the exclusion of the two provisions affecting the maximum amount of earnings a disabled worker could have without causing a termination of benefits. The first such provision in H.R. 15630 was to allow this maximum level, referred to by law as the substantial gainful activity level, to rise in the future at the same rate that average wages rise in the economy. The second change would have allowed a DI beneficiary to have earnings above this maximum level while he was in a “trial work period” and still retain benefit status, but the amount of benefits received would be reduced by $1 for every $2 he had in earnings above the maximum threshold. These provisions were excluded from H.R. 8076 because of the lack of any research evidence suggesting that they might be effective work motivation measures and because of potential high costs. In fact, the little evidence that did exist suggested that alterations that had been made to the substantial gainful activity threshold over the years of the program, which had been raised incrementally from $100 a month in the program’s early years to $200 in 1977, had no effect on the work effort of DI beneficiaries. The bill did include, however, a one-time increase in the substantial gainful activity level to $250 and a new demonstration authority requiring the Social Security Administration to carry out projects designed to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of possible new methods of treating the work activities of disabled beneficiaries, including such methods as reducing their benefits gradually because of earnings.

The third change incorporated in H.R. 8076 was the exclusion of the limitation allowing increases in trust fund expenditures for rehabilitation only to the extent that they reflected increases in inflation, and the substitution of a new provision altering the way trust fund rehabilitation funds were to be distributed to the State rehabilitation agencies. At that time, the allocation of trust fund rehabilitation money to the States was based on the relative size of the disabled population in each State. The new provision would have altered this distribution somewhat by linking a portion of the overall money that would be made available for social security clients to the number of beneficiaries actually terminated from the benefit rolls as a result of each State's rehabilitation efforts. It was also intended to simplify the existing rehabilitation financing provisions.

There are three separate potential sources of funding for State rehabilitation activities relating to social security clients—the Basic State Rehabilitation Grants programs, the social security trust funds, and the supplemental security income program. The bill would have consolidated the trust fund money into the Basic State Rehabilitation Grants program, by raising the overall authorization level of that program and eliminating most of the trust fund financing. The new money added to the Basic State Grants authorization would have been distributed on the same basis as the existing authorization for that program—i.e., more or less a combination of population and per capita income—coupled with a required minimum 20 percent match by the State. Trust fund reimbursements would occur only where an actual termination from the benefit rolls was brought about for a minimum of 12 consecutive months as a result of the rehabilitation services provided to the beneficiary. Moreover, the amount of this payment was to be equal to the State's share of the costs of providing such services to the terminated beneficiary (usually 20 percent of such costs), plus a bonus amount equal to another 20 percent of those costs. In effect, the State agency was to receive 80 percent of the costs of the services it provided to any social security client from the Basic Grants program (a level equal to the Federal reimbursement it received on all other types of clients), and if the services resulted in the client's termination from the social security benefit rolls, the trust funds would pay for the State's share of the costs of rehabilitating that client plus another 20 percent. The total amount of reimbursement for a terminated beneficiary would have been equal to 120 percent of the costs.

In contrast to the temporary change incorporated in H.R. 15630, this provision was intended to be a permanent change.12

A fourth change incorporated in H.R. 8076 from the preceding bill was the addition of a provision to continue Medicare coverage for a period of 3 years after cash benefits cease. Coupled with the provisions in the bill to provide a DI beneficiary with a 12-month suspended entitlement period following the termination of cash benefits, this provision was intended to remove what was perceived to be a significant disincentive for DI beneficiaries to leave the benefit rolls—i.e., the finality of the benefit loss. This had been a recommendation made in 1975 by a committee of Federal and State disability/rehabilitation experts. Their report stated that:

For the severely disabled who have chronic disorders, Medicare or Medicaid benefits represent a significant contribution to a beneficiary's income and hence to his sense of economic security and health maintenance. Also, effective private or other health insurance may not generally be available to the severely disabled individual. Potential and active VR clients, faced with the prospect or opportunity for re-employment which would eventually result not only in loss of monthly benefits but loss of health benefits as well, are likely to, and do, weight the total economic values of the monetary and health benefits before accepting job placement. This issue becomes most acute and apparent when the employment target will produce wages of only slightly more than the SGA (substantial gainful

This was done under current law.
activity] level. Even when the Federal minimum wage (approximately $4,200 yearly) is applicable to the job opportunity, the combination of total benefit amount and health benefits may well exceed the potential earnings from work. Such a major disincentive was not envisioned when the original Title II Benefit Rehabilitation Program was enacted.3

This new provision was to be applicable to all beneficiaries who were terminated from the benefit roll, except for those who recovered medically.

The subcommittee did not take up the Chairman’s new bill immediately following its introduction in June 1977, for the imminent financing problems facing the entire social security system consumed most of the subcommittee’s time during the remainder of the year. However, the Social Security Amendments of 1977 (H.R. 9346, enacted in December 1977) authorized among a number of provisions intended to ameliorate those financing problems, the Administration’s wage-indexed decoupling measures—including the provision requiring earnings histories to be indexed. The decoupling measures were directed more at the long-range financing problems of the entire system than at the specific problems associated with the level of benefits being paid out of the DI programs. They changed the benefit computation procedures for almost all forms of social security benefits. Nonetheless, they were expected to have the major residual effect of substantially reducing the benefit differential between the younger and older disabled worker and of generally reducing DI replacement rates. Coupled with the dampening effect caused by the wage-indexing of earnings histories, the new benefit formula incorporated an average 5 percent reduction in benefits for the entire social security system for new beneficiaries over the long run. The average reduction in new DI benefit awards was estimated to be somewhere in the range of 7 to 10 percent, and the average reduction for the new, younger disabled worker was estimated to be even greater, in some cases approaching as much as 30 percent. Moreover, while a transition period to the new system was built into the amendments for the retirement program, allowing persons approaching retirement during the next 5 years to use a modified version of the old method of computing benefits, the new formula became effective for new DI and survivor beneficiaries in 1979.

Despite the impact of these amendments on DI benefits, the Ways and Means Committee Report leading up to the Amendments made clear that this did not conclude its review and possible legislative recommendations related to the DI program.

Beginning in late spring 1978, the subcommittee on social security began consideration of DI legislative proposals with emphasis on those contained in the Chairman’s bill, H.R. 8076. In September 1978, the subcommittee reported out a bill to the full committee, H.R. 14064, the Disability Insurance Amendments of 1978. As with the Chairman’s preceding bills, this bill also had a major section dealing with work incentives. While there were numerous changes made to various other parts of the Chairman’s previous bill, particularly in the administrative area, probably the major difference between the subcommittee’s new bill and H.R. 8076 was the recommendation to adopt a new limitation on the benefit amount of disability awards where they involved the payment of benefits to dependents in addition to those of the disabled worker. The new limit was proposed primarily as a means to further reduce work disincentives.

The report from the subcommittee to the full committee began with the statement:

One of the continuing problems in disability is the fact that the amount of benefits received by disability beneficiaries may constitute a substantial work disincentive. Our decoupling legislation enacted last year helped to some degree in this regard but many commentators think the disability benefit formula itself still creates a major problem.14

The report further cited studies by actuaries of the Social Security Administration and in the private sector that high replacement rates constituted a major disincentive for the disabled worker to work and engage in rehabilitation, and pointed out that a recent analysis performed by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare showed that even after the decoupling changes, the benefit formula would still produce relatively high replacement rates for disabled beneficiaries and their families. The report quoted a speech given by the Secretary of HEW in April 1978 in which he remarked on the Department's analysis:

Some Beneficiaries Receive Excessive Benefits.—Six percent of last year's awards actually increased the disabled person's after-tax income. Almost one-fifth of awards produced earnings replacement rates of more than 80 percent.

The report also pointed out the experience in the private sector with high replacement rates. The report stated:

There is evidence that high replacement rates increase the incidence rates for private group long-term disability insurance policies. Private insurance plans with replacement rates in excess of 70 percent have disability incidence rates two-thirds higher than the average, and plans with replacement rates below 50 percent have incidence one-third below average. Because of this experience, private insurers generally attempt to limit disability benefits to 50 or 60 percent of gross earnings.

The subcommittee recommendation to deal with the potentially excessive DI replacement rates was to limit total DI family benefits to the smaller of 80 percent of the disabled worker's average indexed monthly earnings or 150 percent of the worker's benefit, whichever was lower. No one currently on the benefit roll would be affected, and the disabled worker with dependents would be guaranteed to receive at least the level to which he alone was entitled, even if that level exceeded the new limitations. Similarly, benefit amounts of disabled workers without families would not be affected.

Two factors contribute to potentially high replacement rates in the social security program. One is that the benefit formula is weighted in favor of low-income workers. There are three steps in the social security benefit formula. The first one converts the first $194 of average indexed monthly earnings into benefits at the rate of 90 percent.15
The second and third steps have successively lower percentages. The second factor is the payment of benefits in addition to those paid to the disabled worker because the worker has dependents.

The first step in the benefit formula converting benefits into earnings at the rate of 90 percent already would have exceeded the subcommittee's limitation. However, the subcommittee did not want to alter this tilt in the benefit formula, particularly since the high replacement rates it potentially created were concentrated among disabled workers Disability Insurance Amendments of 1978 (H.R. 16004). Committee Print, 95th Cong., 2d Sess. (WCP:

having relatively low earnings. Dependents' benefits, on the other hand, were not confined to disabled workers at the lower earnings levels. In fact, analyses showed that family benefits were more prevalent in the middle and higher earnings brackets.

The first portion of the subcommittee's new limitation—80 percent of average indexed monthly earnings—was similar in form to the social security workers' compensation offset provision already in the law. This existing provision reduces DI benefits when the combined benefits from both a DI and a workers' compensation award exceed 80 percent of past earnings. The proposal was not completely identical in form to the workers' compensation offset in that the proposed limitation would apply to average indexed monthly earnings, while three alternative measures of past earnings can be used to determine the maximum combined benefit level under the existing provision (whichever is most favorable to the beneficiary). Typically, the 80 percent DI/workers' compensation limit is applied to the highest year of earnings, starting with the year in which the disability occurred and including the 5 preceding years. Further, the offset is applied against the benefits of disabled beneficiaries without dependents in addition to those with family benefits. Nonetheless, the principle that benefits should not exceed some measure of past earnings was carried over into the committee's provision.16

However, because the impact of the 80 percent of average indexed monthly earnings limitation would be greatest for disabled worker families at the lower average indexed monthly earnings levels, and because such a limitation would not affect disabled workers' families where the disabled worker had fairly high average indexed monthly earnings (at that time, above approximately $900 per month), the subcommittee adopted a second measure limiting family benefits to no more than 150 percent of the disabled worker's benefit. This second measure was to apply only if it would result in lower family benefits than the 80 percent of average indexed monthly earnings permitted. Under the existing family maximum rules, which apply to the entire social security program, a family could receive maximum benefits ranging from 150 percent to 188 percent of the worker's benefit depending upon the level of the worker's benefit. Generally the higher the worker's own benefit, the higher the family maximum percentage would be. Families of workers with low benefits were already subjected to a maximum family benefit pegged at the 150 percent level. This part of the subcommittee's proposal in effect would make the maximum DI family benefit uniform at 150 percent of the worker's benefit at all benefit levels.

Analysis given to the subcommittee showed that the effect of this combined approach to limiting DI family benefits would produce a more even reduction in the maximum family benefit payable at all levels of benefits than that resulting from the 80 percent limitation alone. It was estimated to have the equivalent effect of holding maximum family benefits to about 65 percent of average indexed monthly earnings at the highest benefit levels.

Another new measure affecting benefit levels adopted by the subcommittee was to vary the number of years of earnings a disabled 16 It should be noted, though, that the combined level of the two benefits can never be reduced to a level that would be less than what the worker would have received from social security alone. In other words, the social security benefit level is the guaranteed minimum.

worker could drop in computing his average earnings for the calculation of his initial benefit. Under the existing law, 5 years of low earnings could be dropped for almost all types of social security benefit computations, retirement, survivors, and disability alike. This theoretically gave the younger worker (or family of a deceased worker who died at an early age) an advantage over the older worker, since the younger worker was allowed to drop out a larger portion of his earnings record from the average monthly earnings computation. A worker disabled at age 29 for instance could drop 5 out of his highest 7 years of earnings in computing his average or 71 percent of the portion of the earnings record used for benefit computation purposes. An age-50 disabled worker, on the other hand, could drop only 5 out of 28 years’ i.e., 18 percent of his countable earnings record. The subcommittee recommended that the number of years of low earnings which a worker could drop in computing his average be made roughly proportional for disabled workers of all ages. The subcommittee proposal would have allowed no drop-out years for workers under age 28, but would have allowed a gradually higher number of drop-out years for workers of higher ages, up to a maximum of 5 for workers age 45 and older. The subcommittee added one exception, which provided that if the worker was responsible for the principal care of a child under age 6 for more than 6 months in any calendar year, the number of drop-out years would be increased by 1 for each such year but to no more than 5.

This proposal was intended to reduce further the disparity in benefits between younger and older disabled workers. In contrast to the new family maximum benefit provision, this proposal was to apply to workers both with and without dependents.

Neither of these new benefit reduction measures was recommended for other parts of the social security program, i.e., to retirement or survivor benefits, since the primary focus was on work incentives in the DI program. Also, with respect to the proposed limit on family benefits, the prevalence of family benefit situations (and thus the likelihood of high replacement rates) was substantially greater among disability beneficiaries than among retirees and survivor beneficiaries. Some 20 percent of the disabled workers in current payment status in 1976 had 2 or more dependents also receiving benefits. Only 1.6 percent of the retirees in current payment status had 2 or more dependents also receiving benefits, and only 9 percent of the survivor cases in current payment status involved families of three or more.17

The subcommittee endorsed all of the other work-incentive measures of the chairman’s previous bill, and in addition, included two new provisions to further stimulate work activity. The first would have allowed a DI applicant to exclude the costs to the worker of any extraordinary work expenses necessitated by a severe impairment in computing whether earnings alone are too high to permit the payment of benefits (i.e., they exceed the substantial gainful activity threshold). Existing regulations permitted the deductions of such expenses, but only if such expenses were not needed for daily living. In other words, if they only were needed to engage in work activity, their deduction was permitted; however, if the beneficiary needed them to meet his daily living needs, as well, they were not considered as being extraordinary work expenses.

The second measure provided that no beneficiary would be terminated from the benefit roll due to medical recovery if the beneficiary were participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation plan which the Social Security Administration determined would increase the likelihood that he would be permanently removed from the rolls. The concern here was that when medical recovery was ascertained, the type of activity the individual was determined to be able to do was often of an unskilled nature which, even if available, would not keep him employed on a long-term basis and off the benefit rolls. This proposal had been a long-standing recommendation of social security rehabilitation experts.

Legislative activity of the 96th Congress

The full committee did not have time in the remaining portion of the 95th Congress to take up the subcommittee's bill. However, early on in the 96th Congress, a similar bill was introduced by the new chairman of the Social Security Subcommittee, Representative J. J. Pickle. This bill, H.R. 2054, contained the same work-incentive measures as those in the subcommittee's bill of the previous year, with one exception. H.R. 2054 had a slightly lower family benefit limitation. Instead of setting the maximum at 80 percent of average indexed monthly earnings or 150 percent of the worker's benefit, H.R. 2054 set the maximum at 75 percent of average indexed monthly earnings or 150 percent of the worker's benefit.

The Administration also introduced a DI bill, H.R. 2854, which incorporated many of the work-incentive measures that were contained in the various DI bills that had been pending before the subcommittee in the previous two Congresses. In the way of benefit reductions, the Administration proposed both a new family benefit limitation and a variable drop-out years scheme. The Administration's family benefit limitation, which set the maximum to the lower of 80 percent of the worker's average indexed monthly earnings or the existing law limits, was the only notable difference in the work incentive area from the chairman's bill.18

Further, the Administration's bill proposed changes in the disability aspects of the SSI program—an area outside of the Social Security Subcommittee's jurisdiction.

The subcommittee held markup sessions on the various bills and recommendations it had before it in March 1978. For the most part, it stuck to the work incentive measures contained in the earlier versions of the bill. The only significant change made in the work-incentive area from H.R. 2054 was to restore the subcommittee recommendation of the preceding Congress setting the maximum DI family benefit at 80 percent of average indexed monthly earnings or 150 percent of the worker's benefit. This level was felt to be a middle ground among the various family benefit limitation proposals the subcommittee had before it.

The subcommittee's bill, H.R. 3236, was reported to the full committee in April 1979. The only major vote to modify any of the work-incentive aspects of the bill was on a proposal by Representative 18 There were, however, many substantive differences in the provisions to alter the administration of the program.

Gephardt to set the new family benefit limitation at a lower level than that recommended by the subcommittee. This alternative would have set maximum DI benefits at 80 percent of average indexed monthly earnings or 130 percent of the worker's benefit, whichever was lower. The intent of the amendment was to provide a greater financial incentive for the disabled worker from a two-earner family to remain in or return to work. Analysis accompanied the proposal showing that even the subcommittee's new proposal would have left some two-earner couples better off by having the disabled spouse join the DI rolls rather than continue to work. The amendment was defeated by a close vote.

The full committee reported out the bill later in the month, and it passed the House in September by a vote of 235 to 162.

The same month, the full committee reported out a bill which originated in the 95th Congress to make various changes in disability aspects of the Supplemental Security Income program. The new bill, H.R. 3464, had been introduced by Representative James O'Connor, the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Public Assistance and Unemployment Compensation of the Ways and Means Committee. The bill of the previous year had passed the House (H.R. 12972), but time did not permit further action by the Senate before the session ended.

Among other provisions, H.R. 3464 contained measures intended to reduce work disincentives in the SSI program.

The first and major provision of the bill would have raised the amount of earnings a disabled-SSI recipient (or applicant) could have before being determined ineligible for benefits. It raised the substantial gainful activity level for a disabled SSI applicant or recipient from the level then of $280 per month to $481 per month. (This increase would not have applied to the DI program.) It further allowed deduction of impairment-related work expenses in determining if an individual's earnings fell below the substantial gainful activity level as in the DI bill.

This increase in the substantial gainful activity level would have, in effect, modified the definition of disability for the SSI program, and for the first time moved it away from that used in the DI program. It represented an attempt to recognize that, for some individuals, a disabling condition does not always mean a complete loss of earnings ability. It was intended to aid such disabled persons who wanted to try working but were apprehensive about their ability to sustain employment while completely losing their SSI benefit (as well as the Medicaid and social service benefits that came with SSI eligibility).

Another provision of the bill allowed a deduction of 20 percent of gross earnings as well as deduction of impairment-related work expenses for determining a monthly benefit amount (i.e., once eligibility has been shown) in addition to the existing law exclusions of the first $65 in monthly earnings and 50 percent of the remainder.

The bill also provided for presumptive re-entitlement for SSI benefits during the 4-year period immediately following the termination of SSI benefits (continuing until a determination was made that the individual's disability had ceased). The bill further included a number of measures to parallel some of the work incentive measures incorporated in H.R. 3236.

H.R. 3464 passed the House in June 1979 by a vote of 374 to 3.

The Senate Finance Committee completed its consideration of H.R. 3236 and other disability proposals and reported its recommendations for changes to the Senate in November 1979. The committee maintained the thrust of H.R. 3236 by keeping the emphasis on measures intended to improve both administration and work-incentives: It did, however, make a few significant changes.

As did the House-passed version of H.R. 3236, the Finance Committee's bill placed new limits on DI family benefits, but the committee's limits would have been less stringent than those in the House bill. Specifically, the committee recommended limiting DI family benefits to 85 percent of average indexed monthly earnings or 160 percent of the worker's benefit, whichever was lower (as compared to 80 percent and 150 percent, respectively, in the House bill).

In addition, the committee considered, but did not adopt, a proposal to require an offset against disability benefits where the beneficiary received benefits under a variety of other programs—workers' compensation, civil service retirement, railroad retirement, veterans' disability, et al.—rather than just having an offset when workers' compensation benefits were present, as under existing law. In lieu of actually recommending this proposal, the committee asked GAO to study the prevalence of receipt of multiple disability benefits and various approaches of keeping the aggregate benefits below the level of an individual's pre-disability earnings. The committee anticipated holding hearings on the issue in 1980.

The committee also adopted the proposal in the House-passed version of H.R. 3236 to reduce the number of dropout years which younger disabled workers could use in computing benefits. The committee's bill, however, did not completely eliminate the use of dropout years for very young disabled workers, as did the House-passed bill. It afforded disabled workers below age 32 with one dropout year (whereas the House-passed bill did this only for workers aged 27–31). It further eliminated the aspect of the House-passed version of the provision which provided additional dropout years for periods of childcare.

The committee further deleted the provision altering the trust fund financing of rehabilitation, and added a second research and demonstration provision to the bill to cover other aspects of the program, besides possible changes to the substantial gainful activity measure, which might have an impact on the disabled worker's work behavior.

With respect to work-incentive measures in the SSI program, the Committee adopted its own provision in lieu of the amendment contained in H.R. 3464 to raise the level of substantial gainful activity. The provision, which was a modified version of a bill introduced by Senator Dole (S. 591), allowed an individual to have the higher level of earnings permitted by H.R. 3464 for eligibility purposes (i.e., the breakeven point), but only once a person was on the rolls and in a special benefit status. It did not provide the higher earnings limitation to persons applying for benefits.

The provision also differed from the House bill by not giving the 20 percent gross earnings disregard, as well as not permitting the deduction of impairment related work expenses for benefit computation purposes (they could be deducted only for eligibility determinations). It further differed from the House bill by allowing the continuation of Medicaid and social services when earnings exceeded even the higher earnings level (the breakeven point) under certain conditions to be prescribed by regulation.
These provisions were given a 3-year life as demonstration authority (instead of being made a permanent change as in H.R. 3464), so that they could be re-evaluated before being made into a permanent part of the program.

The committee further deleted the provision of H.R. 3464 which provided for a 4-year presumptive re-entitlement period for disabled SSI recipients who left the benefit roll (the bill did, however, retain the provision of H.R. 3464 providing for a 1-year SSI re-entitlement period, the same as that which had been proposed for DI beneficiaries in the House-passed version of H.R. 3236).

The only major vote on the Senate floor pertaining to the work-incentive measures contained in the bill was on an amendment by Senator Metzenbaum to set the new family benefit limitation at a substantially higher level than the Committee recommended, i.e., at 100 percent of average indexed monthly earnings. This amendment was defeated by a 47 to 47 vote.

The conferees for the House and Senate met to resolve the differences between the two bodies throughout the month of April, 1980 and reached agreement in early May, 1980 and filed the conference report on May 13, 1980. The House approved the conference report on May 22, 1980, and the Senate on May 29, 1980. On June 9, 1980, the President signed H.R. 3236 and it became Public Law 96-265.
Text of Public Law Provisions Relating to Disability Insurance

TITLE I—PROVISIONS RELATING TO DISABILITY BENEFITS UNDER OASDI PROGRAM

LIMITATION ON TOTAL FAMILY BENEFITS IN DISABILITY CASES

42 USC 403. Sec. 101. (a) Section 203(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—
(1) by striking out “except as provided by paragraph (3)” in paragraph (1) in the matter preceding subparagraph (A) and inserting in lieu thereof “except as provided by paragraphs (3) and (6)”; and
(2) by redesignating paragraphs (6), (7), and (8) as paragraphs (7), (8), and (9), respectively; and
(3) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new paragraph:

“(6) Notwithstanding any of the preceding provisions of this subsection other than paragraphs (3)(A), (3)(C), and (5)(but subject to section 42 USC 415(iX2)(AXii)), the total monthly benefits to which beneficiaries may be entitled under section 202 and 223 for any month on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual entitled to disability insurance benefits, whether or not such total benefits are otherwise subject to reduction under this subsection but after any reduction under this subsection which would otherwise be applicable, shall be, reduced or further reduced (before the application of section 42 USC 424) to the smaller of—

“(A) 85 percent of such individual’s average indexed monthly earnings (or 100 percent of his primary insurance amount, if larger), or
“(B) 150 percent of such individual’s primary insurance amount.”.

42 USC 415. (b)(1) Section 203(a)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out “paragraph (7)” and inserting in lieu thereof “paragraph (8)”.
(2) Section 203(a)(8) of such Act, as redesignated by subsection (a)(2) of this section, is amended by striking out “paragraph (6)” and inserting in lieu thereof “paragraph (7)”.

42 USC 415. (3) Section 215(i)(2)(A)(III) of such Act is amended by striking out “section 203(a)(6) and (7)” and inserting in lieu thereof “section 203(a)(7) and (8)”.
(4) Section 215(i)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: “Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, such revision of maximum family benefits shall be subject to paragraph (6) of section 203(a) (as added by section 101(a)(3) of the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980).”.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual who first becomes entitled for benefits (determined under sections 215(a)(3)(B) and 215(a)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act, as applied for this purpose) after 1978, and who first becomes entitled to disability insurance benefits after June 30, 1980.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF DROPOUT YEARS FOR YOUNGER DISABLED WORKERS

SEC. 102. (a) Section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2)(A) The number of an individual's benefit computation years equals the number of elapsed years reduced—

"(i) in the case of an individual who is entitled to old-age insurance benefits (except as provided in the second sentence of this subparagraph), or who has died, by 5 years, and

"(ii) in the case of an individual who is entitled to disability insurance benefits, by the number of years equal to one-fifth of such individual's elapsed years (disregarding any resulting fractional part of a year), but not by more than 5 years.

Clause (ii), once applicable with respect to any individual, shall continue to apply for purposes of determining such individual's primary insurance amount for purposes of any subsequent eligibility for old-age and disability insurance benefits unless prior to the month in which such eligibility begins there occurs a period of at least 12 consecutive months for which he was not entitled to a disability or an old-age insurance benefit. If an individual described in clause (ii) is living with a child (of such individual or his or her spouse) under the age of 3 in any calendar year which is included in such individual's computation base years, but which is not disregarded pursuant to clause (ii) or to subparagraph (B) (in determining such individual's benefit computation years) by reason of the reduction in the number of such individual's elapsed years under clause (ii), the number by which such elapsed years are reduced under this subparagraph pursuant to clause (ii) shall be increased by one (up to a combined total not exceeding 3) for each such calendar year, except that (I) no calendar year shall be disregarded by reason of this sentence (in determining such individual's benefit computation years) unless the individual was living with such child substantially throughout the period in which the child was alive and under the age of 3 in such year and the individual had no earnings as described in section 203(f)(5) in such year, (II) the particular calendar years to be disregarded under this sentence (in determining such benefit computation years) shall be those years (not otherwise disregarded under clause (iii) which, before the application of section 215(f), meet the conditions of subclause (I), and (III) this sentence shall apply only to the extent that its application would not result in a lower primary insurance amount. The number of an individual's benefit computation years as determined under this subparagraph shall in no case be less than 2".

(b) Section 223(a)(2) of such Act is amended by inserting "and section 215(b)(2)(A)(ii)" after "section 202(q)" in the first sentence.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual who first becomes entitled to disability insurance benefits on or after July 1, 1980; except that the third sentence of section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act (as added by such amendments) shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable for months beginning on or after July 1, 1981.

PROVISIONS RELATING TO MEDICARE WAITING PERIOD FOR RECIPIENTS OF DISABILITY BENEFITS

42 USC 426.

Sec. 103. (a)(1)(A) Section 226(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "consecutive" in clauses (A) and (B).

(B) Section 226(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out "consecutive" in the matter following paragraph (2).

(2) Section 1811 of such Act is amended by striking out "consecutive".

(3) Section 1837(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "consecutive".

(4) Section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 is amended by striking out "consecutive" each place it appears.

(b) Section 226 of the Social Security Act is amended by redesignating subsection (b) as subsection (g), and by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

"(f) For purposes of subsection (b) (and for purposes of section 1837(g)(1) of this Act and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974), the 24 months for which an individual has to have been entitled to specified monthly benefits on the basis of disability in order to become entitled to hospital insurance benefits on such basis effective with any particular month (or to be deemed to have enrolled in the supplementary medical insurance program, on the basis of such entitlement, by reason of section 1837(f)), where such individual had been entitled to specified monthly benefits of the same type during a previous period which terminated—

"(1) more than 60 months before the month in which his current disability began in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (A)(i) or (B) of subsection (b)(2), or shall not include any month which occurred during such previous period."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to hospital insurance or supplementary medical insurance benefits for services provided on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

CONTINUATION OF MEDICARE ELIGIBILITY

42 USC 426.

Sec. 104. (a) Section 226(b) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "ending with the month" in the matter following paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "ending (subject to the last sentence of this subsection) with the month", and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence:

"For purposes of this subsection, an individual who has had a period of trial work which ended as provided in section 222(c)(4)(A), and whose entitlement to benefits or status as a qualified-railroad retirement beneficiary as described in paragraph (2) has subsequently terminated, shall be deemed to be entitled to such benefits or to occupy such status (notwithstanding the termination of such entitlement or status) for the period of consecutive months throughout all of which the physical or mental impairment, on which such entitlement or status was based, continues, and throughout all of which such individual would have been entitled to monthly insurance benefits under title II or as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary had such individual been unable to engage in substantial gainful activity, but not in excess of 24 such months."

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to any individual whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

TITLE III—PROVISIONS AFFECTING DISABILITY RECIPIENTS UNDER OASDI AND SSI PROGRAMS: ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Sec. 301. (a)(1) Section 225 of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "(a)" after "Sec. 225.", and by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment to an individual of benefits based on disability (as described in the first sentence of subsection (a)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment, on which the individual's entitlement to such benefits is based, has or may have ceased, if—

"(1) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and

"(2) the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls."

(2) Section 225(a) of such Act (as designated under subsection (a) of this section) is amended by striking out "this section" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "this subsection":

(b) Section 1631(a) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment of the benefit of any individual who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by reason of disability (as determined under section 1614(a)(3)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment, on which the individual's eligibility for such benefit is based, has or may have ceased, if—

"(A) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and

"(B) the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls."

Effective date.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

EXTRAORDINARY WORK EXPENSES DUE TO SEVERE DISABILITY

Sec. 302. (a)(1) Section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the third sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe."

(2) Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe."

(b) Section 1612(b)(4)(B) of such Act is amended by striking out "plus one-half of the remainder thereof, and (ii)" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "(ii) such additional amounts of earned income of such individual (for purposes of determining the amount of his or her benefits under this title and of determining his or her eligibility for such benefits for consecutive months of eligibility after the initial month of such eligibility), if such individual's disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, as may be necessary to pay the costs (to such individual) of attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Secretary in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions, except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Secretary may prescribe, (iii) one-half of the amount of earned income not excluded after the application of the preceding provisions of this subparagraph, and (iv)"

c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to expenses incurred on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

REENTITLEMENT TO DISABILITY BENEFITS

Sec. 303. *(a)(1) Section 222(c)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "section 223 or 202(d)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 223, 202(d), 202(e), or 202(f)".

(2) Section 222(c)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof, or, in the case of an individual entitled to widow's or widower's insurance benefits under section 202(e) or (f) who became entitled to such benefits prior to attaining age 60, with the month in which such individual becomes so entitled."

(b)d) Section 223(a)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "or the third month following the month in which his disability ceases."
at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, subject to subsection (e), the termination month. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (i) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (ii) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 18 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity."

(B) Section 202(d)(1)(G) of such Act is amended—
(i) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as clauses (III) and (IV), respectively, and
(ii) by striking out "the third month following the month in which he ceases to be under such disability" and inserting in lieu thereof "", or, subject to section 223(e), the termination month (and for purposes of this subparagraph, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.

(C) Section 202(e)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "the third month following the month in which her disability ceases (unless she attains age 65 on or before the last day of such third month)." at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "", subject to section 223(e), the termination month (unless she attains age 65 on or before the last day of such termination month). For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which her disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity.

(D) Section 202(f)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "the third month following the month in which his disability ceases (unless he attains age 65 on or before the last day of such third month)." at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "", subject to section 223(e), the termination month (unless he attains age 65 on or before the last day of such termination month). For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the third month following the month in which his disability ceases; except that, in the case of an individual who has a period of trial work which ends as determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A), the termination month shall be the earlier of (I) the third month following the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (II) the third month following the earliest month in which such individual engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity, but in no event earlier than the first month occurring after the 15 months following such period of trial work in which he engages or is determined able to engage in substantial gainful activity."
Section 223 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(e) No benefit shall be payable under subsection (d)(1)(B), (e)(1)(B)(ii), or (f)(1)(B)(ii) of section 202 or under subsection (a)(1) of this section to an individual for any month, after the third month, in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the 15-month period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)."

(B) Section 216(i)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out "(ii)" and all that follows and inserting in lieu thereof "(ii) the month preceding (I) the termination month (as defined in section 223(a)(1)), or, if earlier (II) the first month for which no benefit is payable by reason of section 223(e), where no benefit is payable for any of the succeeding months during the 15-month period referred to in such section."

Section 1614(a)(3) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(F) For purposes of this title, an individual whose trial work period has ended by application of paragraph (4)(D)(i) shall, subject to section 1611(e)(4), nonetheless be considered (except for purposes of section 1611(a)(5)) to be disabled through the end of the month preceding the termination month. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the termination month for any individual shall be the earlier of (i) the earliest month after the end of such period of trial work with respect to which such individual is determined to no longer be suffering from a disabling physical or mental impairment, or (ii) the first month, after the period of 15 consecutive months following the end of such period of trial work, in which such individual engages in or is determined to be able to engage in substantial gainful activity."

Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out "paragraph (4)" and inserting in lieu thereof "subparagraph (F) or paragraph (4)".

(2) Section 1611(e) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(4) No benefit shall be payable under this title, except as provided in section 1619 (or section 1616(c)(3)), with respect to an eligible individual or his eligible spouse who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by application of section 1614(a)(3)(F) for any month, after the third month, in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the fifteen-month period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 1614(a)(4)(D)(i)."

(d) The amendments made by this section shall become effective on the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to any individual whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to such first day.

DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS; FEDERAL REVIEW OF STATE AGENCY DETERMINATIONS

Sec. 304. (a) Section 221(a) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a)(1) In the case of any individual, the determination of whether or not he is under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and of the day such disability began, and the determination of the day on which such disability ceases, shall be made by a State agency, notwithstanding any other provision of law, in any State that notifies..."
the Secretary in writing that it wishes to make such disability determinations commencing with such month as the Secretary and the State agree upon, but only if (A) the Secretary has not found, under subsection (b)(1), that the State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with the applicable provisions of this section or rules issued thereunder, and (B) the State has not notified the Secretary, under subsection (b)(2), that it does not wish to make such determinations. If the Secretary once makes the finding described in clause (A) of the preceding sentence, or the State gives the notice referred to in clause (B) of such sentence, the Secretary may thereafter determine whether (and, if so, beginning with which month and under what conditions) the State may again make disability determinations under this paragraph.

“(2) The disability determinations described in paragraph (1) made by a State agency shall be made in accordance with the pertinent provisions of this title, and the standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary pertaining to matters such as disability determinations, the class or classes of individuals with respect to which a State may make disability determinations (if it does not wish to do so with respect to all individuals in the State), and the conditions under which it may choose not to make all such determinations. In addition, the Secretary shall promulgate regulations specifying, in such detail as he deems appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States. The regulations may, for example, specify matters such as—

“(B) the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, and other individuals or organizations performing tasks for the State agency, and standards for the availability to applicants and beneficiaries of facilities for making disability determinations,

“(C) State agency performance criteria, including the rate of accuracy of decisions, the time periods within which determinations must be made, the procedures for and the scope of review by the Secretary, and, as he finds appropriate, by the State, of its performance in individual cases and in classes of cases, and rules governing access of appropriate Federal officials to State offices and to State records relating to its administration of the disability determination function,

“(D) fiscal control procedures that the State agency may be required to adopt, and

“(E) the submission of reports and other data, in such form and at such time as the Secretary may require, concerning the State agency’s activities relating to the disability determination. Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the Secretary to take any action except pursuant to law or to regulations promulgated pursuant to law.”.

(b) Section 221(b) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

“(b)(1) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and other written guidelines, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his finding, and after he has complied with the requirements of paragraph (3), make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

"(2) If a State, having notified the Secretary of its intent to make disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), no longer wishes to make such determinations, it shall notify the Secretary in writing of that fact, and, if an agency of the State is making disability determinations at the time such notice is given, it shall continue to do so for not less than 180 days, or (if later) until the Secretary has complied with the requirements of paragraph (3). Thereafter, the Secretary shall make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

"(3)(A) The Secretary shall develop and initiate all appropriate procedures to implement a plan with respect to any partial or complete assumption by the Secretary of the disability determination function from a State agency, as provided in this section, under which employees of the affected State agency who are capable of performing duties in the disability determination process for the Secretary shall, notwithstanding any other provision of law, have a preference over any other individual in filling an appropriate employment position with the Secretary (subject to any system established by the Secretary for determining hiring priority among such employees of the State agency) unless any such employee is the administrator, the deputy administrator, or assistant administrator (or his equivalent) of the State agency, in which case the Secretary may accord such priority to such employee.

"(B) The Secretary shall not make such assumption of the disability determination function until such time as the Secretary of Labor determines that, with respect to employees of such State agency who will be displaced from their employment on account of such assumption by the Secretary and who will not be hired by the Secretary to perform duties in the disability determination process, the State has made fair and equitable arrangements to protect the interests of employees so displaced. Such protective arrangements shall include only those provisions which are provided under all applicable Federal, State and local statutes including, but not limited to; (i) the preservation of rights, privileges, and benefits (including continuation of pension rights and benefits) under existing collective-bargaining agreements; (ii) the continuation of collective-bargaining rights; (iii) the assignment of affected employees to other jobs or to retraining programs; (iv) the protection of individual employees against a worsening of their positions with respect to their employment; (v) the protection of health benefits and other fringe benefits; and (vi) the provision of severance pay, as may be necessary.

(c)(1) The Secretary may on his own motion or as required under paragraphs (2) and (3) review a determination, made by a State agency under this section, that an individual is or is not under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 228(d) and, as a result of such review, may modify such agency's determination and determine that such individual either is or is not under a disability (as so defined) or that such individual's disability began on a day earlier or later than that determined by such agency, or that such disability ceased on a day earlier or later than that determined by such agency. A review by the Secretary on his own motion of a State agency determination under this paragraph may be made before or after any action is taken to implement such determination.

42 USC 416, 423.

“(2) The Secretary (in accordance with paragraph (3)) shall review determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)). Any review by the Secretary of a State agency determination under this paragraph shall be made before any action is taken to implement such determination.

“(3) In carrying out the provisions of paragraph (2) with respect to the review of determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)), the Secretary shall review—

“(A) at least 15 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1981,

“(B) at least 35 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1982, and

“(C) at least 65 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in any fiscal year after the fiscal year 1982.

(d) Section 221(d) of such Act is amended by striking out “(a)” and inserting in lieu thereof “(a), (b)”.

(e) The first sentence of section 221(e) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “which has an agreement with the Secretary” and inserting in lieu thereof “which is making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”;

(2) by striking out “as may be mutually agreed upon” and inserting in lieu thereof “as determined by the Secretary”, and

(3) by striking out “carrying out the agreement under this section” and inserting in lieu thereof “making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”.

(f) Section 221(g) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “has no agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting in lieu thereof “does not undertake to perform disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), or which has been found by the Secretary to have substantially failed to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and guidelines”, and

(2) by striking out “not included in an agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting in lieu thereof “for whom no State undertakes to make disability determinations”.

(g) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall implement a program of reviewing, on his own motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges as a result of hearings under section 221(d) of the Social Security Act, and shall report to the Congress by January 1, 1982, on his progress.

(h) The amendments made by subsections (a), (b), (d), (e), and (f) shall be effective beginning with the twelfth month following the month in which this Act is enacted. Any State that, on the effective date of the amendments made by this section, has in effect an agreement with the Secretary of Health and Human Services under section 221(a) of the Social Security Act (as in effect prior to such amendments) will be deemed to have given to the Secretary the notice specified in section 221(a)(1) of such Act as amended by this section, in lieu of continuing such agreement in effect after the effective date of such amendments. Thereafter, a State may notify the Secretary in writing that it no longer wishes to make disability determinations, effective not less than 180 days after the notification is given.
(i) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress by July 1, 1980, a detailed plan on how he expects to assume the functions and operations of a State disability determination unit when this becomes necessary under the amendments made by this section, and how he intends to meet the requirements of section 221(b)(3) of the Social Security Act. Such plan should assume the uninterrupted operation of the disability determination function and the utilization of the best qualified personnel to carry out such function. If any amendment of Federal law or regulation is required to carry out such plan, recommendations for such amendment should be included in the report.

INFORMATION TO ACCOMPANY SECRETARY'S DECISIONS

Sec. 305. (a) Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: "Any such decision by the Secretary which involves a determination of disability and which is in whole or in part unfavorable to such individual shall contain a statement of the case, in understandable language, setting forth a discussion of the evidence, and stating the Secretary's determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based."

(b) Section 1631(c)(1) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence thereof the following new sentence: "Any such decision by the Secretary which involves a determination of disability and which is in whole or in part unfavorable to such individual shall contain a statement of the case, in understandable language, setting forth a discussion of the evidence, and stating the Secretary's determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based."

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to decisions made on or after the first day of the 13th month following the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON PROSPECTIVE EFFECT OF APPLICATION

Sec. 306. (a) Section 202(j)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows: "(2) An application for any monthly benefits under this section filed before the first month in which the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits shall be deemed a valid application (and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month) only if the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits before the Secretary makes a final decision on the application and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary)."

(b) Section 216(i)(2)(G) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(and shall be deemed to have been filed on such first day)" immediately after "shall be deemed a valid application" in the first sentence,

(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary)."
(3) by striking out the second sentence.
(c) Section 223(b) of such Act is amended—
(1) by inserting “(and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month)” immediately after “shall be deemed a valid application” in the first sentence,
(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made, or if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary),” and
(3) by striking out the second sentence.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall apply to applications filed after the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON COURT REMANDS

Sec. 307. The sixth sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out all that precedes “and the Secretary shall” and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “The court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown before he files his answer, remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and it may at any time order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, but only upon a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there is good cause for the failure to incorporate such evidence into the record in a prior proceeding;”.

TIME LIMITATIONS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS

Sec. 308. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress, no later than July 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of appropriate time limitations governing decisions on claims for benefits under title II of the Social Security Act. Such report shall specifically recommend—
(1) the maximum period of time (after application for a payment under such title is filed) within which the initial decision of the Secretary as to the rights of the applicant should be made;
(2) the maximum period of time (after application for reconSID-eration of any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary on such reconsideration should be made;
(3) the maximum period of time (after a request for a hearing with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary upon such hearing (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made; and
(4) the maximum period of time (after a request for review by the Appeals Council with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is made) within which the decision of the Secretary upon such review (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made.

In determining the time limitations to be recommended, the Secretary shall take into account both the need for expeditious processing of claims for benefits and the need to assure that all such claims will be thoroughly considered and accurately determined.
PAYMENT FOR EXISTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE

SEC. 309. (a) Section 223(d)(5) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required and requested by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to evidence requested on or after the first day of the sixth month which begins after the date of the enactment of this Act.

PAYMENT OF CERTAIN TRAVEL EXPENSES

SEC. 310. (a) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(j) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure, out of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, or the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund (as determined appropriate by the Secretary), such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under this title, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations."

(b) Section 1631 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) The Secretary shall pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under this title, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 1614(e)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the
(c) Section 1817 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure out of the Trust Fund such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to any determination under this title. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person's health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person's health condition, as specified in such regulations."

42 USC 421.

Sec. 311. (a) Section 221 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) In any case where an individual is or has been determined to be under a disability, the case shall be reviewed by the applicable State agency or the Secretary (as may be appropriate), for purposes of continuing eligibility, at least once every 3 years; except that where a finding has been made that such disability is permanent, such reviews shall be made at such times as the Secretary determines to be appropriate. Reviews of cases under the preceding sentence shall be in addition to, and shall not be considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required or provided for under or in the administration of this title."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on January 1, 1982.

REPORT BY SECRETARY

Sec. 312. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress not later than January 1, 1985, a full and complete report as to the effects produced by reason of the preceding provisions of this Act and the amendments made thereby.
AUTHORITY FOR DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS

Sec. 505. (a)(1) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall develop and carry out experiments and demonstration projects designed to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of (A) various alternative methods of treating the work activity of disabled beneficiaries under the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program, including such methods as a reduction in benefits based on earnings, designed to encourage the return to work of disabled beneficiaries and (B) altering other limitations and conditions applicable to such disabled beneficiaries (including, but not limited to, lengthening the trial work period, altering the 24-month waiting period for Medicare benefits, altering the manner in which such program is administered, earlier referral of beneficiaries for rehabilitation, and greater use of employers and others to develop, perform, and otherwise stimulate new forms of rehabilitation), to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds, or to otherwise promote the objectives or facilitate the administration of title II of the Social Security Act.

(2) The experiments and demonstration projects developed under paragraph (1) shall be of sufficient scope and shall be carried out on a wide enough scale to permit a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration while giving assurance that the results derived from the experiments and projects will obtain generally in the operation of the disability insurance program without committing such program to the adoption of any particular system either locally or nationally.

(3) In the case of any experiment or demonstration project under paragraph (1), the Secretary may waive compliance with the benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII of the Social Security Act insofar as is necessary for a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods.
under consideration. No such experiment or project shall be actually placed in operation unless at least ninety days prior thereto a written report, prepared for purposes of notification and information only and containing a full and complete description thereof, has been transmitted by the Secretary to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate. Periodic reports on the progress of such experiments and demonstration projects shall be submitted by the Secretary to such committees. When appropriate, such reports shall include detailed recommendations for changes in administration or law, or both, to carry out the objectives stated in paragraph (1).

(4) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress no later than January 1, 1983, a report on the experiments and demonstration projects with respect to work incentives carried out under this subsection together with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(5) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new subsection added by section 310(a) of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(k) Expenditures made for experiments and demonstration projects under section 505(a) of the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980 shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, as determined appropriate by the Secretary."

or to provide medical assistance under its plan approved under title XIX, to individuals who are not eligible therefor, or in amounts or under circumstances in which the State does not make such payments or provide such medical assistance, the Secretary shall reimburse such State for the non-Federal share of such payments or assistance from amounts appropriated to carry out title XVI.

"(2) With respect to the participation of recipients of supplemental security income benefits in experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects under this subsection—

"(A) the Secretary is not authorized to carry out any project that would result in a substantial reduction in any individual's total income and resources as a result of his or her participation in the project;

"(B) the Secretary may not require any individual to participate in a project; and he shall assure (i) that the voluntary participation of individuals in any project is obtained through informed written consent which satisfies the requirements for informed consent established by the Secretary for use in any experimental, pilot, or demonstration project in which human subjects are at risk, and (ii) that any individual's voluntary agreement to participate in any project may be revoked by such individual at any time;

"(C) the Secretary shall, to the extent feasible and appropriate, include recipients who are under age 18 as well as adult recipients; and

"(D) the Secretary shall include in the projects carried out under this section such experimental, pilot, or demonstration projects as may be necessary to ascertain the feasibility of treating alcoholics and drug addicts to prevent the onset of irreversible medical conditions which may result in permanent disability, including programs in residential care treatment centers.

(c) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress a final report with respect to all experiments and demonstration projects carried out under this section no later than five years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS FOR DEMONSTRATION PROJECT RELATING TO THE TERMINALLY ILL

SEC. 506. (a) The Secretary of Health and Human Services is authorized to provide for the participation, by the Social Security Administration, in a demonstration project relating to the terminally ill which is currently being conducted within the Department of Health and Human Services. The purpose of such participation shall be to study the impact on the terminally ill of provisions of the disability programs administered by the Social Security Administration and to determine how best to provide services needed by persons who are terminally ill through programs over which the Social Security Administration has administrative responsibility.

(b) For the purpose of carrying out this section there are authorized to be appropriated such sums (not in excess of $2,000,000 for any fiscal year) as may be necessary.

Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980: Legislative History and Summary of Provisions*

This article describes the legislative history of Public Law 96–265, the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980, and contains a summary of the provisions of the new law. In passing these major disability insurance and supplemental security income provisions, the Congress hoped to improve the equity of the program, remove disincentives to rehabilitation and work, increase positive work incentives, and strengthen program administration. Other provisions were intended to strengthen and improve the administration of both the aid to families with dependent children and the child support enforcement programs.

On June 9, 1980, President Carter signed into law H.R. 3236 (Public Law 96–265), the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980. The President's signing statement described the legislation as "a balanced package, with amendments to strengthen the integrity of the disability programs, increase equity among beneficiaries, offer greater assistance to those who are trying to work, and improve program administration." In addition, the bill contains amendments designed to strengthen and improve the administration of both the aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) and the child support enforcement (CSE) programs.

The major provisions affecting the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance (OASDI—title II or, in this article, DI) and supplemental security income (SSI—title XVI) disability programs are as follows:

1. Revisions of the DI benefit structure to—
   A. Establish a maximum family disability benefit at the lesser of 85 percent of the average indexed monthly earnings (AIME), or 150 percent of the primary insurance amount (PIA), but no less than 100 percent of the PIA. The new DI family maximum is designed to ensure that beneficiaries and their families will not receive benefits significantly higher than the worker's predisability net earnings.
   B. Make the number of years that can be dropped from the computation (averaging) period proportional to the age of the disabled worker (1 year can be disregarded for each 5 years after age 21 up to the year in which the worker becomes disabled, with a maximum of 5 dropout years). The proportional dropout years provision is designed to assure that workers with comparable wage histories receive comparable benefits, regardless of the age at which they become disabled.
   C. Extend the trial work period, previously applicable to disabled workers and childhood disability beneficiaries, to disabled widow(er)s. (Applies only to DI.)
   D. Provide Medicare coverage for 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered. The first 12 months of this 36-month period are part of the automatic reentitlement period that is discussed in B above. (Applies only to DI.)

E. Eliminate the second 24-month Medicare waiting period for an individual who again becomes disabled and entitled to disability benefits within a certain period of time. (Applies only to DI.)

F. Authorize demonstration projects as follows:

1. A 3-year experiment to provide special cash benefit payments, Medicaid, and social services to SSI disability recipients who have completed their trial work periods and continue to earn in excess of the amount allowed for substantial gainful activity (SGA). The special cash benefits would end when the countable income reached the “breakeven” point (the point at which income reduces payments to zero). Blind or disabled SSI recipients will continue to be eligible for Medicaid and social services even if income above the “breakeven” point causes them to stop receiving cash benefits under certain circumstances. (Applies only to SSI.)

2. A 3-year pilot project of an optional program of grants to the States for medical assistance and social services to severely handicapped persons who have earnings in excess of SGA; who do not qualify for DI or SSI benefits, Medicaid, or social services otherwise; and who need these services to continue working. (Applies to both DI and SSI.)

3. Authority for the Secretary of Health and Human Services to conduct experiments and demonstrations to test the effectiveness of various ways of encouraging disabled beneficiaries to return to work. (Applies to both DI and SSI.)

3. A series of provisions designed to improve DI and SSI program administration by strengthening the disability determination and adjudicatory process. The major provisions require the Secretary to—

A. Issue regulations specifying performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed by the States in performing the disability determination function.

B. Assume the disability determination function from a State agency if either (1) the State agency substantially fails to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with the regulations and other written guidelines, or (2) the State agency notifies the Secretary that it no longer wishes to make disability determinations.

C. Review a specified percentage of State agency determinations before benefits can be paid.

D. Review the status of a disabled individual, unless the disability has been found to have been permanent, at least once every 3 years.

Additional provisions designed to improve program administration would—

E. Implement a program of reviewing, on the Secretary’s own motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges in disability cases and to report to Congress on the progress of the program.

F. Permit the Secretary to revise a State agency decision and make it more favorable to the claimant.

G. Foreclose the introduction of new evidence in OASDI claims after decisions are made at hearings.

H. Permit old-age, survivors, and disability insurance cases to be remanded from the courts on the Secretary’s own motion only for “good cause” shown, and on the court’s motion only if there is new and material evidence that was not previously submitted and “good cause” exists for not having submitted that evidence.

4. Provisions affecting the AFDC and CSE programs are revisions that would—

A. Strengthen the work incentive (WIN) program.

B. Allow the use of the Internal Revenue Service to collect child support for non-AFDC as well as AFDC families.

C. Change the authority to disclose certain information under AFDC and social services.

D. Permit Federal matching for child support activities performed by court personnel.

E. Increase Federal matching for child support and AFDC management information systems.

F. Provide access to wage information for the child support program.

Background and Legislative History

During the early 1970’s, the disability incidence rates—the number of disability awards in relation to the insured population—increased significantly and resulted in substantial increases in the cost of the disability program. In its 1973 report, the Board of Trustees of the Social Security Trust Funds noted the significant increase in the cost of the DI program resulting from higher disability incidence; the Trustees stated that if the trend of higher disability rates continued, the resultant cost increase of the disability program would be of sufficient magnitude to require additional financing.

During the next several years, both the administration and Congress studied the question of why the disability rates were increasing and what changes might be made in the DI program. Between 1973 and 1978, the administration convened several internal work groups that closely scrutinized the disability claims process—from the initial interview in the district office, through the appeals process, to the final decision rendered by the Secretary. These work groups made numerous recommendations for improving the administration of the disability program. Many of those recommendations were implemented administratively; others required legislative changes.

Simultaneously with the administration's actions, the Congress was also considering the question of disability reform. Numerous bills focusing on problems in the disability programs were introduced. Representative James Burke, Democrat of Massachusetts, who was Chairman of the House Subcommittee on Social Security from 1976 to 1978, introduced bills in both the 94th Congress (1975–76) and the 95th Congress (1977–78), but final congressional action was never taken on these bills.

In 1978, the House Ways and Means Subcommittee on Social Security held hearings at which the Social Security Administration representatives testified about problems in Federal-State relationships and the quality assurance procedures in the DI program. Subsequently, in September 1978, the Subcommittee reported a bill designed to address these and other problems in the disability insurance program. Congress adjourned, however, without taking action on the bill.

While the House Subcommittee on Social Security was concentrating on the DI program, the House Ways and Means Subcommittee on Public Assistance and Unemployment Compensation turned its attention to the SSI program. During the 95th Congress, the Subcommittee heard testimony about problems that the disabled face in attempting to enter the labor market and how the SSI program presented disincentives for those disabled recipients who wanted to seek gainful employment. The House eventually passed two bills designed to remedy this situation and to improve the administration of the SSI program, but the Senate adjourned without taking action on those bills.

Projections of the Board of Trustees in 1977 indicated that the combined cash benefit trust funds would be exhausted early in the 1980's unless remedial action was taken. The administration developed proposals designed to restore fiscal integrity to the social security programs. Congress responded to these fiscal concerns and passed the financing and decoupling amendments of 1977, which were enacted into law. Although some members of Congress wanted to include disability "reform" legislation at the time, it was decided to consider the disability reform issues separately in the future. In its report on the Social Security Amendments of 1977, the House Committee on Ways and Means warned that, with regard to the DI program, "attention must still be focused on why the costs of the program have risen so rapidly to a level far greater than anticipated. The possibility of not only reducing the cost of the programs but also making it more susceptible to administrative control must be thoroughly explored."

The disability bills that had been introduced in the Congress in 1976–78 focused the congressional eye on the disability program issues most in need of attention. These bills also set the stage for concerted congressional effort to resolve those issues when the 96th Congress convened in 1979.

Carter Administration's Recommendations

In 1979, the administration recommended numerous legislative changes to Congress. These proposals were included in the administration's "Disability Insurance Reform Act of 1979," which was introduced in the House of Representatives as H.R. 2854 by J. J. Pickle, Democrat of Texas, Chairman of the House Ways and Means Subcommittee on Social Security, and the Subcommittee's ranking Republican, William Archer, Republican of Texas, on March 13, 1979. The following proposals were included:

1. Benefit Equity

   A. Maximum family benefits in DI cases: The amount of benefits that a disabled worker and family could receive would be limited to 80 percent of the average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) used to determine the worker's benefit or, if greater, 100 percent of the PIA. As under prior law, the worker would receive the full amount of the worker's benefit, but the benefit amount of the auxiliaries would be reduced so that the total family benefit would not considerably exceed the worker's predisability earnings.

Social Security Bulletin, April 1981/Vol. 44, No. 4
2. Work Incentives

A. Work expense deductions: The cost incurred by a disabled DI or SSI beneficiary for impairment-related work expenses, services, devices, and attendant care costs necessary to engage in gainful activity would be deducted from the beneficiary’s earnings in determining SGA. (If the care, services, or items were furnished without cost to the disabled individual, the Secretary would specify the amount of the deduction that could be allowed.)

In determining SSI eligibility and the amount of the SSI payment, only those impairment-related work expenses, services, devices, and attendant care costs actually paid for by the beneficiary would be excluded.

B. Automatic reentitlement to DI and SSI benefits: DI and SSI beneficiaries who have not medically recovered could be automatically reentitled during a 15-month reentitlement period following the 9-month trial work period if a work attempt is not successful.

C. Extending entitlement for Medicare and Medicaid: The period of coverage for DI and SSI beneficiaries who have not medically recovered would be extended for 36 months after cash benefits stop because a worker is engaging in substantial gainful activity.

D. Elimination of the second Medicare waiting period: The second Medicare 24-month waiting period for former DI beneficiaries who become disabled again within a certain time period (60 months for disabled workers) would be eliminated.

E. Trial work period for disabled widows and widowers: The 9-month trial work period would be extended to disabled widow(er)s who are entitled under the DI program.

F. Demonstration projects: The Secretary would be authorized to waive any of the requirements under the OASDI, SSI, and Medicare programs in conducting experiments or demonstration projects to test the effectiveness of various alternatives for encouraging disabled beneficiaries to return to work.

3. Improved Program Administration

A. Disability determination and review: The Secretary would be given the authority to terminate, through regulations, an agreement with a State to make disability determinations because of unsatisfactory performance by the State and to administer the State determination process. The Secretary would be authorized to reverse State agency denials.

B. Closed evidentiary record: The introduction of new evidence would not be permitted after the decision is made at the hearing by an administrative law judge.

C. Judicial review: The judicial review of social security claims would be limited to issues of constitutionality and statutory interpretations.

The administration also recommended changes in the SSI program in its “Social Welfare Reform Amendments of 1979,” introduced in the House of Representatives as H.R. 4321 jointly by James Corman, Democrat of California, Chairman of the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Public Assistance, and Al Ullman, Democrat of Oregon, Ways and Means Committee Chairman, on June 5, 1979. The President’s proposals included—

1. Eligibility of aliens for SSI benefits: This proposal would make a sponsor’s agreement of support legally binding for 5 years, authorize legal action to secure reimbursement of public assistance paid to newly arrived aliens, and provide that aliens who receive unreimbursed public assistance would be regarded as public charges and subject to possible deportation.

2. Relationship between social security and SSI benefits: Retroactive OASDI benefit payments would be reduced by the amount of SSI benefits that were paid for the same period that would not have been paid had the OASDI benefits been paid on time.

3. Deeming of parents’ income and resources to disabled or blind children: The SSI program definition of the term “child” would be changed to eliminate deeming of parental income and resources to an individual at age 18. The law required parents’ income and resources to be deemed to children aged 18–20 who were students living with their parents, but did not require such deeming to nonstudent children aged 18–20. A child aged 18–20 who became a student could thus lose part or all of SSI payments.

4. Treatment of remuneration for work in sheltered workshops: All remuneration received in sheltered workshops would be considered earned income and would therefore qualify for the SSI earned income disregards.

Action in the House of Representatives

Social Security Disability Insurance Provisions

Subcommittee on Social Security Action on DI Provisions. On February 21, 1979, the Subcommittee on Social Security of the House Committee on Ways and Means began hearings on proposals to improve the disability insurance program. In opening the hearings, Chairman J.J. Pickle noted that a trend toward lower disability incidence rates seemed to be developing. He indicated that the trend may have been due to improvements in economic conditions and to better administrative procedures such as increased quality assurance and increased use of consultative medical examinations. Chairman Pickle pointed out, however, that the disability program is still subject to wide and unforeseen fluctuations and explained that he had introduced legislation (H.R. 2054) to put the disability program on a more equitable and stable footing.

The Subcommittee on Social Security held public hearings in February and March 1979, at which members of the Congress, the administration, the public, and representatives of interested organizations testified regarding the disability program and offered suggestions for improving it. Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, Joseph A. Califano, Jr., testified that some of the problems the administration found during its review of the disability program were: (1) The growth of the system which had far exceeded all expectations, (2) disincentives in the program which discouraged beneficiaries from attempting to return to the work force, and (3) a confusing and cumbersome process for determining if an individual is disabled.

To correct these problems, the administration focused its efforts on the benefit structure, work incentives, and program administration. Secretary Califano stated that the administration’s proposals, which were contained in H.R. 2854, were designed to improve both the equity and efficiency of the disability program.

Following these hearings, the Subcommittee held its markup sessions. The Subcommittee’s recommendations, similar to many provisions in the administration’s bill, were incorporated in a “clean” bill, H.R. 3236, which was introduced in the House on March 27, 1979. The Subcommittee’s version of H.R. 3236 included the following:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Worker’s age</th>
<th>Dropout years</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Under 27</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27-31</td>

The Subcommittee added a provision for childcare dropout years. This provision would credit 1 dropout year for each year in which the worker provided the principal care of a child under the age of 6. However, the number of variable dropout years combined with the number of childcare dropout years could not exceed 5. (The administration’s bill did not provide for any childcare dropout years.) The use of the smaller number of dropout years would continue to be applicable for any subsequent disability or retirement benefits unless the worker left the rolls for 12 consecutive months prior to the subsequent eligibility.

2. Work Incentives

To stimulate disabled beneficiaries to return to work despite their impairments, provisions were included to—

A. Deduct extraordinary impairment-related work expenses, attendant care cost, and the cost of medical devices and equipment paid by the disabled individual, from a disabled person’s earnings in determining SGA. (Similar to the administration’s proposal in H.R. 2854, except the administration proposed that if the care, services, or items were furnished without cost to the disabled individual, the Secretary would specify the amount of allowable deduction.)

B. Provide a 15-month reentitlement period after the 9-month trial work period. Although under the DI program cash benefits are not payable for more than 3 months of this period if the individual engages in SGA, the individual could be reentitled to benefits if unable to continue working.

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has since been reorganized into two departments: Health and Human Services, and Education.

Same as administration’s proposal in H.R. 2854.
C. Provide Medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered (the first 12 months of this 36-month period is part of the reentitlement period discussed in B above). 8
D. Eliminate the second 24-month Medicare waiting period where an individual again becomes disabled and entitled to benefits within a certain period of time. 9
E. Extend the same trial work period applicable for disabled workers to disabled widow(er)s. 10
F. Require SSA to implement 3-year demonstration projects under the DI program to encourage work activity. The Secretary could waive compliance with DI and Medicare requirements, as necessary, to carry out these projects. (Similar to an administration proposal in H.R. 2854.)
G. Permit benefits to continue after medical recovery for a beneficiary who is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation (VR) program if SSA determines that such participation will increase the likelihood that the beneficiary may be permanently removed from the disability rolls. (An administration proposal in H.R. 4321.)

3. Improved Program Administration
To improve the administration of the disability program, the following provisions were included:

A. The Secretary of Health and Human Services was required to establish, through regulations, procedures and performance standards for the States to follow in the disability determination process. The States would be given the option of continuing to administer the program in compliance with these regulations or turning administration over to the Federal Government. 11
B. Under a Subcommittee proposal, the Secretary would be required to review a specified percentage of State agency determinations of allowances before the payment of benefits. The percentages were: at least 30 percent in fiscal year 1980, 60 percent in fiscal year 1981, and 80 percent in fiscal year 1982 and thereafter.
C. The Subcommittee also proposed to change the method of reimbursing States for providing vocational rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries. The beneficiary rehabilitation program would be eliminated. Instead, the States would use general VR funds in providing rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries. (The States receive general VR funds on an 80/20 matching basis from the general revenues.) If the disabled beneficiary engages in SGA (or is employed in a sheltered workshop) for a continuous period of 12 months, the State would be reimbursed for its 20-percent matching funds and would also be rewarded with a 20-percent bonus.
D. The Subcommittee proposed to require the Secretary to review the status of disabled beneficiaries on the rolls at least once every 3 years unless a finding is made that the individual’s disability is permanent.
E. The Subcommittee proposed to reimburse, out of social security trust funds, non-Federal institutions and physicians for existing medical evidence submitted to support disability claims.
F. The Subcommittee proposed to require the Secretary to provide claimants with a decision notice containing a clear explanation of the decision, a brief summary of the evidence on which the decision was based, and, as appropriate, a brief statement of the law and regulations.
G. The Subcommittee proposed to provide for the payment from social security trust funds of reasonable costs of travel by claimants to obtain required medical examinations and for claimants and their witnesses and representatives to attend reconsideration interviews and hearings.
H. The Subcommittee stipulated that the evidentiary record in a case would be closed after a hearings decision has been made. 12

On April 2, 1979, the Subcommittee on Social Security referred the bill to the full Ways and Means Committee.

Committee on Ways and Means Action on DI Provisions. On April 9, 1979, the Committee on Ways and Means held its markup session on H.R. 3236. The only changes made in the bill, as it had been approved by the Subcommittee on Social Security, were—

1. Disability determinations: Because the committee was concerned about how State employees would be treated if the Federal Government had to take over the operation of a State disability determination unit, a provision was added requiring the Secretary to report to the House Committee on Ways and Means and the Senate Committee on Finance by January 1, 1980, about how the Federal Government would assume these responsibilities.

2. Preeffectuation review: The mandated percentages of Federal review of State agency allowances were reduced to 15 percent in fiscal year (FY) 1980, 35 percent in FY 1981, and 65 percent in FY 1982 and later.

8 Ibid.
9 Ibid.
10 Ibid.
11 Ibid.
12 Ibid.
3. Decision notices: The Committee clarified the intent of this provision and indicated that it did not expect the notices to be voluminous documents.

The Committee also considered and rejected three amendments to H.R. 3236: (1) A proposal to change the limitation on total family benefits from 150 percent of PIA to 130 percent (defeated by a vote of 16-14); (2) a proposal to make the DI impairment-related work expense provision, with respect to the blind, the same as the current SSI work expense provision for the blind (defeated by a voice vote); and (3) a proposal that persons under age 55 must meet a medical-only definition of disability in order to qualify for DI benefits (defeated by a vote of 13-12). On April 12, 1979, the Committee on Ways and Means reported the bill to the House.

House Rules Committee and Floor Action on DI Provisions. Action on the bill was delayed as several major groups raised questions about the legislation, and controversy arose as to the rules under which the bill would be considered on the House floor. Both the 1979 Advisory Council on Social Security and the National Commission on Social Security expressed concern that such major legislation was being acted upon in the absence of any recommendations from those statutorily appointed groups. They urged that the House take no action on the bill pending further review.

In addition, an ad hoc group of individuals and associations concerned about social security legislation affecting the disabled, "Save our Security" (SOS), was formed with John W. McCormack (former Speaker of the House), Wilbur D. Mills (former Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee), and James A. Burke (former Chairman of the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Social Security) as Honorary Cochairmen; and Wilbur J. Cohen (former Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare) as Chairman. This group strongly opposed several of the provisions of the bill—especially those that could result in lower benefit amounts for workers becoming disabled in the future and their families. A major effort of the SOS group was to assure that when H.R. 3236 was considered on the floor of the House of Representatives there would be an opportunity to consider several of the provisions separately rather than to simply vote for or against the bill as a whole.

The House Committee on Rules held hearings on June 6 and 7, 1979, and reported House Resolution 310, which provided for a modified rule and 1 hour of debate on H.R. 3236. The rule provided that no amendments would be in order except those recommended by the Ways and Means Committee, which are not amendable, and an amendment, offered by Representative Simon, which would delay the implementation of the provision on vocational rehabilitation funding by 1 year until fiscal year 1982.

Because of a crowded House floor schedule, consideration of House Resolution 310 and the debate on H.R. 3236 did not begin until September 6, 1979. Much of the discussion and debate centered around the proposed limitation on total family benefits and the variable number of dropout years. The House agreed to the Committee amendments (see discussion above on the Committee markup session) and Representative Simon's amendment to delay the implementation of the VR funding provision until fiscal year 1982. The House of Representatives passed H.R. 3236 by a vote of 235-162 on September 6, 1979, and sent the bill to the Senate.

SSI Disability Provisions

Subcommittee on Public Assistance and Unemployment Compensation Action on SSI Provisions. Almost simultaneously with the actions taken by the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Social Security on the administration's DI proposals, the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Public Assistance and Unemployment Compensation was considering the administration's SSI disability proposals. On April 3, 1979, the Subcommittee began hearings on the proposals (contained in H.R. 2854) that would remove work disincentives in the SSI disability program and improve the administration of the SSI program.

Following the hearing, the Subcommittee held its markup sessions and incorporated some of these provisions in a "clean" bill, H.R. 3464, which was introduced in the House on April 5, 1979. That same day, the Subcommittee referred the bill to the Committee on Ways and Means. The provisions in H.R. 3464 would have the following effects:

1. Work Incentives

A. Increase the SGA level in the SSI program to the dollar level at which countable earnings equal the applicable SSI payment standards. In determining countable earnings for SGA purposes, the following amounts would be excluded from gross earnings: (a) 20 percent of gross earnings, (b) $65, (c) an amount equal to the cost of any impairment-related work expense necessary for the individual to work regardless of who paid for these expenses, and (d) one-half of the remainder. (This was a Subcommittee proposal.)

B. Exclude 20 percent of a disabled person's gross earnings and an amount equal to the cost of any impairment-related work expenses paid by the individual in determining eligibility for, and the amount of, the SSI benefits. These disregards would be in addition to the present exclusions and would be applied after the $65 exclusion and prior to the exclusion of one-half of the remainder. (This provision is a modification of an administration proposal in H.R. 2854. The Subcommittee added the 20-percent exclusion to the administration's proposal to exclude impairment-related work expenses.)

C. Resume SSI payments automatically if the worker stopped performing SGA within 1 year after disability payments ended. (Although no provision was included to automatically reestablish Medicaid eligibility when SGA stops, individuals who live in States where Medicaid eligibility followss SSI eligibility would have their Medicaid eligibility reestablished.) If the worker stopped performing SGA, SSI disability payments would be resumed on a presumptive disability basis. (The income and resource test would still have to be met.)

D. Permit benefits to continue after medical recovery for recipients in approved VR programs if SSA determines that continuing in such programs will increase the probability of the person leaving the disability rolls permanently. (This was a Subcommittee proposal.)

2. Improved Program Administration

A. Authorize experiments that would be likely to promote the objectives of the SSI program or to facilitate its administration, with the following qualifications: (a) Recipient participation would be voluntary, (b) the total income and resources of an individual would not be substantially reduced as a result of an experiment, and (c) there must be a project to determine the feasibility of treating drug addicts and alcoholics to prevent permanent disability. (This provision is similar to an administration proposal in H.R. 2854. The three qualifications the Subcommittee placed in H.R. 3464, however, were not in either H.R. 2854 or H.R.
3236.)

B. Require that notices to applicants for SSI benefits whose claims are being denied at either the initial or reconsideration levels contain a citation of the pertinent law and regulations, a list of the evidence of record and a summary of the evidence, and the Secretary's decision and the reasons for the decision. (This was a Subcommittee proposal.)

3. Other SSI Improvements

The bill would also terminate the deeming or attribution of parents' income and resources when a disabled child attains age 18, with the qualification that the benefits of present recipients would not be reduced as a result of this provision. (Similar to a proposal in the administration's welfare reform bill, H.R. 4321.)

On April 10, after amending the SGA provision to delete the exclusion of 20 percent of gross earnings in determining countable earnings for SGA purposes, the House Ways and Means Committee reported H.R. 3464 to the House.

House Rules Committee and Floor Action. In early May 1979, the House Rules Committee conducted a hearing on H.R. 3464 and reported House Resolution 259, which provided for a modified closed rule and 2 hours for debate, to the House. On June 6, 1979, the House passed H.R. 3464 by a vote of 374-3 and sent the bill to the Senate.

Action in the Senate

Senate Committee on Finance Action

In early October 1979, the Senate Finance Committee held public hearings on the proposed disability legislation included in H.R. 3236, H.R. 3464, H.R. 2854 (the administration's bill), and other proposals that were submitted. Stanford G. Ross, Commissioner of Social Security, testifying for the administration, cited the growth of the disability program and warned that its cost would rise from $15 billion to $30 billion within 10 years unless major legislative changes were made. He also stressed that the current legislation was designed to correct three critical areas of the disability program: (1)
The high replacement rates for disabled workers, (2)
the lack of incentives that would encourage beneficiaries to attempt to work and to leave the disability rolls, and (3) the cumbersome administration of the program.

Commissioner Ross spoke against the provisions in H.R. 3464 that would, if enacted, change the earnings level for determining SGA and provide a 20-percent increase in the earned-income exclusion in the SSI program, but he expressed support for the H.R. 3464 provisions permitting deduction of some impairment-related work expenses from earnings in determining SGA (regardless of who paid them) and in determining benefits (only if the beneficiary paid them). In addition, Commissioner Ross expressed support for adopting the H.R. 2854 provision limiting judicial review, broadening the H.R. 3236 demonstration authority to include other than work-incentive experiments, and providing for the extension of Medicaid eligibility for 3 years after SSI disability benefits end in the same way that Medicare eligibility would be extended after social security disability benefits ended.

Proposals in other bills that were considered by the Committee related to: (1) Benefits for disabled recipients who have earnings from gainful employment,
(2) Medicaid eligibility for individuals who are disabled but do not meet the requirements for disability benefits because they are performing SGA, (3) the waiting period to receive DI benefits in the case of individuals with illnesses that would result in death within 12 months after the impairment became disabling, and (4) provisions designed to encourage disabled DI beneficiaries to return to work.

In late October 1979, the Senate Finance Committee conducted markup sessions. The Committee amended and consolidated provisions of the House approved DI legislation, H.R. 3236, and SSI legislation, H.R. 3464. Senator Talmadge had also introduced a number of bills to amend to the AFDC and CSE programs. The provisions in these bills were then introduced and agreed upon as amendments to H.R. 3236.

The bill, as reported by the Senate Finance Committee, differed from the House-passed bills in the following manner:

1. Provisions Increasing Benefit Equity Under DI
   A. Limited the total family benefits payable in a disability case to the lesser of 85 percent of the worker’s AIME or 160 percent of the PIA. (The House provision was 80 percent and 150 percent, respectively.)
   B. Allowed at least 1 dropout year to all workers under the age of 32 and deleted the House provision granting childcare dropout years. (Under the House provision, the worker under age 27 may not be eligible for any regular dropout years.)

2. Provisions Strengthening Work Incentives Under Both DI and SSI
   A. Modified the House provision in H.R. 3236 that would permit the deduction of the costs of impairment-related work expenses and certain other costs from earnings for the purpose of determining whether an individual is engaging in SGA to allow the deduction even where the costs were paid by a third party. (Applies to both DI and SSI.)
   B. Added a 3-year demonstration project that would extend special benefits to disabled SSI recipients whose earnings equal or exceed the SGA level until their countable income reached the Federal breakeven point. Recipients of the special benefits would be eligible for Medicaid and social services on the same basis as SSI recipients. States would have the option of supplementing the special benefits. Medicaid and social services could continue to be available to individuals whose earnings preclude payment if they could not keep working without the services these programs provide and their earnings were insufficient to purchase the coverage. (Applies to SSI only.)
   C. Added a provision to treat remuneration for work in sheltered workshops as earned income for purposes of determining SSI payments. (This SSI provision was contained in the administration’s welfare reform bill, H.R. 4321.)

3. Improved DI and SSI Program Administration
   A. Added a Senate Finance Committee provision that would delete the substantial evidence requirement and instead modify the scope of Federal court review so that the Secretary’s determinations with respect to facts in claims under OASDI and SSI would be conclusive, unless found to be arbitrary and capricious.
   B. Modified the House provision in H.R. 3236 that required the Secretary to perform a preeffectuation review on disability allowances to authorize such review in cases of denials as well as allowances. The schedule for review was changed to 15 percent of the national workload in fiscal year 1981, 35 percent in fiscal year 1982, and 65 percent in years thereafter.
   C. Deleted the House provision that would change the funding provisions for providing VR services for DI beneficiaries.
   D. Modified the House provision in H.R. 3236 to authorize SSA to continue to review eligibility of even permanently disabled persons.
   E. Modified the House provisions in H.R. 3236 and H.R. 3464 to require that denial notices be expressed in language understandable to the claimant.

4. Provisions Relating to AFDC and CSE Programs
   A. Added a provision to make several changes in the work incentive program, including: (1) A requirement that WIN registrants participate in employment search activities, (2) elimination of the 60-day counseling period for refusal to cooperate before assistance can be terminated, and (3) authorization to establish in regulations the period of time during which an individual will be ineligible for assistance in the case of a refusal without a good cause to participate in the WIN program.16 The Senate Finance Committee, in adding this provision to the bill, stated “that AFDC recipients who are able to work should be required to actively seek employment and that this should be made explicit in the law.” Recent demonstration projects, concentrating on employment search activities, have shown that increased emphasis on job search activities have been effective in placing new AFDC recipients into jobs.
   B. Added a provision to increase the Federal matching rate for AFDC fraud investigations and prosecutions from 50 percent to 75 percent.

16 Similar to a provision in the administration’s welfare reform bill, H.R. 4321.
C. Added a provision to exempt any governmental agency, or component or instrumentality thereof authorized by law to conduct audits or similar activities in connection with the administration of the AFDC program from the general prohibition against disclosure of personal information about AFDC recipients to legislative bodies. This provision also permitted disclosure to the Senate Committee on Finance and the House Committee on Ways and Means.

D. Added a provision to increase the Federal matching for AFDC costs incurred by States to 90 percent for developing and implementing a computerized AFDC management information system.

E. Added a provision to extend Internal Revenue Service authority to collect child support for non-AFDC child support enforcement cases.

F. Added a provision to allow Federal matching for State expenditures (including compensation) for child support activities performed by court personnel and other supportive and administrative personnel. As noted in the Senate Finance Committee report, the Congress included the provision because there is "a tremendous backlog of cases awaiting court action in some States" that was created, in large part, by the emphasis on child support enforcement caused by the CSE program.

G. Added a provision to increase the Federal matching to 90 percent for child support costs incurred by States in developing and implementing computer management information systems.

H. Added a provision to prohibit advance payments to the State of the Federal share of the child support program administrative expenses for a calendar quarter unless the State has submitted a full and complete report of the amount of child support collected and disbursed for the calendar quarter that ended 6 months earlier. The amount of the advance payment would also be reduced in the Federal share of child support collections made but not reported by the State.

I. Added a provision to grant authority for States and localities to have access—for purposes of the child support program—to earnings information in records maintained by SSA and State employment security agencies. In addition, SSA would be specifically authorized to disclose certain tax return information to State and local child support enforcement agencies.

5. Other Provisions

A. Expanded the authority of the Secretary to conduct demonstration projects by permitting waiver of certain benefit requirements of DI and Medicare to allow demonstration projects to test ways to stimulate disabled beneficiaries and recipients to return to work. (This provision was also contained in H.R. 2854 and H.R. 3236, and a similar provision was in H.R. 3464.)

B. Added a Senate Finance Committee provision to authorize SSA to participate in a demonstration project designed to determine how best to provide services needed by disabled individuals who are terminally ill.

C. Added a provision to require an alien to reside in the United States for 3 years before becoming eligible for SSI. (This provision is a substitute for one contained in the administration's welfare reform bill, H.R. 4321. The administration had proposed making a sponsor's agreement for support legally binding for 5 years, authorizing legal action to secure reimbursement for public assistance paid to newly arrived aliens, and regarding aliens who received unreimbursed public assistance as public charges.)

D. Added a provision requiring that retroactive OASDI benefits would be adjusted by the amount of SSI benefits already paid that would not have been paid if the social security benefits had been paid timely and taken into account as income on the regularly scheduled payment dates.

E. Added a provision that would close the so-called "FICA II" loophole by stating that, after 1980, any amounts of employee social security taxes paid by an employer would be considered to constitute wages and would, therefore, be subject to social security taxation, except in the case of domestic employment.

F. Added a Senate Finance Committee provision requiring social security contributions for State and local employees to be deposited 30 days after the end of each month.

On November 8, 1979, the Senate Finance Committee reported H.R. 3236 to the full Senate.

Senate Floor Action

On December 5, 1979, the Senate began its floor debate on H.R. 3236. Final debate, which occurred in late January 1980, centered primarily on attempts to modify the provision of the bill dealing with the limitation on family benefits. An amendment to substantially liberalize the provision failed by a vote of 50–34.
On January 31, 1980, the Senate passed H.R. 3236 by a vote of 87–1, as modified by the following floor amendments:

1. A modification by Senator Strom Thurmond, Republican of South Carolina, to the Senate Finance Committee’s “FICA II” provision, which would require that any amounts of employee FICA taxes paid by an employer would be considered to constitute wages for both social security tax and benefit purposes, and would not be applicable in the case of payments made on behalf of employees of State and local governments; employees of small businesses, including farmers; employees of tax-exempt institutions; and domestic employees. (The Finance Committee provision excluded only domestic employees.)

2. An amendment by Senator Charles Percy, Republican of Illinois, that would modify the Immigration and Nationality Act to make a sponsor’s agreement of support for an alien legally binding for 3 years, subject to certain exceptions. This amendment would also modify the Finance Committee’s 3-year residency requirement for SSI eligibility of aliens.

3. An amendment by Senator Gaylord Nelson, Democrat of Wisconsin, to require the Secretary of Health and Human Services to develop a plan that would provide State employees who are capable of performing duties in the disability process preferential hiring, notwithstanding any other provision in law, when the Secretary either partially or fully assumes the disability determination function of a State agency. In addition, the Secretary would not be permitted to assume such function until the Secretary of Labor determines that the State has made arrangements to protect, under every applicable Federal, State, and local statute, employees who will not be hired.

4. An amendment by Senator Birch Bayh, Democrat of Indiana, which would eliminate the waiting period for persons with a terminal illness (a medically determinable physical impairment that is expected to result in death of such individual within 12 months after onset and that has been confirmed by two physicians).

5. An amendment by Senator Herman Talmadge, Democrat of Georgia, to limit the Secretary’s right to regulate State agencies making disability determinations to actions authorized by law.

6. An amendment by Senator Henry Bellmon, Republican of Oklahoma, that would require the Secretary to review disability decisions issued by administrative law judges and to report to the Congress by January 1, 1982, on the progress of this review.

7. An amendment by Senator Max Baucus, Democrat of Montana, to establish a voluntary program to certify Medicare supplemental health insurance policies (the so-called Medi-Gap policies) that would meet certain minimum standards.

Action in the House-Senate Conference Committee

Following the appointment of the House-Senate conferees, the Conference Committee, chaired by Representative Al Ullman (Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee) convened on March 27, 1980, and began its deliberations on H.R. 3236. These deliberations extended throughout April and into May.

The conferees quickly reached a compromise on the benefit equity provisions. They agreed to limit the amount of benefits a family just coming on the disability rolls could receive to the lesser of 85 percent of the disabled worker’s AIME (as in the Senate bill) or 150 percent of the worker’s PIA (as in the House bill) but not less than 100 percent of PIA. The Committee also agreed to follow the House schedule for the number of dropout years that can be used in computing the amount of the disability benefits. In addition, the childcare dropout provision in the House bill was modified so that, for monthly benefits payable for July 1981 and later, a worker could be eligible for additional dropout years if a child under age 3 lived in the disabled worker’s household substantially throughout a year and the disabled worker did not have earnings in that year. If any year is dropped because of childcare, however, the total number of years dropped—regular and childcare—cannot exceed 3.

The House-Senate differences regarding work incentive provisions were resolved later when the conferees agreed that for purposes of determining whether the individual’s level of earnings demonstrate an ability to engage in SGA for both the DI and SSI programs, the costs of impairment-related work expenses will be deductible only if paid for by the beneficiary; in addition, for SSI, the deduction will be allowed for benefit-computation purposes. However, an initial applicant must meet the income test and qualify for benefits without the deduction.

The conferees also agreed to a Senate provision authorizing the Secretary to specify, in regulations, the type of care, services, and items that may be deducted and to prescribe the reasonable limits as to the amount of earnings that may be excluded. Agreement was also reached to include the Senate language, which provides that remuneration for work in sheltered workshops will be considered, for SSI purposes, earned—rather than unearned—income.

The conferees also agreed to provisions regarding the work incentive demonstration projects. One of these provisions authorized the Secretary to conduct experiments and demonstrations to test the effectiveness of various alternatives in encouraging disabled beneficiaries to work. In addition, the Secretary is directed to undertake a project to ascertain the feasibility of treating alcoholics and drug addicts to prevent the onset of irreversible medical conditions that may result in permanent disability. The conferees adopted the Senate's provisions for special SSI benefits and continued Medicaid and social services eligibility for people who had received SSI disability benefits but who are engaging in SGA. They also added a provision under which funds would be provided to States for establishing programs of medical assistance and social services for severely handicapped people who have not qualified for cash disability benefits.

The numerous differences that existed in the provisions for improved program administration were resolved by the conferees with relatively little difficulty. Agreement was reached to follow the Senate schedule for reviewing State agency disability determinations (15 percent in fiscal year 1981, 35 percent in fiscal year 1982, and 65 percent in years thereafter), but to limit the review to only allowances and continuances as proposed by the House. In addition, the Senate provision to permit the Secretary to review State agency determinations and make them more favorable was adopted. In its report, the Conference Committee instructed the Secretary to report to the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees by January 1982 concerning the potential effects on processing times and on the cost effectiveness of the requirement of the 65 percent preeffectuation review scheduled for fiscal year 1983 and thereafter.

The conferees also agreed to the House version of the proposal requiring the Secretary to review the status of DI or SSI beneficiaries at least once every 3 years unless a finding is made that the individual's disability is permanent. They agreed that disability denial notices be expressed in language understandable to the claimant and include a discussion of the evidence and reasons why the claim was denied.

The conferees further agreed to the Senate proposal requiring the Secretary to implement a program of reviewing, on his own motion, decisions rendered by administrative law judges (ALJ's) as a result of disability hearings and to report to Congress on the progress of this program. The Conference Committee report pointed out:

In the past there had also been fairly extensive review of ALJ allowances and denials through own-motion review by the Appeals Council as authorized by the Administrative Procedure Act and the regulations of the Secretary. This own-motion review has almost been eliminated in recent years. The new provision is, therefore, designed to move toward greater review of ALJ decisions.

The conferees deleted the Senate amendment that would have provided that the Secretary's determinations with respect to facts in OASDI and SSI claims would be conclusive unless found to be arbitrary and capricious. The conferees were not convinced it would have the intended effect.

The Senate amendment that requires the Secretary to provide a hiring preference to State agency employees (other than the agency administrator and his deputy), in the event the Secretary assumes the functions of a State agency, was adopted. In addition, the Secretary would be prohibited from assuming the State functions until the Secretary of Labor had determined that, with respect to any State agency employees not hired by the Secretary, the State had made fair and equitable arrangements to protect the interests of the displaced employees.

In considering the Senate AFDC and CSE amendments, the conferees deleted the provision to increase the Federal matching rate for AFDC fraud investigations and prosecutions. The conferees agreed to the remaining AFDC and CSE provisions. The provision to allow disclosure of AFDC recipient information to legislative bodies was modified to exclude the disclosure of individual recipients' names and addresses to legislative bodies such as the Senate Finance Committee and House Ways and Means Committee. Also, the provision to allow Federal matching for costs incurred by a court in making judicial determinations related to CSE was modified to exclude judges' salaries from this matching.

After considerable discussion over the course of several conference sessions, the conferees finally agreed to delete the Senate provision that would have eliminated the waiting period for persons with a terminal illness and, instead, compromised on a provision that authorizes SSA to use up to $2 million a year for the purpose of participating in a demonstration project relating to the terminally ill. This project is currently being conducted by the Health Care Financing Administration. The conferees adopted the Senate proposal for a Medi-Gap provision, but modified it by specifying the criteria under which a Medicare supplemental policy would be certified.

The conferees agreed to a modified version of the Senate provision regarding aliens that provides that income and resources of sponsors be deemed to aliens for 3 years after entry and holds aliens and sponsors jointly liable for any overpayment during the 3-year period resulting from incorrect information furnished to SSA. They also agreed to a Senate provision for adjusting retroactive social security benefits by the amount of SSI benefits already paid that would not have been paid if the social security benefits had been paid, and therefore taken into account as income, on their regularly scheduled payment dates.

The conferees agreed to the Senate provision to require that deposits from State and local governments be due 30 days after the end of each month. However, they deleted the provision to count any employer payment of employee FICA taxes as wages for social security crediting and taxing purposes because they thought the issue needed further congressional consideration and study.21 Also deleted was a provision to establish a new funding concept in the vocational rehabilitation program designed to increase incentives to the States to help beneficiaries return to work. The conferees believed that the new performance-based allocation system for reimbursing the States for VR services put in place by the Secretary for FY 1979 should continue and be explored further in the future. However, SSA and the Rehabilitation Services Administration are instructed to explore more timely and effective methods of measuring performance in rehabilitations and report the results of these efforts to the Congress.

On May 13, 1980, the House-Senate Conference Committee reported the bill: H.R. 3236, as agreed to by the conferees, was passed on May 22, 1980, by the House of Representatives by a vote of 289–2, and on May 29, 1980, by the Senate on a voice vote. On June 9, 1980, H.R. 3236 was signed by President Carter and became Public Law 96-265, the Social Security Disability Amendments of 1980. The specific provisions of the final legislation are described below.

Summary of Major Provisions

Provisions Increasing Equity

Maximum Family Benefit. The new law sets the maximum family benefit in disability cases at 85 percent of the average indexed monthly earnings or 150 percent of the primary insurance amount, whichever is less, but no less than 100 percent of the primary insurance amount. This provision is effective for individuals eligible after 1978 who were never entitled to disability benefits before July 1980.

One concern that led to this change was that high benefit amounts and replacement rates for some disabled worker families had contributed to growth in the DI program by encouraging persons with serious medical conditions to stop working and apply for benefits and by discouraging those receiving benefits from returning to work. Another concern involved the appropriateness of situations where DI benefits exceed predisability take-home pay, regardless of the effect that such situations might have in encouraging applications for benefits or discouraging rehabilitation. Under the previous law, for example, about 6 percent of newly entitled DI beneficiaries and their families would receive benefits that would be higher than the worker’s predisability net earnings.

Dropout Years. Effective for individuals who were never entitled to disability benefits before July 1980, the number of years that can be dropped from the computation (averaging) period is proportional to the age of the disabled worker: 1 year can be disregarded for each 5 years after age 21 up to the year in which the worker becomes disabled. As under prior law, the minimum required for the averaging period is 2 years and the maximum number of dropout years is 5.

Under the previous law, younger workers could disregard a higher proportion of their working years than older workers. For example, by disregarding 5 years and counting only 2, a 29-year-old disabled worker would receive a benefit based on the best 29 percent of his or her earnings. A worker aged 50 or older was able to drop only 5 of 28 or more years and would receive a benefit based on 82 percent or more of lifetime earnings. Older workers, therefore, generally had to use more of their low years of earnings than younger workers.

To allow for the fact that younger persons may not work while caring for children, the new law permits workers to drop up to 3 years in which they have no earnings and have children under age 3 living with them. If any year is dropped because of childcare, however, the total number of years dropped—regular and childcare—cannot exceed 3. The childcare provision is effective for monthly benefits after June 1981.

Provisions Strengthening Work Incentives

Exclusion of Extraordinary Work Expenses Due To Severe Disability. This provision states that for purposes of determining whether the level of earnings received by a disabled beneficiary demonstrates ability to engage in substantial gainful activity for both the DI and SSI programs, the costs to the beneficiary of attendant care services, medical devices, equipment prostheses, and similar items and services needed to enable the beneficiary to work will be excluded from income. These costs will be excluded whether or not the items and services are required for normal daily functions. For SSI recipients, the deduction is permitted in computing the monthly benefit amount. In establishing initial SSI eligibility, however, an applicant must meet the income test and qualify initially without application of the deduction. The change is effective for expenses incurred 6 months after enactment and later.

This change reflects the view that a worker’s gross earnings are not a fair measure of a worker’s ability to engage in substantial gainful activity when a very substantial part of those earnings must be used to pay for extraordinary impairment-related work expenses. Those whose earnings after these work expenses are deducted do not exceed the SGA level will continue to be considered disabled for benefit purposes.

Automatic Reentitlement to Benefits. Extends under both the DI and SSI programs a person’s status as a disabled individual for 15 months after the completion of generally required to regain insured status for disability 60 months (5 years) for workers—the length of qualifying for Medicare. (The specified time period qualifies the months for which that individual received cash benefits will count for purposes of qualifying for Medicare. (The specified time period is 60 months (5 years) for workers—the length of time generally required to regain insured status for disability benefits; for widow(er)s and adults disabled in childhood, it is 84 months (7 years)—the period during which a disability would have to occur in order for benefits to be payable on the basis of the deceased worker's earnings.)

This provision assures those who go back to work that the fact that they have attempted to work will not cause a delay in becoming eligible for Medicare should their work attempt fail and they return to the DI rolls. The provision is effective 6 months after enactment.

Three-Year Demonstration Projects.
1. Special SSI payments and eligibility for Medicaid and social services. For the next 3 years, people who have completed the trial work periods and continue to earn in excess of the SGA amount are provided special cash benefit payments. These benefits will be calculated in the same manner as are SSI disability benefits. Individuals receiving the special benefits will continue to be eligible for Medicaid and social services on the same basis as regular SSI recipients. In addition, individuals who are blind or disabled SSI recipients will continue to be eligible for Medicaid and social services even if income above the "breakeven" point causes them to stop receiving cash benefits, as long as they—
   • continue to be blind or to have the disabling condition that caused them to be considered disabled;
   • would be entitled to cash payments except for their earnings;
   • would be seriously inhibited in continuing employment if they lost Medicaid and social services eligibility; and
   • do not have earnings high enough to allow them to provide a reasonable equivalent of the SSI benefits, State supplementary payments, Medicaid, and social services they would have in the absence of earnings.

These changes generally assure SSI disability beneficiaries that working will not disadvantage them. Their cash benefit will be reduced only gradually to reflect increases in their earnings (or other income) and their medical and other services are continued even after cash benefits have stopped if their continuation is needed to assure that the individual can continue to work. This provision is effective January 1, 1981.

2. Medical assistance and social services for certain handicapped persons. A 3-year pilot program under which States (at their option) could receive Federal grants to help meet the cost of providing medical assistance and social services to severely handicapped persons who are not receiving SSI is also provided. Eligibility is limited to those persons who have earnings in excess of the SGA amount and are not receiving SSI, special benefits, State...
supplementary payments, or Medicaid and for whom the State determines that (1) the individual's ability to continue employment would be significantly inhibited without medical and social services; and (2) the person's earnings are not high enough to provide a reasonable equivalent of the cash and other benefits (SSI, State supplementary payments, Medicaid, and social services) that he or she would have in the absence of those earnings. Effective September 1, 1981, this provision authorizes $6 million for September 1981 through September 1982, with total 3-year expenditures not to exceed $18 million.

Trial Work Period for Disabled Widow(er)s. The trial work period, previously applicable only to disabled workers and adults disabled in childhood, is extended to disabled widows and widowers under DI. This change will allow these beneficiaries an opportunity to attempt to work and become self-sufficient and is effective for individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased before the 6th month after enactment.

Continuing Benefits in VR Plans. Special DI and SSI benefits (and, therefore, vocational rehabilitation services) will continue after medical recovery for persons in approved VR programs if (1) the medical recovery was not anticipated and (2) the continuance of such benefits will increase the likelihood that the persons will go off the benefit rolls permanently. This change is designed to allow many of those people who recover (unexpectedly) in the middle of a rehabilitation program to complete that program and is effective 6 months after enactment.

Improving DI and SSI Program Administration

Performance Standards for State Disability Determination Services (DDS). The Secretary is authorized to establish, through regulations, performance standards and procedures for the State disability determination process, with emphasis on performance criteria, fiscal control procedures, and other standards designed to assure equity and uniformity in State agency disability determinations. States may continue to provide disability determination services in compliance with the newly prescribed standards or turn the administration over to the Federal Government. In the event of unsatisfactory State performance, the Secretary could take over the administration of the State determination process. This provision is effective with the 12th month following the month of enactment.

The Secretary is required to develop a contingency plan for the assumption of the disability determination process and, in that plan, to give employment preference to State employees capable of performing duties in disability determination processes, excluding only employees filling the positions of DDS administrator and deputy administrator. The report must be submitted to the Congress by July 1, 1980.

Periodic Review of Disability Determinations. A review is required at least once every 3 years of the status of disabled beneficiaries whose disabilities may not be permanent. Where a finding is made that an individual's disability is permanent, review of the beneficiary's condition may be made at such times as the Secretary considers appropriate. This provision reflects a congressional concern that too little has been done to assure that DI and SSI benefits are not being paid to persons who have medically recovered from their disability. The change is effective January 1, 1982.

Federal Review of State Agency Determinations. A Federal review is required of State disability allowance and continuation determinations on a preeffectuation basis, in order to assure greater uniformity and consistency of the decisions made by various adjudicators within a State agency and of decisions made by the various States. A review of 15 percent of such DI determinations is required in fiscal year 1981, increasing to 35 percent in fiscal year 1982, and 65 percent in fiscal year 1983 and thereafter. In compliance with congressional intent, the preeffectuation review requirement will also be applied to SSI disability determinations, although the law does not set forth a specific schedule for SSI reviews. In addition, the Secretary is to report to the Congress by January 1982 on the potential effects of the requirement for the 65-percent review for fiscal year 1983.

This provision also authorizes the Secretary to reverse a State agency decision to deny a DI claim. Thus, it is not possible for SSA to reverse all State agency decisions in both the DI and SSI programs.

Review of Administrative Law Judge Decisions. The Secretary is required to institute a program of own-motion review of disability decisions rendered by ALJ's and submit a report on the progress of this program to the Congress by January 1, 1982. The report will focus on the uniformity and accuracy of ALJ decisions and the standards employed in making those decisions. The new provision is designed to move toward greater review of ALJ decisions.

Closed Evidentiary Record. The introduction of new evidence is prohibited in OASDI and SSI claims after a decision on the claim is made at the hearings level, in order to stabilize the record on a claim prior to Appeals Council or Federal Court review.

This provision is intended to limit the so-called "floating application" process whereby a claimant, usually an applicant for disability benefits, continues to introduce new evidence while the appealed claim is being reviewed. This provision is effective for applicants filed in the month after the month of enactment.

Limitation on Court Remands. This provision permits OASDI cases to be remanded from courts on the Secretary's motion only for "good cause" shown, and on court's own motion only if there is new and material evidence that was not previously submitted and there is "good cause" for not having submitted evidence. (This provision also would apply for SSI cases since the provision of title II that is amended is referenced in title XVI.) This provision is effective upon enactment.

Payment for Existing Medical Evidence. The new law provides that any non-Federal provider of medical services that supplies medical evidence required and requested for making a determination of disability in the DI program will be reimbursed for the reasonable costs of providing such evidence. This provision parallels existing authority in the SSI program and is intended to aid in obtaining better and more complete medical information needed to adjudicate disability cases. The change is effective 6 months after enactment.

Information to Accompany DI and SSI Disability Decisions. A notice to a claimant regarding the denial of a disability claim must be expressed in understandable language and must include a discussion of the specific evidence and reason for denial of the claim. This provision is intended to strengthen the adjudicatory process by requiring a written formulation of the reasons for the decision, as well as to provide claimants with a better understanding of the reason for denial. The change is effective 13 months after enactment.

Payment for Certain Travel Expenses. Permanent authority is provided under the Social Security Act to make payments for certain travel expenses incident to medical examinations required by SSA in conjunction with a disability determination and for travel expenses incurred by OASDI and SSI applicants, their representatives, and witnesses in traveling to hearings and face-to-face reconsiderations. Similar authority had been provided annually under appropriation acts. Travel expenses for SSI applicants will be paid from general revenues. This provision is effective upon enactment.

Other Changes Affecting SSI Programs

Parental Deeming for SSI. The preceding law required that the income and resources of parents be deemed to children aged 18–20 who were students and who lived with their parents; no such deeming was required in the case of similarly situated children who were not students. Thus, by becoming a student, a child could lose part or all of his or her SSI payment. This differential treatment of children on the basis of student status has been criticized as counterproductive to goals of education and training for the handicapped.

The new provision deletes the deeming requirement so that all deeming of income and resources from parents to children will end when the children reach age 18. The amendment also provides that the benefit amount of current recipients, if it would otherwise be reduced as a result of the new provision, will not be reduced. These changes are effective October 1, 1980.

Retroactive Title II Benefit Adjustment Due To SSI Benefits. Significant numbers of SSI claims also involve concurrent claims for OASDI benefits. If the OASDI check is delayed until after SSI benefit payments have begun, the beneficiary can receive full payment under both programs for the same months because the lump-sum retroactive OASDI payment is income for SSI purposes only for the calendar quarter in which it is received. The new law provides for offsetting retroactive OASDI benefits by the amount of SSI benefits already paid that would not have been paid had the social security benefits been paid on their regularly scheduled payment dates. This change is effective in the 13th month after enactment.

Aliens. Considerable criticism has been voiced over the fact that aliens could become entitled to SSI benefits within 30 days of their arrival in the United States despite pledges of financial support by sponsors who may have substantial income and resources. In addition, because reduced SSI benefits are payable to those living with and receiving support and maintenance from another person, an alien could receive SSI benefits despite the receipt of substantial support from his or her sponsor. In addition, courts have determined that a sponsor's affidavit of support is not legally binding. To address these concerns, the new law—

- provides that income and resources of sponsors be deemed to aliens for 3 years after entry;
- requires aliens to obtain their sponsors' cooperation in documenting income and resources;
- excludes refugees, those granted political asylum, and those who become blind or disabled after entry from the deeming requirement; and
- holds aliens and sponsors jointly liable for any overpayment during the 3-year period resulting from incorrect information furnished SSA, unless good cause exists.

These changes are effective with respect to applications filed on and after October 1, 1980.

Income in Sheltered Workshops. Under prior law, some income received through participation in a sheltered workshop was treated for SSI purposes as unearned income. Therefore, remuneration received was subject to a less liberal income disregard than that applied to earned income. The new law provides that all remuneration received in a sheltered workshop is considered as earned income and is therefore subject to the earned income disregards.

The intent was to encourage the participation of SSI recipients in vocational rehabilitation programs by extending the work-incentive features of the earned income disregard to income received in sheltered workshop training programs. These changes are effective for remuneration received after September 30, 1980.
Summary of Provisions Affecting AFDC and CSE

Work Incentive Program. The amendments authorize the Department of Labor to require those AFDC recipients who are required to register with the WIN program to participate in up to 8 weeks of job search activities a year through WIN. The new law also strengthens the AFDC work requirements by eliminating the 60-day counselling period before assistance can be terminated for recipients who refuse to participate in WIN and by authorizing the Secretaries of Labor and Health and Human Services to establish a fixed sanction period during which an individual who refuses to participate remains ineligible for AFDC. These changes are effective October 1, 1980, except for the provisions relating to sanctions for nonparticipation, which are effective upon enactment.

AFDC and CSE Management Information Systems. A number of recent studies have concluded that computerized management information systems for AFDC and CSE programs foster better management of these programs. The new law provides for increasing to 90 percent the Federal matching costs of developing and implementing such systems, effective July 1, 1981.

Wage Information for CSE Program. To improve the capacity of the State child support enforcement agencies to acquire accurate wage data, the new law authorizes and requires SSA to disclose wage and self-employment information directly to State and local child support enforcement agencies. Previously this information could be obtained only from the Internal Revenue Service. The new law also requires States to disclose wage information from unemployment compensation records to CSE agencies for the same purpose. The provisions are effective July 1, 1980.

Disclosure of AFDC Information. Prior law provided that State AFDC plans include safeguards against disclosure of AFDC recipient information to legislative bodies or their agents. Although regulations of the Department of Health and Human Services allow State audit agencies performing normal audit functions to be exempted from this restriction, several States did not honor the exemption. The new law eliminates the disclosure prohibition for such agencies. The amendment makes similar changes with regard to audits under title XX, social services. These changes are effective upon enactment.

Child Support Duties by Court Personnel. The new law provides Federal matching funds for expenditures by courts (exclusive of judges' salaries) in performing child support enforcement activities; the Federal Government will pay 75 percent of expenditures over and above 1978 levels. The new law is expected to encourage States to concentrate more court personnel on child support enforcement cases, help to alleviate the existing backlogs, and lead to increased collections. The provision is effective for expenditures beginning July 1, 1980.

IRS and Collections of Child Support for Non-AFDC Families. The new law strengthens the child support enforcement powers of the States by extending to the States the authority to request the Internal Revenue Service collection of delinquent child support payments for non-AFDC families. This change is effective July 1, 1980.

Child Support Reporting and Matching Procedures. Prior law required State child support agencies to submit full reports of collections and disbursements and to return the Federal share of collections for AFDC families to the Federal Government. Some States were delinquent in providing reports requested by the Secretary. Other States that reported promptly failed to return the Federal share of collections. The new legislation will promote more efficient processes in State reporting by denying advances of Federal matching for CSE administrative costs to States that do not report effective with the calendar quarter beginning July 1, 1980. It will also simplify the return of the Federal portion of collections by reducing AFDC quarterly advances of funding to States by the amount of the Federal share, as estimated for States failing to report, effective January 1, 1981.

Other Changes Affecting SSA Programs

Secretary's Report on OASDI and SSI. The Secretary is required to make a full report to the Congress on the effects of the OASDI and SSI disability provisions of P.L. 96–265, with emphasis on work incentives, implementation and operational problems, and cost and caseload impact. The report is due by January 1, 1985.

Social Security Contributions for State and Local Employment. The new law requires that deposits of social security contributions for State and local covered employment be made within 30 days after the end of each month effective with contributions for wages paid on or after July 1, 1980. Prior to the enactment of P.L. 96–265, States were required to make deposits only once each quarter. These social security requirements are much more liberal than for private employers and resulted in a significant loss of interest income to the social security trust funds. The Department of Health and Human Services had published regulations that would have required deposits on a more frequent basis than P.L. 96–265, but P.L. 96–265 was passed before the regulations were to take effect and superseded them.

Study of Time Limits for Decisions on Benefit Claims. The Secretary is required to report to the Congress by July 1, 1980, on appropriate time limits within which a decision should be made in initial, reconsideration, hearing, and Appeals Council cases under OASDI.

Demonstration Projects. The Secretary is authorized to conduct experiments and demonstrations to test the effectiveness of various alternatives on encouraging disabled beneficiaries to return to work. Such projects could include a study of the effect of lengthening the trial work period; altering the 24-month waiting period for Medicare coverage; altering the way in which the disability program is administered; earlier referral of beneficiaries for vocational rehabilitation; and greater use of private contractors, employers, and others to develop, perform, or otherwise stimulate new forms of rehabilitation. The Secretary is also directed to undertake a project to ascertain the feasibility of treating alcoholics and drug addicts to prevent the onset of irreversible medical conditions that may result in permanent disability.

These demonstration projects and experiments are expected to provide information that can be used to improve the operations of the DI, SSI, and Medicare programs as they relate to the disabled and to ensure that these programs are administered in the most efficient and effective way possible. An interim report on the projects must be sent to Congress by January 1, 1983, and a final report is due 5 years after enactment.

Terminally Ill. Funds are authorized to be used by SSA to participate in a project to study the impact on the terminally ill of provisions of the disability programs administered by the Social Security Administration.

Medicare Supplemental Health Insurance (Medi-Gap) Certification. The Secretary is required to establish a voluntary certification program for Medicare supplemental policies. This certification program will apply to policies sold in States (1) that fail to establish and implement standards that meet or exceed those contained in the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) model regulations and (2) whose requirements concerning the loss-ratio are not at least those of P.L. 96–265. Final regulations to announce certification procedures were required to be issued by October 1, 1980, with issuance of seals of certification to begin July 1, 1982.

A panel chaired by the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, and consisting of four State insurance commissioners, will be appointed by the President to determine which States have programs that meet the NAIC standards and the loss-ratio requirements. This provision is effective July 1982 in those States that do not meet standards and is designed to alleviate the highly publicized abuses in the sale of some private health insurance policies to supplement Medicare coverage by encouraging States to implement regulatory insurance programs that would be beneficial to the public.
96TH CONGRESS 1ST SESSION

H. R. 2054

LIMITATION ON TOTAL FAMILY BENEFITS IN DISABILITY CASES

Sec. 2. (a) Section 203(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "except as provided by paragraph (3)" in paragraph (1) (in the matter preceding subparagraph (A)) and inserting in lieu thereof "except as provided by paragraphs (3) and (6)";

(2) by redesignating paragraphs (6), (7), and (8) as paragraphs (7), (8), and (9), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new paragraph:

"(6) Notwithstanding any of the preceding provisions of this subsection (but subject to section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)), the total monthly benefits to which beneficiaries may be entitled under sections 202 and 223 for any month on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual entitled..."
to disability insurance benefits (whether or not such total benefits are otherwise subject to reduction under this subsection but in lieu of any reduction under this subsection which would otherwise be applicable) shall be reduced (before the application of section 224) to the smaller of—

"(A) 75 percent of such individual's average indexed monthly earnings (or 100 percent of his primary insurance amount, if larger), or

"(B) 150 percent of such individual's primary insurance amount."

(b)(1) Section 203(a)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out "paragraph (7)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (8)".

(2) Section 203(a)(8) of such Act, as redesignated by subsection (a)(2) of this section, is amended by striking out "paragraph (6)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (7)".

(3) Section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)(III) of such Act is amended by striking out "section 203(a) (6) and (7)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 203(a) (7) and (8)".

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual whose initial entitlement to disability insurance benefits (with respect to the period of disability involved) begins on or after January 1, 1980.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF DROPOUT YEARS FOR YOUNGER DISABLED WORKERS

SEC. 3. (a) Section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "except that" and all that follows and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "except that—"(i) in the case of an individual becoming eligible for disability insurance benefits prior to the year in which he attains age 45, the number of such elapsed years (subject to clause (ii))—

"(I) shall be reduced only by four if such individual becomes eligible for such benefits in or after the year in which he attains age 40,

"(II) shall be reduced only by three if such individual becomes eligible for such benefits in or after the year in which he attains age 36 but before the year in which he attains age 40,

"(III) shall be reduced only by two if such individual becomes eligible for such benefits in or after the year in which he attains age 32 but before the year in which he attains age 36,

"(IV) shall be reduced only by one if such individual becomes eligible for such benefits in or after the year in which he attains age 28 but before the year in which he attains age 32, and “(V) shall not be reduced if such individual becomes eligible for such benefits before the year in which he attains age 28;
and this clause shall continue to apply for purposes of determining such individual’s primary insurance amount after his death or his attainment of age 65 unless prior to the month in which he dies or attains such age there occurs a period of at least twelve consecutive months for which he was not entitled to a disability insurance benefit based on the same disability; “(ii) If an individual described in clause (i) is de-determined in accordance with regulations of the Secretary to have been responsible for providing (and to have provided) the principal care of a child (of such individual or his or her spouse), under the age of 6, throughout more than six full months in any calendar year which is included in such individual’s elapsed years but which is not disregarded pursuant to the preceding provisions of this subparagraph and subpara-graph (B) (in determining such individual’s benefit computation years) by reason of the reduction in the number of such individual’s elapsed years under clause (i), the number by which such elapsed years are reduced under this subparagraph pursuant to clause (i) shall be increased by one (up to a combined total not exceeding 5) for each such calendar year; except that (I) no calendar year shall be disregarded by reason of this clause (in determining such individual’s benefit computation years) unless the individual provided such care throughout more than six full months in such year, (II) the particular calendar years to be disregarded (in determining such benefit computation years) shall be those years for which the total of such individual’s wages and self-employment income, after adjustment under paragraph (3), is the smallest, and (III) this clause shall apply only to the extent that its application would result in a higher primary insurance amount; and “(iii) the number of an individual’s benefit computation years shall in no case be less than two.”.

(b) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual whose initial entitlement to disability insurance benefits (with respect to the period of disability involved) begins on or after January 1, 1980.
Sec. 4. (a) The Commissioner of Social Security shall develop and carry out experiments and demonstration projects designed to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of various alternative methods of treating the work activity of disabled beneficiaries under the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program, including such methods as a reduction in benefits based on earnings, designed to encourage the return to work of disabled beneficiaries to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds.

(b) The experiments and demonstration projects developed under subsection (a) shall be of sufficient scope and shall be carried out on a wide enough scale to permit a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration while giving assurance that the results derived from the experiments and projects will obtain generally in the operation of the disability insurance program without committing such program to the adoption of any prospective system either locally or nationally.

(c) In the case of any experiment or demonstration project under subsection (a), the Secretary may waive compliance with the benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII of the Social Security Act insofar as necessary for a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration. No such experiment or project shall be actually placed in operation unless at least ninety days prior thereto a written report, prepared for purposes of notification and information only and containing a full and complete description thereof, has been transmitted by the Commissioner of Social Security to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate. Periodic reports on the progress of such experiments or demonstrations shall be submitted by the Commissioner to such committees. When appropriate, such reports shall include detailed recommendations for changes in administration or law, or both, to carry out the objectives stated in subsection (a).

(d) The Commissioner of Social Security shall submit to the Congress no later than January 1, 1983, a final report on the experiments and demonstration projects carried out under this section together with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(e) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(j) Expenditures made for experiments and demonstration projects under section 4 of the Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979 shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Trust Fund, as determined appropriate by the Secretary.”
EXTRAORDINARY WORK EXPENSES DUE TO SEVERE DISABILITY

Sec. 5. Section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the third sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to the individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, or prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or other routine medical care and services) which are necessary for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions.".

PROVISION OF TRIAL WORK PERIOD FOR DISABLED WIDOWS AND WIDowers; EXTENSION OF ENTITLEMENT TO DISABILITY INSURANCE AND RELATED BENEFITS

Sec. 6. (a)(1) Section 222(c)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "section 223 or 202(d)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 223, 202(d), 202(e), or 202(f),".

(2) Section 222(c)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, in the case of an individual entitled to widow's or widower's insurance benefits under section 202
(e) or (f) who became entitled to such benefits prior to attaining age 60, with the month in which such individual becomes so entitled.").

(3) The amendments made by this subsection shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability has not been de-determined to have ceased prior to the date of enactment of this Act.

(b)(1)(A). Section 223(a)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "or, if later (and subject to subsection (e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A).").

(B) Section 202(d)(1)(G) of such Act is amended by—

(i) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as clauses
(I) and (II), respectively,

(ii) by inserting "the later of (i)" immediately before "the third month", and

(iii) by striking out "or (if later)" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "(or, if later, and subject to section 223(e), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)), or (ii)".
(C) Section 202(e)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "or, if later (and subject to section 223(e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual's trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A).".

(D) Section 202(f)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "or, if later (and subject to section 223(e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual's trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A).".

(2) Section 223 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(e) No benefit shall be payable under subsection (d), (e), or (f) of section 202 or under subsection (a)(1) to an individual for any month in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the 12-month period which begins with the fourth month following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)."

(3) Section 226(b) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "ending with the month" in the matter following paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "ending (subject to the last sentence of this subsection) with the month;" and
(B) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "For purposes of this subsection, an individual who has had a period of trial work which ended as provided in section 222(c)(4)(A), and whose entitlement to benefits or whose status as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary as described in paragraph (2) has subsequently terminated, shall be deemed to be entitled to such benefits or to occupy such status (notwithstanding the termination of such entitlement or status) for the period of consecutive months throughout all of which the physical or mental impairment, on which such entitlement or status was based, continues, but not in excess of 24 such months”.

(4) The amendments made by this subsection shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability or blindness (whichever may be applicable) has not been determined to have ceased prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

ELIMINATION OF REQUIREMENT THAT MONTHS IN MEDICARE WAITING PERIOD BE CONSECUTIVE

Sec. 7. (a)(1)(A) Section 226(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “consecutive” in clauses (A) and (B).

(B) Section 226(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out “consecutive” in the matter following paragraph (2).
(2) Section 1811 of such Act is amended by striking out “consecutive”.

(3) Section 1837(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out “consecutive”.

(4) Section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 is amended by striking out “consecutive” each place it appears.

(b) Section 226 of such Act is amended by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g), and by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

“(f) For purposes of subsection (b) (and for purposes of section 1837(g)(1) of this Act and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974), the 24 months for which an individual has to have been entitled to specified monthly benefits on the basis of disability in order to become entitled to hospital insurance benefits on such basis effective with any particular month (or to be deemed to have enrolled in the supplementary medical insurance program, on the basis of such entitlement, by reason of section 1837(f)), where such individual had been entitled to specified monthly benefits of the same type during a previous period which terminated—

“(1) more than 60 months before that particular month in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (A)(i) or (B) of subsection (b), or

...
“(2) more than 84 months before that particular month in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (A)(ii) or (A)(iii) of such subsection, shall not include any month which occurred during such previous period.”.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to hospital insurance or supplementary medical insurance benefits for months after the month in which this Act is enacted.

DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS UNDER STATE AGREEMENTS; FEDERAL REVIEW OF STATE AGENCY ALLOWANCES

Sec. 8. (a)(1) Section 221(a) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“(a) In the case of any individual, the determination of whether or not he is under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and of the day such disability began, and the determination of the day on which such disability ceases, shall be made (in accordance with regulations of the Secretary) either by the Secretary or, at the discretion of the Secretary, by a State agency pursuant to an agreement entered into under subsection (b). Except as provided in subsections (c) and (d), any such determination shall be the determination of the Secretary for purposes of this title.”.
(2) Section 221(b) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The Secretary may enter into an agreement with any State under which an appropriate State agency or agencies, determined by the Secretary to have the capability of effectively and efficiently making determinations of disability, will make the determinations referred to in subsection (a) with respect to all individuals or specified classes of individuals within the State as designated in the agreement by the Secretary: Agreements entered into under this subsection shall contain such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe to assure the effective and uniform administration of this section throughout the United States."

(3) Section 221(c) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(c)(1) The Secretary (in accordance with paragraph (2)) shall review determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to agreements under this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)). As a result of any such review, the Secretary may determine that an individual is not under a disability (as so defined) or that such individual's disability began on a day later than that determined by such agency, or that such disability ceased on a day earlier than that determined by such agency. The Secretary's review of any determination under the preceding sentence shall be made before any action is taken to implement such determination and before any benefits are paid on the basis thereof.

"(2) In carrying out the provisions of paragraph (1) with respect to the review of determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to agreements under this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)), the Secretary shall review—

"(A) at least 30 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1980,

"(B) at least 60 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1981, and

"(C) at least 80 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in any fiscal year after the fiscal year 1981.".

(4) The first sentence of section 221(e) of such Act is amended (A) by striking out "as may be mutually agreed upon" and inserting in lieu thereof "as determined by the Secretary", and (B) by inserting "actual" before "cost".

(5) Section 221 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) An agreement between the Secretary and a State entered into under subsection (b) may be—
"(1) terminated by the State at such time and upon such notice to the Secretary as may be provided in regulations or in such agreement, or

"(2) terminated or modified by the Secretary upon such notice to the State as may be provided in regulations or in such agreement but only if he determines that (A) the State has failed substantially, or is not able, to carry out the agreement or (B) the continuation of some or all of the functions provided under the agreement is disadvantageous to or inconsistent with the efficient administration of this section."

(b) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act; but any agreement entered into under section 221 of the Social Security Act which is in effect on the day preceding such date shall continue in effect notwithstanding such amendments unless terminated by the Secretary in accordance with subsection (h) of such section 221 (as added by subsection (a)(5) of this section).

INFORMATION TO ACCOMPANY SECRETARY’S DECISIONS

AS TO CLAIMANT’S RIGHTS

Sec. 9. (a) Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentences: "Any such decision by the Secretary shall contain a statement of the case setting forth (1) a citation and discussion of the pertinent law and regulation, (2) a list of the evidence of record and a summary of the evidence, and (3) the Secretary's determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based. The statement of the case shall not include matters the disclosure of which (as indicated by the source of the information involved) would be harmful to the claimant, but if there is any such matter the claimant shall be informed of its existence, and it may be disclosed to the claimant's representative unless the latter's relationship with the claimant is such that disclosure would be as harmful as if made to the claimant.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to decisions made on and after the first day of the second month following the month in which this Act is enacted.

DISABILITY DETERMINATION DEMONSTRATION PROJECT

SEC. 10. (a) The Commissioner of Social Security shall develop and carry out a demonstration project designed to determine the feasibility of simplifying and strengthening the initial disability determination process under title II of the Social Security Act by giving every applicant for a disability by determination under that title an opportunity, prior to the issuance of an initial decision denying his application for such determination, establishing a date for the onset of his disability which is later than the date claimed in the application, or otherwise serving as the basis for an award less favorable than the one sought, for a personal conference with the person or persons who are participating or will participate in the making of such determination and the rendering of such decision.

(b) The demonstration project developed under subsection (a) shall be carried out on a wide enough scale (whether conducted on a limited basis in all States or on a more general basis in selected States) to permit an effective consideration of the feasibility and value of such personal conferences prior to initial decision while giving assurance that the results derived from the project will obtain generally in the operation of the disability insurance program without committing such program to the adoption of any prospective system either locally or nationally.

(c) The demonstration project under subsection (a) shall include appropriate provision for—

(1) adequate written notice to each applicant for a disability determination of the time and place of the conference and of the issues to be considered;

(2) review by the applicant of all evidence of record which is being or will be taken into account in making the determination;

(3) opportunity for the applicant to present his views and testimony, to submit documentary evidence, and to indicate the sources of any additional evidence;

and

(4) such other matters as may make the conference useful to the applicant and encourage his participation.

(d) In the case of the demonstration project under subsection (a), the Secretary may waive compliance with the requirements imposed by titles II and XVIII of the Social Security Act (and regulations thereunder) insofar as necessary for a thorough evaluation of the matters under consideration. Such project shall not be actually placed in operation unless at least ninety days prior thereto a written report, prepared for purposes of notification and information only and containing a full and complete description thereof, has been transmitted by the Commissioner of Social Security to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate. Periodic reports on the progress of the project shall be submitted by the Commissioner to such committees. When appropriate, such reports shall include detailed recommendations for changes in administration or law, or both, to carry out the objectives stated in subsection (a).

(e) The Commissioner of Social Security shall submit to the Congress no later than January 1, 1983, a final report on the demonstration project carried out under this section together with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(f) Section 201(j) of the Social Security Act (as added by section 4(e) of this Act) is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; and expenditures made for the demonstration project under section 10 of such amendments shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund”.

LIMITATION ON COURT REMANDS

SEC. 11. The sixth sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out all that precedes "and the Secretary shall" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown before he files his answer, remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and it may at any time order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, but only upon a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there is good cause for the failure to incorporate such evidence into the record in a prior proceeding;".

TIME LIMITATIONS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS

SEC. 12. Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "'(1)' after "'(b)'", by striking out "'(1)', "'(2)', and "'(3)'" in the second sentence (as added by section 9(a) of this Act) and inserting in lieu thereof "'(A)', "'(B)'" and “(C)” respectively, and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

“(2) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress, no later than January 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of appropriate time limitations governing decisions on benefit claims. Such report shall specifically recommend—

“(A) the maximum period of time (after application for a payment under this title is filed) within which the initial decision of the Secretary as to the rights of such individual should be made;

“(B) the maximum period of time (after application for reconsideration of any decision described in subparagraph (A) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary on such reconsideration should be made;

“(C) the maximum period of time (after a request for a hearing with respect to any decision described in subparagraph (A) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary upon such hearing (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made; and

“(D) the maximum period of time (after a request for review by the Appeals Council with respect to any decision described in subparagraph (A) is made) within which the decision of the Secretary upon such review
In determining the time limitations to be recommended, the Secretary shall take into account both the need for expeditious processing of claims for benefits and the need to assure that all such claims will be thoroughly considered and accurately determined.”.

VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES FOR DISABLED INDIVIDUALS

SEC. 13. (a) Section 222(d) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“Costs of Rehabilitation Services From Trust Funds

“(d)(1) For the purpose of making vocational rehabilitation services more readily available to disabled individuals who are—

“(A) entitled to disability insurance benefits under section 223,

“(B) entitled to child’s insurance benefits under section 202(d) after having attained age 18 (and are under a disability),

“(C) entitled to widow’s insurance benefits under section 202(e) prior to attaining age 60, or

“(D) entitled to widower’s insurance benefits under section 202(f) prior to attaining age 60, to the end that savings will accrue to the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund as a result of rehabilitating such individuals into substantial gainful activity, there are authorized to be transferred from the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund each fiscal year such sums as may be necessary to enable the Secretary to reimburse—

"(i) the general fund in the Treasury of the United States for the Federal share, and

"(ii) the State for twice the State share, of the reasonable and necessary costs of vocational rehabilitation services furnished such individuals (including services during their waiting periods), under a State plan for vocational rehabilitation services approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 701 et seq.), which result in the cessation of such individuals' disability (as demonstrated by their performance of substantial gainful activity which lasts for a continuous period of 12 months, or which results in their employment for a continuous period of 12 months in a sheltered workshop meeting the requirements applicable to a nonprofit rehabilitation facility under paragraphs (8) and (10)(L) of section 7 of such Act (29 U.S.C. 706 (8) and (10)(L)). The determination that the vocational rehabilitation services contributed to the successful return of such individuals to substantial gainful activity or their employment in sheltered workshops, and the determination of the amount of costs to be reimbursed under this subsection, shall be made by the Commissioner of Social Security in accordance with criteria formulated by him.

"(2) Payments under this subsection shall be made in advance or by way of reimbursement, with necessary adjustments for overpayments and underpayments.

"(3) Money paid from the Trust Funds under this subsection for the reimbursement of the costs of providing services to individuals who are entitled to benefits under section 223 (including services during their waiting periods), or who are entitled to benefits under section 202(d) on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of such individuals, shall be charged to the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund, and all other money paid out from the Trust Funds under this subsection shall be charged to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund. The Secretary shall determine according to such methods and procedures as he may deem appropriate—

"(A) the total amount to be reimbursed for the cost of services under this subsection, and

"(B) subject to the provisions of the preceding sentence, the amount which should be charged to each of the Trust Funds.
“(4) For the purposes of this subsection the term ‘vocational rehabilitation services’ shall have the meaning assigned it in title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 701 et seq.), except that such services may be limited in type, scope, or amount in accordance with regulations of the Secretary designed to achieve the purpose of this subsection.

“(5) The Secretary is authorized and directed to study alternative methods of providing and financing the costs of vocational rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries under this title to the end that maximum savings will result to the Trust Funds. On or before January 1, 1980, the Secretary shall transmit to the President and the Congress a report which shall contain his findings and any conclusions and recommendations he may have.”.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to fiscal years beginning after September 30, 1980.

CONTINUED PAYMENT OF BENEFITS TO INDIVIDUALS UNDER VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION PLANS

Sec. 14. Section 225 of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting “(a)” after “Sec. 225.”, and by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment to an individual of benefits based on disability (as described in the first sentence of subsection (a)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment on which the individual's entitlement to such benefits is based has or may have ceased if—

“(1) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and

“(2) the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls.”.

PAYMENT FOR EXISTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE

SEC. 15. (a) Section 223(d)(5) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: “Any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence.”.

(b) Section 1614(a)(3) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:
“(F) Any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence.”.

PAYMENT OF CERTAIN TRAVEL EXPENSES

Sec. 16. Section 201 of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 4(e) of this Act) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(k) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure, out of any or all of the Trust Funds, such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under section 221, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges under title II, part B of title XI, title XVI, and title XVIII.”.

PERIODIC REVIEW OF DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS

Sec. 17. Section 221 of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 8(a)(5) of this Act) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:
“(i) In any case where an individual is determined to be under a disability, unless a finding has been made that such disability is permanent, the case shall be reviewed by the applicable State agency or the Secretary (as may be appropriate), for purposes of continuing eligibility, at least once every three years. Reviews of cases under the preceding sentence shall be in addition to, and shall not be considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required or provided for under or in the administration of this title.”.

4 Sec. 101. (1) Section 203(a)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding after subparagraph (D) the following new subparagraph:
5 "(E) In the case of an individual described in paragraph (1) who attains age 62 after 1978 and becomes entitled to a disability insurance benefit after August 1979 based on eligibility for that benefit (as defined in sections 215(a)(3)(B) and (a)(2)(A)) after 1978, the total monthly benefits to which beneficiaries are entitled under section 202 or 223 for a month on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of such disabled individual, prior to any increases resulting from the application of paragraph (2)(A)(ii)(III) of section 215(i), shall be further reduced (prior to rounding under paragraph (1)) as necessary so as not to exceed 80 percent of that individual’s average indexed monthly earnings (as used or would be used to determine his primary insurance amount), except that this subparagraph shall not apply so as to reduce the monthly benefit (i) of such individual or (ii) to which beneficiaries are entitled, on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of such individual, for any month following the month preceding the month in which the individual died.”.

(2) Section 203(a)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended, in the matter preceding subparagraph (A), by in-serting “subject to paragraph (2)(E) and” after “such individual shall,”.

(3) Section 203(a)(6) of that Act is amended by (A) in-serting “the lower of (i)” after “reduced to”, and (B) inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ”, or

(ii) an amount equal to the sum of the maximum amounts of benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of all such insured individuals.”

(b) Section 226 of such Act is amended by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g), and by inserting after subsection (e) the following subsection:

“(f) For purposes of subsection (b) (and for purposes of section 1837(g)(1) of this Act and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974), the 24 months for which an individual has to have been entitled to specified monthly benefits on the basis of disability in order to become entitled to hospital insurance benefits on such basis effective with any particular month (or to be deemed to have enrolled in the supplementary medical insurance program, on the basis of such entitlement, by reason of section 1837(f)), where such individual had been entitled to specified monthly benefits of the same type during a previous period which terminated—

“(1) more than 60 months before that particular month in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (2) (A)(i) or (B) of subsection (b), or

“(2) more than 84 months before that particular month in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (2) (A)(ii) or (A)(iii) of such subsection,

shall not include any month which occurred during such previous period.”.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to hospital insurance or supplementary medical insurance benefits for months after the month in which this Act is enacted.
PROVISION OF TRIAL WORK PERIOD FOR DISABLED WIDOWS AND WIDOWERS

SEC. 202. (a) Section 222(c)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “section 223 or 202(d)” and inserting in lieu thereof “section 223, 202(d), 202(e), or 202(f),”.

(b) Section 222(c)(3) of the Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “, or, in the case of an individual entitled to widow’s or widower’s insurance benefits under section 202 (e) or (f) who became entitled to such benefits prior to attaining age sixty, with the month in which such individual becomes so entitled.”.

(c) The amendments made by this subsection shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to the date of enactment of this Act.

EXTENSION OF ENTITLEMENT TO DISABILITY INSURANCE AND RELATED BENEFITS

SEC. 203. (a)(1) Section 223(a)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “or, if later (and subject to subsection (e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A).”.
(2) Section 202(d)(1)(G) of the Act is amended by—

(A) redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as clauses (I) and (II), respectively,

(B) inserting “the later of (i)” immediately before “the third month”, and

(C) striking out “or (if later)” and inserting in lieu thereof: “(or, if later, and subject to section 223(e), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)), or (ii)”.

(3) Section 202(e)(1) of the Act is amended by striking out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof: “(or, if later, and subject to section 223(e), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A).”.

(4) Section 202(f)(1) of the Act is amended by striking out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof: “(or, if later (and subject to section 223(e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A).”.

(b) Section 223 of the Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(e) No benefit shall be payable under subsection (d), (e), or (f) of section 202 or under subsection (a)(1) to an individual for any month in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the twelve-month period which begins with the down four month following the end of his trial work period de tmined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)’’.
(c) Section 226(b) of the Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “ending with the month” in the matter following paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof “ending (subject to the last sentence of this subsection) with the month”; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: “For purposes of this subsection, an individual who has had a period of trial work which ended as provided in section 222(c)(4)(A), and whose entitlement to benefits or whose status as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary as described in paragraph (2) has subsequently terminated, shall be deemed to be entitled to such benefits or to occupy such status (notwithstanding the termination of such entitlement or status) for the period of consecutive months throughout all of which the physical or mental impairment, on which such entitlement or status was based, continues, but not in excess of 24 such months”.
(d)(1)(A) Section 1614(a)(3) of the Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:
“(F) For purposes of this title, an individual whose trial work period has ended by application of paragraph (4)(D)(i) shall, nonetheless be considered to be disabled until (i) the fifteenth month following the month with which his trial work period ended, or (ii) the month in which his disability ceases (as determined without regard to subparagraph (4)(D)), whichever is earlier.”.

(B) Such section is further amended by striking out, in subparagraph (D) thereof, “paragraph (4)” and inserting “subparagraph (F) or paragraph (4)” in lieu thereof.

(2) Section 1611(e) of the Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

“(4) No benefit shall be payable under this title with respect to an eligible individual or his eligible spouse who is an aged, blind, or disabled individual solely by application of section 1614(a)(3)(F).”.

(e) The penultimate sentence of section 1902(a) is amended by—

(1) striking out “any individual who” and inserting “; (I) any individual who” in lieu thereof, and

(2) striking out the period at the end of such sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “, (II) any individual who received either supplemental security income benefits under title XVI or State supplementary payments on the basis of disability but whose benefits or payments were terminated by reason of the applicability to him of section 1614(a)(4)(D)(i) (or because of the amount of his earned income not excluded pursuant to section 1612(b)), shall continue to be treated as if he were receiving such benefits or payments until the earlier of the thirty-sixth month following the last month for which such individual received such benefits or payments or the month following the month that his disability ceases (as determined without regard to section 1614(a)(3)(D)), and (III) any individual who received either supplemental security income benefits under title XVI or State supplementary payments on the basis of blindness but whose benefits or payments were terminated because of the amount of his earned income not excluded pursuant to section 1612(b), shall continue to be treated as if he were receiving such benefits or payments until the earlier of the thirty-sixth month following the last month for which such individual received such benefits or payments or the month following the month that his blindness ceases.”.

(f) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability or blindness (whichever may be applicable) has not been determined to have ceased prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.
DEDUCTIONS FROM EARNINGS FOR DETERMINING SUBSTANTIAL GAINFUL ACTIVITY AND AMOUNT OF SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME BENEFITS

SEC. 204. (a) Section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting the following new sentences immediately after the first sentence thereof: "In applying such criteria, there shall in any event be excluded from the earnings of an individual engaged in gainful activity the cost incurred by him for attendant care or other services or items necessary, because of his impairment, for him to engage in such activity and without regard to whether they are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions (or, if any such care, services, or items were furnished without cost to the individual, such amount with respect thereto as the Secretary may prescribe). The Secretary shall specify in regulations the types of care, services, and items that may be considered as necessary to enable a disabled individual to engage in gainful activity, and the amount of earnings to be excluded pursuant to the preceding sentence shall be subject to such limits as the Secretary may by regulation prescribe. In the case of an individual to whom the preceding sentence applies for any month who, for the same month, receives supplemental security income benefits under title XVI, the amounts of earnings excluded under the preceding sentence shall equal the amount excluded under section 1614(a)(3)(D) for such month.”.

(b)(1) Section 1612(b)(4)(A) of the Act (pertaining to exclusions from the earned income of the blind) is amended by striking out clause (ii) down through the comma and inserting in lieu thereof “(ii) an amount equal to costs incurred by the individual for attendant care or other services or items necessary, because of his blindness, for him to engage in gainful activity, without regard to whether they are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions, and any other expenses reasonably attributable to the earning of any income and (iii)”.

(2) Section 1612(b)(4)(B) of the Act is amended by striking out “and (ii)” and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “(ii) an amount of earned income equal to the cost incurred by the individual for attendant care or other services or items necessary, because of his impairment, for him to engage in gainful activity and without regard to whether they are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions, and (iii)”.

(3) Section 1612(b) is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentences: “The Secretary shall specify in regulations the types of care, services, and items that may be considered as necessary to enable a blind or disabled individual to engage in gainful activity, and the amount of earned income that may be excluded pursuant to paragraph (4)(A)(ii) or (4)(B)(ii), shall be subject to such limits as the Secretary may by regulation prescribe. For purposes of determining the amount to be excluded under such paragraphs, the Secretary shall determine the usual amount of such expenses, if any, with respect to a disabled or blind individual, and such amounts shall be applicable to the month for which they are determined and all subsequent months until the determination is revised upon the showing of a significant change in the amount of such expenses.”.

(c) Section 1614(a)(3)(D) of the Act is amended by inserting, immediately after the first sentence thereof, the following new sentence: “In applying such criteria, there shall in any event be excluded from the earnings of an individual engaged in gainful activity the amount excluded from his earned income under section 1612(b)(4)(B)(ii) for the cost of attendant care or other services or items necessary because of his impairment, for him to engage in such activity and without regard to whether they are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions (or, if any such care, services, or items were furnished without cost to the individual, such amount with respect thereto as the Secretary may prescribe).”.

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be applicable with respect to determinations of eligibility for or amount of benefits for months after the third month following enactment of this Act.

TERMINATION OF DEEMING WHEN CHILD ATTAINS AGE 18

Sec. 205. (a) Section 1614(f)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "under age 21" and inserting in lieu thereof "under age 18".

(b) The amendment made by this section shall be effective beginning with the second quarter beginning after this Act is enacted.

REPORT TO CONGRESS

Sec. 206. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall review the operation of the amendments made by this title, and, not later than the close of the sixty-sixth month following the month in which they became effective, shall submit to the Congress a report thereon, including the data necessary to assess the effectiveness of such amendments in encouraging disabled individuals to return to substantial gainful activity.

TITLE III—ADMINISTRATIVE IMPROVEMENTS

STATE OPTION TO MAKE DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS

Sec. 301. (a) Section 221(a) of the Social Security Act is redesignated as section 221(a)(1) and the first sentence thereof is amended by striking out all after "such disability ceases," and inserting in lieu thereof "shall be made by an agency of each State that notifies the Secretary in writing that it wishes to make such disability determinations commencing with such month as the Secretary and the State agree upon, but only if (A) the Secretary has not found, under subsection (b)(1) that the State agency substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with the applicable provisions of this section or rules issued thereunder, or (B) the State has not notified the Secretary, under subsection (b)(2), that it does not wish to make such determinations. If the Secretary once makes the finding described in clause (A) of the preceding sentence, or the State gives the notice referred to in clause (B) of such sentence, the Secretary may thereafter determine whether (and, if so, beginning with which month and under what conditions) the State may make again disability determinations under this paragraph.”.

(b) Section 221(a) of the Act is further amended by adding after and below paragraph (1), the following new paragraph:

“(2) The disability determinations described in paragraph (1) made by a State agency shall be made in accordance with the pertinent provisions of this title and the standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary pertaining to matters such as disability determinations, and the class or classes of individuals with respect to which a State may make disability determinations (if it does not wish to do so with respect to all individuals in the State) and the conditions under which it may choose not to make all such determinations. In addition, the Secretary shall promulgate regulations specifying, in such detail as he deems appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States. The regulations may, for example, specify matters such as—

"(A) the administrative structure and the relationship between various units of the State agency responsible for disability determinations,

"(B) the physical location of and relationship
among agency staff units, and other individuals or organizations performing tasks for the State agency, and standards for the availability to applicants and beneficiaries of facilities for making disability determinations,

"(C) State agency performance criteria, including
the rate of accuracy of decisions, the time periods
within which determinations must be made, the procedures for and the scope of review by the Secretary, and, as he finds appropriate, by the State, of its performance in individual cases and in classes of cases,
and rules governing access of appropriate Federal officials to State offices and to State records relating to its administration of the disability determination function,

"(D) fiscal control procedures that the State agency may be required to adopt,

"(E) the submission of reports and other data, in such form and at such time as the Secretary may require, concerning the State agency's activities relating to the disability determination process, and

(c)(1) Section 221(b) of the Act is amended to read as follows:

"(b)(1) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and other written guidelines, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his finding, make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

"(2) If a State, having notified the Secretary of its intent to make disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), no longer wishes to make such determinations, it shall notify the Secretary in writing of that fact, and, if an agency of the State is making disability determinations at the time such notice is given, it shall continue to do so for not less than 180 days. Thereafter, the Secretary shall make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

(d) Section 221(c) of the Act is amended to read as follows:

"(c) The Secretary may on his own motion review a disability determination referred to in subsection (a)(1) made by a State agency, and, as a result of such review, may determine that an individual is or is not under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)), or that such disability began or ceased on a day earlier or later than that determimed by such agency."

(e) Section 221(d) of the Act is amended by striking out
"(a)" and inserting "(a), (b)" in lieu thereof.

(f) Section 221(e) of the Act is amended, in the first sentence, by—

(1) striking out "which has an agreement with the Secretary" and inserting in lieu thereof "which is making disability determinations under subsection
(a)(1)",

(2) striking out "as may be mutually agreed upon" and inserting "as determined by the Secretary" in lieu thereof, and

(3) striking out "carrying out the agreement under this section" and inserting in lieu thereof “making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”.

(g) Section 221(g) of the Act is amended by—

(1) striking out “has no agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting “does not undertake to perform disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), or which has been found by the Secretary to have substantially failed to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and guidelines”, and

(2) striking out “not included in an agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting in lieu thereof “for whom no State undertakes to make disability determinations”.

LIMITATION ON PROSPECTIVE EFFECT OF APPLICATION

Sec. 302. (a) Section 202(j)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“(2) An application for any monthly benefits under this section filed before the first month in which the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits shall be deemed a valid application (and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month) only if the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits before the Secretary makes a final decision on the application and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is
gether with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(f) Section 201(j) of the Social Security Act (as added by section 4(e) of this Act) is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; and expenditures made for the demonstration project under section 10 of such amendments shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund".

LIMITATION ON COURT REMANDS

SEC. 11. The sixth sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out all that precedes "and the Secretary shall" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown before he files his answer, remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and it may at any time order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, but only upon a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there is good cause for the failure to incorporate such evidence into the record in a prior proceeding;".

TIME LIMITATIONS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS

SEC. 12. Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(b)", by striking out "(1)", "(2)", and "(3)" in the second sentence (as added by section 9(a) of this Act) and inserting in lieu thereof "(A)", "(B)" and
“(C)”, respectively, and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

“(2) The Secretary shall submit to the Congress, no later than January 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of appropriate time limitations governing decisions on benefit claims. Such report shall specifically recommend—

“(A) the maximum period of time (after application for a payment under this title is filed) within which the initial decision of the Secretary as to the rights of such individual should be made;

“(B) the maximum period of time (after application for reconsideration of any decision described in subparagraph (A) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary on such reconsideration should be made;

“(C) the maximum period of time (after a request for a hearing with respect to any decision described in subparagraph (A) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary upon such hearing (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made; and

been incurred without regard to such project, shall be met by the Secretary from amounts made available to him for this purpose, as authorized by applicable appropriation Acts, from the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund, the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund, and the Federal Supplement-tary Medical Insurance Trust Fund, and from the amounts appropriated from the general revenues of the Treasury to carry out any such title. The costs of any such project shall be allocated among each of such Trust Funds and each such appropriation in a manner determined by the Secretary, taking into consideration the programs (or types of benefit) to which the project (or part of a project) is most closely related or is intended to benefit. If, in order to carry out a project under this section, the Secretary requests a State to make supplementary payments (or makes them himself pursuant to an agreement under section 1616), or to provide medical as-stance under its plan approved under title XIX, to individuals who are not eligible therefor, or in amounts or under circumstances under which the State does not make payments under such section or provide medical assistance under its State plan, the Secretary shall reimburse such State for the non-Federal share of such payments or such assistance from amounts appropriated to carry out title XVI or XIX, as may be appropriate."
to the end that savings will accrue to the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund as a result of rehabilitating such individuals into substantial gainful activity, there are authorized to be transferred from the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund each fiscal year such sums as may be necessary to enable the Secretary to reimburse—

"(i) the general fund in the Treasury of the United States for the Federal share, and

"(ii) the State for twice the State share, of the reasonable and necessary costs of vocational rehabilitation services furnished such individuals (including services during their waiting periods), under a State plan for vocational rehabilitation services approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 701 et seq.), which result in the cessation of such individuals' disability (as demonstrated by their performance of substantial gainful activity which lasts for a continuous period of 12 months, or which results in their employment for a continuous period of 12 months in a sheltered workshop meeting the requirements applicable to a nonprofit rehabilitation facility under paragraphs (8) and (10)(L) of section 7 of such Act (29 U.S.C. 706 (8) and (10)(L)). before the Secretary,",

(B) ""and after hearing such additional evidence if so ordered," in the sixth sentence, and

(C) "", and a transcript of the additional record and testimony upon which his action in modifying or affirming was based".

(b)(1) Title XVIII of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"JUDICIAL REVIEW

"SEC. 1882. Any individual, after any final decision of the Secretary made after a hearing to which he was a party,
“(4) For the purposes of this subsection the term ‘vocational rehabilitation services’ shall have the meaning assigned it in title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 701 et seq.), except that such services may be limited in type, scope, or amount in accordance with regulations of the Secretary designed to achieve the purpose of this subsection.

“(5) The Secretary is authorized and directed to study alternative methods of providing and financing the costs of vocational rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries under this title to the end that maximum savings will result to the Trust Funds. On or before January 1, 1980, the Secretary shall transmit to the President and the Congress a report which shall contain his findings and any conclusions and recommendations he may have.”.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to fiscal years beginning after September 30, 1980.

CONTINUED PAYMENT OF BENEFITS TO INDIVIDUALS UNDER VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION PLANS

SEC. 14. Section 225 of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting “(a)” after “Sec. 225.”, and by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment to an individual of benefits based on disability (as described in the first sentence of subsection (a)) shall not be tary made before he files his answer, remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and may, at any time, on good cause shown, order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, and the Secretary shall, after the case is remanded, and after hearing such additional evidence if so ordered, modify or affirm his findings of fact or his decision, or both, and shall file with the court any such additional and modified findings of fact and decision, and a transcript of the additional record and testimony upon which his action in modifying or affirming was based. Such additional or modified findings of fact and decision shall be reviewable only to the extent provided for review of the original findings of fact and decision. The judgment of the court shall be final except that it shall be subject to review in the same manner as a judgment in other civil actions. Any action instituted in accordance with this subsection shall survive notwithstanding any change in the person occupying the office of Secretary or any vacancy in such office.”.

(2) The following sections of the Act are amended by striking out “section 205(g)” and inserting in lieu thereof “section 1882”:

(A) section 1159(b);

(B) section 1160(b)(4);

(C) section 1862(d)(3); and

(D) section 1869 (b)(1) and (c).
(c) The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to decisions with respect to applications filed after the date of enactment of this Act; the amendments made by subsection (b) shall become effective upon enactment.

PROPOSED DISABILITY INSURANCE AMENDMENTS
OF 1979 (H.R. 3236)
A BILL SUBMITTED TO THE FULL COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS BY THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON SOCIAL SECURITY IN THE FIRST SESSION OF THE 96TH CONGRESS

APRIL 2, 1979

Printed for the use of the Committee on Ways and Means

U.S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE
WASHINGTON : 1979
LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

SUBCOMMITTEE ON SOCIAL SECURITY, COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS,
U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Hon. Al Ullman,
Chairman, Committee on Ways and Means, U.S. House of Representatives;
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I transmit, herewith, a copy of H.R. 3236, a bill which was reported unanimously by the Social Security Subcommittee on March 28, 1979, to amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program.

In the committee report on the Social Security Amendments of 1977, the Social Security Subcommittee was directed to develop legislation designed to reduce the cost of the disability insurance program and bring it under more effective administrative control. H.R. 3236 closely follows H.R. 14084, 95th Congress, which the Subcommittee approved last fall but which the full committee was unable to take up because of the press of other legislation.

The subcommittee bill contains a number of interrelated provisions, the net effect of which would eliminate the long-range deficit in the disability insurance program trust fund and provide short-term benefit savings which would amount to about $1.2 to $1.4 billion a year by 1984.

The bill's provisions are fully described in the accompanying "Purpose and Rationale of H.R. 3236" and section-by-section analysis.

I urge that the Committee on Ways and Means give prompt consideration to the subcommittee's bill.

Sincerely,

J. J. Pickle,
Chairman, Social Security Subcommittee.

DISABILITY INSURANCE AMENDMENTS OF 1979

PURPOSE AND RATIONALE

Work incentives

Recent actuarial studies in both the public and private sector have indicated that high replacement rates (the ratio of benefits to previous earnings) have constituted a major disincentive to disabled people in attempting rehabilitation or generally returning to the work force. A recent analysis by the social security actuaries has indicated

The average replacement ratio of newly entitled disabled workers with median earnings and who have qualifying dependents increased from about 60 percent in 1967 to over 90 percent in 1976, an increase of about 50 percent. During this time the gross recovery rate decreased to only one-half of what it was in 1967. High benefits are a formidable incentive to maintain beneficiary status especially when the value of medicare and other benefits are considered. We believe that the incentive to return to permanent self-supporting work provided by the trial work period provision has been largely negated by the prospect of losing the high benefits. ("Experience of Disabled-Worker Benefits Under OASDI, 1972–74," actuarial study No. 73, June 1978.)

John H. Miller, probably the most knowledgeable disability actuary in the private sector, points to the role of high replacement rates in recent adverse social security disability experience:

The evidence is clear that liberal disability benefits induce both an increase in the number of cases approved and the prolongation of disability. From a social and humanistic point of view, we are presented with a dilemma, namely, how we can provide adequate benefits to those unfortunate individuals who become and remain truly disabled, without removing or greatly reducing the incentive to overcome the disability.

Secretary Califano testified before our subcommittee in February of this year:

Benefits in approximately 6 percent of all cases actually exceed the disabled person's previous net earnings; and approximately 16 percent of beneficiaries receive benefits that are more than 80 percent of their average predisability net earnings.

The primary mechanism in the subcommittee bill to provide replacement rates which better support incentives to work is the limitation on family benefits. When it is combined with the other work incentive aspects of the bill it is hoped that beneficiary motivation will be more positive towards vocational rehabilitation and return to the labor market.
A number of elements underlie the philosophy of the subcommittee's limitation:

(1) It is designed primarily to strengthen work incentives for disabled beneficiaries.

(2) It is temporary and a transition in the sense that when the social security benefit structure and formula are examined in a comprehensive way in the near future, other approaches might be found preferable for the long term, such as a separate disability benefit formula, a revised family maximum for all or individual programs (disability, retirement, survivors), or non-wage-related dependents' benefits.

(3) Although it assumes that a few more families would have to supplement their benefits through AFDC than do families under social security disability at the present time, the proposal is not designed to take "welfare" out of social security.

Specifically, section 2 of the subcommittee bill would limit total DI family benefits to the smaller of 80 percent of a worker's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) or 150 percent of the worker's primary benefits (PIA). No family benefit would be reduced below 100 percent of the worker's primary benefit. The limitation would be effective only for entitlements on or after January 1, 1980.

The limit on benefits would affect only 30 percent of newly disabled workers; 70 percent of people coming on the rolls do not have eligible dependents and, thus, would not be affected by a cap on family benefits. It is estimated that 123,000 families and 358,000 beneficiaries would be affected by the cap in the first year.

A number of other interrelated provisions in the subcommittee bill are designed to eliminate work disincentives.

1. To reduce the disparity in disability benefits between young and older workers, section 3 of the bill would vary dropout years by age for disability entitlements after 1979. There would be no dropout years allowed for workers under age 27 and the number of dropout years would gradually rise to 5 (which is existing law) for workers age 47 and over. However, if a worker provided principal care for a child under age 6 for more than 6 months in any calendar year, the number of dropout years would be increased by 1 for each year but to not more than 5. This latter provision would not be effective until January 1981.

2. Section 6 of the subcommittee bill in effect extends the present 9-month trial work period to 24 months. In the last 12 months of the 24-month period, the individual would not receive benefits if he finds he must return to the disability rolls. The present trial work period of 9 months seems to be an insufficient work incentive for work attempts.

3. Section 6 of the subcommittee bill also provides a trial work period for disabled widows and widowers. There appears to be no justification for the lack of applicability of trial work for these categories of beneficiaries.

4. The subcommittee bill eliminates two work disincentive provisions which relate to the medicare program:

(a) Under section 6, medicare coverage would be extended for 24 months after a benefit termination for work after the trial work period; in effect this would extend medicare eligibility for an additional 36 months over existing law.

(b) The medicare second 24-month waiting period would be eliminated under section 7.

5. To further stimulate work efforts for severely disabled individuals, under section 5 of the bill there would be excluded from earnings used in determining ability to engage in substantial gainful activity (SGA) the costs to the worker of any extraordinary work expenses necessitated by a severe impairment. Also authority to waive benefit requirements of title II and title XVIII would be authorized under section 4 so that demonstration projects could be carried out to ascertain alternative methods of treating work activity to stimulate a return to gainful employment by disability beneficiaries. Research findings in this area are urgently needed for enlightened policy determinations.

Program accountability and uniformity of administration

The subcommittee concern in this area is not only one of cost control but also one of trying to effectuate more uniformity of administration so that beneficiaries, regardless of their place of residence, will be treated on an equal basis as to this Federal benefit. The subcommittee bill attempts to strengthen the Federal-State adjudicative structure and reinstitute more Federal review of State decisionmaking.

Regarding the State agencies which determine disability, section 8 of the subcommittee bill would eliminate the current system of administration which relies on the negotiation of Federal-State agreements. The bill would replace this mechanism with the grant of regulatory authority to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to establish procedures and performance standards for the State disability determination programs. The regulations might specify, for example, administrative structure, the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, performance criteria, fiscal control procedures, and other rules applicable to State agencies and designed to assure equity and uniformity in State agency disability determinations. States would have the option of administering the program in compliance with these standards or turning over administration to the Federal Government. States which decide to administer the program must comply with standards set by the Secretary subject to termination by the Secretary if the State substantially fails to comply with the regulations and written guidelines.

As to increased Federal review of State agency decisions, budget pressure in 1971–72 to reduce Federal staffing forced the Social Security Administration to take administrative steps which were tantamount to an amendment of the statutory scheme of the disability insurance program. Social Security moved in rapid steps from what had been about an 80 percent review of the State agencies disability allowances prior to their making awards—preadjudicative—to a sample review involving only 5 percent of State cases after the awards were made—postadjudicative.

The social security actuaries have reported: "We believe that these changes in review procedures have contributed to higher incidence rates since 1972."

The subcommittee bill returns to the situation existing prior to 1972 as to the review of allowances. The requirement in section 8 of the bill for increased Federal review on a preadjudicative basis is phased in over a 3-year period, beginning in fiscal 1980, so that there can be an orderly increase in the highly trained staff necessary to carry out this purpose.

The subcommittee is also concerned by the lack of followup on the medical condition and the possible work activity of individuals who have been on the rolls for years. Section 17 of the bill provides, therefore, that unless the adjudicator in the State agency makes a finding that the individual is under a disability which is permanent, there will be a review of the status of disabled beneficiaries at least once every 3 years. The subcommittee bill emphasizes that all existing reviews of eligibility under the law are to be continued and expanded where necessary.

Rehabilitation expenditures and program effectiveness

In recent years the cost effectiveness of the provisions which authorize vocational rehabilitation (VR) expenditures out of the disability trust fund have been questioned. Under existing law, an amount equal to 1.5 percent of disability insurance expenditures is potentially available for vocational rehabilitation expenditures. This is called the beneficiary rehabilitation program (BRP). However, in 1976 the GAO reported that previous estimates of benefit savings because of rehabilitation services were not being realized and suggested that the administration should freeze funding of the program. This has been done for the last couple of years, although some increase in funding has been made available for increases in the cost-of-living.

The subcommittee bill contains a provision aimed at providing a more permanent solution to this problem. In terms of simplification and better administration, section 13 of the bill would consolidate the VR funding sources for the seriously disabled in the regular VR program. Under existing law the VR agency and counselor may have three potential funding sources for disabled beneficiaries and the required bookkeeping and juggling of differing program rationales has lead to confusion in administration. The approach in the subcommittee bill also seems appropriate inasmuch as the Congress, following the recommendation of the VR administrators, may place the regular VR program in a new Department of Education.

Section 13 of the bill also replaces the BRP program with a much more limited program of disability trust fund contributions for vocational rehabilitation expenditures. It authorizes bonus Federal matching of State regular VR expenditures for those individuals where the rehabilitation results in their continuous engaging in substantial gainful activity (SGA) for a 12-month period. Under the subcommittee bill, the effective date is fiscal year 1981 to provide for an orderly transition and for adjustment of the authorization of appropriation for the regular VR program which is within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Education and Labor.

The subcommittee bill recognizes that some persons on the disability rolls will only be able to work in sheltered workshop situations at a wage rate which would not be sufficient to terminate their benefits. Under this bill, there would be bonus matching for their rehabilitation expenses, but it would be subject to a requirement that they receive wages for the 12-month period after the "rehabilitation" phase of their sheltered workshop experience had been concluded.
Section 14 of the subcommittee bill also provides that no beneficiary be terminated due to medical recovery if the beneficiary is participating in an approved VR program which the Social Security Administration determines will increase the likelihood that the beneficiary may be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls.

Appeals procedure

The subcommittee bill provides a number of provisions which make the disability adjudication and appeals process more effective and equitable:

1. Section 9 of the bill would provide the claimant with a more detailed explanation and rationale for the decision and a written summary of the evidence. The lack of specificity of the disability denial notice has been a source of claimant complaint for years.

2. Section 15 of the bill would authorize the Secretary to pay all non-Federal providers for costs of supplying medical evidence of record in social security disability claims as is done for SSI disability claims.

3. Section 16 of the bill would place in permanent law authority for payment of claimant's travel expenses resulting from participation in various phases of the adjudication process.

4. Section 11 of the bill provides that the Secretary's authority to remand a court case to the ALJ be discretionary with the court upon a showing of good cause by the Secretary. The Secretary has absolute authority under existing law and this may have led to laxity in appeals council review. The subcommittee bill also requires that the court may remand only on a showing that there is new evidence which is material, and that there was good cause for failure to incorporate it into the record in a prior proceeding. Under existing law the court itself, or on motion of the claimant, has discretionary authority "for good cause" to remand the case back to the ALJ. It would appear that although many of these court remands are justified some remands are undertaken because the judge disagrees with the outcome of the case which may be sustainable under the "substantial evidence rule."

5. Section 10 would limit the prospective effect of applications (the so-called floating application) and allow for a more orderly administrative process and closing of the record. Present law provides that if an applicant satisfies the requirements for benefits at any time before a final decision of the Secretary is made, the application is deemed to be filed in the first month for which the requirements are met. One consequence of this provision is that the claimant is afforded a continuing opportunity to establish eligibility, including doing so through the introduction of evidence of a new or worsened condition, until all levels of administrative review have been exhausted; i.e., until there is a final decision. The amendment made by this section would allow the issuance of regulations to foreclose the introduction of new evidence with respect to a previously filed application after the decision is made at the administrative ALJ hearing, but would not affect remand authority to remedy an insufficiently documented case or other defect.

6. Section 13 of the bill also requires the Secretary of HEW to submit a report to Congress no later than January 1, 1980, recommending appropriate time limits for the various levels of adjudication. The Federal courts have imposed such limits at the hearing level and numerous bills have been introduced to set such limits at various levels of adjudication.
The bill requires the Secretary in recommending the limits to give adequate consideration to both speed and quality of adjudication. This would force the administration in program and budget planning to take a harder look at these sometimes conflicting objectives. Congress could then evaluate the recommendations for consistency with the elements it wishes to emphasize and take further action next year.

A BILL To amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program, and for other purposes

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act, with the following table of contents, may be cited as the “Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979”.

LIMITATION ON TOTAL FAMILY BENEFITS IN DISABILITY CASES

SEC. 2. (a) Section 203(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “except as provided by paragraph (3)” in paragraph (1) (in the matter preceding subparagraph (A)) and inserting in lieu thereof “except as provided by paragraphs (3) and (6)”;

(2) by redesignating paragraphs (6), (7), and (8) as paragraphs (7), (8), and (9), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new paragraph:

“(6) Notwithstanding any of the preceding provisions of this subsection (but subject to section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)), the total monthly benefits to which beneficiaries may be entitled under sections 202 and 223 for any month on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual entitled to disability insurance benefits (whether or not such total benefits are otherwise subject to reduction under this subsection but in lieu of any reduction under this subsection which would otherwise be applicable) shall be reduced (before the application of section 224) to the smaller of—

"(A) 80 percent of such individual's average indexed monthly earnings (or 100 percent of his primary insurance amount, if larger), or

"(B) 150 percent of such individual's primary insurance amount."

(b)(1) Section 203(a)(2)(D) of such Act is amended by striking out "paragraph (7)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (8)".

(2) Section 203(a)(8) of such Act, as redesignated by subsection (a)(2) of this section, is amended by striking out "paragraph (6)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (7)".

(3) Section 215(i)(2)(A)(ii)(ffl) of such Act is amended by striking out "section 203(a)(6) and (7)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 203(a)(7) and (8)".

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual whose initial eligibility for benefits (determined under sections 215(a)(3)(B) and 215(a)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act, as applied for this purpose) begins after 1978, and whose initial entitlement to disability insurance benefits (with respect to the period of disability involved) begins after 1979.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF DROPOUT YEARS FOR YOUNGER DISABLED WORKERS

Sec. 3. (a) Section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2)(A) The number of an individual's benefit computation years equals the number of elapsed years reduced—

"(i) in the case of an individual who is entitled to old-age insurance benefits or who has died (except as provided in the second sentence of this subparagraph), by 5 years, and

"(ii) in the case of an individual who is entitled to disability insurance benefits, by the number of years equal to one-fifth of such individual's elapsed years (disregarding any resulting fractional part of a year), but not by more than 5 years.

Clause (ii), once applicable with respect to any individual, shall continue to apply for purposes of determining such individual's primary insurance amount after his death or attainment of age 65 or any subsequent eligibility for disability insurance benefits unless prior to the month in which he dies, attains such age, or becomes so eligible there occurs a period of at least 12 consecutive months for which he was not entitled to a disability insurance benefit. If an individual described in clause (ii) is determined in accordance with regulations of the Secretary to have been responsible for providing (and to have provided) the principal care of a child (of such individual or his or her spouse) under the age of 6 throughout more than 6 full months in any calendar year which is included in such individual’s elapsed years, but which is not disregarded pursuant to clause (ii) or to subparagraph (B) (in determining such individual’s benefit computation years) by reason of the reduction in the number of such individual’s elapsed years under clause (ii), the number by which such elapsed years are reduced under this subparagraph pursuant to clause (ii) shall be increased by one (up to a combined total not exceeding 5) for each such calendar year; except that (I) no calendar year shall be disregarded by reason of this sentence (in determining such individual’s benefit computation years) unless the individual provided such care throughout more than 6 full months in such year, (II) the particular calendar years to be disregarded under this sentence (in determining such benefit computation years) shall be those years (not otherwise disregarded under clause (ii)) for which the total of such individual’s wages and self-employment income, after adjustment under paragraph (3), is the smallest, and (III) this sentence shall apply only to the extent that its application would result in a higher primary insurance amount. The number of an individual’s benefit computation years as determined under this subparagraph shall in no case be less than 2.”

(b) Section 223(a)(2) of such Act is amended by inserting “and section 215(b)(2)(A)(ii)” after “section 202(q)” in the first sentence.

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of an individual whose initial entitlement to disability insurance benefits (with respect to the period of disability involved) begins on or after January 1, 1980; except that the third sentence of section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act (as added by such amendments) shall apply only with respect to monthly benefits payable for months after December 1980.

WORK INCENTIVE—SGA DEMONSTRATION PROJECT

SEC. 4. (a) The Commissioner of Social Security shall develop and carry out experiments and demonstration projects designed to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of various alternative methods of treating the work activity of disabled beneficiaries under the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program, including such methods as a reduction in benefits based on earnings, designed to encourage the return to work of disabled beneficiaries to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds.

(b) The experiments and demonstration projects developed under subsection (a) shall be of sufficient scope and shall be carried out on a wide enough scale to permit a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration while giving assurance that the results derived from the experiments and projects will obtain generally in the operation of the disability insurance program without committing such program to the adoption of any prospective system either locally or nationally.

(c) In the case of any experiment or demonstration project under subsection (a), the Secretary may waive compliance with the benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII of the Social Security Act insofar as is necessary for a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration. No such experiment or project shall be actually placed in operation unless at least ninety days prior thereto a written report, prepared for purposes of notification and information only and containing a full and complete description thereof, has been transmitted by the Commissioner of Social Security to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate. Periodic reports on the progress of such experiments and demonstration projects shall be submitted by the Commissioner to such committees. When appropriate, such reports shall include detailed recommendations for changes in administration or law, or both, to carry out the objectives stated in subsection (a).

(d) The Commissioner of Social Security shall submit to the Congress no later than January 1, 1983, a final report on the experiments and demonstration projects carried out under this section together with any related data and materials which he may consider appropriate.

(e) Section 201 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(j) Expenditures made for experiments and demonstration projects under section 4 of the Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979 shall be made from the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, as determined appropriate by the Secretary.".

EXTRAORDINARY WORK EXPENSES DUE TO SEVERE DISABILITY

Sec. 5. Section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the third sentence the following new sentence: "In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to the individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions.".
PROVISION OF TRIAL WORK PERIOD FOR DISABLED WIDOWS AND WIDOWERS; EXTENSION OF ENTITLEMENT TO DISABILITY INSURANCE AND RELATED BENEFITS

Sec. 6. (a)(1) Section 222(c)(1) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out “section 223 or 202(d)” and inserting in lieu thereof “section 223, 202(d), 202(e), or 202(f)”.

(2) Section 222(c)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “or, in the case of an individual entitled to widow’s or widower’s insurance benefits under section 202(e) or (f) who became entitled to such benefits prior to attaining age 60, with the month in which such individual becomes so entitled.”.

(3) The amendments made by this subsection shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b)(1)(A) Section 223(a)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “or, if later (and subject to subsection (e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)”.

(B) Section 202(d)(1)(G) of such Act is amended by—

(i) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as clauses (I) and (II), respectively,

(ii) by inserting “the later of (i)” immediately before “the third month”, and

(iii) by striking out “or (if later)” and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “or, if later, and subject to section 223(e), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)”, or (ii)”.

(C) Section 202(e)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “or, if later (and subject to section 223(e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)-(4)(A)”.

(D) Section 202(f)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out the period at the end and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “or, if later (and subject to section 223(e)), the fifteenth month following the end of such individual’s trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)-(4)(A)”.

(2) Section 223 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(e) No benefit shall be payable under subsection ((d), (e), or (f) of section 202 or under subsection (a)(1) to an individual for any month after the third month in which he engages in substantial gainful activity during the 15-month..."
period following the end of his trial work period determined by application of section 222(c)(4)(A)."

(3) Section 226(b) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "ending with the month" in the matter following paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "ending (subject to the last sentence of this subsection) with the month" and

(B) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "For purposes of this subsection, an individual who has had a period of trial work which ended as provided in section 222(c)(4)(A), and whose entitlement to benefits or status as a qualified railroad retirement beneficiary as described in paragraph (2) has subsequently terminated, shall be deemed to be entitled to such benefits or to occupy such status (notwithstanding the termination of such entitlement or status) for the period of consecutive months throughout all of which the physical or mental impairment, on which such entitlement or status was based, continues, but not in excess of 24 such months.".

(4) The amendments made by this subsection shall apply with respect to individuals whose disability or blindness (whichever may be applicable) has not been determined to have ceased prior to the date of the enactment of this Act.

ELIMINATION OF REQUIREMENT THAT MONTHS IN MEDICARE WAITING PERIOD BE CONSECUTIVE

Sec. 7. (a) (1)(A) Section 226(b)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out "consecutive" in clauses (A) and (B).

(B) Section 226(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out "consecutive" in the matter following paragraph (2).

(2) Section 1811 of such Act is amended by striking out "consecutive".

(3) Section 1837(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "consecutive".

(4) Section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 is amended by striking out "consecutive" each place it appears.

(b) Section 226 of the Social Security Act is amended by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g), and by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

"(f) For purposes of subsection (b) (and for purposes of section 1837(g)(1) of this Act and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974), the 24 months for which an individual has to have been entitled to specified monthly benefits on the basis of disability in order to become entitled to hospital insurance benefits on such basis effective with any particular month (or to be deemed to have enrolled in the supplementary medical insurance program, on the basis of such entitlement, by reason of section 1837(f)), where such individual had been entitled to specified monthly benefits of the same type during a previous period which terminated—

“(1) more than 60 months before that particular month in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type specified in clause (A)(i) or (B) of subsection (b)(2), or

“(2) more than 84 months before that particular month in any case where such monthly benefits were of the type in clause (A)(ii) or (A)(iii) of such subsection, shall not include any month which occurred during such previous period.”

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to hospital insurance or supplementary medical insurance benefits for months after the month in which this Act is enacted.

DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS; FEDERAL REVIEW OF STATE AGENCY ALLOWANCES

SEC. 8. (a) Section 221(a) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“(a)(1) In the case of an individual, the determination of whether or not he is under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and of the day such disability began, and the determination of the day on which such disability ceases, shall be made by a State agency in any State that notifies the Secretary in writing that it wishes to make such disability determinations commencing with such month as the Secretary and the State agree upon, but only if (A) the Secretary has not found, under subsection (b)(1), that the State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with the applicable provisions of this section or rules issued thereunder, and (B) the State has not notified the Secretary, under subsection (b)(2), that it does not wish to make such determinations. If the Secretary once makes the finding described in clause (A) of the preceding sentence, or the State gives the notice referred to in clause (B) of such sentence, the Secretary may thereafter determine whether (and, if so, beginning with which month and under what conditions) the State may make again disability determinations under this paragraph.

“(2) The disability determinations described in paragraph (1) made by a State agency shall be made in accordance with the pertinent provisions of this title and the standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary pertaining to matters such as disability determinations, the class or classes of individuals with respect to which a State may make disability determinations (if it does not wish to do so with respect to all individuals in the State), and the conditions under which it may choose not to make all such determinations. In addition, the Secretary shall promulgate regulations specifying, in such detail as he deems appropriate, performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability determination function in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States. The regulations may, for example, specify matters such as—

“(A) the administrative structure and the relationship between various units of the State agency responsible for disability determinations,

“(B) the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, and other individuals or organizations performing tasks for the State agency, and standards for the availability to applicants and beneficiaries of facilities for making disability determinations,

“(C) State agency performance criteria, including the rate of accuracy of decisions, the time periods within which determinations must be made, the procedures for and the scope of review by the Secretary, and, as he finds appropriate, by the State, of its performance in individual cases and in classes of cases, and rules governing access of appropriate Federal officials to State Offices and to State records relating to its administration of the disability determination function,

“(D) fiscal control procedures that the State agency may be required to adopt,

“(E) the submission of reports and other data, in such form and at such time as the Secretary may require, concerning the State agency’s activities relating to the disability determination process, and

“(F) any other rules designed to facilitate, or control, or assure the equity and uniformity of the State’s disability determinations.”.

(b) Section 221(b) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

“(b)(1) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and other written guidelines, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his finding, make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).

“(2) If a State, having notified the Secretary of its intent to make disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), no longer wishes to make such determinations, it shall notify the Secretary in writing of that fact, and, if an agency of the State is making disability determinations at the time such notice is given, it shall continue to do so for not less than 180 days. Thereafter, the Secretary shall make the disability determinations referred to in subsection (a)(1).”.

(c) Section 221(c) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

“(c)(1) The Secretary (in accordance with paragraph (2)) shall review determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)). As a result of any such review, the Secretary may determine that an individual is not under a disability (as so defined) or that such individual's disability began on a day later than that determined by such agency, or that such disability ceased on a day earlier than that determined by such agency. Any review by the Secretary of a State agency determination under the preceding provisions of this paragraph shall be made before any action is taken to implement such determination and before any benefits are paid on the basis thereof.

“(2) In carrying out the provisions of paragraph (1) with respect to the review of determinations, made by State agencies pursuant to this section, that individuals are under disabilities (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)), the Secretary shall review—

“A) at least 30 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1980,

“B) at least 60 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in the fiscal year 1981, and

“C) at least 80 percent of all such determinations made by State agencies in any fiscal year after the fiscal year 1981.”.

(d) Section 221(d) of such Act is amended by striking out “(a)” and inserting in lieu thereof “(a), (b)”.

(e) The first sentence of section 221(e) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “which has an agreement with the Secretary” and inserting in lieu thereof “which is making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”,

(2) by striking out “as may be mutually agreed upon” and inserting in lieu thereof “as determined by the Secretary”, and

(3) by striking out “carrying out the agreement under this section” and inserting in lieu thereof “making disability determinations under subsection (a)(1)”.

(f) Section 221(g) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out “has no agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting in lieu thereof “does not undertake to perform disability determinations under subsection (a)(1), or which has been found by the Secretary to have substantially failed to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with his regulations and guidelines”, and

(2) by striking out “not included in an agreement under subsection (b)” and inserting in lieu thereof “for whom no State undertakes to make disability determinations”.

(g) The amendments made by this section shall be effective beginning with the twelfth month following the month in which this Act is enacted. Any State that, on the effective date of the amendments made by this section, has in effect an agreement with the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare under section 221(a) of the Social Security Act (as in effect prior to such amendments) will be deemed to have been given to the Secretary the notice specified in section 221(a)(1) of such Act as amended by this section, in lieu of continuing such agreement in effect after the effective date of such amendments. Thereafter, a State may notify the Secretary in writing that it no longer wishes to make disability determinations, effective not less than 180 days after it is given.

INFORMATION TO ACCOMPANY SECRETARY’S DECISIONS AS TO CLAIMANT’S RIGHTS

Sec. 9. (a) Section 205(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentences: "Any such decision by the Secretary shall contain a statement of the case setting forth (1) a citation and discussion of the pertinent law and regulation, (2) a list of the evidence of record and a summary of the evidence, and (3) the Secretary’s determination and the reason or reasons upon which it is based. The statement of the case shall not include matters the disclosure of which (as indicated by the source of the information involved) would be harmful to the claimant, but if there is any such matter the claimant shall be informed of its existence, and it may be disclosed to the claimant’s representative unless the latter’s relationship with the claimant is such that disclosure would be as harmful as if made to the claimant.”.

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to decisions made on and after the first day of the second month following the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON PROSPECTIVE EFFECT OF APPLICATION

Sec. 10. (a) Section 202(j)(2) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

"(2) An application for any monthly benefits under this section filed before the first month in which the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits shall be deemed a valid application (and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month) only if the applicant satisfies the requirements for such benefits before the Secretary makes a final decision on the application and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary).”.

(b) Section 216(i)(2)(G) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting “(and shall be deemed to have been filed on such first day)” immediately after “shall be deemed a valid application” in the first sentence,
(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made or, if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary),” and
(3) by striking out the second sentence.
(c) Section 223(b) of such Act is amended—
(1) by inserting “(and shall be deemed to have been filed in such first month)” immediately after “shall be deemed a valid application” in the first sentence,
(2) by striking out the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof “and no request under section 205(b) for notice and opportunity for a hearing thereon is made, or if such a request is made, before a decision based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing is made (regardless of whether such decision becomes the final decision of the Secretary),” and
(3) by striking out the second sentence.
(d) The amendments made by this section shall apply to applications filed after the month in which this Act is enacted.

LIMITATION ON COURT REMANDS

Sec. 11. The sixth sentence of section 205(g) of the Social Security Act is amended by striking out all that precedes “and the Secretary shall” and inserting in lieu thereof the following: “The court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown before he files his answer, remand the case to the Secretary for further action by the Secretary, and it may at any time order additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary, but only upon a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there is good cause for the failure to incorporate such evidence into the record in a prior proceeding;”.

TIME LIMITATIONS FOR DECISIONS ON BENEFIT CLAIMS

Sec. 12. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare shall submit to the Congress, no later than January 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of appropriate time limitations governing decisions on claims for benefits under title II of the Social Security Act. Such report shall specifically recommend—
(1) the maximum period of time (after application for a payment under such title is filed) within which the initial decision of the Secretary as to the rights of the applicant should be made;
(2) the maximum period of time (after application for reconsideration of any decision described in paragraph
(1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary on such reconsideration should be made;

(3) the maximum period of time (after a request for a hearing with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is filed) within which a decision of the Secretary upon such hearing (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made; and

(4) the maximum period of time (after a request for review by the Appeals Council with respect to any decision described in paragraph (1) is made) within which the decision of the Secretary upon such review (whether affirming, modifying, or reversing such decision) should be made.

In determining the time limitations to be recommended, the Secretary shall take into account both the need for expeditious processing of claims for benefits and the need to assure that all such claims will be thoroughly considered and accurately determined.

VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES FOR DISABLED INDIVIDUALS

SEC. 13. (a) Section 222(d) of the Social Security Act is amended to read as follows:

“Costs of Rehabilitation Services From Trust Funds

“(d)(1) For the purpose of making vocational rehabilitation services more readily available to disabled individuals who are—

“(A) entitled to disability insurance benefits under section 223,

“(B) entitled to child’s insurance benefits under section 202(d) after having attained age 18 (and are under a disability),

“(C) entitled to widow’s insurance benefits under section 202(e) prior to attaining age 60, or

“(D) entitled to widower’s insurance benefits under section 202(f) prior to attaining age 60,

to the end that savings will accrue to the Trust Funds as a result of rehabilitating such individuals into substantial gainful activity, there are authorized to be transferred from the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund each fiscal year such sums as may be necessary to enable the Secretary to reimburse—

“(i) the general fund in the Treasury of the United States for the Federal share and

of the reasonable and necessary costs of vocational rehabilitation services furnished such individuals (including services during their waiting periods), under a State plan for vocational rehabilitation services approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 701 et seq.), which result in their performance of substantial gainful activity which lasts for a continuous period of 12 months, or which result in their employment for a continuous period of 12 months in a sheltered workshop meeting the requirements applicable to a nonprofit rehabilitation facility under paragraphs (8) and (10)(L) of section 7 of such Act (29 U.S.C. 706 (8) and (10)(L)). The determination that the vocational rehabilitation services contributed to the successful return of such individuals to substantial gainful activity or their employment in sheltered workshops, and the determination of the amount of costs to be reimbursed under this subsection, shall be made by the Commissioner of Social Security in accordance with criteria formulated by him.

"(2) Payments under this subsection shall be made in advance or by way of reimbursement, with necessary adjustments for overpayments and underpayments.

"(3) Money paid from the Trust Funds under this subsection for the reimbursement of the costs of providing services to individuals who are entitled to benefits under section 223 (including services during their waiting periods), or who are entitled to benefits under section 202(d) on the basis of the wages and self-employment income of such individuals, shall be charged to the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund, and all other money paid from the Trust Funds under this subsection shall be charged to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund. The Secretary shall determine according to such methods and procedures as he may deem appropriate—

"(A) the total amount to be reimbursed for the cost of services under this subsection, and

"(B) subject to the provisions of the preceding sentence, the amount which should be charged to each of the Trust Funds.

"(4) For the purposes of this subsection the term 'vocational rehabilitation services' shall have the meaning assigned it in title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 701 et seq.), except that such services may be limited in type, scope, or amount in accordance with regulations of the Secretary designed to achieve the purpose of this subsection.

"(5) The Secretary is authorized and directed to study alternative methods of providing and financing the costs of vocational rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries under this title to the end that maximum savings will result to the Trust Funds. On or before January 1, 1980, the Secretary shall transmit to the President and the Congress a report which shall contain his findings and any conclusions and recommendations he may have".

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to fiscal years beginning after September 30, 1980.
SEC. 14. (a) Section 225 of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 225.", and by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payment to an individual of benefits based on disability (as described in the first sentence of subsection (a)) shall not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment on which the individual's entitlement to such benefits is based has or may have ceased if—

"(1) such individual is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and

"(2) the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program, or its continuation for a specified period of time, will increase the likelihood that such individual may (following his participation in such program) be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls."

(b) Section 225(a) of such Act (as designated under subsection (a) of this section) is amended by striking out "this section" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "this subsection".

PAYMENT FOR EXISTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE

SEC. 15. (a) Section 223(d)(5) of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence."

(b) The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to evidence supplied on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

PAYMENT OF CERTAIN TRAVEL EXPENSES

SEC. 16. Section 201 of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 4(e) of this Act) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(k) There are authorized to be made available for expenditure, out of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund (as determined appropriate by the Secretary), such amounts as are required to pay travel expenses, either on an actual cost or commuted basis, to individuals for travel incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under section 221, and to parties, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges with respect to such determinations. The amount available under the preceding sentence for payment for air travel by any person shall not exceed the coach fare for air travel between the points involved unless the use of first-class accommodations is required (as determined under regulations of the Secretary) because of such person’s health condition or the unavailability of alternative accommodations; and the amount available for payment for other travel by any person shall not exceed the cost of travel (between the points involved) by the most economical and expeditious means of transportation appropriate to such person’s health condition, as specified in such regulations.”.

PERIODIC REVIEW OF DISABILITY DETERMINATIONS

SEC. 17. Section 221 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(h) In any case where an individual is or has been determined to be under a disability, unless a finding is or has been made that such disability is permanent, the case shall be reviewed by the applicable State agency or the Secretary (as may be appropriate), for purposes of continuing eligibility, at least once every 3 years. Reviews of cases under the preceding sentence shall be in addition to, and shall not be considered as a substitute for, any other reviews which are required or provided for under or in the administration of this title.”.
SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS AND COMPARISON WITH EXISTING LAW

Short title
Section 1 provides the short title and table of contents of the Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979.

Limitation on total family benefits in disability cases
Section 2(a)(1) of the bill amends section 203(a)(1) of the Social Security Act (as in effect after December 1978) by adding a reference to a new paragraph (6), which would limit family disability benefits.

Section 2(a)(2) of the bill provides that paragraphs (6), (7), and (8) of section 203(a) of the act are redesignated as paragraphs (7), (8), and (9), respectively.

Section 2(a)(3) of the bill adds a new paragraph (6) to section 203(a) of the act, which provides that family benefits based on the earnings of a disabled worker (and before the application of the worker's compensation offset) are limited to the smaller of 80 percent of the worker's average indexed monthly earnings (but not less than the worker's primary insurance amount) or 150 percent of the worker's primary insurance amount. The limit will apply to the original family benefit and will be subject to automatic cost-of-living adjustments.

Section 2(b)(1) of the bill amends section 203(a)(2)(D) of the act to refer to redesignated paragraph (8).

Section 2(b)(2) of the bill amends section 203(a)(7) of the act (203(a)(8) after redesignation) to refer to redesignated paragraph (7).

Section 2(b)(3) of the bill amends section 215(i)(2)(a)(ii)(III) of the act to refer to redesignated paragraphs (7) and (8) of section 203(a).

Section 2(c) of the bill provides that the amendments made by section 2 of the act will apply with respect to initial eligibility for benefits after 1978 and initial entitlement to disability benefits beginning after 1979.

Reduction in number of dropout years for younger disabled workers
Section 3(a) of the bill amends section 215(b)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act (as in effect after December 1978) to reduce the number of years that can be dropped from a worker's benefit computation years for a worker who becomes disabled before reaching age 47.

1. The revised clause (i) of section 215(b)(2)(A) provides that the number of years that can be dropped in an old-age or death case will be 5 as under present law, unless the worker was entitled to a disability benefit for the month before he reached age 65.

2. The new clause (ii) provides that the number of years that can be dropped in a disability case cannot exceed one-fifth of the individual's elapsed years—years after 1951 or age 21, if later, and up to the year of onset of disability. Any resulting fraction of a year will be disregarded.

The limit on the number of dropout years will continue to apply in determining the worker's primary insurance amount at the worker's death, subsequent disability, or when he reaches age 65, unless he is not entitled to disability insurance benefits for at least 12 months before he becomes eligible again for disability benefits, reaches age 65, or dies.

Section 215(b)(2)(A) is also revised to provide for additional dropout years for certain people affected by the reduction in dropout years described above. Under this provision, where regular dropout years are limited to less than 5 by reason of clause (ii), 1 year not otherwise dropped could be dropped for each year in which the worker is responsible for providing, and provides, the principal care of his or her child (or the spouse’s child) under the age of 6 for at least 6 full months. (The total number of regular and child care dropout years cannot exceed 5.)

As under present law, section 215(b)(2)(A) provides that the number of an individual’s benefit computation years shall be no less than 2.

Section 3(b) of the bill amends section 223(a)(2) of the act to add a reference to new section 215(b)(2)(A)(ii).

Section 3(c) of the bill provides that the amendments made by sections 3(a) and 3(b) of the act, except for the amendment providing for child-care dropout years, would apply with respect to initial entitlements to disability benefits beginning on or after January 1, 1980. The amendment made by section 3(a) dealing with child-care dropout years would be effective for monthly benefits payable for months after 1980.

Work incentive—substantial gainful activity demonstration project

Section 4(a) of the bill directs the Commissioner of Social Security to develop and carry out experiments and demonstration projects to determine the relative advantages and disadvantages of alternative methods of treating work activity of social security disability beneficiaries including a reduction in benefits based on earnings, with the objective of encouraging disabled beneficiaries to return to work.

Section 4(b) provides that these projects be of sufficient scope to permit a thorough evaluation of the alternative methods under consideration without committing the disability insurance program to the adoption of any prospective system under consideration.

Section 4(c) provides that the Secretary may waive compliance with the benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII to the extent necessary to effectively carry out such projects; however, no such experiment or project can be implemented until 90 days after notification by the Commissioner of Social Security to the House Committee on Ways and Means and the Senate Committee on Finance. Periodic reports on the progress of such experiments or demonstration projects, including recommendations for changes in law or administration, shall be submitted to the committees.

Section 4(d) specifies that the Commissioner of Social Security shall submit to the Congress, no later than January 1, 1983, a final report on the experiments and demonstration projects, including appropriate related data and materials.

Section 4(e) adds to section 201 of the Social Security Act a new subsection (j) to provide that expenditures made for experiments and demonstration projects will be made from the Federal disability insurance and Federal old-age and survivors trust funds.
Extraordinary work expenses due to severe disability

Section 5 of the bill amends section 223(d)(4) of the Social Security Act to provide that, where an individual's disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, an amount equal to the cost to him of necessary attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, or prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs and routine medical care and services unless such drugs are necessary for the control of the disabling condition), whether or not such assistance is also needed for his normal daily functions, shall be excluded from his earnings in determining whether he is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings.

Provision of trial work period for disabled widows; extension of entitlement to disability insurance benefits and related benefits

Section 6(a) of the bill amends sections 222(c)(1) and (3) of the act to provide a trial work period to disabled widows and widowers in the same manner as provided for disabled workers. These amendments shall apply to those whose disability has not ceased prior to enactment.

Section 6(b)(1) of the bill amends sections 223(a)(1), 202(d)(1)(G), 202(e)(1), and 202(f)(1) of the Social Security Act to extend an individual's status as a disabled individual for 12 months after the month in which disability benefits are terminated if that termination occurred only because of the individual's having engaged in substantial gainful activity (and not because he has medically recovered). Subsection (b)(2) adds a new subsection (e) to section 223 to provide that no benefits would be payable during this 12-month period as long as the individual is engaging in substantial gainful activity. The effect of this amendment will be to allow an individual to return to benefit status without going through the process of reestablishing the fact that he is disabled. Subsection (b)(3) extends medicare coverage for beneficiaries who have completed a period of trial work, but who have not medically recovered, through the benefit suspension period provided in subsections (b)(1) and (b)(2) and for 24 months afterward, or, if earlier, until the person medically recovers. Subsection (b)(4) provides that these amendments apply to those whose disability has not been determined to have ceased prior to enactment.

Elimination of requirement that months in medicare waiting period be consecutive Section 7(a) amends sections 226(b), 1811, and 1837(g)(1) of the Social Security Act, and section 7(d)(2)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 by striking out the word "consecutive" wherever it appears, thereby modifying the medicare 24-month waiting period requirement so that these months need not be consecutive.

Section 7(b) further amends section 226 by adding a new subsection, which provides that, for an individual who is reentitled to the same type of monthly disability benefits, the 24-month waiting period may not include any month in a previous period of disability, if (1) the individual is reentitled as a disabled worker and the previous period of disability terminated more than 60 months before reentitlement; or (2) the individual is reentitled as an adult disabled since childhood.
or as a disabled widow or widower, and the previous period of disability terminated more than 84 months before reentitlement.

Section 7(c) provides that these amendments apply to medicare protection for months after the month of enactment.

Disability determinations; Federal review of State agency allowances

Section 8(a) of the bill amends section 221(a) of the Social Security Act to provide that disability determinations shall be made by State agencies in States that provide a written notice (rather than State agreements, as under present law) to the Secretary stating that they wish to make such determinations, unless the State has previously been found to have substantially failed to make determinations in accordance with the law and the Secretary's regulations, or unless the State has previously declined to administer under this section, in which case the Secretary may determine when and if the State may again make disability determinations. Section 8(a) further provides that disability determinations shall be made (or not made for specified classes of claimants) in accordance with regulations or other written guidelines issued by the Secretary. The Secretary is required to promulgate regulations specifying performance standards and administrative procedures to assure effective and uniform administration, and may issue regulations on State agency administrative structure, and other administrative areas (examples are given in the bill, pp. 15-16).

Section 8(b) of the bill amends section 221(b) of the Social Security Act to provide for notice to a State and opportunity for a hearing if the Secretary determines that the State is substantially failing to make determinations in a manner consistent with the regulations and other written guidelines. If the Secretary makes such a determination, he thereafter will take over the making of the disability determinations in that State not earlier than the expiration of 180 days. If the State no longer wishes to participate in the program it must notify the Secretary but shall continue to make determinations for not less than 180 days after notification.

Section 8(c) of the bill amends section 221(c) of the Social Security Act to provide (1) that the Secretary shall (rather than "may on his own motion") review State agency determinations that a person is under a disability; (2) that such review shall be made before a determination is implemented and benefits are paid; and (3) that the requirement that the Secretary review such determinations (per (1) above) will be met if he reviews at least 30 percent in fiscal year 1980, 60 percent in fiscal year 1981, and 80 percent in fiscal year 1982 and thereafter.

Sections 8 (d), (e) and (f) make conforming changes in the statutory language.

Section 8(g) provides that the amendments made by this section shall be effective 12 months after the month of enactment. Any State that has an agreement with the Secretary already in effect on the effective date will be deemed to have given the notice of participation specified in these amendments. Thereafter, States must give 180 days notice of desire to cease making disability determinations.
Information to accompany Secretary's decisions as to claimant's rights

Section 9(a) of the bill amends section 205(b) of the Social Security Act to require that any decision by the Secretary shall contain a statement of the case setting forth (1) a list of the pertinent law and regulations, (2) a list and summary of the evidence of record, and (3) the Secretary's determination and the reason(s) upon which it is based. The statement of the case shall not include matters the disclosure of which (as indicated by the source of the information involved) would be harmful to the claimant, but if there is any such matter the claimant will be informed of its existence, and the claimant's representative will be given this confidential information unless such disclosure would be harmful as if made to the claimant.

Section 9(b) provides that this amendment will be effective with respect to decisions made on and after the first day of the second month following the month of enactment.

Limitation on prospective effect of application

Section 10 would amend section 202(j)(2) of the Social Security Act (with parallel amendments to sections 216(j)(2)(G) and 223(b)) to shorten the prospective effect of an application for benefits under title II. In present law, section 202(j)(2) provides that if an applicant satisfies the requirements for benefits at any time before a final decision of the Secretary is made, the application is deemed to be filed in the first month for which the requirements are met. The amendment made by this section would allow the issuance of regulations to foreclose the introduction of new evidence with respect to a previously filed application after the decision is made at the administrative hearing, but would not affect administrative or judicial remand authority to remedy an insufficiently documented case or other defect. The amendments made by this section shall apply to applications filed after the month in which this Act is enacted.

Limitation on court remands

Section 11 of the bill amends section 205(g) of the Social Security Act to provide that the court may, on motion of the Secretary made for good cause shown, remand a case to the Secretary for further action, and that the court may order new and material evidence to be taken before the Secretary if there was good cause for such evidence not having been submitted previously.

Time limitations for decisions on benefit claims

Section 12 of the bill provides that the Secretary shall submit to the Congress, no later than January 1, 1980, a report recommending the establishment of time limits on decisions on benefit claims. This report shall specifically recommend the maximum periods of time within which (a) initial, (b) reconsideration, (c) hearing, and (d) appeals council decisions should be made, taking into consideration both the need expeditious processing of claims and the need for thorough consideration and accurate determinations of such claims.

Vocational rehabilitation services for disabled individuals

Section 13 of the bill amends section 222(d) of the Social Security Act to change the provisions authorizing reimbursement from the Section 13(a) of the bill substitutes a revised section 222(d) of the Social Security Act. Paragraph (1) of the revised section 222(d) authorizes the transfer of sums from the trust funds to enable the Secretary to reimburse the general fund of the U.S. Treasury for the Federal share and the State for twice the State share of the reasonable and necessary costs of vocational rehabilitation services furnished under a State plan approved under title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 to disabled individuals entitled to benefits on the basis of disability which results in performance of substantial gainful activity for a continuous period of 12 months, or which results in their employment for a continuous period of 12 months in a sheltered workshop. The Commissioner of Social Security will establish criteria to determine: (1) When the vocational rehabilitation service contributed to successful return to SGA or employment in sheltered workshops and (2) the amount of the costs to be reimbursed. (Under present law, the Secretary is authorized to pay the costs of vocational rehabilitation services for such disabled beneficiaries but the total amount available for this purpose may not exceed 1.5 percent of the total cash benefits paid to disabled workers, disabled widows, disabled widowers, and disabled adult children in the preceding fiscal year.)

The existing paragraph (2) of section 222(d) (relating to requirements for State plans providing rehabilitation services) is eliminated from the revised section.

The existing paragraph (3) of section 222(d) (relating to agreements between the Secretary and public or private agencies for rehabilitation services in States which do not have a plan) is eliminated from the revised section.

The existing paragraph (4) of section 222(b) (relating to arrangements for making payments under this section) is redesignated as paragraph (2) and is amended to provide that payments from the trust funds shall be made in advance (rather than "may be made in installments and in advance") or by way of reimbursement, with necessary adjustments for overpayments and underpayment.

The existing paragraph (5) of section 222(d) (relating to the Secretary's authority to establish methods and procedures for determining the total amount to be reimbursed for the cost of the services, and the amounts to be charged to the individual trust funds) is redesignated as paragraph (3) without any substantive change.

The existing paragraph (6) of section 222(d) (relating to the meaning of the term "vocational rehabilitation services") is redesignated as paragraph (4) and is amended to state that the term "vocational rehabilitation services" would have the meaning assigned to it in title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (rather than "in the Vocational Rehabilitation Act"), except that such services may be limited in type, scope, or amount in accordance with regulations designed by the Secretary to achieve the purpose of this subsection.

Section 13(a) of the bill also adds a new paragraph (5) to section 222(d) of the Social Security Act to authorize and direct the Secretary to study alternative methods of providing and financing the costs of vocational rehabilitation services to disabled beneficiaries in order to realize maximum savings to the trust funds, and, on or before January 1, 1980, to transmit a report to the President and the Congress containing findings, conclusions, and any recommendations.

Section 13(b) of the bill provides that the amendment made by subsection (a) would apply with respect to fiscal years beginning after September 30, 1980.

Continued payment of benefits to individuals under vocational rehabilitation plans

Section 14 of the bill adds to section 225 of the Social Security Act a new subsection (b) to provide that benefits based on disability will not be terminated or suspended because the physical or mental impairment on which such entitlement is based has (or may have) ceased if such beneficiary is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program, and the Commissioner of Social Security determines that the completion of such program (or its continuation for a specified period of time) will increase the likelihood that the beneficiary may be permanently removed from the benefit rolls.

Payment for existing medical evidence

Section 15(a) of the bill amends section 223(d)(5) of the Social Security Act to provide that any non-Federal hospital, clinic, laboratory, or other provider of medical services, or physician not in the employ of the Federal Government, which supplies medical evidence required by the Secretary for making determinations of disability, shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for the reasonable cost of providing such evidence.

Section 15(b) provides that the amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to evidence supplied on or after the date of the enactment of the act.

Payment of certain travel expenses

Section 16 of the bill adds to section 201 a new subsection (k) to the Social Security Act to authorize payments from the trust funds, to individuals to cover travel expenses incident to medical examinations requested by the Secretary in connection with disability determinations under section 221, and to applicants, their representatives, and all reasonably necessary witnesses for travel within the United States (as defined in section 210(i)) to attend reconsideration interviews and proceedings before administrative law judges under title II of the Social Security Act. The new subsection (k) would provide that payments for air travel shall not exceed coach fare, unless first class accommodations are required due to the health condition of the individual or the unavailability of alternative accommodations. Payments for other means of travel could not exceed the most economical and expeditious arrangements appropriate to such person's health.

Periodic review of disability determinations

Section 17 of the bill amends section 221 of the Social Security Act by adding a requirement that, unless a finding has been made that an individual's disability is permanent, the case will be reviewed by either the State agency or the Secretary, for purposes of continuing eligibility, at least once every 3 years. Reviews of cases under the provision shall not be considered as an addition to, and shall not be considered a substitute for, any other reviews of cases in the administration of the disability program.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY ON DISABILITY INSURANCE LEGISLATION

Introduction

This document is a summary of testimony presented to the Social Security Subcommittee of the Committee on Ways and Means at hearings held on February 21, 22, and 23 and on March 1, 5, 9, and 16, 1979, on proposed disability insurance legislation. Three bills relating to the testimony are also summarized in this paper. H.R. 2054, Chairman Pickle’s bill, and H.R. 2854, the Administration bill were referred to specifically in the testimony. The bill, H.R. 3236, which was ultimately reported out of the Subcommittee on Social Security and the full Ways and Means Committee in March 1979 incorporates provisions from both H.R. 2054 and H.R. 2854. Notes identifying sections of the bill applicable to the topics covered in testimony appear throughout this summary. This summary has been prepared by Julie Shapiro, Congressional Intern, Brown University. The Subcommittee expresses its sincere thanks to Ms. Shapiro for this highly competent piece of work.

Brief summaries of all three bills follow.

Summary of H.R. 2054—The Pickle Bill

Sec. 2. Sets a cap prospectively on family benefits for disabled workers at the smaller of (1) 75 percent of AIME or 100 percent of PIA, if larger, or (2) 150 percent of PIA.¹

Sec. 3. Sets up a graduated number of dropout years according to the following schedule:

This section also provides for one additional dropout year for each year in which the worker provided principal care for a child under 6 years of age. In no case may the total number of dropout years exceed 5, and in no case may the number of years on which benefit computation is based be less than 2.

Sec. 4. Authorizes the Secretary to conduct experiments and demonstration projects in the disability program including such alternatives as reduction in benefits based on earnings. The Social Security Commissioner must report periodically to the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees on the progress of such ¹PIA—Primary Insurance Amount, worker’s basic benefit; AIME—Average Indexed Monthly Earnings from which PIA is derived.

experiments, and must submit a final report to Congress no later than January 1, 1983.

Sec. 5. Allows the deduction of the cost to the individual of attendant care and extraordinary work expenses from earnings before determining whether the claimant is engaging in SGA.

Sec. 6. Extends eligibility for a trial work period to disabled widows and widowers and extends the trial work period for 1 year beyond the current length with suspension rather than termination of benefits for earnings over SGA. This section also extends medicare coverage for 24 months beyond the extended trial work period.

Sec. 7. Eliminates the requirement that waiting period months for medicare be consecutive if resumption of benefit status occurs within 5 years of previous disability.

Sec. 8. The Secretary of HEW may require, under Federal-State agreement, standards for the States to follow in determining disability. The Secretary is required to review State agency allowances (30 percent by 1980, 60 percent by 1981, 80 percent a year after 1981). Administration of the disability program may be terminated either by the State or by the Secretary if the State does not comply with this agreement.

Sec. 9. Provides for detailed decision notices to be sent to claimants identifying the applicable law and regulation governing the decision, the evidence on which the decision was based, and the Secretary's reasoning in deciding the case.

Sec. 10. Provides for a demonstration project calling for face-to-face conferences between the disability determiner and the applicant prior to initial denial of the application.

Sec. 11. Limits the Secretary's absolute discretion for court remand and restricts remands to cases where there is new evidence and good cause shown for failure to incorporate such evidence into the record of a prior proceeding.

Sec. 12. Directs the Secretary to make a report by January 1, 1980, recommending time limits on various stages of the disability determination process.

Sec. 13. Terminates the trust fund rehabilitation program in fiscal year 1981 and authorizes trust funds to reimburse the Federal Treasury for the Federal share and the States for twice the States' share of cost for rehabilitation which results in cessation of an individual's disability (SGA for 12 months or work in a sheltered workshop for 12 months).

Sec. 14. Benefit payments to an individual shall not be terminated during the individual's participation in a vocational rehabilitation program.

Sec. 15. Authorizes payment for certain medical evidence necessary in disability determination as is now done for SSI.

Sec. 16. Authorizes payment of some travel expenses for an applicant for medical examinations requested by the Secretary and travel expenses of witnesses to attend proceedings.

Sec. 17. Disability cases will be reviewed once every 3 years unless a finding of permanent disability has been made.
Summary of H.R. 2854—The Administration Bill

Sec. 101. Sets a cap prospectively on family benefits for disabled workers of 80 percent of AIME, or 100 percent of PIA, if larger.

Sec. 102. Sets up a graduated number of dropout years in computing benefits according to the following schedule:

There is no provision for additional dropout years for child care as in the Pickle bill.

Sec. 201. Eliminates the requirement that months in the medicare waiting period be consecutive if disability occurs within 5 years of previous disability.

Sec. 202. Extends eligibility for trial work period to disabled widows and widowers.

Sec. 203. Extends the length of the trial work period for an additional year with suspension rather than termination of benefits for earnings over SGA.

Sec. 204. Provides for deduction of attendant care and extraordinary work expenses paid by the individual and other costs not borne by the disabled claimant as the Secretary may prescribe before determining whether the claimant is engaging in SGA.

Sec. 205. SSI related provision.

Sec. 206. Directs the Secretary to review the operation of the provisions in this bill related to work incentives and report to Congress within 5 years of the effective date.

Sec. 301. Gives the Secretary regulatory authority to set guidelines for administration of the disability program. States may turn over the determination process voluntarily to the Federal Government or the Federal Government can assume control if the State's performance does not comply with the regulatory provisions.

Sec. 302. Allows issuance of regulations to foreclose the introduction of new evidence with respect to a previously filled application after the decision is made at the administrative ALJ hearing.

Sec. 303. The Secretary may waive requirements of titles II, XVI, or XVIII to conduct demonstration projects relating to those areas.

Sec. 401. Provides for detailed decision notices for applicants and prohibits judicial review of anything other than constitutional, statutory, or regulation interpretation issues.

Summary of H.R. 3236—Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979

Sec. 2. Sets a cap prospectively on family benefits for disabled workers at the smaller of (1) 80 percent of AIME or 100 percent of PIA, if larger, or (2) 150 percent of PIA.

Sec. 3. The number of dropout years should equal one-fifth of the elapsed years disregarding any fractional part of a year. An extra dropout year is given for each year in which the claimant provided principal care for a child age 6 or under. No fewer than 2 years can be used as a base for computing benefits, and no more than 5 years may be dropped.

Sec. 4. Provides for SGA demonstration projects including an experiment of reducing benefits based on earnings. The Secretary must submit periodic progress reports and must make a final report to Congress by January 1, 1983.

Sec. 5. Allows the deduction from earnings of costs to the individual of attendant care and extraordinary work expenses before determining the ability of the individual to engage in SGA.

Sec. 6. Extends eligibility for a trial work period to disabled widows and widowers and extends the trial period for 1 year beyond the current length with suspension rather than termination of benefits for earnings over SGA. This section also extends medicare coverage 24 months beyond the newly extended trial work period, for a total of 36 months beyond the current length.

Sec. 7. Eliminates the requirement that months in the medicare waiting period be consecutive, if resumption of benefit status occurs within 5 years of previous disability.

Sec. 8. Gives the Secretary of HEW regulatory authority to set guidelines for administration of the disability program. States may turn over the determination process voluntarily to the Federal Government or the Federal Government can assume control if the State's performance does not comply with regulatory provisions. The Secretary must review State agency allowances (15 percent in 1980, 35 percent in 1981, and 65 percent a year after 1981). The Secretary must submit a report by January 1, 1980, discussing the way the Federal Government would take over State administration of the disability program.

Sec. 9. Provides for detailed decision notices to be sent to claimants identifying the law applicable to the case and the evidence on which the decision was based.

Sec. 10. Allows issuance of regulations to foreclose the introduction of new evidence with respect to a previously filed application after the decision is made at the administrative ALJ hearing.

Sec. 11. Limits the Secretary's absolute discretion for court remand and restricts remands to cases where there is new evidence and good cause shown for failure to incorporate such evidence into the record of a prior proceeding.

Sec. 12. Directs the Secretary to recommend time limits for the stages in the disability determination process by January 1, 1980.

Sec. 13. Terminates the trust fund rehabilitation program in fiscal year 1981 and authorizes reimbursement to the Federal Treasury for the Federal share and to States for twice the States' share of costs of vocational rehabilitation which results in an individual engaging in SGA for 12 months or working in a sheltered workshop for 12 months.

Sec. 14. Disability payments should not cease while a beneficiary is in a rehabilitation program.

Sec. 15. Authorizes payment for certain medical evidence necessary in disability determination, as is done for SSI.

Sec. 16. Authorizes payment for some travel expenses incurred in the evidence gathering and hearings process.

Sec. 17. Unless a disability claim has been determined to be permanent, the claim shall be reviewed once every 3 years.
Summary of Testimony on Disability Insurance Legislation

I. BENEFIT STRUCTURE

A. Cap on family benefits (sec. 2, H.R. 2054; sec. 101, H.R. 2854; sec. 2, H.R. 3236)

Support some type of cap on family benefits.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr., Secretary of HEW (36); Robert J. Myers (8, 12*); Health Insurance Association of American and American Council on Life Insurance (93, 101*); National Association of Manufacturers (106); William K. Harvey (182); Wilbur J. Cohen (407); Representative Sam Gibbons (483*)

Specific comments:

1. Benefits in 6 percent of the disability cases exceed the worker's previous net earnings; 16 percent get more than 80 percent of AIME.
   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (36)

2. If benefits are very high relative to predisability earnings, they serve as an incentive not to go back to work.
   Representative Gibbons (483*); Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (93); Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (36)

3. The DI program is an insurance program; low income beneficiaries can get SSI.
   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (36); Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (93–94)

4. The cap should also take into account workers' compensation.
   Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (93)

5. Consideration should be given to replacement rates used for other public and private insurance programs.
   Representative Gibbons (483*)

6. The cap proposed in H.R. 2054 has merit in principle, but overlooks the fact that individuals receive wages from fringe benefits causing real wages to be about 120 percent of actual gross wages. Thus, the cap should be set at 95 percent of cash wages.
   Wilbur J. Cohen (407)

Oppose cap on family benefits.

Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (5)
Specific comments:

1. Low income workers will be hit hardest by the cap.
   Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (130, 133-34, 137*); AFL-CIO (423*); Elizabeth Wickenden (448); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (487*)

2. A cap on benefits is not a proper work incentive.
   Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (131); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (194); American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, Inc. (444); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (487*)

3. The cap would create financial hardship for the most severely disabled beneficiaries and their families.
   Paralyzed Veterans of America (146); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (194); Representative Tony Coelho (220); Elizabeth Wickenden (448); AFL-CIO (430)

4. The cap is especially hard on minorities because minorities have past histories of disproportionately low earnings.
   Elizabeth Wickenden (448); AFL-CIO (423*)

5. The committee should further study the proposed cap.
   American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities (446); AFL-CIO (430)

6. Only 6 percent of the beneficiaries receive more money in benefits than while they were working, but this measure may penalize the other 94 percent.
   Representative Coelho (221)

7. SSI benefits should not be offered as a substitute for DI.
   International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers—UAW (487*); Elizabeth Wickenden (449)

If there is a cap on family benefits, the cap should be set at—

1. Less than 80 percent of AIME.
   Representative Gibbons (483*)

2. 80 percent of AIME.
   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (37, 73*)

3. 90 percent of AIME or 150 percent of PIA. A cap of 80 percent has no effect on the highest paid workers, but sharply cuts the benefits for the lowest paid.
   Robert J. Myers (8, 9)

4. 70-75 percent of AIME or 125-135 percent of PIA.
   Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (93)
5. 90 percent of AIME.

Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (130, 137*)

6. 95 percent of AIME to account for fringe benefits. The AIME should be based on the highest 5 consecutive years of earnings indexed and adjusted for prices.

Wilbur J. Cohen (407)

B. Level and nature of substantial gainful activity (SGA) (sec. 4, H.R. 2054; sec. 4, H.R. 3238)

1. Social security benefits should be continued for the blind without regard to earnings level.

National Federation of the Blind (127)

2. The SGA concept should be removed for severely disabled individuals.

Paralyzed Veterans of America (147)

3. Work incentive income earned in training programs should be excluded before comparing an individual’s income to SGA level.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*, 173)

4. Earnings in sheltered employment should count towards SGA, perhaps at $ value.

Elizabeth Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (193)

5. The combination of income tax rates and benefit reduction rates on earnings in excess of SGA for disabled beneficiaries who have not medically recovered should not exceed 100 percent.

National Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (453)

6. The SGA level should be periodically updated.

Control Data Corp. (436); Representative Coelho (221)

Would favor a gradual reduction in benefits as earnings increase.

Paralyzed Veterans of America (145); Representative Coelho (219); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (164*, 172); Elizabeth Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (196*); Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (131); Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (92); AFL-CIO (422); American Coalition of Citizens With Disabilities (442); National Multiple Sclerosis Society (502); National Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (459*)

Specific comments:

1. Such a proposal could include a ceiling on benefits.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (176, 164*)

2. There is a precedent for such a system in the retirement test.

Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (131)
3. Propose a $1 reduction in benefits for every $2 earned.

Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (131); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (164*, 172); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (196*); AFL-CIO (422); American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, Inc. (492*); National Multiple Sclerosis Society (502*)

4. Benefits should be reduced in the same proportion as the earnings from trial work bear to the disabled claimant's earnings during the last calendar year of substantial full time work or AIME, if larger.

Health Insurance Association of America, American Council on Life Insurance (92)

C. Dropout years (sec. 3, H.R. 2054; sec. 102, H.R. 2854; sec. 3, H.R. 3286)

Support a reduction of dropout years for younger workers.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (37, 47*); Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (103*); National Association of Manufacturers (106); American United Life Insurance Co. (108); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*, 173); Representative Gibbons (482*)

Specific comments:

1. All workers should be able to disregard the same proportion of their work histories. Younger workers get higher benefits relative to prior earnings under the current system.

   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (47*, 37); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*)

2. The younger worker is the primary candidate for rehabilitation; he should be encouraged to seek rehabilitation and return to work.

   Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*)

Oppose reduction of dropout years.

Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (134); Paralyzed Veterans of America (146); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (195); Wilbur J. Cohen (407); AFL-CIO (421); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (486-487*); Representative Claude Pepper (504*); Elizabeth Wickenden (448)

Specific comments:

1. A reduction in dropout years would be unfair to younger workers because earnings are usually lower in the early years of work.

   Wilbur J. Cohen (407); Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (134); AFL-CIO (421); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (487*)
2. Younger disabled beneficiaries are usually more severely disabled than other workers.

Paralyzed Veterans of America (146)

3. Younger disabled workers have lower benefits than older workers because they do not reflect rising wage levels.

Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (196)

4. A reduction in dropout years is especially hard on women and minorities.

Elizabeth Wickenden (448)

5. Younger workers pay more heavily for future social security benefits than older people did in past years.

Representative Pepper (504*)

6. More dropout years should be gradually added to the benefit formula until benefits will eventually be based on the 5 years of the worker's highest earnings.

AFL-CIO (423*)

Support additional dropout year from each year in which the worker provided principal care for a child age 6 or younger. (sec. 3, H.R. 2054; sec. 3, H.R. 3236)

Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (140*); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (196*)

Oppose granting an additional dropout year for each year in which the worker provided principal care for a child age 6 or younger.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (76*)

Additional proposals:

1. Propose recognition of principal care of a disabled child or adult, regardless of age.

Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (196*)

2. Propose more dropout years for all workers. Workers should drop half their years or at least one drop for every 5 years of coverage.

Wilbur J. Cohen (407)

II. WORK INCENTIVES

A. Trial work period (sec. 6, H.R. 2054; sec. 203, H.R. 2854; sec. 6, H.R. 3236)

Support extension of the trial work period.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (38,48*); Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., District of Columbia Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (109); Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (131, 140*); Paralyzed Veterans of America (146, 150*); National Easter Seal Society (431); Representative
Specific comments:

1. Trial work period should be extended—
   (a) To 1 year suspended after cash benefits end.
   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (38, 48*)
   (b) To 5 years after cash benefits end.
   Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (132)
   (c) To 18 months.
   National Easter Seal Society (431)
   (d) Until amount of earnings equals the amount of benefit payments.
   Control Data Corporation (436)
   (e) With a gradual reduction in benefits during the 12 months of suspension rather than complete termination.
   Paralyzed Veterans of America (146)

2. Definitions of trial work:
   (a) Unless a month of earnings is one of 2 or 3 consecutive months, it should not be counted as a trial month.
   Control Data Corp. (437)
   (b) The earnings level which constitutes a trial work month (now $75) should be raised to SGA level (now $280).
   Control Data Corp. (437)
   (c) Any month in which a disabled recipient earns less than SGA level should not be counted as a trial work month.
   National Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (459*)

3. Propose elimination of the trial work period, gradually reducing benefits as earnings increase until benefits equal zero.
   Paralyzed Veterans of America (150*); Representative Coelho (219); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (164*, 172)

Support extension of entitlement to a trial work period to disabled widows and widowers (sec. 6, H.R. 2054; sec. 202, H.R. 2854; sec. 6, H.R. 3236).

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (38); Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (109); American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, Blinded Veterans Association (132, 140*); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (196*); AFL-CIO (422); National Easter Seal Society (431)
B. Medicare

Support extension of medicare coverage (sec. 6, H.R. 2054; sec. 203, H.R. 2854; sec. 6, H.R. 3236).

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (38, 48*); Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (109); Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (132, 140*); National Federation of the Blind (127); Paralyzed Veterans of America (147, 149*); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*; 173); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association of Retarded Persons (196*); Representative Coelho (220); Wilbur J. Cohen (407); National Easter Seal Society (432); Control Data Corp. (436); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (488*); National Multiple Sclerosis Society (502*)

Specific comments:

1. Medicare benefits should be—

   (a) Extended to 3 years after cash benefits end.
   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (38); National Easter Seal Society (432); National Multiple Sclerosis Society (502*); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association of Retarded Persons (196*)

   (b) Continued indefinitely for the catastrophically disabled beneficiaries.
   Paralyzed Veterans of America (147, 149*); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (120); Representative Coelho (220); Wilbur J. Cohen (407); Control Data Corp. (436)

   (c) Extended until retirement for any disabled person who leaves the rolls to go to work.
   Wilbur J. Cohen (407)

   (d) Retained under a cost sharing program for any disabled beneficiary who has not medically recovered when earnings exceed SGA. Medicaid coverage should be similarly extended.
   National Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (453)

2. Medicaid should be extended as well as medicare for 3 years after cash benefits end.

   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (38); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association of Retarded Persons (196*)

Support elimination of the second waiting period for medicare.
(Sec. 7, H.R. 2054; sec. 201, H.R. 2854; sec. 7, H.R. 3236)

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (38); Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (94); Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (109); Paralyzed Veterans of America (147, 149*); National Federation of the Blind (127); Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (132, 140*); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*; 173); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association of Retarded Persons (196*); Illinois Chapter,
Specific comments:

1. Waiting period creates special hardships for severely disabled workers since they are often ineligible for health insurance covering preexisting disability under private plans.

Paralyzed Veterans of America (149*)

2. Medicare eligibility should be coordinated with the resumption of disability benefits rather than beginning 2 years later.

Control Data Corp. (436); National Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (452)

3. Medicare eligibility should begin with the date of onset of the disability.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*, 173); Wilbur J. Cohen (407)

4. The first medicare waiting period should also be reduced or eliminated.

Paralyzed Veterans of America (145); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (105*); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (200*); AFL-CIO (422)

5. Unpaid medical bills 2 months prior to disability should be covered under Medicare.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*, 173)

6. The cost of attendant services that would permit a disabled person to work should be covered under medicare.

Congress of Organizations of the Physically Handicapped, Illinois Chapter (208*)

Support the deduction of extraordinary impairment related work expenses including the cost of attendant care from a worker's earnings before determining eligibility for disability benefits (sec. 5, H.R. 2054; sec. 204, H.R. 2854; sec. 5, H.R. 3236).

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (38,48*); Health Insurance Association of America, American Council on Life Insurance (94,104); Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (100); Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (141*); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (165*, 173); Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (196*); Representative Coelho (220); National Easter Seal Society (432); American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, Inc. (441); National Association of Rehabilitation Facilities (459*); National Multiple Sclerosis Society (502*); Paralyzed Veterans of America (147)

Specific comments:

1. Impairment related work expenses not paid by the worker should be deducted as well as those paid by the individual.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (74*)
2. Drugs needed for control of the disability should also be deducted.

Representative Coelho (220)

Propose an aid and attendant allowance for the spouse of a severely disabled person.

Paralyzed Veterans of America (150*); National Easter Seal Society (432)

III. ACCOUNTABILITY, ADMINISTRATION, AND APPEALS PROCESS

A. Regulatory authority to set standards for State disability determination agencies (sec. 3, H.R. 2054; sec. 3, H.R. 3236; sec. 301, H.R. 2554)

Supports the option of the Federal Government to take over State administration of disability determination if the State requests it or does an inadequate job in administering the program.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (41); National Easter Seal Society (432); Health Insurance Association of America, American Council on Life Insurance (104*)

Federal control should be strengthened through administrative regulations for greater management effectiveness.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (41)

Oppose granting regulatory authority to the Federal government to set standards for state disability determination agencies.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (163*, 166–167*, 174)

Specific comments:

1. It is unfair for states to be held accountable for quality when they have no opportunities for state input in management and administration.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (166*)

2. The Secretary of HEW could change the State/Federal relationship without input from Congress, by issuing administrative regulations.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (167*, 174)

3. A mixed system of State and Federal disability determination units is likely to be the most disruptive and least conducive to consistency and uniformity. Complete federalization of the process is preferable to the proposed mixture of State and Federal administration.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (166*)

4. Legislation rather than administrative regulation is necessary to provide for federal takeover of state administration.

National Association of Disability Examiners (158)

5. Concerned with the retention of state employees in the event of a federal takeover of state administration.

National Association of Disability Examiners (157)
Support federalization of the disability determination process.

Robert J. Myers (29); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (488*); AFL-CIO (422, 425); National Association of Disability Examiners (155, 100)

Specific comments:

1. Federalization would promote more uniform standards between states.

Robert J. Myers (29); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (488*)

2. Federalization would provide better control over disability determination.

Robert J. Myers (29)

3. The determination of disability is too often based on persistence or residence.

International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (488*)

4. Favors experiments to determine whether stronger federal supervision or complete federalization can bring consistency, uniformity, and accuracy to the process and reduce appeals.

Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (103*)

B. Federal review of State agency allowances (sec. 8, H.R. 2054; sec. 8, H.R. 3236; sec. 301, H.R. 2854)

Supports Federal review of State agency allowances.

Robert J. Myers (29); Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (41, 50*); Health Insurance Association of America, American Council on Life Insurance (94); Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Center (113); National Easter Seal Society (432)

Specific comment:

1. The federal government should review denials as well as grants. If review is only one-way, determiners will have an incentive to deny disability designation in all uncertain cases.

Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (113)

Oppose Federal review of State agency allowances.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (163*, 172, 174, 184*)

C. Periodic review of cases (sec. 17, H.R. 2054; sec. 17, H.R. 3236)

Supports periodic review of disability cases.

Robert J. Myers (19); Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (54); Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (104*); National Association of Manufacturers (106); National Easter Seal Society (432)

D. Limits on judicial review (sec. 401, H.R. 2854)

Supports limiting court appellate review to statutory, constitutional, and regulation interpretation issues only.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (50*, 83*); Stanford Ross (239)
Specific comments:
1. The cost to the Government of defending social security disability decisions is substantial. Disability cases are a substantial burden on Federal district courts.
   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (79°); Stanford Ross (239)

2. The responsibility for accurate factual determination should be placed at the administrative level.
   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (50°); Stanford Ross (239)

3. Judicial review of facts is unnecessary in a system that provides four administrative stages of decision and a full hearing before an ALJ.
   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (76°)

Oppose limiting court review to statutory, constitutional, and regulation interpretation issues.
Hon. Justine Wise Polier (450–451°); Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (110); Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (134–135); Wilbur J. Cohen (407); Elizabeth Wickenden (448)

Specific comments:
1. Many records that come to the court are inadequate; prohibiting appeal of the facts may perpetuate the inadequacies.
   Elizabeth Wickenden (458°); Justine Wise Polier (450°)

2. "Adjudicators will decide more carefully if they know they are subject to review by independent court.
   Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (111)

3. More than 45 percent of the cases fail to win judicial approval and are reversed or remanded.
   Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (111)

4. More than 150 new judges were added to the Federal courts, increasing the number of available judges by 25 percent.
   Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (112)

E. Judicial remands
Supports limits on judicial remands (sec. 11, H.R. 2054; sec. 11, H.R. 3236).
Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (112)

F. Adversary process
Supports exploring the use of SSA personnel to present and defend the Government’s case in a hearing before an ALJ.
Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (50°); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (183°); Stanford Ross (239–240); Judge Howard Grossman (280);
1. Such a process will protect government interests and permit ALJs to serve in a more purely judicial role.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (50*); Stanford Ross (239-240)

Oppose adversary proceedings.

Specific comments:

1. Adversary proceedings would be costly and too formal. If adversary proceedings are held, the claimant must be provided with legal representation equal to the government's representation.

   Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (110)

2. The proposal for adversary hearings has merit, but it may be both costly and time consuming and should be subjected to further study.

   Richard Kredel (492*)

G. Face to face meetings (sec. 10, H.R. 2054)

Support providing for face to face determination sessions on reconsideration of disability claims, either as administrative action or as a demonstration project.

   Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (41, 50*); Robert J. Myers (19); Stanford Ross (239); Judge Howard Grossman (259); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (183*); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (488*)

Supports demonstration projects providing for face to face determination sessions as proposed in H.R. 2054.

   Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (113)

Specific comments (pro and con):

1. Face to face sessions will lead to more accurate decisions earlier in the determination process and fewer cases reaching the hearings level.

   Stanford Ross (239)

2. Face to face sessions may cause undue delay in the determination process.

   Affiliated Leadership League of and for the Blind of America, American Council of the Blind, American Association of Workers for the Blind, American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., Blinded Veterans Association (135)

3. Face to face conferences would add administrative and fiscal burdens without significant improvement in quality. Such sessions should be conducted as pure demonstration with no commitment for wider adoption.

   Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (167*).
H. Detailed decision notices (sec. 9, H.R. 2054; sec. 401, H.R. 2854; sec. 9, H.R. 3236)

Support the issuance of detailed decision notices on disability claims.

Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (113); Representative Coelho (220); National Easter Seal Society (432); Judge Howard Grossman (259)

1. A number of claimants appeal adverse decisions because they do not understand them.

Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (113)

2. Although detailed decision notices are important, they may cause problems. Doctors may be reluctant to assist DDS if information is released to the claimant. In addition, the increased paperwork may cause delays and induce litigation.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (167)

I. Time limits (sec. 12, H.R. 2054; sec. 12, H.R. 3236)

1. Support various provisions to expedite claims processing and increase the reliability of and equity in disability determination.

Elizabeth M. Boggs, National Association for Retarded Persons (196*)

2. Social security claimants who have contributed regularly to social security insurance should receive final decisions within a fixed time period as in other benefit programs.

Representative Seiberling (506*)

3. Opposed to time limits on disability determination because time limits could create statutory rights with respect to processing time. The Secretary of HEW should set performance guidelines instead.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (116*, 174)

4. Now is not the time to study the delay problem further. An outstanding court order directed the Secretary to draft rules setting time limits and HEW should move quickly to comply.

Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (114, 119-120*)

J. Payment for medical evidence of record (sec. 15, H.R. 2054; sec. 15, H.R. 3236)

Support provision included in the bills.

IV. REHABILITATION

A. Reimbursement (sec. 13, H.R. 2054; sec. 13, H.R. 3236)
Support Federal bonus payment to States from trust funds for rehabilitation on a performance/success reimbursement system.

Representative Coelho (220); Elizabeth Boggs, National Association of Retarded Persons (196*)

Oppose the bonus reimbursement system.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (171)

1. A bonus reimbursement system may discourage rehabilitation because States would lose fixed sums in return for the uncertainty of being reimbursed at a future date.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (171)

2. Any reform of the beneficiary rehabilitation programs should include recognition of all savings to the trust funds including indirect costs regardless of the beneficiary's earnings, in order to account for savings to the Federal Treasury.

Joseph A. Califano, Jr. (40)

Supports system in which 50 percent of the state's allocation of trust fund vocational rehabilitation expenditures is based on relative success in rehabilitation and 50 percent is on a per capita basis as is currently being done under regulation.

Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (171)

B. Disability payments during rehabilitation Disability payments should not be canceled during rehabilitation.

Representative Coelho (220); Administrative Law Center, Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., Baltimore, Md., D.C. Neighborhood Legal Services Program, National Senior Citizens Law Center (109); Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (164)

C. Other comments on rehabilitation
1. There should be no reward to States for placing an individual in a sheltered workshop.

National Federation of the Blind (126)
2. Allocations should be made to States from trust funds based on 100 percent performances measured as successful rehabilitation at SGA.

   Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (171)

3. A person who obtains disability benefits, accepts rehabilitation, and is unable to get a job because of factors unrelated to his disability should not be eligible for continued coverage.

   Paralyzed Veterans of America (151)

V. OTHER

A. Timing—effective date

1. The bill should become effective no sooner than 12 months after the first full month after presidential approval.

   Wilbur J. Cohen (408)

2. Wants to delay action on the bill until the National Commission on Social Security report is released.

   Wilbur J. Cohen (415); AFL-CIO (421)

3. The bill should move forward as quickly as possible.

   American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities (446)

B. Organization

1. Social Security should be taken out of HEW and be made a separate Commission.

   Wilbur J. Cohen (409)

2. The social security trust funds should be excluded from the unified budget.

   Wilbur J. Cohen (410)

3. More social security personnel should be hired, and salaries should be raised.

   Wilbur J. Cohen (408)

4. Administrative law judges should be eliminated and an SSA review board should be established.

   Lorraine Cronin, Thorold S. Funk, and William K. Harvey, speaking as individuals (181)

5. An SSA review board should be established in place of the Appeals Council.

   Stanford Ross (238–239, 79–80*)

6. There is a lack of coordination in SSA; conflicting instructions are given from various functional departments. The regional offices should be eliminated and a central office should get the authority and responsibility of State management.

   Council of State Administrators of Vocational Rehabilitation (168*)

C. Definition of disability

1. The benefit structure should be split into two parts: one less restrictive for beneficiaries whose disabilities are total and permanent, and the other for temporarily disabled beneficiaries, based on the assumption that the beneficiary will return to work. The second type should only get benefits for 2 years. If rehabilitation is refused, no awards should be given for Type 2 beneficiaries.

Paralyzed Veterans of America (149*)

2. Favor an occupational definition of disability under which workers older than age 50 could receive benefits if unable to handle their usual occupation.

AFL-CIO (425)

3. Support determination of the expected length of disability with the periodic review.

Health Insurance Association of America and American Council on Life Insurance (94,104*); National Association of Manufacturers (100); International Union, United Auto, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America—UAW (487*)

4. Supports awarding grants with fixed duration; a fixed term of benefits provides stronger motivation for rehabilitation.

Judge Howard Grossman (258)

5. Eliminate the substantial recent current work test of 20 out of 40 quarters.

I. Background of Social Security Disability Programs

A. Introduction

The Social Security Administration is charged with the administration of two national disability programs: the disability insurance program (DI) and the supplemental security income program (SSI). The disability insurance program provides benefits in amounts related to a disabled worker's former wage levels in covered employment. Funding is provided through the social security payroll tax, a portion of which is allocated to a separate disability insurance trust fund. The SSI program provides cash assistance benefits to the needy blind and disabled, many of whom do not have recent attachment to the labor force. The benefit amount is based on the amount of other income available to the individual. Unlike DI benefits, the SSI benefits are funded through appropriations from general revenues.

B. Disability Insurance

The disability insurance (DI) program established by title II of the Social Security Act provides monthly benefits averaging $320 to some 2.9 million disabled workers. Benefits are also payable under the program to approximately 2 million dependent spouses and children of these disabled workers. For a disabled-worker family, monthly benefits average $639. The maximum benefit which could be paid to a worker who becomes disabled in 1979 is $552 for a disabled worker alone or $967 for a disabled-worker family.

Although the original Social Security Act of 1935 did not include provision for a disability insurance program, there was early concern with the problem of loss of earnings due to disability. In the 1940's the Social Security Board in its annual reports generally supported the addition of some kind of disability program to the social security system. The 1948 Report of the Advisory Council on Social Security to the Finance Committee recommended the establishment of a disability program. The report further specified that coverage should be provided only in the case of disabilities which were medically demonstrable by objective tests, and that there should be a 6-month waiting period. The report envisaged requiring substantial and recent attachment to the social security system as a basis for qualifying for benefits. Disabled beneficiaries would be transferred to the retirement system upon reaching age 65, and they would be protected from reductions in their retirement benefits by eliminating periods of disability in computing the amount of the retirement benefit.

The Congress had various proposals for a disability program under its active consideration in the next few years. Finally, in the Social Security Amendments of 1954, the Congress included a provision for a disability "freeze" which would allow disabled workers to protect their ultimate retirement benefits against the effects of non-earning years, becoming effective in July 1955. The amendments provided that the determination of who was disabled would be made by State agencies under contract with the Federal Government. It was expected that the agency used would ordinarily be the State vocational rehabilitation agency.

The 1956 amendments established the Disability Insurance Trust Fund and provided for the payment of benefits to disabled workers (but not to their dependents) starting in July 1957. Benefits were limited to workers aged 50 or over who had recent and substantial attachment to the social security program. The disability had to be severe enough to prevent the individual from engaging in any substantial employment and to be of "long-continued and indefinite duration." For eligible individuals, benefits were payable only after a full 6-month waiting period. (If an individual became disabled on January 15, the waiting period would be February through July. The first check, for the month of August, would be payable at the beginning of September.)

The disability benefit formula was essentially the same as the formula for retirement benefits, under which the benefit amount is determined according to the worker's lifetime average earnings (excluding in this case years of disability in computing the average). Since the benefits were at this time limited to workers age 50 or over, their general wage-histories could be expected to be comparable to retired workers. For this reason, there was no compelling reason to develop a new method of determining benefits.

The 1956 amendments also provided for the payment of benefits to disabled children age 18 and over who were dependents of retired workers or survivors of deceased workers (provided that the disability began before the child reached age 18).

The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare was given the authority to reverse cases that had been allowed by the State agencies which made the original determinations. The basic purpose of this provision was to protect the trust fund from being forced to pay benefits in cases that should not have been allowed in the first instance, and to promote more uniform administration of the program among the States.

Subsequent amendments added provisions for benefits to dependent spouses and children of disabled workers (1958) and eased the requirements related to prior work under social security (1958 and 1960). Also in 1960, the limitation of benefits to workers aged 50 or over was eliminated. The lowering of the age of eligibility had a significant impact on how the benefit computation formula operated. Since benefits are based on lifetime average earnings (excluding years of disability), benefits for workers who became disabled at a young age would be based on a very small number of years of earnings (as few as 2). This can lead to quite different results from the situation of a retired worker whose earnings are averaged over a relatively large number of years. However, no change in the disability benefit formula was made.
Certain provisions in the 1960 amendments were aimed at encouraging beneficiaries to return to employment. They provided for a nine-month period of "trial work," during which the disabled individual could have earnings without having his benefits terminated. They also eliminated the 6-month waiting period for benefits if a worker applied for disability a second time after failing in his attempt to return to work.

In 1965, the definition requiring that a disability be of "long-continued and indefinite duration" was changed to permit benefits for disabilities expected to last at least 12 months. Benefits for disabled widows were added in 1967. In 1972, the 6-month waiting period (established in 1956) was reduced to 5 months.

As the program grew, the Congress began expressing considerable concern over the increased allocations to the disability trust fund which had been required to meet actuarial deficiencies. The Finance Committee, in its report on the 1967 Social Security Amendments, commented:

The committee recognizes and shares the concern expressed by the Committee on Ways and Means regarding the way this disability definition has been interpreted by the courts and the effects their interpretations have had and might have in the future on the administration of the disability program by the Social Security Administration. * * * The studies of the Committee on Ways and Means indicate that over the past few years the rising cost of the disability insurance program is related, along with other factors, to the way in which the definition of disability has been interpreted. The committee therefore includes in its bill more precise guidelines that are to be used in determining the degree of disability which must exist in order to qualify for disability insurance benefits.

The 1967 amendments were intended to emphasize the role of medical factors in the determination of disability. Since the beginning of the program, the Social Security Administration had been operating under guidelines that allowed consideration of certain vocational factors. However, these were being interpreted in varying ways, and there was believed to be a need to write into the law additional language which would define vocational factors in such a way that they could be interpreted and applied on a more uniform basis. The new language specified that an individual could be determined to be disabled only if his impairments were of such severity that he "is not only unable to do his previous work but cannot, considering his age, education, and work experience, engage in any other kind of substantial gainful work which exists in the national economy, regardless of whether such work exists in the immediate area in which he lives, or whether a specific job vacancy exists for him, or whether he would be hired if he applied for work."
The committee report discussed this provision further:

The original provision was designed to provide disability insurance benefits to workers who are so severely disabled that they are unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity. The bill would provide that such an individual would be disabled only if it is shown that he has a severe medically determinable physical or mental impairment or impairments; that if, despite his impairment or impairments, an individual still can do his previous work, he is not under a disability; and that if, considering the severity of his impairment together with his age, education, and experience, he has the ability to engage in some other type of substantial gainful work that exists in the national economy even though he can no longer do his previous work, he also is not under a disability regardless of whether or not such work exists in the general area in which he lives or whether he would be hired to do such work. It is not intended, however, that a type of job which exists only in very limited numbers or in relatively few geographic locations would be considered as existing in the national economy. While such factors as whether the work he could do exists in his local area, or whether there are job openings, or whether he would or would not actually be hired may be pertinent in relation to other forms of protection, they may not be used as a basis for finding an individual to be disabled under this definition. It is, and has been, the intent of the statute to provide a definition of disability which can be applied with uniformity and consistency throughout the Nation, without regard to where a particular individual may reside, to local hiring practices or employer preferences, or to the state of the local or national economy.

Over the years, several amendments were adopted easing certain requirements of the disability program in the case of blind individuals. The level of earnings above which an individual is considered not disabled is substantially higher for blind persons than for those with other disabilities. No recency of employment test is applied in determining eligibility for the blind. For blind persons age 55 or over, eligibility is based on their ability to work at their usual occupation rather than on their ability to work at any job.

C. Supplemental Security Income

The Social Security Act as originally written in 1935 did not provide for disability protection under either the insurance (trust fund) title or under the public assistance titles. (A public assistance program limited to the needy blind was, however, a part of the 1933 act.) In 1950 a public assistance program for the "totally and permanently disabled" was added to the Social Security Act. Under the public assistance programs for the blind and disabled, basic eligibility standards and assistance levels were determined by each State, and program administration was carried out by the States (or by local governments under overall State supervision). State expenditures for the program were funded by the States with Federal matching from general revenue appropriations according to formulas specified in the Federal statute.
In 1972, Congress repealed the public assistance programs for the blind and disabled (along with the similar program for the aged) and established a new federally administered program called Supplemental Security Income (SSI). Under the new program (which became effective at the start of 1974), a basic Federal income support level is established for each aged, blind, and disabled person. Eligibility is determined and benefits are paid by the Social Security Administration. States may supplement the basic Federal income support levels, and these State supplementary benefits may be administered either by the States or by the Social Security Administration on behalf of the States.

At the present time, the SSI program provides a monthly minimum Federal income support level of $208.20 for a disabled individual and $312.30 for a disabled couple. These amounts are increased automatically for cost of living changes. State supplementation levels vary widely from State to State and within States according to different living arrangements of recipients. (See table 1.)

The disability part of the SSI program follows generally the definition and administrative processes applicable to the disability insurance program. To be eligible, an individual must be sufficiently disabled to permit a finding that he will be unable to engage in any substantial work activity for at least a period of 1 year from the time he became disabled.

1 State supplements in some cases but budgets each case individually regardless of living arrangements.
2 State has two optional supplementation levels. This represents the higher amount payable to recipients in the State.

Note: "None" indicates no optional State supplementation. Where optional supplementation is indicated but the Federal levels of $208.20 and $312.30 are shown, the State optional supplementation does not apply in the case of individuals or couples in independent living arrangements. Mandatory supplementation may apply for certain individuals who were previously on State programs in effect prior to January 1974. Optional State supplementation may also apply for other living arrangements.

II. The Definition of Disability

A. WHAT THE LAW REQUIRES

The Social Security Act definition requires that in order to qualify for disability benefits an individual must be unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of a medically determinable physical or mental impairment that has lasted, or is expected to last, at least 12 months, or is expected to result in death. The determination must be made on the basis of medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques.

As indicated in the earlier discussion of the legislative development of the disability insurance program, the definition of disability has been somewhat modified and clarified over the years, the most recent major amendments being those in 1967 which, as described earlier, attempted to emphasize the role of medical factors by defining strictly in the law when and how vocational factors were to be applied. The 1972 amendments which established the supplemental security income program provided for the use of this same definition.

The definition in title II of the Social Security Act reads as follows:

Sec. 223 * * *
(d)(1) The term “disability” means—

(A) inability to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months; or

(B) in the case of an individual who has attained the age of 55 and is blind (within the meaning of “blindness” as defined in section 216(i)(1)), inability by reason of such blindness to engage in substantial gainful activity requiring skills or abilities comparable to those of any gainful activity in which he has previously engaged with some regularity and over a substantial period of time.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (1)(A)—

(A) an individual (except a widow, surviving divorced wife, or widower for purposes of section 202 (e) or (f)) shall be determined to be under a disability only if his physical or mental impairment or impairments are of such severity that he is not only unable to do his previous work but cannot, considering his age, education, and work experience, engage in any other kind of substantial gainful work which exists in the national economy, regardless of whether such work exists in the immediate area in which he lives, or whether a specific job vacancy exists for him, or whether he would be hired if he applied for work. For purposes of the preceding sentence (with respect to any individual), "work which exists in the national economy" means work which exists in significant numbers either in the region where such individual lives or in several regions of the country.

(B) A widow, surviving divorced wife, or widower shall not be determined to be under a disability (for purposes of section 202 (e) or (f)), unless his or her physical or mental impairment or impairments are of a level of severity which under regulations prescribed by the Secretary is deemed to be sufficient to preclude an individual from engaging in any gainful activity.

(3) For purposes of this subsection, a "physical or mental impairment" is an impairment that results from anatomical, physiological, or psychological abnormalities which are demonstrable by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques.

(4) The Secretary shall by regulations prescribe the criteria for determining when services performed or earnings derived from services demonstrate an individual's ability to engage in substantial gainful activity. No individual who is blind shall be regarded as having demonstrated an ability to engage in substantial gainful activity on the basis of earnings that do not exceed the exempt amount under section 203(f)(8) which is applicable to individuals described in subparagraph (D) thereof. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (2), an individual whose services or earnings meet such criteria shall, except for purposes of section 222(c), be found not to be disabled.

(5) An individual shall not be considered to be under a disability unless he furnishes such medical and other evidence of the existence thereof as the Secretary may require.

The title XVI definition reads as follows:

Sec. 1614. (a) * * *

(3)(A) An individual shall be considered to be disabled for purposes of this title if he is unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months (or, in the case of a child under the age of 18, if he suffers from any medically determinable physical or mental impairment of comparable severity).

(B) For purposes of subparagraph (A), an individual shall be determined to be under a disability only if his physical or mental impairment or impairments are of such severity that he is not only unable to do his previous work but cannot, considering his age, education, and work experience, engage in any other kind of substantial gainful work which exists in the national economy, regardless of whether such work exists in the immediate area in which he lives, or whether a specific job vacancy exists for him, or whether he would be hired if he applied for work. For purposes of the preceding sentence (with respect to any individual), "work which exists in the national economy" means work which exists in significant numbers either in the region where such individual lives or in several regions of the country.

(C) For purposes of this paragraph, a physical or mental impairment is an impairment that results from anatomical, physiological, or psychological abnormalities which are demonstrable by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques.

(D) The Secretary shall by regulations prescribe the criteria for determining when services performed or earnings derived from services demonstrate an individual's ability to engage in substantial gainful activity. Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraph (B), an individual whose services or earnings meet such criteria, except for purposes of paragraph (4), shall be found not to be disabled.

Essentially, the only differences in the laws are (1) under the SSI program the test of substantial gainful activity applies only to the "disabled." There is a separate definition of "blindness" to which the test of SGA does not apply; (2) the SSI program has no provision relating to eligibility of widows or widowers; (3) the SSI program has no requirement stipulating that the individual must furnish evidence of disability as required by the Secretary (in fact, the Secretary exercises authority to purchase needed medical evidence for SSI applicants); and (4) the SSI program provides for disability benefits for children under age 18. (The disability insurance program does not exclude children. However, eligibility requires at least a 1½-year work history.)

Thus, persons applying for benefits must generally meet the same definition of disability under both programs. Furthermore, the SSI statute specifically provides for following the same administrative procedures as are used for the title II program.

B. THE DETERMINATION PROCESS

The social security definition of disability is considered to be a strict definition, which only the most severely disabled can meet. However, the statute is not specific in describing how the definition is to be applied in individual cases. The State agencies are directed in how the definition is to be applied by detailed Federal regulations. These regulations were recently amended, effective February 26, 1979, to include specific rules on the application of the vocational factors which had been provided in statute in 1967, but for which the Social Security Administration had prior to this year issued only administrative guides.

The determination of disability may be based on medical considerations alone, or on medical considerations and vocational factors. In making the determination, the disability adjudicator is required to look at all the pertinent facts of a particular case, and must follow a sequential evaluation process. Current work activity, severity of impairment, and vocational factors are assessed in that order. The regulations set out the steps, and state that when a determination can be made at any step, evaluation under a subsequent step is unnecessary.
(1) The first question to be asked is whether the individual is currently engaging in substantial gainful activity (SGA). Under present administrative practice, if an individual is actually earning more than $280 per month he is considered to be engaging in substantial gainful activity. Earnings below $180 a month are generally regarded as not constituting SGA. Earnings between these two amounts must be evaluated. If it is determined that the individual is actually engaging in SGA, a finding is made that the individual is not disabled, without any consideration of either medical or vocational factors.

(2) If an individual is not actually engaging in SGA, the second step is to look at whether the individual has a severe impairment. Under the regulations, if an individual is found not to have any impairment which significantly limits his physical or mental capacity to perform basic work-related functions, a finding must be made that there is not a severe impairment and that the individual is not disabled. Vocational factors are not to be considered in such cases.

(3) If the individual is found to have a severe impairment, the next step is to determine whether the impairment meets or equals the medical listings which have been developed by the Social Security Administration for use in determining whether a condition constitutes a disability. If the impairment meets the duration requirement and is included in the medical listings, or is determined to be medically the equivalent of a listed impairment, a finding of disability must be made without consideration of vocational factors.

(4) In cases where a finding of "disability" or "no disability" cannot be made based on the substantial gainful activity test or on medical considerations alone, but the individual does have a severe impairment, the individual's residual functional capacity and the physical and mental demands of his past relevant work must be evaluated. If the impairment does not prevent the individual from meeting the demands of past relevant work, there must be a finding that the individual is not disabled.

(5) The final step is consideration of whether the individual's impairment prevents other work. If the individual cannot perform any past relevant work because of a severe impairment, but he is able to meet the physical and mental demands of a significant number of jobs (in one or more occupations) in the national economy, and the individual has the vocational capabilities (considering age, education and prior work experience) to make an adjustment to work different from that which he has performed in the past, it must be determined that the individual is not disabled. If these conditions are not met, there must be a determination of disability.

The basis for disability allowances has undergone change over the years. As the accompanying chart shows, in 1965 only 16 percent of title II disabled worker allowances involved consideration of vocational factors. This increased to 27 percent in 1975. However, in the succeeding years the trend has reversed, and in 1978 only 22 percent of allowances involved vocational factors. These figures appear to be consistent with a generally perceived trend in the last few years toward greater reliance on medical evidence in determining allowances and denials.
It is important, however, to look beyond the national statistics and to examine what individual States are doing in order to understand how complex and variable the determination process is. For example, although on a national basis about 22 percent of disabled worker allowances involved vocational factors, in California about 35 percent of allowances involved vocational factors, while in New Jersey only 14 percent involved vocational factors. This kind of variation among States also persists in the other categories of allowances—meeting and equaling the medical listings. The State reporting the highest percentage of cases as meeting the medical listings was North Dakota—68 percent. The lowest State was New Jersey—26 percent. The variation reported by States for the category of equaling the listings was even greater. New Jersey reported that 60 percent of its allowances were on the basis of equaling the listings; Michigan reported only 7 percent of allowances were made on this basis.

With respect to initial State agency denials, in fiscal year 1978 21 percent of disabled worker denials were on the basis of inadequate duration of the impairment, 32 percent on the basis of lack of severity ("slight impairment"), 25 percent on the basis of ability to perform usual work, 15 percent on the basis of ability to perform other work, 0.5 percent on the basis of engaging in substantial gainful activity, and 6 percent on the basis of failure to cooperate or follow required procedures. These percentages have also undergone change in recent years. Perhaps most startling are the figures for denials on the basis of slight impairment—up from about 8 percent in 1975 to 32 percent in 1978 and increasing to 36 percent in the last 6 months of calendar year 1978. This change appears to have resulted from the efforts by the Social Security Administration to give the States more detailed guidance in determining (under the sequential process described above) whether an individual has a "severe impairment," or whether his case should be denied without further analysis because his impairment does not meet the required degree of severity—i.e., is a "slight impairment." The States now have available to them lists of impairments which, when occurring alone, or in combination with other impairments, are automatically considered slight. These impairments would not necessarily have been routinely considered slight in past years. (This development is discussed more fully in the section "Explanations Given for Changes in the Growth Pattern.")

State agency statistics reveal, however, that States are apparently still interpreting regulations and guidelines in varying ways. Although the percentage of cases denied on the basis of "slight impairment" nationwide stands at 32 percent, the percentage for individual States ranges from a high of 54 percent in Michigan to a low of 10 percent in Delaware for fiscal year 1978. The table below shows the variation among the States in the reasons for denial.

C. MEANING OF SUBSTANTIAL GAINFUL ACTIVITY (SGA)

At the heart of the disability definition is the test—"Is the individual able to engage in any substantial gainful activity?" If the answer is in the affirmative, the individual cannot be determined to be disabled. The term "substantial gainful activity" is not defined in the statute. Rather, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is required by regulations to prescribe the criteria for determining when services performed or earnings derived from services demonstrate an individual's ability to engage in substantial gainful activity. These criteria have been expressed in regulations in the form of dollar amounts of earnings above which an individual would be presumed to be engaged in substantial gainful activity, and therefore not disabled for purposes of the social security definition. As the Acting Commissioner of Social Security, Don Wortman, stated to the Subcommittee on Public Assistance of the Finance Committee in testimony in September 1978, "... the levels at which the SGA is set is a fundamental part of the definition of who is, or who is not, disabled for purposes of these programs." Mr. Wortman further observed that "At earnings of $500 or more a month, the concept of 'substantial gainful activity' as one test of disability becomes almost meaningless as a means of distinguishing the disabled from the nondisabled. In a society in which many nondisabled people earn only that much or less, it would be difficult to determine whether low earnings are a result of an impairment or of economic and social factors unrelated to physical or mental impairments."

The SGA level was $100 a month in 1958, increased to $125 in 1966, $140 in 1968, $200 in 1974, $230 in 1976, $240 in 1977, $260 in 1978, and $280 a month in 1979. At the present time the administration is proposing to provide by regulation for automatic increases in the future which would be made on the basis of the rate of the increase in average taxable wages reported for the first calendar quarter of each year.

There have been proposals to increase substantially the amount to be used in establishing substantial gainful activity, on the grounds that the current level acts as a work disincentive. However, in response to a question posed by the Public Assistance Subcommittee at the hearing referred to earlier, the Social Security Administration responded that "raising the SGA level does not appear to give disabled beneficiaries an incentive to work ... . The earnings of most disabled beneficiaries are considerably below the SGA level and studies show no appreciable increases in earnings as the SGA earnings levels have increased."

Subsequent to the comment by the Department a special study, "Effect of Substantial Gainful Activity Level on Disabled Beneficiary Work Patterns," appeared in the March 1979 Social Security Bulletin. The research findings reported in the study show that increases in the substantial gainful activity level in 1966, 1968 and 1974 were not followed by incremental increases in beneficiary earnings. The authors of the study draw the following implications from their findings:

The SGA level serves as the administrative measure of work productivity. In conjunction with the medical severity criteria, it controls eligibility for the program. Raising the SGA level would increase program costs by enlarging the size of the eligible population and by reducing the number of persons whose benefits could be terminated. The program-flow analysis suggests that the key to controlling program growth is in the allowance process and the eligibility criteria. (Emphasis added.)

Much less control over terminations is possible. Recovery for work is sharply limited by the original eligibility requirements—that is, severe and chronic illness that drastically affects earning capacity. Benefit terminations caused by recovery, either medical recovery or sustained employment above the SGA level, are minuscule compared with the number of beneficiaries coming on the rolls. There seems to be some room for improvement in the recovery rates of working beneficiaries. Any expectation of substantially reducing the program's size by means of work incentives, however, is placed in sobering perspective by the very low rate of benefit terminations for recovery among those who had sustained work while still beneficiaries.

It has been proposed that the SGA level be increased substantially for SSI, the needs-tested program, but not for title II disability insurance. The Social Security Administration has commented on some of the problems which this kind of proposal raises:

Because SGA is an integral part of the definition of disability in both social security and SSI statutes, substantial differences in the meaning of SGA between the two programs obviously would create a multitude of problems.

The public's understanding of SGA would be seriously affected if there were substantial differences in SGA between the social security and SSI programs. This would be particularly true where a person files claims for both benefits simultaneously and is found disabled under one program but not under the other.

(Hearing before the Subcommittee on Public Assistance of the Committee on Finance on H.R. 10848 and H.R. 12972 “Supplemental Security Income Disability Program,” September 1978, p. 82.)

D. Medical Criteria Used in Determining Disability

Ever since the beginning of the disability insurance program in 1955, the Social Security Administration has had a list of medical impairments with sets of signs, symptoms and laboratory findings which, if present in a person applying for disability benefits, are sufficient to justify a finding that he or she is disabled, unless there is evidence to the contrary. These criteria are known as the listing of impairments.

The listing includes medical conditions frequently found in people who file for disability benefits. It describes, for each of the 13 major body systems, impairments that are severe enough to prevent a person from engaging in substantial gainful activity and which may be expected to result in death or which have lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.

Effective March 27, 1979, the Social Security Administration issued new regulations updating the earlier listing which had been issued in 1968 and had in recent years been criticized as in serious need of review. Since 1968 the only new medical regulations issued by SSA were those needed to implement the childhood disability provisions of the SSI program. These were effective in March 1977.

Some of the criticisms that had been leveled at the 1968 listing, and specifically pointed out by the General Accounting Office in reports in August 1976 and August 1978, included a lack of specificity, and a failure to take into consideration advances in medical technology. The GAO also commented that State agency officials complained that the listings were sometimes too time consuming or costly to implement. For example, certain criteria required laboratory tests which were no longer commonly used in the medical community or which required equipment which was not readily available.

The Social Security Administration spent several years updating the medical listing. In publishing the new listing in the Federal Register, SSA maintained that the revisions reflected advances in the medical treatment of some conditions and in the methods of evaluating certain impairments. Although it is still too early for the new listing to be evaluated, State agencies appear generally to believe that the updating will result in better and more reasonable findings, insofar as they will reflect—at least for a period of time—a more current state of medical diagnostic practices.

The table which follows indicates the general nature of the body systems which are covered by the medical listing. Interestingly, table 3 would also seem to show that there are rather significant differences in the basis for awards between the title II and title XVI programs. More than 30 percent of the awards to title II disabled workers in 1975 (the latest year for which comparable data are available) were made on the basis of diseases of the circulatory system (heart). Only about 21 percent of SSI adults were awarded benefits on this basis. For SSI adults, by far the largest category of awards was on the basis of mental disorders—nearly 31 percent, compared with 11 percent under title II. Table 3 also shows a significantly larger percentage of title II benefits awarded on the basis of diseases of the musculoskeletal system—about 19 percent under title II as compared with about 13 percent under title XVI.

III. The Disability Determination Process

A. General Description

The disability claims process is long and complex, if pursued through each possible level of appeal. It is identical for applicants of both title II and title XVI. Briefly, an applicant files his claim at a local social security office. The information taken at the social security office is sent on to a State disability agency, which determines on the basis of this and any new evidence it may require, whether the person meets the definition of disability. If the claim is denied, it is reconsidered by the State agency, upon request of the claimant. A claim which is denied at the reconsideration level may, upon appeal, receive a hearing by an administrative law judge. There is an additional level of administrative appeal to the Social Security Administration’s Appeals Council. And, finally, if still dissatisfied a claimant may appeal the decision in a Federal district court. Thus, the question of whether an individual meets the definition of disability may go through five different steps, including four levels of appeal.

Other title II and title XVI claims (Old Age and Survivors Insurance and SSI claims on the basis of age) follow the same steps, excluding, of course, the State agency determination of disability. However, most claims that proceed through the appeals system involve the issue of disability. Therefore, whenever the claims and appeals process is criticized on the basis of quality of decisions, complexity of system, and length of process, it is ordinarily a disability case that is involved.

In recent years, of course, the system has had to handle a vastly larger caseload than was the case in the early years of the program. In 1962, for example, there were about 440,000 title II disabled worker applications received in social security district offices. In 1978, there were about 1.2 million title II cases, and more than 1 million title XVI disability and blindness applications. It is easy to understand that the system may have had difficulty in adjusting to a change of this magnitude.

The following description provides in somewhat greater detail how the process now works, the problems that have developed, and some recommendations for change.

1 Includes all title II disability decisions—disabled worker, disabled widow(er)s, and adults disabled in childhood.

2 Includes all denials, made both by Social Security district offices and State disability agencies. 285,000 of these denials are technical denials (involving primarily lack of insured status) and do not require a determination of disability by a State agency.

3 Includes 1,260 remands and 340 court allowances.

4 Includes remands from Federal courts.

B. THE ROLE OF THE DISTRICT OFFICE

If an individual wants to file a claim for disability under either the title II or title XVI program he must apply at his local social security district office. There are more than 1,300 district offices (including branch offices) throughout the United States, and they handle more than 6 million claims for benefits under the old-age, survivors and disability insurance and the supplemental security income programs each year. Overall, about 35 percent of the applications are filed by persons who claim to be disabled.

The manager of a district office has considerable latitude about how to organize the operations of his staff. Recently, however, SSA has required offices, unless they are too small to make this feasible, to develop specialists among their claims representatives to become expert in either the title II or title XVI program. In general, it is envisaged that persons applying for both programs would go first to a title II claims specialist, who would develop the information needed to process a title II claim, including the individual's insured status. If it appeared that the individual was also eligible for title XVI, he would be sent on next to a title XVI specialist, who would develop the income and resources information necessary to substantiate a title XVI application. In such cases, the information related to the disability aspects of the case would be taken by the title II specialist.

If the case were clearly identified as a title XVI case, it would be referred first to a title XVI claims specialist, who would develop both the income and resources information and the disability-related information needed to process the case.

The Social Security Administration does not intend that there be specialists designated to handle disability cases, although it is clear that in some offices, especially larger offices, there will be incentives to encourage individual claims representatives to specialize on an informal basis. Disability cases are generally significantly more complex than other cases, and it requires both skill and patience to conduct a disability interview sufficiently thorough to obtain the kinds of information necessary to develop the case. Because of the skill required, there have been recommendations by some that specialization of personnel within the district office should include specialization in disability. The Social Security Administration has not concurred with this proposal.

During the interview, it is the responsibility of the claims representative to obtain relevant medical and work history from the applicant and to see that the required forms are completed. The way in which this responsibility is handled varies from office to office, and with the circumstances of the individual. In some offices where it is believed that most applicants are capable of filling in the forms themselves, the claims representative may play a relatively passive role of reviewing briefly the form after it is completed. In other offices, the process involves a lengthy interview. In any case, the quality and completeness of the information that is obtained is extremely important in the further processing of the case. On the basis of the interview, the claims representative may determine that the individual is engaging in substantial gainful activity, in which case the individual will be denied without having his case considered further.
C. THE ROLE OF THE STATE AGENCY

1. THE FEDERAL-STATE RELATIONSHIP

Although both the DI and SSI programs are considered Federal programs and their benefits are financed at the Federal level, the crucial benefit eligibility decision is made not by a Federal agency, but by 54 State agencies. These State agencies operate under contract with the Social Security Administration, an arrangement which goes back to the original disability insurance amendments, the disability “freeze” amendments of 1954.

The Congress decided that the determination of eligibility for the disability freeze could most logically be performed by State vocational rehabilitation agencies, which would facilitate and insure referral of disabled individuals for vocational rehabilitation services. The relationship provided in the law was a contractual one, with State agencies being reimbursed for their administrative expenditures from the disability insurance trust fund.

When the legislation was amended in 1956 to authorize payment of disability benefits, the same Federal-State arrangement was maintained. At the same time the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare was given the authority to reverse the State agencies’ determinations that workers were qualified for benefits, in order to protect the trust fund from excessive costs and to promote more uniform decisions throughout the country. The Secretary was not authorized by the statute to allow claims which the State agency denied or to broaden State agency allowances (e.g., by finding an earlier date of first eligibility).

This Federal-State arrangement is unique among government programs, and differs from Federal-State grant-in-aid programs in that there is no need for specific State implementing legislation. However, State laws and practices control most aspects of administration, and the personnel involved are State employees who are controlled by various departments of the State government. The State agencies make determinations of disability on the basis of standards and regulations provided by the Social Security Administration. The costs of making the determinations and other aspects of related operations are paid wholly from the disability trust fund in the case of the disability insurance program, and from general revenues in the case of the supplemental security income program. No State funds are involved.

According to HEW statistics, an estimated 9,571 non-Federal man-years were expended by State agencies in fiscal year 1979. About 2.3 million claims were processed, at an overall cost of about $308 million. The major component of the cost was, of course, payroll costs, amounting to about $165 million. Purchase of medical evidence in the form of consultative examinations cost the Federal Government an estimated $84 million.

The question of the viability of the Federal-State contractual arrangement has been raised numerous times throughout the history of the program by various individuals and organizations that have studied the disability program. In an early study of the program, the Harrison Subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee heard conflicting testimony on whether the use of State vocational rehabilitation agencies in making the basic disability determination should be continued or whether an alternative arrangement should be established.

In 1975 the Social Security Subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee conducted a survey of State disability determination services, posing the question of whether the agencies believed the original reasons for maintaining the relationship with State vocational rehabilitation agencies were still valid. The responses showed that 24 State agencies believed that the original reasons for having the State agencies under the vocational rehabilitation agencies were no longer valid, and 23 believed that they were still valid.

In the 1978 report the GAO stated:

Under the existing Federal/State arrangement, the Social Security Administration cannot exercise direct managerial control of the activities of the State agencies. This circumstance, together with Social Security's failure to correct other weaknesses in the disability determination process, provides no assurance that a reasonable degree of uniformity and efficiency will be achieved in these ever-growing, very expensive programs.

The report points out that in the years 1967 to 1976, only 20,000 workers were reported as rehabilitated and terminated from the disability insurance rolls. During this time the disabled workers on the rolls increased by 1 million.

The report concludes that because very few beneficiaries have been rehabilitated and removed from the rolls as a result of efforts by State vocational rehabilitation agencies, the original reason for having the Federal-State relationship is no longer completely valid.

The GAO states in the 1978 report that it believes the present Federal-State relationship is an impediment to improving the administration of the programs because of (1) unanswered questions about the effectiveness and efficiency in the Federal-State relationship that have existed for almost 20 years; (2) questionable need for the process to be closely aligned with the State vocational rehabilitation activities; (3) inability of the principals to remedy contractual defects, such as clearly defining their responsibilities; and (4) need for the Social Security Administration to have more effective management and control over the disability programs.

The final conclusion of the GAO report is that "the Secretary of HEW should develop, for consideration by the Congress, a plan for strengthening the disability determination process by bringing it under complete Federal management so that the Social Security Administration can achieve the control needed to properly manage the disability programs."
In July 1977, prior to the issuance of the second GAO report, the Social Security Administration developed and submitted to the States a new contractual agreement which it hoped would strengthen the administrative role of the Social Security Administration and result in improved and more uniform State operations. At this time 21 States have signed the new agreement, with the others continuing to express concern about the increased Federal control which is part of the new agreement.

Some of the general areas of concern of the non-signing States include provisions which require the Secretary to issue standards and requirements for conformity, provide the Secretary with the right to access to State agency premises, give the Secretary the authority to establish position descriptions and be consulted about personnel standards, and require the Secretary's approval of the State agency facilities, location of offices, and organizational structure.

Thus, at the present time, the disability program is operating under two different State agreements. In addition, the States now have the power to terminate their agreements with the Social Security Administration, which holds out the possibility that the Federal Government—SSA—could find itself in the position of having to establish a new Federal organization to serve the disabled population should a State decide to withdraw from its contract. One State, Wisconsin, filed and then withdrew a termination notice last year.

One response to this situation is to propose that the disability determination process be completely federalized, with the Social Security Administration acting as the administering agency. As noted above, this was advocated in a 1978 report by the GAO. However, there is little consensus on this approach at the present time. Proponents of federalization argue that it would result in additional flexibility in allocation of resources and would have the effect of providing greater uniformity in the treatment of disability applications and in all other aspects of the program. On the other hand, critics of this approach point out that such a move would require adding substantially to the number of Federal employees (there are now about 9,500 State agency employees), at a time when there are significant pressures to contain the Federal bureaucracy. They also argue that there could be considerable disruption in claims processing, experienced personnel could be lost in the process, and costs of administration could ultimately be increased. Even with Federal administration, it is argued, there could still be significant variations if there were not an emphasis on greater specificity of rules and in the application of the rules.

The Ways and Means Committee Report on H.R. 3236, the proposed Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979, discusses the need for an alternative to the present Federal-State arrangement. The report states:

In the last several years, GAO and others have criticized the lack of uniformity and the quality of disability decisions made by the various State agencies. It must be recognized that, while the Federal-State determination system generally works reasonably well (many State agencies do an excellent job), significant improvements in Federal management and control over State performance are necessary to ensure uniform treatment of all claimants and to improve the quality of decision making under the Nation's largest Federal disability program.

As is described more fully in the section dealing with current legislative proposals, the Ways and Means bill, following the recommendation of the Administration, provides for the elimination of the current system of negotiated agreements between the Federal Government and the States. The bill would give the Secretary the authority to establish through regulations the procedures and performance standards for the State disability determination programs. The regulations might specify, for example, administrative structure, the physical location of and relationship among agency staff units, performance criteria, fiscal control procedures, and other rules applicable to State agencies which would be designed to assure equity and uniformity in State agency disability determinations.

As the report describes, States would have the option of administering the program in compliance with these standards or of turning over administration to the Federal Government. States that decide to administer the program must comply with standards set by the Secretary, subject to termination by the Secretary if the State substantially fails to comply with the regulations and written guidelines.

The report concludes:

Your committee believes that this new Federal administrative authority will both improve the quality of determinations and ensure that claimants throughout the Nation will be judged under the same uniform standards and procedures, while preserving the basic Federal-State structure.

2. FUNCTIONS OF THE STATE AGENCY

The role played by the State agencies in the disability determination process can be broken down into three very basic functions. Using criteria established by the Social Security Administration, (1) they make the initial determination as to whether an individual is disabled, (2) they reconsider initial decisions if the claimant believes he has been wrongfully denied, and (3) they conduct continuing disability investigations (CDI's) to determine whether individuals should remain on the disability rolls.

Initial Decisions.—The agency's initial decision as to whether an individual meets the criteria for disability is of crucial importance to the entire process. Although a significant percentage of those denied continue through the adjudication process by appeal, the vast majority of cases are determined at the initial decision level. This decision is made on the basis of a review of the individual's case file, which has been received from the district office. Ordinarily there is no personal interview with the applicant on the part of the State personnel who decide the claim. However, the agency frequently may contact the individual if further medical or vocational information is needed. If medical evidence is insufficient and can be obtained no other way, the agency may request that the individual undergo a consultative medical examination, which is paid for by the agency.

When all the evidence considered necessary to make a decision has been gathered, the case is determined by a State disability examiner, in consultation with a State agency physician and, if necessary, a vocational specialist. The decision in all cases must be signed by the physician, although it has been claimed by the General Accounting Office, among others, that this is sometimes a purely formal requirement, and that there is sometimes little physician involvement in the decision.

Once the decision has been made as to whether the individual is disabled, and if he has been determined to meet other requirements for eligibility (such as insured status for DI, or the income and assets test for SSI), a letter is sent to the claimant informing him whether he has been found eligible for benefits. The form letter now being sent to claimants has been criticized as being seriously inadequate, in that it does not include the basis for the disability decision. This, according to critics, results in confusing the claimant, and sometimes encouraging him to ask for a reconsideration of his case unnecessarily simply because he does not understand the basis for denial. Both the SSI and DI bills which have passed the House this year (H.R. 3464 and H.R. 3236) have for this reason included a requirement that decision notices include in each case a statement setting forth a citation and discussion of the pertinent law and regulation, a list of the evidence of record and summary of the evidence, and the Secretary's determination and the reasons upon which it is based. On the other hand, questions have been raised concerning the amount of additional paperwork and administrative cost such a change might involve.

Reconsiderations.—Under the law, if a claimant who has been denied requests reconsideration of his case within 60 days of notification, the State agency must undertake a reconsideration of his case. This is performed by a reviewer who was not involved in the initial decision. The individual's case record is open to corrections or additions, and may be supplemented or updated to reflect the applicant's current condition.

In recent years there appears to be a strong trend toward the sustaining by the State agency of its own initial decision. Whether this is due to some of the administrative improvements and more precise guidelines that have been issued to direct State agency procedures is difficult to say for sure. It seems at least reasonable to suspect that the more detailed medical evidence which is now required, and the heavier reliance on purchase of consultative examinations, may be resulting in greater confidence in the initial decision by those who are assigned to reconsider a case. The State agency reversal rate for title II disabled worker reconsiderations dropped from about 33 percent in calendar year 1975 to about 18 percent in the first quarter of 1979. For title XVI, the percent of reversals dropped from about 27 percent in the last quarter of calendar year 1975 to 16 percent in the first quarter of 1979. (See tables 4 and 5.)

Continuing Disability Determinations.—The State agency not only has the function of deciding who comes on the disability rolls. It must also make determinations as to whether individuals stay on the rolls.

There is, however, no requirement for periodic re-determination of disability for all or even a sizable proportion of persons who are receiving disability benefits. The Social Security Claims Manual instructs State agencies on certain kinds of cases that are to be selected for investigation of continuing entitlement to disability benefits by means of a medical examination diary procedure. The agencies are cautioned that most allowed cases involve chronic, static, or progressive impairments subject to little or no medical improvement. In others, even though some improvement may be expected, “the likelihood of finding objective medical evidence of ‘recovery’ has been shown by case experience to be so remote as not to justify establishing a medical reexamination diary.” In general, according to the claims manual, cases are to be “diaried” for medical reexamination only if the impairment is one of 13 specifically listed impairments. The diary categories include tuberculosis, functional psychotic disorders where onset occurred within the two preceding years, functional nonpsychotic disorders, active rheumatoid arthritis without deformity, cases in which corrective surgery is contemplated, obesity, fractures without severe functional loss or deformity, infections, peripheral neuropathies, sarcoidosis without severe organ damage, probability of progressive neoplastic disease but there is no definitive diagnosis, neoplastic disease which has been treated and incapacitating residuals exist but improvement of the residuals is probable, and epilepsy.

The high degree of selectivity used in selecting cases for medical reexamination is illustrated by the following statistics for title II. In 1977, there were about 2.7 million disabled workers in current pay status. The number of continuing disability investigations (CDIs) in that year for disabled workers was only about 165,000.
It is clear from the procedures followed and from program statistics that disabled individuals frequently remain on the disability rolls for extended periods without any reexamination of their medical condition. Unless there is a voluntary report of recovery or rehabilitation, or there is a report of work activity or earnings, an individual will generally continue indefinitely to receive benefits without any followup on his situation.

The Social Security Administration has recognized the issue raised by this failure to conduct reexaminations of persons who have been on the disability rolls for an extended period and is now conducting an ongoing sample study of DI and SSI disability cases which have never been subjected to a medical continuing disability investigation. The purposes of the study, according to SSA, are to gather information on changes that may be needed in the medical reexamination criteria and to determine the extent to which disability beneficiaries may be erroneously on the rolls.

The House-passed disability insurance bill, H.R. 3236, provides that unless the disability adjudicator in the State agency makes a finding that the individual is under a disability which is permanent, there will be a review of the status of disabled beneficiaries at least once every three years. According to the committee report, this review is not intended to supplant the existing reviews of eligibility that are already being conducted such as the current “dairy” procedures. The finding of whether a condition is permanent, however, is not now a requirement of the claims process; consequently, there is little evidence to indicate the degree of change which would be brought about by the 3-year reexamination requirement of the House-passed bill. The determination that a condition is permanent is subject to a wide range of interpretation. Thus the number of new continuing disability investigations that actually would be brought about by the procedure is open to question.

3. THE WORKLOAD OF THE STATE AGENCY

Since 1970, the cost of State agency program administration has increased manyfold, from $48.6 million in that year, to an estimated $311 million in 1979. These funds have supported the activities of State agency employees who numbered only 2,600 in 1970, reached a high of 10.3 million in 1974 (the first year of implementation of the Supplemental Security Income program), and are estimated at about 9,600 in 1979.

Why this extraordinary growth? As far as costs are concerned, of course, inflation is a factor. But there is no question that in past years the State agencies have also been required to handle a vastly expanded workload. Recent statistics indicate that this growth may be leveling off. In 1970, for example, there were only about 600,000 title II initial disabled worker claims that were either allowed or denied by the State agencies. This number climbed to about 1 million in 1975, declining to about 845,000 in 1978. Beginning in 1974, the State agencies also were required to make disability determinations under the title XVI program. In 1978 these also numbered close to 800,000, showing a decline from earlier years.
The number of reconsideration determinations made by the State agencies has also risen over this same period of time. In 1970 there were only 91,000 reconsideration decisions involving disabled workers under title II. This grew to 237,000 in 1977, but also shows a recent decline, to 211,000 in 1978. The number of title XVI reconsideration determinations has grown steadily since the first year of that program, reaching a peak of about 165,000 in 1978.

These figures do not, of course, give the entire picture. The State agencies have additional, although considerably smaller, workloads to handle with respect to cases involving widows and children. In the early 1970's there was also a heavy workload of Black Lung determinations.

Statistics indicate clearly that the emphasis on handling cases that were coming on the rolls was not matched by an emphasis on examination of individuals already on the rolls. Continuing disability investigations of disabled workers, for example, actually declined between 1970 and 1974, although there has been some increase since the 1974 low point. In 1970 there were 163,000 disabled worker CDI determinations. This dropped to 123,000 in 1974, and stood at 165,000 in 1977.

4. PROCESSING TIMES AND THE QUALITY OF DECISIONS

Statistics would seem to indicate that as the State agencies were confronted with the very heavy workload increase in the first half of the 1970's, and particularly after the implementation of the SSI program, their response was to speed up the processing of cases. There is no question that in the minds of many administrators at both the Federal (SSA) and State agency levels the priority was to be speed. Significant backlogs were accumulating at various places and various stages of the claims process, and it was considered important to expedite the process. As is discussed more fully in other parts of this report, many feel that the result was a decline in the quality of decisions which were being made.

For title II, mean processing time for initial applications in the State agencies dropped from 42 days in December 1973 to 36 days in December 1975. For title XVI, mean processing time decreased from 44 days in December 1974 to 40 days in December 1975.

In the case of both programs, however, there has been a recent increase in State agency mean processing time. Most observers attribute this increase to a tightening up of the disability determination process by the State agencies in response to direct and indirect pressures from the Social Security Administration. It is perceived that there is a renewed emphasis emanating from SSA to improve the quality of decisions and to lower error rates. Thus, for title II, the State agency mean processing time has increased from 36 days in December 1975, to 45 days in November 1978. For title XVI, the mean processing time increased from 40 to 57 days for those same periods of time.

(Processing time appears to have been consistently shorter in the State agencies for title II cases than for title XVI. One explanation that has been given for this is that title II cases often have more complete and readily accessible medical documentation. There is less need to purchase new medical examinations and await necessary medical evidence.)
This increase in recent periods does not mean that the Social Security Administration has de-emphasized the desirability of speedy processing. On the contrary, it has set continually stricter processing goals which it uses to measure State agency performance. The goal in November 1978 for mean processing time for title II cases was 36 days. Using that measure, only four States met the goal, although several more were quite close. Sixteen States met the median processing goal of 33 days.

It is important to remember that national processing figures hide the very great discrepancies that exist among the States. For example, in November 1978 the New York State agency took (as a mean) 70 days to process a title II claim, while the Florida agency took only 29 days. In that same month the District of Columbia took nearly 87 days to process a title XVI case, New York took 80 days, and Maine took 35 days.

1 Measures elapsed time from date of release to the DO through the date the disability decision is posted in the SSR.

Source: Social Security Administration.
Again using data for November 1978, it can be seen that nationally about 82 percent of title II cases were processed within 30 days, 74 percent within 60 days, and 92 percent within 90 days.

In addition to being criticized on the basis of processing times, State agencies have also been facing growing criticism in recent years for what many believe is inadequate quality in their decision-making. One of the major criticisms that has been made is that there is not uniformity of decisions and that different State agencies have been making decisions using different criteria. The assumption, thus, is that it is easier (or more difficult) to meet the disability definition depending on where you live.

As can be seen from the table that follows, State allowance rates vary substantially. In fiscal year 1978 initial disabled worker allowances ranged from 53.1 percent in New Jersey to 22.2 percent in Alabama.

Source: Social Security Administration.
In this connection, it should be recalled that until 1972 the Social Security Administration reviewed a majority of State allowances before they were actually made, thus providing preadjudicative review in most cases. As the result of pressures to reduce costs and staff levels, as well as to meet the pressures of a growing workload, SSA moved to a sample review procedure which involved only 5 percent of allowances. Moreover, these reviews have been made on a post-adjudicative basis, that is, after the claimant has already been awarded his disability benefit.

Faced with mounting criticism of the decisionmaking process and rapidly growing disability rolls, SSA has in the last few years been trying to strengthen its quality review system. The quality assurance program now places the primary burden for quality of decisions at the State agency level. States must review a sample of their case-loads on an on-going basis, and the percentage of cases to be reviewed by them is set by the Social Security Administration. This “first-tier” review is supplemented by Federal “second-tier” and “third-tier” reviews which are aimed at producing a sample review system for both titles II and XVI that will produce greater uniformity of decision-making nationwide.
As part of the quality review process, SSA has established a system which it calls special postadjudicative review (SPAR) for both title II and title XVI cases. Using a sample of cases, SPAR measures State agency decisions on the basis of three categories of deficiencies: (1) clear decisional error, a case in which a clear error, within a limited group of review situations, exists, and, without further development, the reviewer can say that the decision made was incontrovertibly wrong; (2) other decisional error, a case in which a significant decisional deficiency clearly supported by the evidence, exists outside the limited review situations constituting clear decisional errors; and (3) documentation deficiency, a case in which a deficiency in medical documentation inhibits or prevents review of the decision.

While the new review system represents an improvement in the review process, an argument can be made that some of the SPAR measurement and review procedures used by SSA are faulty and need to be improved and that there are important kinds of errors that may not be recorded in the review system. One concern is that the small postadjudicative sample review system now in use may not result in the high degree of uniformity of decisionmaking that should be maintained in a national program.

The following table shows that, using the limited SPAR measurement system, State agencies do, indeed, appear to vary significantly in their ability to meet SSA-established error rate goals. The table provides cumulative SPAR accuracy rates for the 12-month period October 1977—September 1978, by rank of State for title II only. (SSA has set 90 percent as par).

See footnotes at end of table, p. 43.
There has been growing pressure on SSA to move again toward increased Federal review of cases on a preadjudicative basis. The House-passed bill, H.R. 3236, provides for what amounts to a gradual return to prior practice, requiring SSA to phase in a preadjudicative review system for title II cases equaling 15 percent in 1980, 35 percent in 1981, and 65 percent in 1982 and years thereafter. (H.R. 3464, the House-passed bill relating to SSI disability, does not include any similar review provision for SSI cases.)

Although increased Federal review may increase processing time as well as require a significant increase in Federal manpower, it is argued that the procedure will improve the quality and uniformity of decision-making and will also result in substantial long-term savings to the trust fund. SSA estimates that in 1984 the House provision will add $17 million in administrative costs, decrease benefit payments by $198 million, for a net savings of $181 million (—.06 of payroll in long-range estimates).

In material submitted to the House Subcommittee on Social Security this last spring, it was stated by SSA that it intended to begin a 70 percent preadjudicative review in 1981, although it also indicated that this percentage might be modified based on experience. (In October 9, 1979, testimony before the Committee on Finance, the Commissioner of Social Security recommended a modification to Title II under which increased Federal review would be phased-in over a 5-year period, reaching a 65-percent level in 1985.

D. DISABILITY HEARINGS

1. DESCRIPTION OF THE HEARING PROCESS

If an individual is dissatisfied with the reconsidered determination that has been made by the State agency, he may request a hearing. The request must be filed within 60 days of receipt of notice of the reconsideration determination.

The Office of Hearings and Appeals (OHA)—formerly known as the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals—within the Social Security Administration is responsible for holding disability hearings. Hearings are held by an administrative law judge who is assigned by OHA to handle the case. There are now approximately 650 ALJ's handling Title II and XVI cases throughout the country. The hearing is generally a claimant's first face-to-face meeting with the individual who is deciding his claim. State agency decisions, as indicated earlier, are ordinarily made on the basis only of what is in the claimant's file. At a hearing, however, the individual may present his own case in person, or he may have someone to represent him. The procedure is nonadversarial, and the judge is free to take new evidence, and to call upon expert witnesses concerning the claimant's medical condition and his vocational capabilities.

The hearings held by the administrative law judges are subject to the Administrative Procedure Act of 1946. The Social Security Act with its provisions for hearings predates the APA. It has been argued in the past that social security hearings should be exempt from the APA. However, the Supreme Court commented in the 1971 case of Richardson v. Perales:

We need not decide whether the APA has general application to social security disability claims, for the social security administrative procedure does not vary from that prescribed by the APA. Indeed, the latter is modeled upon the Social Security Act.

The staff of the House Social Security Subcommittee, in a committee print entitled "Background Material on Social Security Hearings and Appeals," published September 17, 1975, noted:

Encouraged by the Supreme Court decision to avoid taking a position on whether the APA applies and other Supreme Court decisions in recent years which have given more weight to administrative ramifications of hearing requirements, some commentators have stated that the APA should not be applied to social security cases. These recent Supreme Court cases are somewhat at odds with earlier cases such as Wong Yang Sung. In that case Justice Jackson refused to accord weight to the argument that an APA hearing would cause the Government inconvenience and added expense, stating "of course it will, as it will to nearly every agency to which it is applied. But the power of the purse belongs to Congress which has determined that the price for greater fairness is not too high.\textsuperscript{5} \textit{Wong Yang Sung v. McGrath} (1950) 339 U.S. 33.

Others, who are not so certain that their position can be sustained on legal grounds, believe that wise public policy may call for the exemption of the growing number of social welfare cases from APA coverage. Opposed to this view are those who believe APA hearing safeguards are as necessary for adjudication of individual program rights as they are for corporations affected by regulatory agency action. (pp. 3 and 4.)

What does APA coverage mean and how does it affect the right to and nature of the hearing? The Social Security Subcommittee report points out that there is a large body of case law seeking to answer these questions. The Supreme Court has held in a series of cases that the due process clause of the Constitution protects an individual from final denial of a substantial benefit without opportunity for a hearing. (\textit{Flemming v. Nestor}, 1960; \textit{Goldberg v. Kelly}, 1960). Moreover, these cases and others have spelled out the procedural components of the hearings which must be present to meet due process requirements, including adequate notice, access to evidence, right to cross examination, and right to counsel and written finding and reasons for decision. Due process also requires that the person who takes evidence and makes the decision be impartial, that the trier of fact may not be prosecutor in the same matter, and that he may not have been involved in the matter previously as an agency staff person. These also are requirements of the APA. But the APA goes beyond this. It is in the area of the qualification of the hearing officer and his relationship to the agency adjudicating the claim that the APA imposes requirements which are unique.

Currently, an ALJ must have seven years of "qualifying experience," must consent to having confidential questionnaires sent to employers, supervisors, law partners, judges, co-counsel and opposing counsel in cases in which he has participated; must demonstrate writing ability by preparing a sample opinion, and must participate in an oral interview by a board composed of an official of the Civil Service Commission, a practicing attorney from the American Bar Association and an ALJ.

The APA was designed to insure the independence of the ALJ from the agency in which he operates by placing his pay, promotion, and tenure under the Civil Service Commission, rather than under the agency whose cases he decides.

2. HEARING ISSUES

For a number of years there have been serious complaints about the social security hearing process, primarily because of its slowness. More recently, there have also been complaints about the quality of decision-making.

The hearings workload has increased considerably since 1970. In that year, only about 43,000 hearing requests were received. Black Lung cases, as well as growing social security disability cases, swelled this number to about 104,000 by 1972. In 1977 there were about 194,000 requests, and in 1978, about 196,000. The number grew to nearly 207,000 in the first three quarters of fiscal year 1979. As can be seen in the following table, the number of cases processed has increased steadily. The number of cases pending at the end of the year also generally showed increases over the time period, until fiscal year 1978, when the ALJ backlog of pending cases decreased significantly. Data for the first three quarters of fiscal year 1979, however, indicate that the number of pending cases is resuming its upward climb, reflecting the upsurge in the number of hearing requests. (According to the Office of Hearings and Appeals, ALJ productivity has remained steady in recent months, with an average of 27 case dispositions per month.)

Processing time for hearings does appear to have been improving in recent years. In material submitted to the House Social Security Subcommittee in hearings in February and March, 1979, SSA stated: "Within the limits of available resources to accommodate climbing caseloads, the Social Security Administration had to take vigorous steps to reduce the backlog of pending cases and to shorten overall processing time. Increasing emphasis was inevitably placed on ALJ productivity. This emphasis has dramatically improved the timeliness of the hearings and appeals process by: Cutting the processing time for an appeal in half, from an average of 316 days in 1975 to a current average of 157 days; reducing the average ALJ work backlog from a high of 12.7 months in 1974 to 4 months today." (p. 241.)

The reference above to increased emphasis on ALJ productivity raises a serious issue in itself. The Bureau of Hearings and Appeals undertook a number of efforts to "increase ALJ productivity," many of which proved to be highly controversial with the ALJs themselves. Such moves as establishing case processing goals and trying to influence staffing patterns in individual ALJ operations prompted charges-by many of the judges that their independence was being undermined and that such moves would or could affect adversely the quality of their decisions.

The ALJ decision-making process still remains highly individualized. The ALJs develop and decide cases in very different ways. They differ markedly in the way they use support staff. Some ALJs write their own decisions, while some delegate this function to a hearing assistant, or others to a staff attorney. Some ALJs play a major role in developing cases while others rely on support staff to do this. Some rely heavily on the use of medical consultative examinations, while some make less use of this possible source of additional evidence. ALJs also vary in the way they make use of the expertise of vocational specialists.

Production rates for ALJs also vary considerably, as can be seen in the following table. About 14 percent of ALJs processed fewer than 250 cases a year in fiscal year 1978; 37 percent processed more than 350.

ALJs have frequently been criticized not only for their variations in productivity, but also for their variations in reversal rates. A person who requests a hearing may be assigned to what have been referred to as either "easy" or "hanging" judges. In the period January—March 1979, 33 percent of ALJs awarded claims to from zero to 46 percent of the disabled workers whose cases they decided, 46 percent of ALJs awarded claims to from 46 to 65 percent, and 21 percent of ALJs awarded claims to from 65 to 100 percent. Overall, the percentage of hearings that result in a reversal (an allowance of benefits) has been increasing. In fiscal year 1969 the title II disability reversal rate was 39 percent. It increased to 46 percent in 1973, and by 1978 had actually increased to more than half, or 52 percent of all cases. The SSI hearing reversal rate has increased from 42 percent in fiscal year 1975 to 47 percent in 1978. (See tables 12, 13, and 14.)

The cost of the hearing procedure to the individual in terms of time and energy expended may be very great. The cost to the system is also great, amounting to $597 for each case brought to a hearing in fiscal year 1978. There is reason, therefore, for considering ways in which this step of the adjudicatory process can be improved.

One alternative would be eliminating the ALJ hearing altogether, relying instead on a stronger decisionmaking and hearing structure at the earlier stages of determination. The Administration, although agreeing that the ALJ hearing should be maintained, has stated that it intends to study administrative changes which will result in a face-to-face meeting between the claimant and the individual who decides his case at the reconsideration level. This step, it is hoped, will contribute toward a lowering of the number of cases which are appealed to the ALJ level. The Administration has also indicated that it would like to use Social Security Administration personnel to present and defend the Government’s case in a hearing before an ALJ. This, according to the Administration, will ensure a better developed case and permit the ALJ to serve in a more purely judicial role. Critics of this approach cite its cost and the fact that if the Government is represented, then provision should be made in all cases for the claimant also to be provided with legal defense—with a considerable increase in costs.

The Social Security Administration has already conducted a study of using face-to-face interviews at the reconsideration level. The experiment began in 1975 and was called the Reconsideration Interview Study (RIS). It involved 16 State agencies and applied to about 30 percent of each State’s reconsideration cases.

In an April 1977 staff report, “Current Legislative Issues in the Social Security Disability Insurance Program,” prepared by David Koitz who at that time was with the Office of the HEW Assistant Secretary for Management and Budget, a number of questions are raised about this approach, and the question of possible increased costs is mentioned specifically (pp. 80–81).
The report states:

While on the surface, it may appear that the RIS procedure is a desirable improvement in handling contested decisions, it has some questionable features. The idea is to have the State agency make the reversal where it can so that the case does not have to go to a formal hearing. What we wind up with is better documentation of the case, but it is not clear as to whether or not we get a better decision. The disability examiner has been told to reverse the initial denial where he can—and if he cannot do it based on the documented evidence he has been given and telephone contacts he has made with the claimant, he is to bring the claimant in for a face-to-face discussion. The effect of the face-to-face interview is uncertain. Is the disability examiner really getting a better picture of the claimant's condition, or does he simply become more sympathetic with the claimant? Is he possibly intimidated by the confrontation? We do not know the answers.

What we do know, however, is that the RIS procedure results in a greater number of allowances—it costs more money. The study indicated that the overall allowance rate for the test group was 2 percent higher than the control group (in which normal reconsideration procedures were used). The following table shows what this means at each appellate level:

DI AND SSI ALLOWANCES

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Increases: DI and concurrent = 16,600 (+2 percent); SSI = 4,800 (+1.8 percent).

With benefit payments under the DI program now approaching $11 billion a year, if the RIS procedure were fully implemented, it would increase DI benefit costs by more than $200 million a year in today's dollars—more than $1 billion during its first 5 years. In the SSI program, today's cost would be about $60 million a year.

Given the potential costs and the fact that while the RIS procedure generally renders a quicker decision on contested cases, we are not sure what the effect is on the quality of the decisions that are made, it seems questionable that full implementation of the procedure would be a desirable next step.
Responding to criticisms of the slowness of decision making at this stage as well as at other stages of the process, and a growing number of Federal Court decisions mandating that an administrative decision be rendered within a specific time frame (frequently within a 90 day period) the House-passed bill includes a provision which requires the Secretary to submit to the Congress a report recommending the establishment of time limits on decisions on benefit claims. This report is to specifically recommend the maximum periods of time within which all administrative decisions should be made, taking into consideration both the need for expeditious processing of claims and the need for thorough consideration and accurate determinations of such claims. The report must deal with hearing decisions, as well as with initial, reconsideration and appeals council decisions.

There have also been other changes and recommendations for changes in the system. For example, it is suggested that a strong review system, and stronger training programs, could produce substantial improvements.

One study of the system, “The Social Security Administration Hearing System,” prepared by the Center for Administrative Justice, October 1977, observes:

Our general conclusion . . . is that the more dramatic proposals for reform of the system are inadvisable, either because they are not directed at real problems, because they would be on balance dysfunctional or because their effects are unknown. While the problems that have been identified by others do in various degrees infect the SSA system, we do not find the problems to be so overwhelming that an entirely new system is required. Moreover, we are convinced that significant reforms of which we suggest a substantial number, must be very carefully analyzed before they are implemented. There are very few reforms that will improve all dimensions of the process at once. Every change requires a tradeoff among relevant values.

E. ROLE OF THE APPEALS COUNCIL AND THE DISTRICT COURT

1. APPEALS COUNCIL

If an individual is still dissatisfied with the disposal of his case after a hearing before or dismissal by an administrative law judge, he may request a review of his case by the Appeals Council of the Office of Hearings and Appeals. As with the request for a hearing, the request for a review by the Appeals Council must be made within 60 days of receipt of notice of the hearing determination.

The Appeals Council has fourteen members who handle cases according to their assigned geographic areas of the country. As are the reviews before the administrative law judge at the hearing level stage, the Appeals Council review is “de novo”, whereunder any new evidence, not previously presented by the claimant, may be submitted for consideration along with the existing file. For the most part, these reviews are a “paper review” of the case, and thus do not involve a face-to-face presentation of the facts as is done at the hearing stage.
The existence of the Appeals Council is based on the following section of the Social Security Acts which states:

Sec. 221—

(c) The Secretary may on his own motion review a determination, made by a State agency pursuant to an agreement under this section, that an individual is under a disability (as defined in section 216(i) or 223(d)) and, as a result of such review, may determine that such individual is not under a disability (as so defined) or that such disability began on a day later than that determined by such agency, or that such disability ceased on a day earlier than that determined by such agency.

In the regulations, the function of the Appeals Council is further described as a review of the determination made at the hearing stage, either "on its [the Appeals Council] own motion or on request for review", where:

1. There appears to be an abuse of discretion by the presiding officer;
2. There is an error of law;
3. The presiding officer's action, findings, or conclusions are not supported by substantial evidence; or
4. There is a broad policy or procedural issue which may affect the general public interest.

Where new and material evidence is submitted with the request for review, the entire record will be evaluated and review will be granted where the Appeals Council finds that the presiding officer's action, findings, or conclusion is contrary to the weight of the evidence currently of record. CFR § 404.947(a).

Presently, the cases reviewed by the Appeals Council are predominantly ones in which the claimant is seeking a reversal. The "own motion" review process that had traditionally been a major function of the Council, whereby cases not brought to the Council by a claimant were also subject to review, was for the most part abandoned in 1975 because of the pressure of a mounting caseload within the Bureau.

At the time this decision to down-grade own motion review was made, considerable concern was expressed over the effect this change might have on the quality of the decisionmaking process. This concern remains today. At the present time there is a quality control system in effect for administrative law judges. However, it is regarded by many as not sufficiently effective to assure uniform quality of decisions at the ALJ level, or to serve as a reliable mechanism to correct errors. As noted earlier, the ALJ operation is a highly independent one, and the wide variance in reversal rates would tend to support the conclusion that greater review of this step in the process may be needed.

The staff of the House Social Security Subcommittee commented in its "Survey and Issue Paper on the Social Security Administrative Law Judges," printed in 1975 that "The staff is also concerned with the failure of the Appeals Council to review ALJ's and hearing examiner allowances of benefits for possible error even though it realizes that recent actions in effectuating unreviewed decisions have been done with the idea of reducing processing time. . . . The staff believes that the review of hearing officers decisions should be greatly expanded.

In concert with this recommendation, the Center for Administrative Justice concluded from its review (referred to earlier) that the own motion process should be reinstated. In its report the Center states:

* * * increased own-motion review of grants involves costs in the form of delay and uncertainty, even for claimants who are ultimately awarded benefits. Nevertheless, our conclusion is that these costs are worth bearing, at least in cases identified as likely to be error-prone. Moreover, if a class of cases in which benefits are granted by the ALJ can be identified as likely to have an unusually high incidence of errors, then the costs of own-motion review to the class of claimants who are subjected to delay and then granted benefits will be relatively modest because the class will be small.

A remand or reversal in an appealed case is also a clearly acceptable form of supervisory control over the ALJ (although some ALJs reject even this position). Memoranda or conferences with particular ALJs whose cases reveal problems may, however, be viewed as attempts to undermine the independence of the ALJ corps (pp. 119-120).

In his testimony before the Subcommittee on Social Security of the Committee on Ways and Means on March 9, 1979, Commissioner Ross announced that the Agency intended to establish a new Appeals Board which would encompass the own motion review function. He stated:

We will establish an SSA Review Board to review appeals by claimants, as the present Appeals Council does, and to review ALJ allowances on its own motion. It will ensure fair and consistent treatment for all claimants.

This new appeals body has not been formally announced in the Federal Register and the restoration of own motion review has not yet been put into effect.

With respect to own motion review, the Administration in its draft disability bill this year also proposed expanding the legislative authority of the Secretary to review denials as well as allowances.

In recent years the Appeals Council has adopted the practice that if additional evidence is required in a case, the Council will remand the case to the ALJ for receipt of additional evidence and rehearing. There has been growing consensus that it is desirable to remand cases back to the ALJs where the taking of additional evidence is required. In 1975 Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell testified at a Ways and Means Subcommittee hearing that SSA was considering "closing the record and having any Appeals Council review limited to the record established at the hearing; where the record was inadequate, the case would be remanded to the presiding officer."

The Administration's bill this year incorporated the proposal for closing the record at the ALJ level, thus eliminating the fourth de novo review at the Appeals Council level. The House bill also includes this provision.
Review of a case by the Appeals Council of the Office of Hearings and Appeals is the final recourse a claimant has within the administrative review process of the Social Security Administration if he is dissatisfied with the disposition of his case. However, increasingly reversal of the Agency's final decision is being pursued in a U.S. district court.

The number of appeals filed with Federal district courts has grown dramatically in the last decade. As is the situation of the workload of the Office of Hearings and Appeals, the vast majority of the court cases involve disability. Between 1955 and 1970, the number of disability appeals filed with Federal district courts totaled slightly under 10,000 cases for the entire period. Currently, there are approximately 15,000 DI and SSI-disability cases pending in the Federal court system. The following table shows the growth in the court case workload since 1970.

Excludes cases currently remanded back to SSA by the courts. Approximately 5% of the cases are not related to disability. While filings appear to have declined in 1978, the number of cases pending continues to rise in 1979.

The volume of these cases in the courts and the continued growth of the backlog of cases pending have prompted proposals for establishment of a Disability Court as well as other proposals which would constrict the existing role of the Federal courts. Former Chairman of the Subcommittee on Social Security of the Ways and Means Committee, James Burke, proposed establishment of a Disability Court that would largely follow the pattern of the Tax Court in structure. Others, however, would address the ever-increasing activity of the courts by further restricting the court's function.

The statutory base underpinning the scope of judicial review of determinations made by the Agency is found in section 205(g) of the Social Security Act:

The Court shall have power to enter, upon the pleadings, and transcript of the record, a judgment affirming, modifying, or reversing the decision of the Secretary, with or without remanding the cause for a hearing. The findings of the Secretary as to any fact, if supported by substantial evidence, shall be conclusive, * * * (emphasis supplied)

In theory, the “substantial evidence rule” imposed on the courts contrasts the review at that level with those conducted within the administrative process of the Social Security Administration in which cases are reviewed “de novo.” Complaints have long been made by the Social Security Administration and others that the courts have frequently by-passed the substantial evidence rule by substituting their judgment of the facts for those of Agency adjudicators. In 1960, the Harrison Subcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee reviewed this complaint and took the following position in its report:

The jurisdiction of a court to review a determination of the Secretary is limited to a review of the record made before the Secretary. It is not a trial de novo but is limited to a consideration of the pleadings and the transcript of the proceedings at the hearing. The court has no power to hold a hearing and determine the merits of the claim because the statute makes it clear that the determination of claims is solely a function of the Secretary.

And as recently as 1977, the report of the Center for Administrative Justice raised concerns about the role of the Federal court, stating that in its review the Center could:

- find little, if any, contribution to accuracy and consistency resulting from judicial review. Judicially imposed requirements have certainly added to the administrative costs of the system. Nevertheless, we are dissuaded from a recommendation of outright abolition of judicial review because of the contribution that review makes to the political legitimation of the system (p. XXIV).

Short of abolishing judicial review, proposals have emerged to further restrict the role of the courts. The Administration's bill proposes, as part of its overall sets of reforms to the administrative process for disability, to limit judicial review in disability cases to questions of constitutionality and statutory interpretation. Commissioner Ross in his testimony on March 9, 1979 before the Subcommittee on Social Security of the Ways and Means Committee stated:

If decisions are the product of the careful adjudicatory process I have described, claimants will be adequately protected by being able to take questions of law to the courts. In a system producing hundreds of thousands of decisions a year, it is essential to place responsibility for accurate factual determinations at the administrative level. This change will also have the desirable side effect of substantially reducing a major burden on the Federal courts—currently approaching 10,000 new OASDI and SSI cases a year, with a backlog of approximately 14,500 disability-related claims.

In addition to concern about the growth of the courts' workloads and adherence to the substantial evidence rule, concern has been expressed about the Secretary's authority, on his own motion, to remand a case back to an ALJ prior to filing his answer in a court case.

Some critics, including the Harrison subcommittee in 1960, have suggested that such absolute discretion gave the Secretary potential authority to remand cases back so that they could be strengthened to sustain court scrutiny. Others have suggested that such a device also may have the tendency to lead to laxity in appeals council review in that it will give them another look at the case if the claimant decides to go to court.

Similarly, under existing law the court itself, on its own motion or on motion of the claimant, has discretionary authority "for good cause” to remand the case back to the ALJ. It would appear that, although many of these court remands are justified, some remands are undertaken because the judge disagrees with the outcome of the case even though he would have to sustain it under the “substantial evidence rule.” Moreover, the number of these court remands seems to be increasing.

The House-passed bill, H.R. 3236, would eliminate the provision in present law which requires that cases which have been appealed to the district court be remanded by the court to the Secretary upon motion by the Secretary. Instead, remand requested by the Secretary would be discretionary with the court, and only on motions of the Secretary where “good cause” was shown. The bill would continue the provision of present law which gives the court discretionory authority to remand cases to the Secretary, but adds the requirement that remand for the purpose of taking new evidence be limited to cases in which there is a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there was good cause for failure to incorporate it into the record in a prior proceeding.
IV. The Disability Benefit Formulas

Although the disability insurance program and the supplemental security income program share common definitions of disability and a common administrative structure, they utilize completely different methods of determining the amount of benefits payable. The disability insurance program is intended to be a wage-replacement system, and the benefit level for each individual is determined by applying a formula to the wages that he earned which were subject to social security taxes. The amount and source of other income available after disability is irrelevant to the determination of benefit amounts. (Earned income, however, may be relevant to the question of whether the individual continues to be disabled. Also, income in the form of workmen's compensation may cause a benefit reduction under a special provision intended to prevent duplication of benefits.)

The supplemental security income program provides benefits on an income guarantee basis under which the benefit payment is determined by subtracting the individual's other income from an income support amount which is established for all individuals in the same category. In practice, however, there are many different income support levels because of provisions for not counting certain types and amounts of income and differential rules for single individuals and couples and for different categories of recipients. These differences exist to some extent under the basic Federal program but to an even greater extent are present in the State supplementary programs.

A. SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME

As of July 1979, the SSI program provides a basic Federal income support level of $206.20 per month for a single individual and $312.30 per month for a couple. These are the Federal benefit amounts which would be payable to an individual or couple receiving SSI if that individual (or couple) had no other income. In many States, somewhat higher total amounts are payable because of the addition of a supplementary payment in an amount determined and financed by the State. States may (and many do) set varying supplemental levels for SSI recipients according to category (aged, blind, disabled), living arrangements (independent, boarding home, etc.) and geographic area. The income support levels as of October 1, 1979 for individuals and couples in independent living arrangements are shown in table 1 which appears earlier in this document.

When the SSI program was enacted in 1972, the basic Federal income support levels were set at $130 per month for a single individual and $195 for a couple. Subsequent legislation increased these amounts and provided for automatic increases tied to the Consumer Price Index under the same formula as applies to social security benefits. (The income support levels are raised each July by the percentage increase of the CPI for the January-March quarter of the year in question over the CPI for the January-March quarter of the preceeding year.) States are required to make corresponding increases in the State income support levels. However, since this requirement could result in an increase in State costs because of caseload growth associated with the higher levels, States are considered to be in compliance if they continue the aggregate level of State spending which was in effect prior to the increase in Federal benefits.

The income support level applicable to a given individual represents the payment which would be made to him if he had no other income. If the individual does have other income, the payment is reduced but not on a strict dollar-for-dollar basis. The first $20 per month of other income is simply not counted. Other income causes a dollar-for-dollar reduction if it is unearned income (such as social security or veterans compensation or rental income). Other income which results from the recipient's employment or self-employment ("earned income") is counted as follows: The first $65 per month of such income is not counted at all. Benefits are then reduced by 50 percent of earnings above the $20 and $65 flat "disregard" amounts.

The following example illustrates how the actual benefit is determined.

1 Hypothetical amount: actual State supplements vary widely from State to State.

In the example above, the SSI program in effect supports the income of the particular individual described at a level of $300.70 as compared with the $258.20 income support level for an individual with no other income. Even higher levels are possible up to the "breakeven" point which is the amount of income at which the benefit level is reduced exactly to zero. Breakeven points vary from individual to individual because of the differences which exist in the basic income support levels and because the reductions from the basic income support level vary according to the particular combination of earned and unearned income. In the case of an individual who would be eligible for $258.20 if he had no other income (as in the example above), the breakeven point (if all income was "earned" income) would be $601.40 or about $7,200 per year.

These provisions for determining benefit amount and counting or not counting other income are common to all three categories of SSI recipients: aged, blind, and disabled. Since eligibility for SSI disability requires a sufficiently severe disability to indicate inability to
Although the same general rules apply to determining benefits for disabled individuals and their dependents as to determining benefits for retired workers and their dependents, the application of these rules leads to somewhat different results. In general, benefit levels are apt to be higher for disabled workers because of the smaller number of years over which earnings must be averaged. This is particularly true for younger disabled workers for whom as few as two years may be used in determining the average earnings to which the benefit formula will be applied. For example, in the case of a worker who is disabled at age 29, the number of years used to determine his benefit is equal to the 7 years between the year in which he reached age 21 and the year in which he became disabled less the 5 drop-out years. His benefit is based on his earnings in those two years in which he had his highest earnings.

Because earnings levels in the economy tend to increase from year to year, the advantage to the younger disabled worker of having his earnings averaged over a very few high years is magnified since the older worker is forced to include years when earnings levels were lower. Prior to the 1977 amendments, this problem was particularly severe since earnings were averaged at their actual values. The 1977 amendments lessened but did not eliminate this advantage by providing for the indexing of earnings to compensate for the impact of changing wage levels in the economy. Younger workers continue to have a substantial advantage both because statutory increases in the amount of annual earnings subject to social security have been much greater in recent years than in earlier years and because individual wage patterns differ widely from average wage patterns. As a result, an individual whose benefits are based on the average of his earnings over his two, three, or four highest years of earnings is likely to have a significantly higher benefit than an older worker who must average his highest ten or twenty or more years of earnings.

The benefits payable to disabled workers cover a broad range from a minimum of $122 monthly to a maximum (for a worker who became disabled in 1978) of about $730. The average benefit for all disabled workers in June 1979 was $320 per month. The average total family payment for disabled workers with dependents was $639 per month.

The benefit amounts payable under the social security disability insurance program have increased very greatly over the past decade. In part, these increases simply reflect the percentage increases in social security benefit levels resulting from legislation and from the automatic cost-of-living increase provisions instituted by the 1972 amendments. Wage growth in the economy also contributes to increased benefits since social security benefit amounts are determined by applying the benefit formula to an individual's average wages under social security. As indicated above, the impact of wage growth over the past several years has tended to be reflected in disability benefit increases more than in retirement benefit increases. The rate of growth in disability benefits as compared to retirement benefits is shown in the table below.
While it is possible to draw a general conclusion that increased benefit levels appear to have contributed to the rapid growth of the program, there is no simple rule of thumb for determining the optimum benefit level which balances the desire for reasonable adequacy against the desire to maintain a reasonable incentive for continued employment or rehabilitation. Examination of this problem, however, has resulted in considerable analysis of the relationship between the initial benefit level and prior earnings on the theory that benefits should not replace so large a percentage of predisability earnings as to make the receipt of benefits from a financial standpoint nearly as desirable as, or even more desirable than the continuation of employment. Again there is no sure rule as to what level of benefits marks the dividing line above which the receipt of benefits becomes more attractive financially than continued employment. Clearly, this line falls somewhere below a level of 100 percent of prior earnings. However, the judgment of just how far below is complicated by several factors. Disability benefits are tax-free and are also free of various other costs an individual would probably incur in working. The availability of medicare for those who have been on the disability rolls for at least two years is also a factor in weighing the relative advantages of working or not working.

Another problem is the determination of an appropriate base against which to measure the concept of predisability earnings. The simplest and most frequently used base is the average indexed earnings on which benefits are based (a period of earnings consisting of from 2 years for the youngest disabled workers to 23 years for the oldest disabled workers).

However, other periods of earnings are sometimes used, such as the 5 or 10 year period immediately preceding the year in which the disabling condition occurred or, as another illustration, the highest 3 or highest 5 years of earnings within an earnings record. The choice of the period of earnings to be used to determine how much of an individual's previous earnings are replaced by disability benefits is significant because different indicators of earnings replacement will result from using different approaches of measuring predisability earnings.

The following table, which is based on a sample of approximately 10,000 DI awards made in 1976, shows the replacement rates resulting from those awards under two illustrative approaches of measuring replacement rates. The first approach encompasses the period of earnings used to compute average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) as the base to which benefits are compared. The second approach uses the highest-five years of indexed earnings during the 10-year period immediately preceding the onset of the disabling condition.

\(^1\) These awards include both individual and family benefits where applicable. The actual awards were made before a "decoupled" system was put into effect. However, the awards were recomputed for sample purposes as if a decoupled system existed to give some sense of the longer-range direction of DI replacement rates.

\(^2\) Represents replacement of gross earnings.

As table 16 shows, the average replacement rate of the awards in the sample is higher when the longer period of earnings, AIME, is used. Similarly, the percentage of awards with relatively high replacement rates is greater when AIME is used.

Nonetheless, both approaches to measuring replacement—i.e., either long or recent periods of a worker's earnings history—show that there are a substantial number of DI awards which by themselves result in replacement rates in excess of predisability earnings. Using 80 percent of gross predisability earnings as a proxy for predisability disposable earnings, approximately 23 percent of the awards in the sample were above that level using AIME as the base period for measurement, and approximately 10 percent of the awards in the sample were above that level using the high-5 years of indexed earnings during the 10-year period prior to the onset of disability as the base period for measurement. Approximately two-thirds of these cases involved the payment of dependents benefits in addition to those of the worker.

The following tables show the prevalence of high replacement rates; using as a measure of that situation, the payment of benefits representing replacement of 80 percent of AIME or of the high-5 years of indexed earnings in the 10-year period immediately prior to onset for DI awards to (1) individuals alone (disabled workers without families) and to (2) disabled workers with eligible dependents:

Note: The PIA should not be confused with the actual monthly benefit amount received by the worker and his family. In many instances, the actual monthly benefit amount is substantially higher. It is used here simply to show the incidence of high replacement rates within the relative scale of benefits.
As the preceding two tables show, high replacement rates for workers with no dependents tend to exist at the lower (and more heavily weighted) end of the benefits spectrum. For workers with dependents, the incidence of high replacement rates is more evenly spread among all benefit classes.

The SSA sample also shows that DI awards made to younger workers tend to result in higher replacement rates than those of older disabled workers, which reflects the effect of the shorter averaging period used to determine the younger workers' benefits. The following tables show the distribution of replacement rates by the ages of the disabled workers in the sample.

While it is difficult to measure the aggregate effect high earnings replacement has had in either attracting disabled workers who are still engaged in employment to apply for DI benefits, or in discouraging DI beneficiaries with the potential to return to productive employment from attempting to do so, the percentage of awards in the sample where earnings replacement is high is of significant enough concern if only brought up within the context of whether or not a program which has as its principal purpose the replacement of lost earnings should ever provide benefits which completely supplant predisability earnings.

In his report to the Committee on Ways and Means in 1976, John Miller, a consulting actuary to the committee, stated that:

- Disability income dollars are, in general, much more valuable and have much more purchasing power than earned dollars.
- The DI benefits are fully tax exempt, as are insured benefits except for employer provided benefits in excess of $100 per week. For a worker with a spouse and a child, paying an average state income tax, 50 percent of salary in the form of disability benefits may well equal 65 percent or more of gross earnings after tax. In addition, the disabled individual is relieved of many expenses incidental to employment such as travel, lunches, special clothing, union or professional dues and the like.
- It is a cause for deep concern that gross ratios of 0.600 or more apply to all young childless workers at median or lower salaries and to nearly all workers with a spouse and minor child for earnings up to the earnings base. In other words, all workers entitled to maximum family benefits are overinsured except older workers whose earnings approach the earnings base, middle-aged workers who earn not more than the earnings base, and young workers except those earning substantially more than the earnings base.
- Although these excessive replacement ratios have not been in effect long enough to have been fully reflected in the disability experience, overly liberal benefits may have played some part in the 47 percent increase, between 1968 and 1974, in the average rate of becoming disabled. Other than the indexing provisions, statutory changes during this period could have had no great effect. There is no evidence that the health of the nation has deteriorated. Rising unemployment has clearly been a factor, but the increasing attractiveness of the benefits must also be an important influence.

It is also important to note that it is not correct to assume that a typical disabled worker family is dependent entirely or almost entirely on social security benefits. The following table prepared by the Congressional Budget Office shows the various other sources of income of disabled beneficiaries with children:

The situation where social security DI benefits are the sole source of income to a disabled worker and his family may be the case in individual instances, but on the average disabled worker families tend to have other sources of income in significant amounts. Disabled workers in families with children derive on average only about 40 percent of their total cash income from social security benefits. The combined impact of high social security disability insurance replacement rates and substantial other sources of family income is to insulate disabled worker families, as a group, from any major reduction in income as a result of their disability. The following table shows an analysis of this result by the Congressional Budget Office indicating that very few worker families have more than a 10 percent reduction in disposable income as a result of disability.

Source: Estimates based on matched tape of CPS, social security records and longitudinal earnings records.
It should also be observed, however, from some of the previous tables that while DI benefits frequently result in relatively high replacement rates, there are numerous situations where the earnings replacement resulting from DI benefits is low. As the CBO analysis suggests, this does not mean necessarily that once the disabled worker joins the benefit rolls his income is cut substantially from what it was while he was working, but only that the DI benefit by itself frequently results in only modest replacement of a disabled worker's predisability earnings. Using AIME as the base against which earnings replacement is measured, 39 percent of the awards in the SSA sample resulted in replacement rates of less than 50 percent. Using the high-5 in the last 10, 56 percent of the awards resulted in replacement rates of less than 50 percent.

As might be expected, this situation was most prevalent in the higher benefit brackets. However, when using recent earnings as the base for measurement (i.e., high-5 in last 10) a substantial number of awards resulting in low replacement rates were shown to be in the lower benefit brackets. The following table shows the distribution of awards resulting in replacement rates of 50 percent or less by the PIA level of the workers involved.

V. Rehabilitation of the Disabled

A. Criteria for Selection for Vocational Rehabilitation

As noted earlier, the fact that State vocational rehabilitation agencies could provide access to the kinds of services the disabled would need in order to be rehabilitated was a basic consideration in Congress' decision that disability determinations should be conducted by units of the State vocational rehabilitation services. The 1965 social security amendments gave the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare the authority to use certain social security trust funds to reimburse State vocational rehabilitation agencies for the cost of services provided to disability insurance beneficiaries. The amendments required the Secretary of HEW to develop criteria for selecting individuals to receive rehabilitation services under the beneficiary rehabilitation program. The criteria were to be based on the savings which would accrue to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating the maximum number of individuals into productive activity. If the State rehabilitation agency certifies that a beneficiary meets these criteria, the cost of the rehabilitation services is borne by the trust funds.

The Department has developed four criteria for selecting beneficiaries to receive services financed from the trust fund. These are:

1. The disabling physical or mental impairment is not so rapidly progressive as to outrun the effect of vocational rehabilitation services or to preclude restoration of the beneficiary to productive activity.

2. The disability without the services planned is expected to remain at a level of severity resulting in the continuing payment of disability benefits.

3. A reasonable expectation exists that providing such services will result in restoring the individual to productive activity.

4. The predictable period of productive work is long enough that the benefits which would be saved and the contributions which would be paid to the trust funds from future earnings would offset the costs of planned services.

The title XVI legislation enacted in 1972 authorized the referral of blind and disabled recipients under the SSI program for rehabilitation services provided by State vocational rehabilitation programs. The legislation also authorized the use of general revenues to reimburse the State agencies for the cost of services provided to SSI recipients. Both the House and Senate reports on the SSI legislation state:

Many blind and disabled individuals want to work and, if the opportunity for rehabilitation for suitable work were available to them they could become self-supporting.

In developing the SSI-vocational rehabilitation program, the Department of HEW followed the pattern of the disability beneficiary rehabilitation program for title II beneficiaries. Regulations implementing the program state that its purpose is:

* * * to enable the maximum number of recipients to increase their employment capacity to the extent that full-time employment, part-time employment, or self-employment wherein the nature of the work activity performed, the earnings received, or both, or the capacity to engage in such employment or self-employment, can reasonably be expected to result in termination of eligibility for supplemental security income payments, or at least a substantial reduction of such payments * * *.

In keeping with this statement of purpose, the SSI program uses the same four criteria for selecting individuals to receive reimbursed services as are used for selecting individuals under the DI program. Beneficiaries under both programs who do not meet these criteria are, of course, eligible to be considered for services under the basic State vocational rehabilitation program.

B. Administration of the Program

After the 1965 amendments, the Department of HEW divided responsibility for managing the beneficiary rehabilitation program between the Social Security Administration and the Rehabilitation Services Administration (RSA). The 1966 program memorandum of responsibilities gives SSA the responsibility for developing basic program policies, overall program planning and evaluation, recommending legislative changes, and requesting the funds to operate the program. The Rehabilitation Services Administration is assigned the responsibility of providing direction and guidance to the State rehabilitation agencies, promulgating regulations, and developing funding requests. Both agencies are jointly responsible for establishing performance standards, reviewing program information, and making on-site reviews of State rehabilitation agencies. Responsibilities for the SSI-vocational rehabilitation program have generally followed the same lines as those agreed upon for the beneficiary rehabilitation program.

The General Accounting Office has criticized the two agencies for failing to coordinate their activities and thus provide for stronger program management. In its June 6, 1979 report, “Rehabilitating Blind and Disabled Supplemental Security Income Recipients: Federal Role Needs Assessing,” the GAO says:

Although RSA and SSA share responsibility for administering the SSI-VR program, the two agencies have not coordinated their management objectives and, as a result, have not developed an appropriate information system needed for successful program management. (p. 9)

C. Kind of Services Provided

After an individual is selected to receive services, the State vocational rehabilitation agency develops an individual plan which includes counseling, restoration, training and placement services necessary to attain the goal of the plan. The goal for DI and SSI beneficiaries is competitive employment. However, under the broader basic State rehabilitation program the goal may be homemaking, sheltered employment, or unpaid family work.

DI and SSI recipients are eligible for the same range of services available to other vocational rehabilitation clients.
The most frequent type of handicaps reported by DI beneficiaries who receive vocational rehabilitation services are orthopedic handicaps. Forty-five percent of DI clients report this type of handicap. Thirteen percent report mental illness, and 11 percent report visual impairment. SSI recipients who receive services report 25 percent orthopedic handicaps, 23 percent mental retardation, and 17 percent mental illness.

According to data in the fiscal year 1978 "Annual Report to the President and the Congress on Federal Activities Related to the Administration of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended," both DI and SSI clients require a longer period of rehabilitation than the average rehabilitation client. Both DI and SSI recipients are reported as requiring 19 to 24 months of rehabilitation services to meet their vocational objectives. This compares with 13 to 18 months required for the average rehabilitation client.

The annual report referred to above makes a number of other observations about DI and SSI beneficiaries. It observes that because DI beneficiaries generally have a recent work history and were employed prior to the onset of disability, they require on the average less training and maintenance services than do SSI recipients. Restorative services are used more frequently by DI beneficiaries than by SSI beneficiaries. The reason given for this is that DI beneficiaries generally suffer illness or injury a short time prior to being accepted for vocational rehabilitation services and thus are in greater need of the surgical and therapeutic services available in the vocational rehabilitation program. Because their handicaps often began during childhood, it is alleged, SSI recipients are more likely to have received restorative services prior to entry into the vocational rehabilitation program. SSI recipients generally require more training and more personal and vocational adjustment services than DI beneficiaries because they often do not have a history of work, and because a larger proportion are mentally retarded.

The 1978 report indicates that the average monthly earnings of all clients rehabilitated range from $320 to $390 at the time of rehabilitation closure. DI beneficiaries have earnings that are generally comparable to this average. This is not true for SSI recipients, who report lower earnings—$240 to $316 a month.

D. Program Effectiveness

In 1965 the Congress was assured by the Department of HEW that the money spent on rehabilitation services would result in savings to the disability insurance trust fund. The allocation of trust funds was based on an amount necessary to pay for the cost of vocational rehabilitation services, with a maximum not to exceed a fixed percentage of the prior year's total disability payments. The limit was originally set at 1 percent. Given reassurance in 1972 by the Department that the trust fund was in fact realizing savings due to the money being spent on rehabilitation, the Congress increased the authorization for use of trust fund money to 1.25 percent for fiscal year 1973 and to 1.5 percent for 1974 and years thereafter. The 1972 SSI legislation also authorized use of general revenues to fund rehabilitation services for SSI recipients.
Funding for both DI and SSI beneficiaries is set at 100 percent Federal funding. Under the basic vocational rehabilitation program, there is 80 percent Federal funding. States must make up the remainder.

In recent years the degree of the cost effectiveness of the vocational rehabilitation expenditures in behalf of disabled beneficiaries has been questioned. In 1970 the Department reported a savings of $1.60 for every $1 spent. In 1972 HEW issued a report to the Finance Committee which claimed that the program was saving $1.93 for every $1 spent. In June 1974 HEW reported savings of $2.50 for every $1 spent. However, a study done by SSA's Office of Research and Statistics raised some questions about the cost/benefit data that had been developed and about the effectiveness of the expenditures made. The report covered the period from 1967 to 1974. In summary, it showed that about 40 percent of the persons who were "rehabilitated" with trust fund money actually left the benefit rolls, and about 10 percent returned after relapses. It further showed that the benefit-cost ratio had consistently exceeded 1.00 during the first eight years of the program. However, the study raised some doubt about the program's most recent experience.

The growth in the number of rehabilitated beneficiaries in recent years, however, is not comparable with the growth in the amount available for reimbursement from the trust funds. Further, the actual number of disabled beneficiaries leaving the social security rolls because of more medical improvement or return to substantial gainful activity has not risen in recent years, in spite of the trust fund program and liberalization of the social security definition of disability to include more conditions likely to improve in time.

It also showed an apparent decline in benefit-cost ratios which began in 1970:

Similarly, a report by the GAO in 1976 criticized the way the earlier estimates submitted to the Congress by HEW had been developed, and maintained that its study showed a much lower cost-benefit ratio, with a saving of $1.15 for each $1 spent. The report states:

"GAO believes the savings HEW attributed to the program were considerably overstated; that the program was operating close to the break-even point, and that there could be a downward trend in the savings computation."

Elaborating on its criticism of the beneficiary rehabilitation program, the GAO commented further:

"Also, the program's resources have been directed, in part, toward serving temporarily disabled beneficiaries who did not meet eligibility criteria. These beneficiaries might have met the less stringent criteria of the basic State vocational rehabilitation program for which the Federal share of costs is 80 percent. As a result, some potentially eligible beneficiaries may not have had the opportunity to receive vocational rehabilitation services."

A more fundamental concern, however, than the size of the cost/benefit ratio is one raised in a 1976 Ways and Means staff document. It pointed out the relatively small number of DI disabled workers who had been terminated from the benefit roll in aggregate as the result of rehabilitation services. The report states:

"Although the amount of trust funds available for beneficiary rehabilitation has increased from about $15 million in 1967 to almost $100 million in 1976, the bottom line—terminations due to rehabilitation—has been disappointing. Cumulatively over these 9 years, only 20,000 disabled workers who have been rehabilitated have been terminated from the rolls. This was during a period of time when the number of disabled workers on the rolls was increasing from 1.5 to 2.5 million."

In its June 1979 report on the SSI vocational rehabilitation program the GAO also commented on the cost effectiveness of that program, showing even more negative findings than it had reported for DI in 1976. The 1979 report showed that in 13 of the 14 State rehabilitation agencies included in the GAO review, the Federal funds spent on the SSI—VR program for the first 2½ years "greatly exceeded the savings in SSI payments for the cases reported to SSA as rehabilitations during that period."

Statistics appearing in the 1978 "Annual Report on Federal Activities Related to the Administration of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended," referred to earlier, also raise questions about the effectiveness of the vocational rehabilitation program in bringing about benefit terminations in DI and SSI.

The following chart shows the numbers of DI and SSI recipients who were reported in various service categories during fiscal year 1978 (and whose services were funded under titles II and XVI). Because individuals may remain in one category for longer than 1 year, this presentation cannot be viewed as a progression of the same individual through the service system. For example, individuals are served for approximately 2 years, and at least 1 year must elapse from rehabilitation to termination. Persons may be terminated for a considerable period of time before re-entering the rolls as recidivists. However, the chart can provide an indication of the relative numbers of individuals who are progressing through the rehabilitation system and achieving economic independence.

1 "Served" refers to persons participating in a vocational rehabilitation program.
2 "Rehabilitated" means that the employment objective has been met and maintained for 2 months and that the rehabilitation file was closed.
3 "SGA rehabilitations" designates persons rehabilitated who achieved earnings at the time of rehabilitation equal to the level of "substantial gainful activity." This SGA level is the amount which disqualifies an individual from further benefits payments under DI and SSI. Currently, substantial gainful activity is determined to be earnings of $280 per month.
4 "Terminations" refers to persons who cease receiving DI and SSI benefits following rehabilitation.
5 "Recidivists" are the individuals who were terminated from the benefit rolls during fiscal year 1978 or before and then reentered benefit status during fiscal year 1978.
6 "Other" refers to rehabilitated persons who terminated benefits during fiscal year 1978 for reasons not related to rehabilitation. Such reasons might include death, retirement, or other reasons not related to medical recovery or earnings.

Although 10,182 DI beneficiaries were rehabilitated with earnings at the level of substantial gainful activity, only 62 percent of that number were terminated from the benefit rolls. This indicates that 38 percent of the beneficiaries who might have been expected to terminate benefits did not. Benefits are terminated 3 months after the end of the 9-month trial work period if substantial gainful activity is maintained. It appears, therefore, that many DI beneficiaries did not maintain earnings for a sufficient period of time to terminate benefits. During fiscal year 1978, the number of persons who reentered the benefit rolls due to employment failure was 11 percent of the number who terminated.

Only 19 percent of the number of SSI recipients who were rehabilitated at the level of substantial gainful activity successfully terminated benefits. In addition, the number of recidivists exceeded the number of SSI recipients terminated. (Some of the recidivists were terminated prior to fiscal year 1978 which accounts for the fact that recidivists exceeded terminations.)

E. REQUIREMENT TO ACCEPT REHABILITATION SERVICES

Both titles II and XVI include provisions that beneficiaries who refuse rehabilitation services without good cause shall have their benefits withheld. As the programs are operated, it is the responsibility of the rehabilitation agency to report a refusal of services to the appropriate social security district office for followup action. If the refusal persists, there is supposed to be a finding of whether there was "good cause" for refusal, a determination which is made by disability examiners in the regional offices.

This requirement has been enforced very infrequently. In its May 1976 report the GAO stated that it had been told by SSA officials that nationally only one beneficiary's benefits were being withheld at that time. In January 1977 SSA began a new computerized VR information system, one purpose of which was to identify title II and title XVI beneficiaries who refuse to cooperate with vocational rehabilitation.
Nationally in 1977 there were over 20,000 reports of refusal to cooperate made by VR to SSA. The majority of these involved a re-referral to VR following a district office interview with the claimant. As an example of how the requirement actually resulted in penalties, during 1977 80 individuals were found not to have "good cause" and their benefits were either put in suspense status (title XVI) or deduction status (title II).

F. PROGRAM OF SERVICES FOR CHILDREN

When the supplemental security income program was first enacted it included a provision requiring the Secretary of HEW to make provision for referral of all disabled individuals "to the appropriate State agency administering the State plan for vocational rehabilitation services approved under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act." The provision for vocational rehabilitation services was basically designed for adults who could be expected to enter or reenter the work force. Because of its general inappropriateness for disabled children, there was in the early years of the SSI program virtually no use of this provision for referral of children to services in any State.

The Congress amended the law in 1976 to provide for a 3-year special services program designed to meet the needs of children for referral to agencies where they could have access to services appropriate to their needs. In its justification of the new legislation, the Finance Committee stated in its report:

The committee believes that there are substantial arguments to support the establishment of a formal referral procedure. Many disabled children have conditions which can be improved through proper medical and rehabilitative services, especially if the conditions are treated early in life. The referral of children who have been determined to be disabled could thus be of very great immediate and long-term benefit to the children and families who receive appropriate services. In addition, the procedure could be expected to result in long-range savings for the SSI program, in that some children, at least, would have their conditions satisfactorily treated and would move off the disability rolls instead of receiving payments for their entire lifetime. The referral of disabled children by the Social Security Administration would also serve as a casefinding tool for community agencies serving disabled children and assist them in focusing their services in behalf of these children. Many communities have the capability to help disabled and handicapped children, but are not always able to identify those with the greatest need. (Rept. 94-1265, pp. 25-26)

As enacted, the law requires the referral by the Social Security Administration of children under age 16 to the State agency which administers the State crippled children's services program, or to another agency which the Governor determines is capable of administering the State plan in a more efficient and effective manner than the crippled children's agency.
State plans must be approved by the Secretary of HEW under regulations that (1) assure appropriate counseling for disabled children and their families, (2) provide for the establishment of an individual service plan for children and prompt referral to appropriate medical, education and social services, (3) provide for monitoring to assure adherence to each individual service plan, and (4) provide for disabled children age 6 and under and for children who have never attended public school and who require preparation to take advantage of public educational services of medical, social, developmental, and rehabilitative services in cases where such services reasonably promise to enhance the child's ability to benefit from subsequent education or training, or otherwise to enhance his opportunities for self-sufficiency or self-support as an adult.

State plans must provide for an identifiable unit within the administering agency to be responsible for the administration of the plan. Plans also have to provide for coordination with other agencies serving disabled children.

The law authorized $30 million for each of fiscal years 1977, 1978, and 1979. The funds are distributed on the basis of the proportion of children under age 7 in each State.

Final regulations for the services program were not published in the Federal Register until April 18, 1979. However, the program did get underway in most States prior to that time, operating under interim guidelines. At the present time, all except one State (Wisconsin) has had its plan approved by the Secretary. According to HEW, about $10 million was claimed by the States for use in this program in fiscal year 1978. About $20 million is expected to be spent in 1979.

Unless there is extending legislation, the program will terminate September 30, 1979. On September 27, 1979 the committee approved an amendment to H.R. 3434 providing for a 3-year extension of the program.

The following table shows the State allocation of funds for the program for fiscal year 1979.

VI. Financing Disability Insurance

A. History of Underfinancing

Underfinancing of disability insurance has been a phenomenon of the program almost since its inception. The 1961 and 1962 Board of Trustees of the social security programs reported a long-range actuarial deficiency for DI of 0.06 percent of taxable payroll. Although slightly beyond the acceptable margin of variation for long-range estimates, this level was considered at that time as being close to actuarial balance. However, in 1962 annual deficits began to appear. Expenditures exceeded revenues by $69 million in that year and rose to a difference of nearly $440 million in 1965. The 1963, 1964 and 1965 reports of the trustees showed a long-range deficit of 0.14 percent of taxable payroll. The 1964 report suggested that the DI Trust Fund would be exhausted by 1971. In all three reports—1963 through 1965—the trustees recommended that a higher allocation of the overall tax be given to the DI program.

Congress enacted a higher allocation to DI in 1965. While an annual deficit did not reappear in the program until 1975, the trustees continued to show long range actuarial shortfalls for the program in the intervening period. For instance, less than two years after the higher allocation had been enacted, the trustees in their report in February 1967 showed once again a long-range actuarial deficit of 0.15 percent of taxable payroll. Congress, again in 1967, provided a higher tax allocation to the program.

Since that time Congress has repeatedly addressed projections of higher costs of the program by increasing its tax allocation. A 1974 report of the staff of the Ways and Means Committee commented on this traditional approach to the financing shortfalls as follows:

In the past, actuarial deficiencies have been eliminated by increased allocation of payroll tax receipts to the disability insurance system. Higher allocations were effectuated in 1965, 1967, and, to a smaller degree, in the two social security bills which were enacted in 1972. The last such action was taken in Public Law 93–233 which was approved on December 31, 1973. The 1974 trustees' report suggests reallocation of income among the three trust funds (OASI, DI, and HI) as a possible solution to the short-range financing problems of the social security program. The staff recommends that no further action of this nature be taken—which, to some degree, avoids facing the problems in the disability insurance program—until the committee receives an adequate explanation of the adverse experience which is taking place in the system.

The long-range actuarial deficit of nearly 3 percent of payroll in the social security program announced in the trustees' report is a clear indication that the practice of increasing the allocation of funds to the disability insurance

B. Recent Trustees' Forecasts—1978 and 1979

The 1978 trustees' report issued just six months after enactment of the 1977 Amendments showed a substantial improvement in the long-range financial condition of the DI program. Although still projecting a long-range deficiency, the report showed an actuarial imbalance for DI of only 0.14 percent of taxable payroll in contrast to the imbalance of 0.38 percent of taxable payroll estimated in December, 1977.

The 1978 report states:

Large decreases in the estimated cost of the disability insurance program in both the medium-range and long-range were due to changes in assumptions regarding disability incidences and terminations. Both incidence and termination rates have been changed to reflect more recent experience. In addition, lower incidence rates are projected due to the decreased attractiveness of disability benefits, because of the generally lower benefits available under the new decoupled benefit calculation procedure.

The more recent experience referred to showed that DI awards had dropped off slightly in 1976 and 1977, from the high of nearly 600,000 awards to disabled-workers made in 1975, and that termination rates had increased. Nonetheless, recognizing the propensity of past trustees to underestimate the costs of the program, the 1978 trustees' report continued to forecast a substantial upward trend in the size of the program. The report states:

Although the disability award rate during 1977 remained level as compared with 1976, a generally upward trend in incidence rates, as experienced over the past decade, was assumed to continue. Age-sex specific incidence rates were assumed to increase over the period 1978–1979 to a level about 25 percent higher than that estimated for 1977, and to remain at that level thereafter.

The 1979 trustees' report issued in April 1979 once again showed improvement, under the report's central set of economic and demographic assumptions, in the long-range financial condition of the program over the prior year's forecast. For the first time since 1970, the trustees projected a long-range actuarial surplus for DI, amounting to 0.21 percent of taxable payroll. As did the 1978 forecast, the current report attributes the improvement in the long-range condition of the program to recent experience more favorable to the program. Awards to disabled workers dropped from a level of about 569,000 in 1977 to 457,000 in 1978.

However, while forecasting a considerably lower rate of growth, the trustees again were reluctant to project a long-term leveling off of the program. The report states:

Although disability awards declined by over 20 percent in 1978, age-sex specific incidence rates were assumed to increase over the period 1979–1988 to about 10 percent higher than the average for 1977–1978, and to remain constant thereafter. This represents a gradual return to 1976–1977 experience.
...this reduction in the incidence of disability was not anticipated and its causes are not very clear, so it is uncertain whether the trend will continue in the future. Thus, the higher DI trust fund levels projected in this report (as compared to last year's report) are contingent on the realization of the lower incidence rates assumed in this year's report.

Under these assumptions the DI benefit roll is projected to rise from a level of about 4.9 million beneficiaries in 1979 to 7.8 million in the year 2000.

C. UNFAVORABLE RECENT ECONOMIC FORECASTS

Reports of the trustees in recent years have made projections of the financial soundness of the social security programs using three different sets of economic and demographic assumptions. These assumptions, referred to as optimistic, intermediate and pessimistic, are intended to give a picture of the financial condition of the program under a range of potential circumstances which could arise in the future. Traditionally for purposes of a general discussion of the financial condition of the programs and for pricing proposed legislative and policy changes, the intermediate or, as they sometimes are referred to, the central set of assumptions are used.

While the current forecasts under the optimistic and central sets of assumptions show that both the OASI and DI programs are adequately financed in the short run, the pessimistic assumptions show that at least the OASI program could run into financial difficulty beginning as soon as 1983 or 1984. Reserves in the OASI trust fund would fall to an extremely low level by the end of 1983. DI reserves appear to be adequate even under these conditions. The trustees caution—that although a positive balance is projected for the OASI trust fund at the end of each year through 1983, under the pessimistic assumptions, the assets at the end of 1983 would not be large enough to cover the entire amount of benefits that are payable at the beginning of the following month. This kind of cash-flow problem becomes imminent if, at any time, the trust fund falls to less than about 9 percent of the following 12 months of disbursements. Under the pessimistic assumptions, the OASI trust fund would begin to experience cash-flow difficulties early in 1983. The cash-flow problems would arise because almost all of the benefits for a given month are payable, generally, on the third day of the following month, while contribution income is received more or less uniformly throughout the month, on a daily basis. For example, the benefits for December 1983—estimated to be about $12 1/2 billion under alternative III (the pessimistic assumption)—are payable on January 3, 1984, before any significant amount of income can be added to the fund's estimated assets of $8.3 billion on December 31, 1983 . . .

They point out further that a "severe or prolonged economic downturn" could lead to this pessimistic forecast for the program.

While the trustees' report is only a few months old, recent economic forecasts of the Administration, the Congressional Budget Committees, and a number of other forecasters indicate that the economy is not moving in line with the central set of trustees' report assumptions. Generally, these forecasts are now more pessimistic and indicate that a recession has begun coupled with a continuing high rate of inflation. For social security, this means higher than anticipated outgo, with increases in revenues which do not keep pace with the additional outgo.

1. Administration "midsession" forecast:

The Administration's recent economic forecast, which accompanied its "midsession" report to the Congress on the budget, indicates a higher rate of inflation and higher unemployment than reflected in both its January budget submittal and the trustees' report intermediate assumptions.

This forecast falls between the trustees' intermediate assumptions and the pessimistic ones, but closer to the pessimistic ones. OASI reserve balances fall to 10 percent of one year's outgo by 1984 under the midsession assumptions, as compared to 5 percent under the trustees' pessimistic assumptions.

Either level is considered to be too low for cash-flow purposes. Balances in the DI trust fund, on the other hand, are more than adequate under both economic scenarios.

2. CBO economic update and tentative House and Senate Budget Committee forecasts:

The Congressional Budget Office also prepared a midyear economic update for 1979 and 1980, indicating an even more pessimistic trend than the Administration's forecast, not only through 1980, but for a number of subsequent years as well.

In a July 31, 1979 letter to the committee, the director of CBO states that estimates prepared by CBO for the House and Senate Budget Committees show that under their respective assumptions, the balance in the OASI trust fund would fall between 5.4 percent of fiscal year 1984 outgo (House version) and 7.7 percent of fiscal year 1984 outgo (Senate version). Once again, both would represent precariously low OASI trust fund reserve levels. The DI trust fund would have fiscal year 1984 reserves in the range of 55 percent to 60 percent of outgo.
3. Cautionary notes by the Trustees and Director of CBO:

Because of the possibility that economic conditions might move in the direction of that pessimistic forecast, in their 1979 report the trustees recommended that—

... no reduction be made in the scheduled revenues of Old Age and Survivors Insurance and Disability Insurance trust funds without making provisions for offsetting reductions in expenditures or alternative financing arrangements,” and that “it might be advisable to examine the need for flexibility to reallocate funds between the two trust funds in the short term.

The Director of CBO similarly suggested that “steps may have to be taken to ensure the solvency of the OASI trust fund,” a number of which might alter the financing of DI.

The following four tables compare these adverse economic forecasts and show the impact they would have on the OASI and DI programs:

VII. Costs and Caseloads of the Disability Programs

A. DEVELOPMENT OF THE PROGRAMS

As Table 32 shows, the Nation's basic cash disability programs have changed dramatically in the last decade both in benefit cost and in caseload. As can be seen, there has been a major impact on administrative costs, and on the number of individuals employed by State disability agencies to make disability determinations. Costs of cash benefits grew from about $3.7 billion in 1970, to nearly $18 billion in 1979.

Nor do these figures tell the whole story. There are also major benefit expenditures for disabled persons under the medicare and medicaid programs. Since July 1, 1973, persons who are entitled to disability benefits under the Social Security Act for at least 24 consecutive months become eligible to apply for medicare part A (hospital insurance) benefits beginning with the 25th month of entitlement and also to enroll in the part B (supplementary medical insurance) program. According to estimates for fiscal year 1979, about 700,000 persons will receive reimbursed services under part A during the year at a cost of $2.4 billion. About 1.7 million persons will receive reimbursed services under part B at a cost of $1.4 billion. With respect to the medicaid program, for which most SSI recipients are automatically eligible, statistics for fiscal year 1976 show that about 2.7 million disabled recipients received $3.5 billion in benefits (about 25 percent of total medicaid payments).

¹ The SSI program began Jan. 1, 1974. Numbers for prior years represent the number of blind and disabled recipients under the former Federal-State programs of aid to the aged, blind, and disabled.

¹ Combined Federal and State expenditures for benefits paid to blind and disabled recipients under the former Federal-State programs of aid to the aged, blind, and disabled. Figures for fiscal year 1974 combine the expenditures under both programs.

1. DISABILITY INSURANCE

The disability insurance program has grown in caseload size and costs well beyond what was originally estimated. In part, the growth of the program reflects legislative changes which have expanded coverage and benefits. Much of the growth, however, must be ascribed to other causes such as de facto liberalizations as a result of court decisions, weaknesses in administration, and greater than anticipated incentives to become or remain dependent upon benefits.

At the time the disability insurance program was enacted in 1956, its long-range cost was estimated to be 0.42 percent of taxable payroll. The “high cost” short-range estimate indicated that benefit outlays would reach a level of $1.3 billion by 1975. Under the 1979 social security trustees’ report, the long-range cost of the program is now estimated to be 1.92 percent of taxable payroll. Benefit payments for 1975 totalled $7.6 billion, and benefit payments for 1979 are expected to total approximately $14 billion. (Note: at present payroll levels, 1 percent of taxable payroll is roughly $10 billion.)

Table 34 shows the changes in the estimated costs of the program over the years since it was first enacted. Many of the cost increases in the earlier years are attributable to changes in the law broadening eligibility. The last major change of this type was enacted in 1967. The reductions in long-range costs after 1977 are partly a result of the new benefit computation for all social security benefits adopted in the 1977 amendments and of the increase in the tax base under those amendments. (An increased tax base has the effect of “lowering” the cost of the program as a percent of taxable payroll even if the actual costs of the program in absolute terms remain unchanged.) The 1978 reduction in long-range costs reflects an actuarial assumption based on a somewhat lower award rate in the past year or two.
There are now about 2.9 million disabled workers receiving DI benefits, increased from 1.9 million in 1969. This represents a 107 percent increase over a 10-year period during which there was no major legislative expansion of eligibility requirements. Currently, in addition to the disabled workers who are receiving benefits, there are benefits being paid to about 2 million dependents of disabled workers. (See table 33 for the number of benefits by type of beneficiary in each State.)

The following table shows the number of awards by calendar year over the last decade. The number of disabled worker awards in the last 5 years has been about 2.7 million. Through the 1968–78 period the annual number of awards rose from an average of about 340,000 for 1968–70 to a peak of 592,000 in 1975. Following 1975, there was no longer a steady upward trend. Instead, the number of awards in 1976–77 was about 5 percent lower than in 1975. The 1978 decrease was even sharper, to a level about 23 percent below that of 1975.

Following the rapid increases in the number of applications for title II worker disability in the first half of the 1970’s, there has been a distinct leveling off, even a decrease, in the number applying. The decrease, however, has not been as significant as the decrease in the number of awards. In the same period referred to above, 1975-78, title II disabled worker applications decreased by about 8 percent. The most recent statistics available for 1979, however, show that for the first 5 months of this year the number of applications has been slightly higher than for the corresponding period in 1978.

2. SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME

When the Congress was considering the enactment of the supplemental security income legislation in 1972, the estimates it had before it did not accurately portray the future nature of the caseload and costs of the program. Nor was there any testimony that indicated how the implementation of the program might affect the administrative capacity of the Social Security Administration, and, most particularly, the capacity of the disability adjudication structure.

Most of the discussion leading up to congressional passage of SSI centered on serving the aged population. Congress accepted estimates of the Administration indicating that the SSI population would continue to be composed largely of the aged. The Administration esti-estimated that, by the end of fiscal year 1975, there would be almost two aged beneficiaries for every disabled beneficiary. While it was foreseen that the number of persons receiving disability benefits would grow under the new program, it was expected that the number of aged beneficiaries would grow even more.

The Administration’s early estimates on the number of persons who would qualify for disability payments under the SSI program appear to have been developed somewhat haphazardly. It apparently relied primarily on the Survey of the Disabled conducted by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in 1966. Looking to the future, the Administration estimated that the annual growth rate for SSI disability would be 2 percent, as compared to Administration estimates of 5-percent caseload growth under the then existing law projected into the future.

Even the higher projection for existing law did not seem to take into account what had actually been happening under the program of aid to the permanently and totally disabled. In the period December 1968 through December 1971 the disability rolls increased from 702,000 to 1,068,000—an increase of 52 percent.

In its budget justification for 1974, the first year of the SSI program, the Administration estimated that by June 1974 there would be 3.1 million aged on the rolls, and 1.7 million disabled. In June 1974 there were actually 2.1 million aged and 1.5 million disabled on the rolls. The Administration also estimated at that time that by June 1975 there would be 3.8 million aged and 1.8 million disabled. The figure for the disabled turned out to be accurate—there were 1.8 million disabled persons receiving benefits in June 1975, but the figure for the aged was only 2.3 million. Moreover, the overall estimate for the disabled was realized even though the estimate for disabled children of 250,000 was still less than one-third realized.

In calendar years 1974 and 1975, the first 2 years of the SSI program, the disability caseload increased substantially, from about 1.3 million individuals in January 1974 to about 2 million 2 years later. Since that time the actual number of persons receiving payments on the basis of disability has appeared to be stabilizing.

However, the SSI program is nonetheless becoming a program that is increasingly dominated by the disability aspects. Out of the 4.2 million persons receiving SSI benefits, 2.2 million came onto the rolls as the result of being determined to be disabled. (319,000 of these individuals have now reached age 65, but are still listed by SSA as being disabled. See table 37 for a State-by-State listing of recipients.)

Perhaps most indicative of the predominance of disability issues in the program are the figures showing numbers of applicants for benefits. About 80 percent of all applications are now being made on the basis of disability. This has been the case since 1976. In addition, about two-thirds of all awards made in recent years have been made to persons determined to be disabled. (See table 40.) Program expenditures also reflect the numbers and relatively higher average SSI payments of the disabled SSI population. About 60 percent of all SSI expenditures now go to persons who have been determined disabled. (See table 41.)

At the present time, more than 1 million, or nearly half of all disability applications received in social security district offices, are applications for SSI benefits. In 1974, the first full year of the SSI program, there were fewer than 800,000 applications, compared with 1.3 million title II applications. Over the 5½ years of the SSI program, SSI disability applications have increased steadily as a percentage of all disability applications. Persons working with the disability programs generally are agreed that the establishment of the SSI disability program, acting as a kind of outreach mechanism, had the result of increasing the number of applications for title II disability.

B. CAUSES FOR GROWTH

As the preceding discussion shows, the experts have had very great difficulty estimating how the disability programs would develop, and they have frequently been wrong. They have found it equally difficult to pinpoint the reasons for growth in the disability programs, partici-
1. INCREASES IN DISABILITY INCIDENCE RATES

The table below shows standardized disability incidence rates under the disability insurance program for the period 1968–75. As can be seen, the rates show an almost steadily increasing trend from 1968, although appearing to level off in 1973–75.

Overall incidence rate based on age-sex distribution of persons insured for disability benefits as of Jan. 1, 1975 (as shown in table 50, “Statistical Supplement, Social Security Bulletin,” 1975), and on incidence rates by age and sex as shown in “Actuarial Study No. 74” and “Actuarial Study No. 75,” Social Security Administration.

Social Security Administration actuaries attempted to assess the reasons for the increase in incidence rates in a report published in January 1977, “Experience of Disabled-Worker Benefits under OASDI, 1965–74.” Their analysis points to a variety of factors, including increases in benefit levels, high unemployment rates, changes in attitude of the population, and administrative factors. These factors, as analyzed by the actuaries, are worth considering in some detail.

Starting off their discussion, the actuaries observe:

We believe that part of the recent increase in incidence rates is due to the rapid rise in benefit levels since 1970, particularly when measured in terms of pre-disability earnings. From December 1969 to December 1975 there were general benefit increases amounting to 82 percent. Also, effective in 1973, Medicare benefits became available to disabled worker beneficiaries who have been entitled for at least 2 years. We also believe the short computation period for the young workers, the weighting of the benefit formula for the low income workers, and the additional benefits payable when the worker has dependents can provide especially attractive benefits to beneficiaries in these categories. It is possible under the present formula for these beneficiaries to receive more in disability benefits than was included in their take-home pay while they were working. Benefits this high become an incentive to file a claim for disability benefits, and to pursue the claim through the appellate procedures. (p. 5)

In transmitting the Administration's proposed changes in the DI program in March of this year, former Secretary of HEW Joseph Califano pointed out that, in fact, 6 percent of DI beneficiaries receive more through their DI benefits alone than they made while working, and that 16 percent have benefits which exceed 80 percent of their prior net earnings.

The actuaries believe that another factor in the increase in incidence rates is the high unemployment rate that the country experienced after 1970. They argue that physically impaired individuals are more likely to apply for benefits if they lose their jobs in a recession than during an economic expansion when they can retain their jobs.

According to the actuaries, another factor influencing increases in incidence rates is changes in attitude. Elaborating on this theme, they state that "It is possible that the impaired lives of today do not feel the same social pressure to remain productive as did their counterparts as recently as the late 1960's." The actuaries quote John Miller, a consulting actuary and expert in the field of disability insurance, who commented in a report to the House Social Security Subcommittee on the subjective nature of the state of disability:

The underlying problem in providing and administering any plan of disability insurance is the extreme subjectivity of the state of disability. This characteristic could be discussed at length and illustrated with an almost endless array of statistics but it can best be visualized by comparing a Helen Keller or a Robert Louis Stevenson with any typical example of the multitude of ambulatory persons now drawing disability benefits who could be gainfully employed if (a) the necessary motivation existed, and (b) an employment opportunity within their present or potential capability were present or made available. Thus the problem is not simply one of medical diagnosis. The will to work, the economic climate and the "rehabilitation environment" outweigh the medical condition or problem in many, if not in most, cases.

(Reports of Consultants on Actuarial and Definitional Aspects of Social Security Disability Insurance, to the Subcommittee on Social Security of the Committee on Ways and Means, U.S. House of Representatives, p. 24.)

The authors were unwilling to attribute the increase in disability incidence rates to these factors to any specific degree, and observed only that they were responsible for "a large part" of the increases. Beyond that they state: "We feel that some administrative factors this reduction in the incidence of disability was not anticipated and its causes are not very clear, so it is uncertain whether the trend will continue in the future. Thus, the higher DI trust fund levels projected in this report (as compared to last year's report) are contingent on the realization of the lower incidence rates assumed in this year's report.

Under these assumptions the DI benefit roll is projected to rise from a level of about 4.9 million beneficiaries in 1979 to 7.8 million in the year 2000.

C. UNFAVORABLE RECENT ECONOMIC FORECASTS

Reports of the trustees in recent years have made projections of the financial soundness of the social security programs using three different sets of economic and demographic assumptions. These assumptions, referred to as optimistic, intermediate and pessimistic, are intended to give a picture of the financial condition of the program under a range of potential circumstances which could arise in the future. Traditionally for purposes of a general discussion of the financial condition of the programs and for pricing proposed legislative and policy changes, the intermediate or, as they sometimes are referred to, the central set of assumptions are used.

While the current forecasts under the optimistic and central sets of assumptions show that both the OASI and DI programs are adequately financed in the short run, the pessimistic assumptions show that at least the OASI program could run into financial difficulty beginning as soon as 1983 or 1984. Reserves in the OASI trust fund would fall to an extremely low level by the end of 1983. DI reserves appear to be adequate even under these conditions. The trustees caution—that although a positive balance is projected for the OASI trust fund at the end of each year through 1983, under the pessimistic assumptions, the assets at the end of 1983 would not be large enough to cover the entire amount of benefits that are payable at the beginning of the following month. This kind of cash-flow problem becomes imminent if, at any time, the trust fund falls to less than about 9 percent of the following 12 months of disbursements. Under the pessimistic assumptions, the OASI trust fund would begin to experience cash-flow difficulties early in 1983. The cash-flow problems would arise because almost all of the benefits for a given month are payable, generally, on the third day of the following month, while contribution income is received more or less uniformly throughout the month, on a daily basis. For example, the benefits for December 1983—estimated to be about $12.5 billion under alternative III (the pessimistic assumption)—are payable on January 3, 1984, before any significant amount of income can be added to the fund's estimated assets of $8.3 billion on December 31, 1983...

They point out further that a "severe or prolonged economic downturn" could lead to this pessimistic forecast for the program.

While the trustees' report is only a few months old, recent economic forecasts of the Administration, the Congressional Budget Committees, and a number of other forecasters indicate that the economy... is not moving in line with the central set of trustees' report assumptions. Generally, these forecasts are now more pessimistic and indicate that a recession has begun coupled with a continuing high rate of inflation. For social security, this means higher than anticipated outgo, with increases in revenues which do not keep pace with the additional outgo.

1. Administration “midsession” forecast:

The Administration's recent economic forecast, which accompanied its “midsession” report to the Congress on the budget, indicates a higher rate of inflation and higher unemployment than reflected in both its January budget submittal and the trustees' report intermediate assumptions.

This forecast falls between the trustees' intermediate assumptions and the pessimistic ones, but closer to the pessimistic ones. OASI reserve balances fall to 10 percent of one year's outgo by 1984 under the midsession assumptions, as compared to 5 percent under the trustees' pessimistic assumptions.

Either level is considered to be too low for cash-flow purposes. Balances in the DI trust fund, on the other hand, are more than adequate under both economic scenarios.

2. CBO economic update and tentative House and Senate Budget Committee forecasts:

The Congressional Budget Office also prepared a midyear economic update for 1979 and 1980, indicating an even more pessimistic trend than the Administration's forecast, not only through 1980, but for a number of subsequent years as well.

In a July 31, 1979 letter to the committee, the director of CBO states that estimates prepared by CBO for the House and Senate Budget Committees show that under their respective assumptions, the balance in the OASI trust fund would fall between 5.4 percent of fiscal year 1984 outgo (House version) and 7.7 percent of fiscal year 1984 outgo (Senate version). Once again, both would represent precariously low OASI trust fund reserve levels. The DI trust fund would have fiscal year 1984 reserves in the range of 55 percent to 60 percent of outgo.
3. Cautionary notes by the Trustees and Director of CBO:

Because of the possibility that economic conditions might move in the direction of that pessimistic forecast, in their 1979 report the trustees recommended that—

... no reduction be made in the scheduled revenues of Old Age and Survivors Insurance and Disability Insurance trust funds without making provisions for offsetting reductions in expenditures or alternative financing arrangements, and that "it might be advisable to examine the need for flexibility to reallocate funds between the two trust funds in the short term.

The Director of CBO similarly suggested that "steps may have to be taken to ensure the solvency of the OASI trust fund," a number of which might alter the financing of DI.

The following four tables compare these adverse economic forecasts and show the impact they would have on the OASI and DI programs:

VII. Costs and Caseloads of the Disability Programs

A. Development of the Programs

As Table 32 shows, the Nation's basic cash disability programs have changed dramatically in the last decade both in benefit cost and in caseload. As can also be seen, there has been a major impact on administrative costs, and on the number of individuals employed by the State disability agencies to make disability determinations. Costs of cash benefits grew from about $3.7 billion in 1970, to nearly $18 billion in 1979.

Nor do these figures tell the whole story. There are also major benefit expenditures for disabled persons under the medicare and medicaid programs. Since July 1, 1973, persons who are entitled to disability benefits under the Social Security Act for at least 24 consecutive months become eligible to apply for medicare part A (hospital insurance) benefits beginning with the 25th month of entitlement and also to enroll in the part B (supplementary medical insurance) program. According to estimates for fiscal year 1979, about 700,000 persons will receive reimbursed services under part A during the year at a cost of $2.4 billion. About 1.7 million persons will receive reimbursed services under part B at a cost of $1.4 billion. With respect to the medicaid program, for which most SSI recipients are automatically eligible, statistics for fiscal year 1976 show that about 2.7 million disabled recipients received $3.5 billion in benefits (about 25 percent of total medicaid payments).

1 The SSI program began Jan. 1, 1974. Numbers for prior years represent the number of blind and disabled recipients under the former Federal-State programs of aid to the aged, blind, and disabled.

2 Combined Federal and State expenditures for benefits paid to blind and disabled recipients under the former Federal-State programs of aid to the aged, blind, and disabled. Figure for fiscal year 1974 combines the expenditures under both programs.
The disability insurance program has grown in caseload size and costs well beyond what was originally estimated. In part, the growth of the program reflects legislative changes which have expanded coverage and benefits. Much of the growth, however, must be ascribed to other causes such as de facto liberalizations as a result of court decisions, weaknesses in administration, and greater than anticipated incentives to become or remain dependent upon benefits.

At the time the disability insurance program was enacted in 1956, its long-range cost was estimated to be 0.42 percent of taxable payroll. The “high cost” short-range estimate indicated that benefit outlays would reach a level of $1.3 billion by 1975. Under the 1979 social security trustees’ report, the long-range cost of the program is now estimated to be 1.92 percent of taxable payroll. Benefit payments for 1975 totalled $7.6 billion, and benefit payments for 1979 are expected to total approximately $14 billion. (Note: at present payroll levels, 1 percent of taxable payroll is roughly $10 billion.)

Table 34 shows the changes in the estimated costs of the program over the years since it was first enacted. Many of the cost increases in the earlier years are attributable to changes in the law broadening eligibility. The last major change of this type was enacted in 1967. The reductions in long-range costs after 1977 are partly a result of the new benefit computation for all social security benefits adopted in the 1977 amendments and of the increase in the tax base under those amendments. (An increased tax base has the effect of “lowering” the cost of the program as a percent of taxable payroll even if the actual costs of the program in absolute terms remain unchanged.) The 1978 reduction in long-range costs reflects an actuarial assumption based on a somewhat lower award rate in the past year or two.
There are now about 2.9 million disabled workers receiving DI benefits, increased from 1.9 million in 1969. This represents a 107 percent increase over a 10-year period during which there was no major legislative expansion of eligibility requirements. Currently, in addition to the disabled workers who are receiving benefits, there are benefits being paid to about 2 million dependents of disabled workers. (See table 33 for the number of benefits by type of beneficiary in each State.)

The following table shows the number of awards by calendar year over the last decade. The number of disabled worker awards in the last 5 years has been about 2.7 million. Through the 1968–78 period the annual number of awards rose from an average of about 340,000 for 1968–70 to a peak of 592,000 in 1975. Following 1975, there was no longer a steady upward trend. Instead, the number of awards in 1976–77 was about 5 percent lower than in 1975. The 1978 decrease was even sharper, to a level about 23 percent below that of 1975.

Following the rapid increases in the number of applications for title II worker disability in the first half of the 1970's, there has been a distinct leveling off, even a decrease, in the number applying. The decrease, however, has not been as significant as the decrease in the number of awards. In the same period referred to above, 1975-78, title II disabled worker applications decreased by about 8 percent. The most recent statistics available for 1979, however, show that for the first 5 months of this year the number of applications has been slightly higher than for the corresponding period in 1978.

2. SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME

When the Congress was considering the enactment of the supplemental security income legislation in 1972, the estimates it had before it did not accurately portray the future nature of the caseload and costs of the program. Nor was there any testimony that indicated how the implementation of the program might affect the administrative capacity of the Social Security Administration, and, most particularly, the capacity of the disability adjudication structure.

Most of the discussion leading up to congressional passage of SSI centered on serving the aged population. Congress accepted estimates of the Administration indicating that the SSI population would continue to be composed largely of the aged. The Administration estiimated that, by the end of fiscal year 1975, there would be almost two aged beneficiaries for every disabled beneficiary. While it was foreseen that the number of persons receiving disability benefits would grow under the new program, it was expected that the number of aged beneficiaries would grow even more.

The Administration's early estimates on the number of persons who would qualify for disability payments under the SSI program appear to have been developed somewhat haphazardly. It apparently relied primarily on the Survey of the Disabled conducted by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in 1966. Looking to the future, the Administration estimated that the annual growth rate for SSI disability would be 2 percent, as compared to Administration estimates of 5-percent caseload growth under the then existing law projected into the future.

Even the higher projection for existing law did not seem to take into account what had actually been happening under the program of aid to the permanently and totally disabled. In the period December 1968 through December 1971 the disability rolls increased from 702,000 to 1,068,000—an increase of 52 percent.

In its budget justification for 1974, the first year of the SSI program, the Administration estimated that by June 1974 there would be 3.1 million aged on the rolls, and 1.7 million disabled. In June 1974 there were actually 2.1 million aged and 1.5 million disabled on the rolls. The Administration also estimated at that time that by June 1975 there would be 3.8 million aged and 1.8 million disabled. The figure for the disabled turned out to be accurate—there were 1.8 million disabled persons receiving benefits in June 1975, but the figure for the aged was only 2.3 million. Moreover, the overall estimate for the disabled was realized even though the estimate for disabled children of 250,000 was still less than one-third realized.

In calendar years 1974 and 1975, the first 2 years of the SSI program, the disability caseload increased substantially, from about 1.3 million individuals in January 1974 to about 2 million 2 years later. Since that time the actual number of persons receiving payments on the basis of disability has appeared to be stabilizing.

However, the SSI program is nonetheless becoming a program that is increasingly dominated by the disability aspects. Out of the 4.2 million persons receiving SSI benefits, 2.2 million came onto the rolls as the result of being determined to be disabled. (319,000 of these individuals have now reached age 65, but are still listed by SSA as being disabled. See table 37 for a State-by-State listing of recipients.)

Perhaps most indicative of the predominance of disability issues in the program are the figures showing numbers of applicants for benefits. About 80 percent of all applications are now being made on the basis of disability. This has been the case since 1976. In addition, about two-thirds of all awards made in recent years have been made to persons determined to be disabled. (See table 40.) Program expenditures also reflect the numbers and relatively higher average SSI payments of the disabled SSI population. About 60 percent of all SSI expenditures now go to persons who have been determined disabled. (See table 41.)

At the present time, more than 1 million, or nearly half of all disability applications received in social security district offices, are applications for SSI benefits. In 1974, the first full year of the SSI program, there were fewer than 800,000 applications, compared with 1.3 million title II applications. Over the 5½ years of the SSI program, SSI disability applications have increased steadily as a percentage of all disability applications. Persons working with the disability programs generally are agreed that the establishment of the SSI disability program, acting as a kind of outreach mechanism, had the result of increasing the number of applications for title II disability.

B. CAUSES FOR GROWTH

As the preceding discussion shows, the experts have had very great difficulty estimating how the disability programs would develop, and they have frequently been wrong. They have found it equally difficult to pinpoint the reasons for growth in the disability programs, particularly in the disability insurance program. The growth that took place, primarily in the first half of the 1970's, would seem to have leveled off. But there is still no consensus on exactly why it happened, the weight to be given to various factors, or even on whether the period of rapid growth is over.

1. INCREASES IN DISABILITY INCIDENCE RATES

The table below shows standardized disability incidence rates under the disability insurance program for the period 1968–75. As can be seen, the rates show an almost steadily increasing trend from 1968, although appearing to level off in 1974–75.

Overall incidence rate based on age-sex distribution of persons insured for disability benefits as of Jan. 1, 1975 (as shown in table 50, "Statistical Supplement, Social Security Bulletin," 1975); and on incidence rates by age and sex as shown in "Actuarial Study No. 74" and "Actuarial Study No. 75," Social Security Administration.

Social Security Administration actuaries attempted to assess the reasons for the increase in incidence rates in a report published in January 1977, "Experience of Disabled-Worker Benefits under OASDI, 1965–74." Their analysis points to a variety of factors, including increases in benefit levels, high unemployment rates, changes in attitude of the population, and administrative factors. These factors, as analyzed by the actuaries, are worth considering in some detail.

Starting off their discussion, the actuaries observe:

We believe that part of the recent increase in incidence rates is due to the rapid rise in benefit levels since 1970, particularly when measured in terms of pre-disability earnings. From December 1969 to December 1975 there were general benefit increases amounting to 82 percent. Also, effective in 1973, medicare benefits became available to disabled worker beneficiaries who have been entitled for at least 2 years. We also believe the short computation period for the young workers, the weighting of the benefit formula for the low income workers, and the additional benefits payable when the worker has dependent can provide especially attractive benefits to beneficiaries in these categories. It is possible under the present formula for these beneficiaries to receive more in disability benefits than was included in their take-home pay while they were working. Benefits this high become an incentive to file a claim for disability benefits, and to pursue the claim through the appellate procedures. (p. 5)

In transmitting the Administration’s proposed changes in the DI program in March of this year, former Secretary of HEW Joseph Califano pointed out that, in fact, 6 percent of DI beneficiaries receive more through their DI benefits alone than they made while working, and that 16 percent have benefits which exceed 80 percent of their prior net earnings.

The actuaries believe that another factor in the increase in incidence rates is the high unemployment rate that the country experienced after 1970. They argue that physically impaired individuals are more likely to apply for benefits if they lose their jobs in a recession than during an economic expansion when they can retain their jobs.

According to the actuaries, another factor influencing increases in incidence rates is changes in attitude. Elaborating on this theme, they state that “It is possible that the impaired lives of today do not feel the same social pressure to remain productive as did their counterparts as recently as the late 1960’s.” The actuaries quote John Miller, a consulting actuary and expert in the field of disability insurance, who commented in a report to the House Social Security Subcommittee on the subjective nature of the state of disability:

The underlying problem in providing and administering any plan of disability insurance is the extreme subjectivity of the state of disability. This characteristic could be discussed at length and illustrated with an almost endless array of statistics but it can best be visualized by comparing a Helen Keller or a Robert Louis Stevenson with any typical example of the multitude of ambulatory persons now drawing disability benefits who could be gainfully employed if (a) the necessary motivation existed, and (b) an employment opportunity within their present or potential capability were present or made available. Thus the problem is not simply one of medical diagnosis. The will to work, the economic climate and the “rehabilitation environment” outweigh the medical condition or problem in many, if not in most, cases.

(Reports of Consultants on Actuarial and Definitional Aspects of Social Security Disability Insurance, to the Subcommittee on Social Security of the Committee on Ways and Means, U.S. House of Representatives, p. 24.)

The authors were unwilling to attribute the increase in disability incidence rates to these factors to any specific degree, and observed only that they were responsible for “a large part” of the increases. Beyond that they state: “We feel that some administrative factors must have also played an important part in the recent increases, but we cannot offer a definite proof to that effect."

One administrative factor mentioned is the multi-step appeals process, which enables the claimant to pursue his case to what the actuaries term as the "weak link" in the hierarchy of disability determination. Under the multi-step appeals process, a claimant who has been denied benefits may request first a reconsideration, then a hearing before an Administrative Law Judge, appeal his hearing denial to the Appeals Council, and, if his case is still denied, take his claim to the U.S. district court. The actuaries claim that by the very nature of the claims process, the cases which progress through the appeals process are likely to be borderline cases where vocational factors play an important role in the determination of disability. The definition of disability—"inability to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of a medically determinable impairment"—involves two variables: (1) impairment and (2) vocational factors. An emphasis on vocational factors, they say, citing William Roemmich, former Chief Medical Director of the Bureau of Disability Insurance, can change the definition to "inability to engage in usual work by reason of age, education, and work experience providing any impairment is present." To the extent that vocational factors are given higher weight as a claim progresses through the appeals process, the chances of reversal of a former denial is increased.

The actuaries also cite the "massive nature" of the disability determination process as one of the administrative factors which may be responsible for the growth in the rolls. There has been an enormous increase in the number of claims required to be processed by the system. In fiscal year 1969, the Social Security Administration took in over 700,000 claims for disability insurance benefits. By 1974 the number of DI claims per year had grown to 1.2 million. In addition, over 500,000 disability claims under the black lung program, which started during 1970, had been taken in. And the number of SSI disability claims being taken in approached another million. As the actuaries point out, all this was happening at a time when the administration was making a determined effort to hold down administrative costs. During this period it would appear that there was an inevitable conflict within the administrative process between quality and quantity. The winner, it would appear, was quantity. The actuaries state:

All of this put tremendous pressure on the disability adjudicators to move claims quickly. As a result the administration reduced their review procedures to a small sample, limited the continuing disability investigations on cases which were judged less likely to be terminated, and adopted certain expedients in the development and documentation in the claims process. Although all of these moves may have been necessary in order to avoid an unduly large backlog of disability claims, it is our opinion that they had an unfortunate effect on the cost of the program (p. 8).

A final factor given for the increase in the incidence rates is "the difficulty of maintaining a proper balance between sympathy for the claimant and respect for the trust funds in a large public system." The actuaries maintain that they do not mean that disability adjudicators consciously circumvent the law in order to benefit an unfortunate claimant. They mean rather that in a program designed specifically to help people, whose operations are an open concern to millions of individuals, and where any one decision has an insignificant effect on the overall cost of the program, there is a natural tendency to find in favor of the claimant in close decisions. "This tendency is likely to result in a small amount of growth in disability incidence rates each year, such as that experienced under the DI program prior to 1970, but it can become highly significant during long periods of difficult national economic conditions." (p. 8.)

Although the above discussion of the factors in increased incidence rates was aimed specifically at the disability insurance program, it would seem to be applicable also to the SSI program. The same definition and the same administrative procedures are used in both programs. And it is logical to assume that the economic, human, and administrative factors which affect growth would be present in both programs.

2. DECREASE IN TERMINATIONS

At the same time that there have been increases in disability incidence rates, there have also been decreases in disability termination rates. As the table below shows, death termination rates have decreased gradually over the years from about 80 per thousand in 1968 to about 50 per thousand in 1977.

1 Rate per 1,000 average beneficiaries on the roll.
2 Estimated.

The actuarial study referred to earlier cites several reasons for the decline in the death termination rate: legislative changes which brought in younger workers, maturation of the program, the liberalized definition of disability in the 1965 amendments from permanent disability to one that is expected to last at least 12 months, and improved medical procedures that have also contributed to the decline in death rates in the general population.

However, the actuaries state that although all of these reasons contributed to the decline, "it is doubtful that they can fully account for the rather rapid decrease that has been observed." Rather, they say, they believe that healthier applicants are being awarded disability benefits and consequently there is a tendency for the overall mortality rates to decline:

The magnitude of the increase in the incidence rates is so substantial, that it is likely to have had a significant effect on the characteristics of applicants that are being awarded disability benefits. It is our belief that progressively healthier individuals have been granted benefits, and that progressively healthier individuals have been allowed to stay on the rolls (p. 12).

Examining the other significant factor in termination rates, recovery rates, the actuaries come to essentially the same conclusion:

The rapid decrease in the gross recovery rate since 1967 cannot be explained in terms of legislated changes since there have not been any major changes in the law since then. As with the decline in the gross death rate, and probably even more so, it is believed that progressively healthier beneficiaries are being allowed to continue receiving benefits without being terminated (p. 12).

The actuaries also cite administrative changes as a possible reason for a decline in recoveries due to a determination of improvements in the beneficiary's physical condition. Pinpointing "administrative expediency," they note that the high workload pressures of past years forced SSA to curtail some of its policing activities. The Social Security Administration made continuing disability investigations of about 10 percent of the DI beneficiaries on the rolls in years prior to 1970. During fiscal years 1971 to 1974, when the administrative crunch of the black lung and SSI programs were at their peak, there was an investigation of just over 4 percent of the DI beneficiaries in a year.

A final factor which is mentioned in the actuaries analysis is high benefit levels, or high replacement ratios. Defining the replacement ratio as the annual amount of benefits received by the disabled worker and his dependents divided by his after tax earnings in the year before onset of disability, the actuaries claim that the average replacement ratio of disabled workers with median earnings has increased from about 60 percent in 1967 to over 90 percent in 1976. During this period the gross recovery rate decreased to only one-half of what it was in 1967.

More recently, the Social Security Administration actuaries commented on how replacement ratios affect the recovery rate by noting:

High benefits are a formidable incentive to maintain beneficiary status especially when the value of medicare and other benefits are considered. We believe that the incentive to return to permanent self-supporting work provided by the trial work period provision has been largely negated by the prospect of losing the high benefits. (“Experience of Disabled-
Workers Benefits Under OASDI, 1972-76," actuarial study No. 75, June 1978.)

A study of disabled workers who were awarded benefits in 1972 which appeared in the April 1979 issue of the Social Security Bulletin found that, among certain workers with conditions most subject to medical improvements, those with high replacement rates were less likely to leave the rolls. More specifically, the study found that among younger workers, a relationship of benefits to recovery according to earnings-replacement level was apparent. Twenty percent of those under age 40 with higher replacement rates recovered from their disabilities. This percentage increased to 32 when the replacement rate was less than 75 percent. A similar effect was found for those with dependent children and for those with injuries such as fractures and disc displacements.

The authors conclude:

Thus, although the overall recovery proportions seem alike for those with high and low earnings-replacement rates, receipt of benefits does appear to have an effect on some of the subgroups.

C. CURRENT STATUS OF THE PROGRAM

1. WHAT RECENT STATISTICS SHOW

Recent statistics seem to indicate that the social security disability programs are leveling off. Title II disabled worker applications have been decreasing on an annual basis since 1974. SSI disability applications have been increasing, but at a rate significantly lower than in earlier years. As mentioned earlier, for the first 5 months of 1979 the number of title II disabled worker applications was virtually the same as for the same period in the previous year. SSI disability applications were up by 7.5 percent in that same period of time.

Application statistics, however, are perhaps not as significant as other program statistics—those telling how many are coming on the rolls and those telling how many are going off. Between 1975 and 1978 the number of benefits awarded to disabled workers dropped from 592,049 in 1975 to 457,451 in 1978, a 23 percent decrease. In the first 5 months of 1979 this trend continued, with awards in that period about 13 percent lower than for the same 5-month period in 1978. SSI awards to the disabled have also been declining, from a high of 436,490 in 1975, to 348,848 in 1978, a decline of about 20 percent. Statistics show that this trend is continuing into 1979. SSI awards on the basis of disability for the first 5 months of 1979 were about 7 percent below those of the previous year.

Program statistics also show a considerable increase in State agency denial rates. In fiscal year 1973, 47 percent of all State agency initial decisions relating to title II disabled workers were denials. The denial rate in 1978 was 60 percent. State agency initial decisions on SSI applications resulted in a denial rate of about 58 percent in 1977, increasing to 64 percent in 1978. For the last quarter in 1978 the denial rate reached nearly 67 percent.
In addition, available statistics show that the number of cessations as opposed to continuances in determinations of continuing disability for disabled workers have greatly increased as follows:

Experts in the field of disability are reluctant to draw many conclusions from these statistics. There is a feeling of unease about their significance, particularly over the long term. The 1979 trustees' report shows an improved forecast for the DI trust fund over the one made last year. This is caused by projections of lower rates of enrollment than were made previously and were based on the actual slowdown in new awards since the last quarter of 1977 (although enrollment is still projected to rise in the future under all three sets of economic assumptions in the report—optimistic, intermediate, and pessimistic). The trustees add their own note of caution, however, observing that “this reduction in the incidence of disability was not anticipated and its causes are not very clear, so it is uncertain whether the trend will continue in the future.”

2. EXPLANATIONS GIVEN FOR CHANGES IN THE GROWTH PATTERN

As the preceding quotation from the trustees' report indicates, there is a feeling of uncertainty among disability experts as to exactly why the growth in the programs appears to be leveling off. If one reads back through the analysis of the causes of growth prepared by the social security actuaries, one expects to find some basis for understanding why the growth may have slowed. The actuaries' analysis cites administrative factors as having an impact on the growing disability incidence rates in earlier years, as well as having an effect on the decline in terminations. Although other factors seem relatively unchanged, there has, in fact, been considerable change in the administration of the disability programs in the last 2−3 years.

The Ways and Means Committee Report on H.R. 3236, in referring to the new assumptions of reduced disability incidence rates, states that the reasons for these are not wholly known. However, the report refers to the fact that the Subcommittee on Social Security “has received considerable testimony that this may be the result of tighter administration and a growing reliance on the medical factors in the determination of disability.” (p. 15)

The House Social Security Subcommittee staff issued a committee print on February 1, 1979, which includes statistics similar to those above. Citing these statistics, the Subcommittee requested administrators of the State agencies to give "your opinion as to the reasons for these recent trends, ... and deal with any other aspect of the 'climate of adjudication' which seems relevant to our inquiry." Some 30 administrators responded, and their observations were discussed in some depth in the committee print.

A number of States wrote that criticism of the disability program has had the effect of changing the "adjudicative climate." The Subcommittee print quotes one administrator as saying:

I believe the primary reason for the recent conservative approach to disability evaluation is a direct result of the activities of the Subcommittee on Social Security, the General Accounting Office, and others involved in evaluating the effectiveness of the program. The Administration has apparently carefully considered all of the comments, inquiries, opinions, etc., and concluded that a "tightening up" is desired. This view may be somewhat of an over simplification; but in the real world it is quite likely the root cause of the recent trends.

In summary, I believe the "adjudicative climate" has changed primarily as a result of the activities of your committee. I believe the change to be reasonable and desirable. Benefits are being awarded to those individuals who are not working and unable to work primarily as a result of their medically determinable physical and mental impairments, and benefits are being withheld from those individuals who are not working primarily as a result of other factors. (p. 12)

According to the staff analysis, however, more administrators pointed to the promulgation of more specific Federal guidelines and better documentation of cases (as the result of quality assurance requirements and procedures) as being mainly responsible for increased denials. Quotations from the letters of three administrators taking this view are as follows:

I believe it is fair to state that most cases are more completely documented now than they were two years ago and that this more complete documentation has resulted in improved decisions. Of course, the increased documentation has increased administrative costs; however, it seems that the increase in administrative costs may have resulted in lower program cost; thus a net reduction in cost to the trust fund. The important point is that the better documentation has led to more "right" decisions.

Why the increase in denial and cessation rates? Is it due to some form of subtle persuasion from [the Central or Regional offices] to deny or cease benefits because of certain Trust Fund considerations? Perhaps the cost-effectiveness aspect is one cause and one result of the "tightening up," but we do not view it as the only or even major goal. Our reasoning is simply this: we have not been given a new set of rules under which to operate but, rather, needed definition and structure to concepts and criteria which have always existed as part of the disability program since its inception. Are the increased denial and cessation rates, then, a result of a more appropriate application of program concepts and criteria to the disability determination process? Our feeling is yes. Demands for additional and more solid documentation cannot disfavor the allowable claimant but can disfavor the deniable claimant. What, if any, are the differences in demographic characteristics of and illness/disease incidence and treatment effectiveness in the population of today as compared to that of four years ago, and what role do they play in the increased denial-cessation rate? Are the criteria to allow or continue too rigid? The answer to the latter is, it is not for us to say. (p.13)

* * * * * * * * * * *

We feel that a combination of better quality assurance, better leadership from the Regional Offices as well as the Central Office, more definitive procedure and policy instructions, a closer adherence to the actual medical listings on which disabilities must be based, all of these have come together to create a more realistic approach to the aspect of disability decisions. Therefore, with these guidelines being followed closely, a good adherence to quality assurance recommendations, the denial rate has increased, the allowances that are allowed are becoming more realistic, and this trend will continue because there is a way yet to go in terms of accuracy relative to the continuation and the allowances processes. (p.13)

* * * * * * * * * * *

The House subcommittee letter specifically asked the State administrators to evaluate the increase in denials on the basis of “slight impairment” which has taken place in recent years. Under the sequential determination procedure used in deciding whether an individual is disabled, the disability adjudicator must determine whether the individual has a severe impairment, even before he explores whether the individual meets or equals the medical listings, or, in the next step, is entitled to consideration of vocational factors. If the adjudicator decides that the condition is not “severe,” but is, rather, a “slight impairment,” then the individual is determined not to be disabled. The percentage of disabled worker cases denied on the basis of “slight impairment” increased from about 8 percent in 1975 to about 32 percent in 1977, increasing to 36 percent in the last 6 months of calendar year 1978.

According to the subcommittee staff, the States cited a number of elements which could account for the rise in percentage of denials based on slight impairment. These include increased Federal guidance on what constitutes slight impairment communicated by written and oral policy instructions, training sessions, and through cases returned to the States as the result of quality assurance review by the central office in Baltimore and the regional offices. All of these have emphasized increased physician involvement in adjudication and also increased documentation of cases.

Following are two analyses of the development by State administrators:
The slight impairment basis code has an interesting story. When I began adjudicating cases, the closest thing we had to a definition of "slight impairment" was that it meant "no impairment at all." Thus, if we found any deviation from normal we would proceed to other considerations. In recent years, more and more effort has gone into trying to define what was meant by "slight" and into trying to give examples of such impairments. Now, there are available lists of impairments which, when occurring alone, or in combination with other (similar) impairments, are automatically considered slight. These are impairments that would not have been routinely considered slight in past years, but the consensus of medical opinion is that they actually are (colostomy, loss of one eye, etc.). Quite often one may find disagreements among medical practitioners about the impact of some of these impairments, but overall this approach (specified examples) is probably one of the best ways to promote uniformity in the use of this basis code. (p. 15)

Initially, there was concern that examiners, with an additional documentation "burden," might opt for the "slight impairment" denial to avoid the detailed vocational documentation now required when adjudicating on "more-than-slight" impairment basis. While this may have begun to occur, it did not continue on a sustained basis, primarily because of the advent of the SPAR program in 1/77. Second tier feedback in the form of 2052's ("returns" outlining the deficiency but without the accompanying case) included basis code errors and increased emphasis on/delineation of sequential analysis, the first step of which is to determine severity level.

It is not without reason, then, that the big jump in "slight impairment" denials occurred between 1976 and 1977 and continued to rise in 1978. Examiners began to look more carefully at severity level for it meant more or less work for them depending on whether the impairment was "slight" or "more than slight." Also, the 2052 basis code "returns" continued to come in and Q/A, taking its cue from this feedback, began to carefully monitor the application of sequential analysis. With the new DISM VII (Quality Assurance Instructions) (7/78), the State agency chief medical consultant now reviews many more claims than before and, for each, he notes his severity rating. We are now being trained and are learning to differentiate, not between an allowance and a denial, but among six levels of severity as the first step in sequential analysis, leading to sounder and more uniform decisions. (p. 16)

A number of States see problems with the growth in "slight impairment" denials. One administrator wrote:

We must also admit that use of this basis code has been inflated by both conscious and habitual examiner actions to avoid vocational development. There has been an increased emphasis on vocational factors over the past several years. Documentation requirements are perceived as excessive. In fulfilling the criteria, the time demand and complexity of documenting vocational issues is burdensome. Then, despite valid efforts, the chances of a deficiency citation are great since the expectations are so detailed. Also, assessments of residual functional capacity are extremely judgmental and represent another area of high-error probability. The obvious solution for the examiner is to use the “slight impairment” basis and thereby avoid the questions of residual capacity and vocational factors altogether.

Certainly this practice is discouraged administratively and has been reduced; however, the method is still there and does influence borderline cases. The ramifications are severe. It reflects an absence of sequential analysis since the claim is prejudged to be a denial and then the absence of functional loss is ascribed. It has not been our experience that decisional errors frequently occur as a result of this practice, yet we cannot deny that potential. (p. 15)

* * * * * *

As shown above, the statistics relating to cessations show an impressive increase. In 1975 only 31.2 percent of continuing disability investigations (CDIs) were resulting in cessations of disability. By 1978 this had grown to 50.8 percent. The State administrators generally shared the same explanations for this development. They referred to increased documentation of cases and the return of cases to the State agencies as the result of Federal quality assurance review. In addition the 100 percent review of continuances which was in effect at times during the period is said to have had a major effect. One State agency administrator summarized the factors as follows:

The increase in the number of cessations seems to be an interplay of three factors: (a) The approach to CDI cases is now much different than in earlier years. [State agencies] are now developing CDI cases much the same way that initial claims are handled. This results in a great decrease in the number of “no CDI issue” continuances. (b) Many cases that were allowed during the trauma period following implementation of the SSI program are now being reviewed under a more careful approach. (c) The increased documentation requirements previously mentioned also apply in CDI cases. Incidentally, a greater overall percentage of these cases are being reviewed by all three tiers of the review system.

I would be reluctant to place a great deal of weight on one other factor as far as the national picture is concerned—but it needs to be mentioned. Many cases being ceased by the [State agencies] are cases which were allowed at the hearing level with less objectivity than the [State agencies] uses. I do not wish to belabor the issue of ALJ adjudication, but I would like to again make the plea that all components—BHA included—be required to follow the same guidelines if we are handling claims under the same regulations. We are seeing an increasing ground swell of attorneys who seem to specialize in disability cases, and who do everything possible to impede handling of claims by the [State agencies] so that they can get the claim denied and escalated to the hearing level. They are aware that having a claim reviewed from a subjective rather than objective standpoint enhances the chances for a favorable decision. (p. 17)

Nearly all the administrators also pointed to the elimination in July 1976 of the requirement that "medical improvement" had to be shown before the State agency could terminate a case. The need to show medical improvement had long been cited as a problem because some administrators felt that they were being forced by that requirement to continue people on the rolls who should not have been awarded benefits in the first place.

Most of the above comments echo those heard by the staff of the Finance Committee in its discussions in the last two years with Federal and State disability administrators. They tend to confirm the crucial importance of administrative factors in the disability programs, and the sensitivity of the disability rolls to what might appear to be technical changes in requirements.

VIII. Pending Legislation

A. General Description

There are a number of bills amending the disability insurance and supplemental security income programs which will be of interest to the committee in any consideration of disability legislation.

The House of Representatives has passed H.R. 3236, the Disability Insurance Amendments of 1979, providing changes in the DI program which are designed to remove disincentives to employment. The House-passed bill is similar in a number of respects to the disability insurance amendments proposed in the 96th Congress by the Administration. Both include provisions for a "cap" on family benefits, as well as other provisions aimed at encouraging the disabled to return to work. These additional provisions would (1) permit a deduction of extraordinary impairment-related work expenses in determining whether an individual is performing substantial gainful activity, (2) extend the trial work period from 9 to 24 months and make the same trial work period applicable to disabled widow(er)s, (3) extend medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for individuals who have not medically recovered but have returned to substantial gainful work, (4) eliminate the second 24-month waiting period for medicare which a beneficiary presently must undergo if he returns to work but subsequently must return to the disability rolls, and (5) authorize demonstration projects to test ways to stimulate a return to work by disability beneficiaries. (These latter provisions to encourage a return to work are also included in S. 1643, introduced by Senator Durenberger. S. 1643 does not, however, include the provision for a "cap" on benefits.)

Both the House-passed bill and the Administration's bill include proposals affecting the administration of the disability programs, although these differ in a number of respects.
In addition the Senate has before it bills which amend the SSI disability program and which also are aimed at removing disincentives for disabled persons to seek employment. S. 591, introduced by Senator Dole, with Senator Moynihan, Bentsen, Ribicoff, Cranston, Danforth, Schweicker, and Javits as cosponsors, provides for special benefit status for persons who are determined to have a severe medical disability but lose eligibility for regular SSI benefits because they begin performing substantial gainful activity (earning more than $280 a month). Eligibility for this special status would be limited to those who meet or equal the Social Security Administration's medical listings for disability, and would not include individuals who meet the definition of disability on the basis of vocational factors. Cash benefits would be the same as provided for regular SSI recipients, and would phase out at $481 a month (at current benefit levels). Persons would be eligible for medicare and social services up to this phaseout point, and could, depending on their particular circumstances, retain eligibility for medicare and social services beyond this level if they meet certain criteria provided in the bill.

The provisions for special benefit status for persons who meet or equal the medical listings are somewhat similar to temporary provisions approved by the Finance Committee in the 95th Congress (H.R. 12972). However, the 95th Congress legislation was aimed primarily at protecting medicare and social services eligibility for the severely disabled, and provided a special monthly payment of $10 a month rather than extending cash benefits on the same basis as for regular SSI recipients.

H.R. 3464, the Supplemental Security Income Amendments of 1979, as passed by the House is similarly aimed at assisting disabled individuals to undertake and continue employment. One of the major provisions of H.R. 3464 would expand current eligibility criteria for SSI recipients by changing the definition of what constitutes substantial gainful activity. The substantial gainful activity test for SSI eligibility would, in effect, be increased from its present level of $280 a month to a minimum of $481 for individuals ($689 in the case of a couple). Thus, an individual could be determined "not disabled" on the basis of his earnings only if they exceeded this amount. The SGA limit would be further increased by the cost of any impairment-related work expenses. The bill includes a number of other provisions affecting disabled SSI recipients, aimed both at encouraging a return to work and improved administration. The House-passed provisions are included in S. 1657, introduced by Senator Levin, with Senators Lugar, Durkin, Baucus, Hatch, Simpson, Sarbanes, Riegle, and Leahy as cosponsors. Identical provisions are included in a broader SSI bill, S. 1402, introduced by Senator Riegle.

(The Administration's draft disability bill referred to above also has provisions amending the SSI and medicare programs. These provisions generally are written so as to coordinate the DI and SSI programs with respect to the trial work period, eligibility for medical benefits, and preservation of beneficiary status.)

S. 1203, introduced by Senator Bayh, would amend title II to eliminate the waiting period for benefits in the case of individuals who are terminally ill.
A more detailed description of these bills is provided below:

B. H.R. 3236, THE DISABILITY INSURANCE AMENDMENTS OF 1979

The stated major purpose of the bill is "to provide better work incentives and improved accountability in the disability insurance program." The House Committee on Ways and Means observes in its report on H.R. 3236 that "Recent actuarial studies in both the public and private sector have indicated that high replacement ratios (the ratio of benefits to previous earnings) have constituted a major disincentive to disabled people in attempting rehabilitation or generally returning to the work force."

Limit on family benefit.—In order to provide greater incentives to work, the House bill provides for a so-called "cap" on family benefits. The bill would limit total DI family benefits to an amount equal to the smaller of 80 percent of a worker's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) or 150 percent of the worker's primary insurance amount (PIA). The 80 percent of AIME limitation has its major effect on wage earners at lower earnings levels; the 150 percent of PIA limitation would affect average and higher wage earners. Under the bill no family benefit would be reduced below 100 percent of the worker's primary benefit. The limitation would be effective only with respect to individuals becoming entitled to benefits on or after January 1, 1980, based on disabilities that began after calendar year 1978.

The 80 percent cap was adopted in response to the criticism that under present law family benefits often exceed 100 percent of a worker's average indexed monthly earnings. As the committee report points out, social security benefits are based on gross earnings, not earnings net of Federal and State taxes and work-related expenses. Thus, the 80 percent cap actually represents a higher percentage of "take-home" pay than would first appear.

The committee report argues that for workers at higher wage levels social security benefits should replace less than 80 percent of AIME. The reasons given are: at higher wage levels, concern for benefit adequacy is less, the likelihood of private supplementation is greater, and the discrepancy between gross earnings (upon which social security benefits are based) and predisability disposable earnings is greater than in the case of the lower paid worker. The 150 percent of PIA limitation is designed to produce family benefits for these higher paid workers that are less than 80 percent of AIME, with the percentage declining to about 50 percent of AIME at the highest earnings levels.

It is estimated that the limit on benefits would apply to 30 percent of newly entitled disabled workers. Seventy percent of those coming on the rolls do not have eligible dependents and thus would not be affected by the cap on family benefits. According to estimates, 123,000 disabled-worker families would be affected by the cap in the first year.

Reduction in dropout years.—Under current law, workers of all ages are allowed to exclude 5 years of low earnings in averaging their earnings for benefit purposes. In response to the argument that this gives an undue advantage to younger workers, the House bill provides for varying the number of dropout years according to the age of the worker. Under H.R. 3236, there would be no dropout years allowed for workers under age 27. The number of dropped years would gradually increase to 5, as under present law, for workers age 27 and over, as follows:

<table>
<thead>

</tbody>
</table>

In addition, the bill provides that if a worker provided principal care for a child under age 6 for more than 6 months in a calendar year that was a year of low earnings, that year could also be dropped (up to a total of 5 dropout years). This provision would become effective in January 1981. The Social Security Administration is directed to submit a report on how the provision would be implemented, with recommendations for any changes, by January 1, 1980.

Other provisions designed to encourage a return to work.—H.R. 3236 includes a number of provisions described in the report as being designed to “stimulate more disabled beneficiaries to return to work despite their impairments.” These are:

1. Permit a deduction of extraordinary impairment-related work expenses, attendant care costs, and the cost of medical devices, equipment, and drugs and services (necessary to control an impairment) from earnings for purposes of determining whether an individual is engaging in substantial gainful activity, regardless of whether these items are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions.

2. Extend the present 9-month trial work period to 24 months. In the last 12 months of the 24-month period the individual would not receive cash benefits, but could automatically be reinstated to active benefit status if a work attempt fails. The bill also provides that the same trial work period would be applicable to disabled widow(er)s. (Under present law, when the nine-month trial work period is completed, three additional months of benefits are provided. The bill does not alter this aspect of present law.)

3. Extend medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered. (The first 12 months of the 36-month period would be part of the new 24-month trial work period.) Under present law medicare coverage ends when cash benefits cease.

4. Eliminate the requirement that a person who becomes disabled a second time must undergo another 24-month waiting period before medicare coverage is available to him. This amendment would apply to workers becoming disabled again within 60 months, and to disabled widow(er)s and adults disabled since childhood becoming disabled again within 84 months. In addition, where a disabled individual was initially on the cash benefit rolls but for a period of less than 24 months, the months during which he received cash benefits would count for purposes of qualifying for medicare coverage if a subsequent disability occurred within the aforementioned time periods.
5. Authorize waiver of certain benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII (medicare) to allow demonstration projects by the Social Security Administration to test ways in which to stimulate a return to work by disability beneficiaries.

Administration by State agencies.—The House bill would eliminate the provision in present law which provides for disability determinations to be performed by State agencies under an agreement negotiated by the State and the Secretary of HEW. Instead, the bill would provide for disability determinations to be made by State agencies in accordance with standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary. It would require the Secretary to issue regulations specifying performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability function "in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States."

The bill also provides that if the Secretary finds that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations consistent with his regulations, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his finding, terminate State administration and make the determinations himself. In addition to providing for termination by the Secretary, the bill provides for termination by the State. The State is required to continue to make disability determinations for 180 days after notifying the Secretary of its intent to terminate. Thereafter, the Secretary would be required to make the determinations.

Federal review of State agency determinations.—The bill would have the effect, over time, of reinstating a review procedure used by SSA until 1972 under which most State disability allowances were reviewed prior to the payment of benefits. The bill provides for pre-adjudicative Federal review of at least 15 percent of allowances in fiscal year 1980, 35 percent in 1981, and 65 percent in years thereafter.

Periodic review of disability determinations.—Unless there has been a finding that an individual's disability is permanent, there would have to be a review of the case at least once every 3 years to determine continuing eligibility.

Claims and appeals procedures.—The bill includes a number of provisions relating to the adjudication and appeals process. These are:

1. Require that notices to claimants include a statement of the pertinent law and regulations, a list of the evidence of record, and the reasons upon which the disability determination is based.
2. Authorize the Secretary to pay all non-Federal providers for costs of supplying medical evidence of record in title II claims as is done in title XVI (SSI) claims.
3. Provide permanent authority for payment of the travel expenses of claimants (and their representatives in the case of reconsiderations and ALJ hearings) resulting from participation in various phases of the adjudication process.
4. Eliminate the provision in present law which requires that cases which have been appealed to the district court be remanded by the court to the Secretary upon motion by the Secretary. Instead, remand would be discretionary with the court, and only on motions of the Secretary where "good cause" was shown.

5. Continue the provision of present law which gives the court discretionary authority to remand cases to the Secretary, but add the requirement that remand for the purpose of taking new evidence be limited to cases in which there is a showing that there is new evidence which is material and that there was good cause for failure to incorporate it into the record in a prior proceeding.

6. Foreclose the introduction of new evidence with respect to an application after the decision is made at the administrative law judge hearing level. At the present time new evidence may be introduced until all levels of administrative review have been exhausted (through the Appeals Council).

7. Require the Secretary to submit a report to Congress by January 1, 1980, recommending appropriate case processing time limits for the various levels of adjudication.

Trust fund expenditures for rehabilitation.—Additional amendments are included which are intended to improve the effectiveness of rehabilitation services provided to DI beneficiaries by State vocational rehabilitation agencies. Present law authorizes an amount of up to 1.5 percent of disability insurance expenditures to be made available to rehabilitate title II beneficiaries under the beneficiary rehabilitation program. The House bill eliminates this special funding. The committee report justifies this change on the basis that the cost effectiveness of the provision has been questioned. The report cites a GAO study which estimated that for every $1 of rehabilitation expenditure, only $1.15 in savings is realized by the trust fund. The bill assumes that rehabilitation services for DI beneficiaries would be financed out of general revenues under the basic rehabilitation State grants program. However, it authorizes payment from the trust fund of a bonus to the States of an amount equal to twice the State share of the cost of services to DI beneficiaries which result in their performance of substantial gainful activity which lasts for a continuous period of 12 months, or which result in their employment for an equal period of time in a sheltered workshop. (The State share of the cost of rehabilitating individuals under the basic rehabilitation program is 20 percent.) This provision is intended to emphasize that the main purpose of trust fund expenditures for rehabilitation is to bring about benefit terminations.

Termination of benefits for persons in VR programs.—The House bill also provides that no DI beneficiary be terminated due to medical recovery if the beneficiary is participating in an approved VR program which the Social Security Administration determines will increase the likelihood that the beneficiary may be permanently removed from the disability rolls.

Cost estimates.—The following estimates of the effects of the bill have been provided by SSA actuaries. The estimates used are based on the so-called intermediate assumptions. The use of either the pessimistic or optimistic assumptions would produce different results.

C. Disability Insurance Reform Act of 1979, as Proposed by the Administration

The Administration's disability amendments are expressly aimed at targeting expenditures for disability insurance benefits "in a manner more specifically directed to achieve the purposes of the program," to remove disincentives for the disabled to engage in gainful activity, and to make administrative improvements. The draft bill would amend both title II (disability insurance) and title XVI (supplemental security income program) of the Social Security Act.

In the March 12, 1979, letter to the Congress which accompanied the Administration's draft disability bill, the Secretary of HEW stated that "The cost of the disability insurance program has grown in the last decade and serious and legitimate questions about the wage replacement rate feature of the benefit structure continue to be voiced. Since the inception of the disability insurance program in 1956, disability insurance (DI) and old-age and survivors insurance (OASI) benefits have been calculated using the same formula. One result has been that, for a significant minority of the caseload, that rate at which benefits replace wages is extremely high; approximately 16 percent of the disability caseload has wage replacement rates in excess of 80 percent of disposable earnings, and for 6 percent that rate exceeds 100 percent."

Limit on family benefit.—In response to this criticism, the Administration bill provides for a "cap" on family benefits. There would be a limit of 80 percent of the individual's average indexed monthly earnings (AIME) as the maximum amount of total benefits that could be paid to the family (the individual and his dependents) on the basis of the worker's earnings record. (The House bill provides for the smaller of 80 percent of AIME or 150 percent of the primary insurance amount (PIA)). Current law, which would remain unchanged for those entitled to old-age and survivors insurance benefits, has higher limits. The provision would be effective only with respect to individuals becoming entitled to benefits after August 1979, based on disabilities that began after calendar year 1978.

Reduction in dropout years.—Under current law, workers of all ages are allowed to exclude 5 years of low earnings in averaging their earnings for benefit purposes. The Administration's bill, like the House bill, provides for varying the number of dropout years according to the age of the worker. Under both proposals, there would be no dropout years allowed for workers under age 27. The number of dropped years would gradually increase to 5, as under present law, for workers age 27 and over. In presenting this proposal, the Administration observed that "The proposal would bring the benefits of young disabled workers more into line with those provided to older workers." It would apply to workers becoming disabled after 1978, and entitled for months after August 1978.

Other provisions designed to encourage a return to work.—The Administration's proposal includes a number of provisions designed to eliminate disincentives to engage in substantial gainful activity and encourage a return to work. A number of these are similar or identical to provisions in H.R. 3236, as reported by the Ways and Means Committee (although H.R. 3236 omits any provisions affecting the SSI and medicaid programs):
1. Eliminate the requirement that a person who becomes disabled a second time must undergo another 24-month waiting period before Medicare coverage is available to him. This amendment would apply to workers becoming disabled again within 60 months, and to disabled widow(er)s and adults disabled since childhood becoming disabled again within 84 months. In addition, where a disabled individual was initially on the cash benefit rolls but for a period of less than 24 months, the months during which he received cash benefits would count for purposes of qualifying for Medicare coverage if a subsequent disability occurred within the aforementioned time period.

2. Extend the present 9-month trial work period to 24 months. In the last 12 months of the 24-month period the individual would not receive cash benefits, but could automatically be reinstated to active benefit status if a work attempt fails. The bill also provides that the same trial work period would be applicable to disabled widow(er)s. (See description of this provision in H.R. 3236.)

3. Extend Medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered. Under present law, Medicare coverage ends when cash benefits cease.

4. Provide that the extension of the trial work period, described in (2) above, would also apply to persons receiving benefits under the SSI program.

5. Provide for an extension of Medicaid coverage for SSI recipients for an additional 36 months, under the same circumstances as are applicable to DI beneficiaries in (3) above.

6. Require that in determining whether an individual's earnings constitute substantial gainful activity, there must be excluded amounts spent by the individual for attendant care, or other items or services that he needs, because of his impairment, to engage in gainful activity. If care or services necessary to enable him to work are furnished without cost to him the Secretary will specify the amount of the deduction with respect to that care or service that is to be made for purposes of determining ability to engage in SGA. The same amounts are to be excluded for DI and SSI in the case of a person receiving benefits under both programs. These amounts are to be excluded even though the care or service may also be necessary to enable the individual to carry out his normal daily functions. The bill also provides the same exclusion for applicants and recipients under Title XVI for purposes of determining SGA. In addition, if the blind or disabled individual pays the costs of these services or items himself, these amounts will be deducted in determining the amount of the SSI benefit. The Secretary is directed to prescribe the types of work-related expenses that may be deducted, and to set limits on the amounts of the deductions.

7. Require the Secretary to review the above amendments and report to the Congress, after 5 years, concerning their effectiveness in encouraging disabled individuals to return to substantial gainful activity.

Administration by State agencies.—The Administration bill, like the House bill, would eliminate the provision in present law which provides for disability determinations to be performed by State agencies under an agreement negotiated by the State and the Secretary of HEW. Instead, the provisions of the Administration's bill, which were adopted by the House, would provide for disability determinations to be made by State agencies in accordance with standards and criteria contained in regulations or other written guidelines of the Secretary. It would require the Secretary to issue regulations specifying performance standards and administrative requirements and procedures to be followed in performing the disability function "in order to assure effective and uniform administration of the disability insurance program throughout the United States."

The bill also provides that if the Secretary finds that a State agency is substantially failing to make disability determinations consistent with his regulations, the Secretary shall, not earlier than 180 days following his finding, terminate State administration and make the determinations himself. In addition to providing for termination by the Secretary, the bill provides for termination by the State. The State is required to continue to make disability determinations for 180 days after notifying the Secretary of its intent to terminate. Thereafter, the Secretary would be required to make the determinations.

Federal review of State agency decisions.—The Administration's bill would allow the Secretary to review and revise State agency disability determinations to make the findings either more or less favorable to the claimant. Under present law, the Secretary may review only allowances, and not denials.

Limit on introduction of new evidence.—The Administration's bill (like H.R. 3236) would amend present law to foreclose the introduction of new evidence with respect to an application after the decision is made at the administrative law judge hearing level. At the present time new evidence may be introduced until all levels of administrative review have been exhausted (through the Appeals Council).

Research and Demonstration projects.—The Administration's bill contains provisions similar to those in the SSI and DI bills approved by the House which would authorize the Secretary to waive certain requirements under titles II, XVI, and XVIII in order to carry out experimental or demonstration projects.

Judicial review.—Under the Administration's bill the Secretary's determinations with respect to facts would be final; court review would be limited to questions of statutory and constitutional interpretation. Present law provides that the findings of the Secretary as to any fact, if supported by substantial evidence, shall be conclusive. The Administration's bill would delete the substantial evidence requirement. This would apply to decisions under both the DI and SSI programs.

Deeming of parents' income to disabled or blind children.—For purposes of SSI eligibility determination, the "deeming" of parents' income would be limited to disabled or blind children under age 18 regardless of student status. This provision is similar to one adopted by the Finance Committee in H.R. 7200, 95th Congress, and to a provision in H.R. 3464, as passed by the House in the 96th Congress. However, the House bill also provides that those individuals through 21 who are receiving benefits at the time of enactment would be protected against loss of benefits due to this change.
S. 591 amends title XVI (the supplemental security income program) with respect to benefits for disabled recipients who have earnings from gainful employment. The purpose of the bill is to assist severely handicapped individuals to undertake and continue employment.

Benefits for individuals who perform substantial gainful activity despite severe medical impairment.—Under present law an individual qualifies for SSI disability payments only if he is "unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months." The Secretary of HEW is required to prescribe the criteria for determining when services performed or earnings derived from employment demonstrate an individual's ability to engage in substantial gainful activity (SGA). For 1979, the level of earnings established by the Secretary for determining whether an individual is engaging in substantial gainful activity is $280 a month. Thus, when an individual has earnings (following a 9-month trial work period) which exceed this amount, he loses eligibility for cash benefits, and may also lose eligibility for medicaid and social services.

S. 591 provides 'that for persons who are determined to have a severe medical disability, but cease to be eligible for regular SSI benefits because they are performing substantial gainful activity, special benefits could be paid until earnings reach the SSI breakeven point, $481 a month. These special benefits would be paid only to those who are determined to meet or equal the social security disability medical listings, without regard to consideration of vocational factors (such as age, education, or work experience). The amount of the special cash benefits would be reduced as earnings increase. Persons who received these special benefits would be eligible for medicaid and social services on the same basis as regular SSI beneficiaries. States would have the option of supplementing the special Federal benefits.

The bill also would allow continuation of medicaid and social services beyond the breakeven point ($481) if the Secretary of HEW determined that the termination of eligibility for these benefits would seriously inhibit the individual's ability to continue his employment, and if his earnings were not sufficient to allow him to provide for himself a reasonable equivalent of the cash and other benefits that would be available to him in the absence of earnings.

This provision is similar to a temporary provision approved by the committee in 1978 in H.R. 12972. However, H.R. 12972 limited the cash benefit to $10 a month and was aimed primarily at preserving eligibility for medicaid and social services.

Exclusion of certain work expenses in determining SGA.—S. 591 includes a provision, similar to provisions in the House-passed bills, H.R. 3236 and H.R. 3464, which require that in determining whether an individual is performing substantial gainful activity, there shall be excluded the cost of attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, or prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or other routine medical care and services) which are necessary in order for the individual to work, whether or not these items are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions. S. 591 specifies, in addition, that the Secretary of HEW shall determine those items and services which may be excluded under this provision.

Presumptive disability.—The bill allows a person who was once disabled for purposes of either title II or title XVI to be considered presumptively disabled if he leaves the rolls as a result of performing substantial gainful activity, but reapplies for benefits within a 5-year period. Benefits paid to a person who was subsequently determined not to be disabled would be subject to recovery.

Earned income in sheltered workshops.—Under the bill, earnings received in sheltered workshops and work activities centers would be considered as earned income, rather than unearned income for purposes of determining SSI benefits. This would assure that individuals with earnings from these kinds of activities would have the advantage of the earned income disregards provided in law for earnings from regular employment. The committee approved an identical provision in H.R. 7200, 95th Congress.

Cost estimates.—CBO has estimated the cost of the bill to be $5 million in fiscal year 1980, increasing to $11 million the following year as the provisions are fully implemented.

E. H.R. 12972, 95TH CONGRESS, AS REPORTED BY THE COMMITTEE ON FINANCE

Benefits for individuals who perform substantial gainful activity despite severe medical impairment.—As described under S. 591, present law provides that an individual who has earnings of $280 a month or more loses eligibility for SSI benefits, regardless of his impairment. This is the dollar amount of earnings considered under present regulations to constitute "substantial gainful activity," which is the basic test for whether an individual is disabled. Under the bill reported by the committee last year, a severely medically disabled individual (who meets or equals the Social Security Administration's medical listings) who loses his eligibility for regular SSI benefits because of performance of substantial gainful activity would become eligible for a special $10 monthly benefit. Eligibility for the benefit would be considered to be the same as eligibility for SSI for purposes of maintaining the individual's medical and social services coverage.

The special SSI benefit and the concomitant eligibility for other programs would continue until the individual's earnings reached the point at which his benefit amount would have been reduced to zero under the regular benefit computation formula ($481 at the present time). When the severely disabled individual's income exceeded the amount which would cause a regular benefit to be reduced to zero, the special benefit would be terminated unless the Secretary found (1) that the termination of the cash benefits and the loss of medicaid and social services eligibility would make it impossible for the individual to retain his employment; and (2) that the individual's earnings did not provide at least an equivalent of the combined benefits he would otherwise receive from the SSI, medicaid, and social services programs.

Disregard of attendant care costs in determining SGA.—The bill provides that if an individual has a functional limitation which requires that he have personal assistance in order to work, the amount which he must pay for attendant care will be disregarded in determining whether his earnings constitute substantial gainful activity. This disregard will apply even if the attendant care is necessary to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions.

The above provisions were to be implemented on a trial basis, expiring at the end of three years.

Cost estimate.—CBO estimated outlays of $1 million in the first year of the bill (fiscal year 1979), $2 million in the second year, and $3 million in the third year.

F. H.R. 3464, Supplemental Security Income Amendments of 1979, as Passed by the House

H.R. 3464 amends title XVI (the supplemental security income program) with respect to disabled recipients who have earnings from gainful employment. The stated major purpose of the bill is to assist disabled individuals to undertake and continue employment.

The determination of substantial gainful activity.—As described under S. 591, present law provides that an individual who has earnings of $280 a month or more loses eligibility for SSI benefits, regardless of his impairment. This is the dollar amount of earnings considered under present regulations to constitute "substantial gainful activity," which is the basic test for whether an individual is disabled.

Under H.R. 3464 an individual could be found "not disabled" on the basis of his earnings capacity only if he were unable to earn as much as $481 for a single individual, and $690 for an eligible couple. (Any future automatic cost-of-living increases in the Federal SSI benefit would automatically increase the current basic SGA amounts.) These amounts would be further increased by the amount of any impairment-related work expenses. Thus the SGA level would vary from individual to individual depending on his impairment-related work expenses and on his marital status. A single individual with monthly expenses of $150 would have an SGA level of $631 a month or $7,572 a year. If this same individual had an eligible spouse his SGA level would be $840 a month or $10,080 a year.

The effect of H.R. 3464 is to modify the SSI definition of disability by changing the definition of what constitutes substantial gainful activity. For individuals with severe disabilities which meet or equal SSA's medical listings, or who qualify on the basis of vocational factors, the increase in the SGA level would permit them to obtain employment at a higher level of earnings than is now possible without losing their entitlement to SSI benefits. It would also permit initial eligibility for any such severely disabled individuals who are not now eligible because they are, in fact, performing work at levels above the level of substantial gainful activity.

The determination of the benefit amount.—Present law provides that in determining eligibility for and the amount of SSI benefits, there shall be excluded the first $65 of monthly earnings, plus 50 percent of earnings above this amount. The $65 a month exclusion was established as a standard amount to take account of work expenses of all aged, blind and disabled recipients with earnings. These disregard provisions have the effect of establishing a Federal SSI breakeven point of $481 for an individual and $690 for an eligible couple. If an aged or disabled individual (or couple) has earnings above the breakeven point, he is not eligible for any Federal benefit. However, blind recipients are, in addition, entitled to a disregard of individual itemized amounts spent as work expenses. This provision has the effect of raising the breakeven point for blind persons who have work expenses, thus increasing the amount of earnings that a blind individual may have and still retain SSI eligibility.

H.R. 3464 provides that, for the disabled, a standard work-related expense disregard equal to 20 percent of gross earnings would be allowed in determining the monthly SSI payment. In addition, impairment-related work expenses which are paid for by the individual would be disregarded. For purposes of determining the benefit amount, amounts of earnings would be disregarded as follows: (1) the first $65 of monthly earnings, (2) 20 percent of gross earnings, (3) impairment-related work expenses paid for by the individual, and (4) 50 percent of any remaining monthly earnings.

Disability status without SSI payments and presumptive disability determination.—Under H.R. 3464, a disabled SSI recipient would be allowed to retain disability status, without receiving SSI payments, for 12 months following termination of SSI benefits due to earnings in excess of the SGA limit. During this 12 month period, a person could immediately requalify for SSI payments if necessary because of a loss of or reduction in earnings. This 12 month period during which the individual would maintain disability status without SSI payments would follow the 9 month “trial work period,” plus the 3 months allowed before actual termination of payments, provided under present law.

In addition, a person who loses title II (disability insurance) or SSI disability status due to earnings in excess of the SGA limit would be considered presumptively disabled if he reappplies for SSI benefits within four years following the loss of disability status. Such an individual would begin receiving SSI payments immediately upon a determination that he meets the income and assets tests and would continue to receive benefits unless and until it was determined that the disability requirements were not met.

In addition to the changes in the SSI disability program, the bill contains the following provisions:

SSI Demonstration Projects.—The Secretary of HEW would be authorized to conduct experimental, pilot or demonstration projects which, in his judgment, are likely to promote the objectives or improve the administration of the SSI program. The Secretary, however, would not be authorized to carry out any project that would result in a substantial reduction in any individual’s total income and resources as a result of his participation in the project. The Secretary could not require any individual to participate in a project and would have to assure that the voluntary participation of individuals in any project is obtained through an informed written consent agreement which satisfies requirements established by the Secretary. The Secretary would also have to assure that any individual could revoke at any time his voluntary agreement to participate.

Deeming of Parents’ Income to Disabled or Blind Children.—For purposes of SSI eligibility determination, the “deeming” of parents’ income would be limited to disabled or blind children under 18 regardless of student status. Those individuals through 21 who are receiving benefits at the time of enactment would be protected against loss of benefits due to this change.
Decision Notices for SSI Applicants.—The Secretary of HEW would be required to provide SSI applicants with a decision notice containing a citation of the pertinent law and regulations, a summary of the evidence, and the reasons for the decision on their application.

SSI Payments During Participation in Rehabilitation Program.—An SSI beneficiary could not be terminated due to medical recovery while he is participating in an approved vocational rehabilitation program which the Social Security Administration determines will increase the likelihood that the person may be permanently removed from the disability benefit rolls.

Cost estimates.—According to the Congressional Budget Office, outlays for SSI and medicaid benefits under the House bill would be increased by $7 million in fiscal year 1980 (the bill becomes effective only in the last quarter of the year), increasing to $63 million in 1981, $118 million in 1982, $149 million in 1983, and $158 million in 1985. Most of these costs are attributable to the increase in the SGA level. In submitting its estimate for H.R. 3464, the Congressional Budget Office cited the problems it had in developing the estimate, noting "paucity of information" and difficulty in predicting behavioral response of either recipients or administrators. It cautioned that under certain circumstances "the cost estimates here could be significantly understated." The CBO statement which is included in the Ways and Means Committee Report on H.R. 3464 is quoted here in full:

Cost estimates involving disability determinations are difficult and seldom precise. There is a paucity of information available on current disabled recipients and even less information is available on the potentially eligible recipients. In addition, it is difficult to predict the behavioral response of either recipients or administrators. This cost estimate has made no adjustment for three potentially important factors because of lack of detailed information on which to base an adjustment. First, no adjustment has been made to reduce costs because of increased work response of current recipients to the increased work incentives provided in this bill. Second, no decreased work response has been calculated for those who might work less in an attempt to become eligible for either SSI or disability insurance. Finally, the estimate implicitly assumes no change in the medical or vocational factors currently used to determine disability. If the medical listings or vocational factors are liberalized as a result of the increase in the SGA limit, the costs estimated here could be significantly understated. (p. 38)

In addition to the difficulty of estimating the direct costs of the provision for the SSI program, there is also a question of its impact on the title II disability insurance program. While H.R. 3464 changes the meaning of "substantial gainful activity" only with respect to the SSI program, the same term is used—without legislative definition—in the title II program. Apart from the costs which would be involved if the Department found it necessary or desirable to modify the title II meaning of that term to conform to that in H.R. 3464, the actuarial office of the Social Security Administration estimates some spillover impact on the costs of that program, as is indicated in the memorandum below.

SEPT. 26, 1979.

MEMORANDUM FROM FRANCISCO R. BAYO, DEPUTY CHIEF ACTUARY, SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION, ON EFFECT OF H.R. 3464 ON DI COSTS

H.R. 3464 (Corman bill), which modifies the substantial gainful activity (SGA) amount for title XVI (SSI), will have a significant effect on DI costs. There are two reasons for this. The first is that some workers who are impaired enough to qualify under the definition of disability in present law but who nevertheless have not applied for benefits can more easily become entitled to DI benefits under the bill. The second reason is that the proposed change in the SGA concept for the SSI program implies a liberalization of the definition of disability for that program, which will ultimately also affect the definition of disability for the DI program.

With respect to the first reason, we think that under present law there is a significant number of workers who have not applied for disability benefits even though they are impaired enough to be found disabled. Their current earnings are substantially above the present law SGA levels, and they are not sure that their impairment is severe enough for them to qualify for benefits if their earnings were lower. Under present law, in order to become entitled to disability benefits, these individuals would have to leave their jobs (which they might be unable to get back) and file an application for benefits (which as far as they know could be denied). It is our opinion that many of them perceive the financial risks of trying to become entitled to benefits as being too high and prefer to continue working even though they are highly impaired.

The bill, with its proposed changes in SGA, would allow a large portion of these workers to apply and become eligible to SSI disability benefits with little or no change in their work or earnings patterns. Once these workers are eligible to receive SSI disability benefits their perception about their own situation could change significantly. They will recognize that there is little financial risk in allowing their earnings to drop since they are assured that a large portion of the drop in their earnings will be replaced by the SSI program. For some, their earnings will eventually drop enough for them to qualify under the DI program. Of those, there are some who will become entitled earlier than under present law, and there are others who under present law would not have become entitled to DI benefits at any time. Therefore, some DI costs will be generated by the bill that would not be incurred under present law.

With respect to the second reason we think that there are two important ideas that need to be understood. One is that the SGA concept is an integral part of the definition of disability. There are many who erroneously translate the SGA concept into the idea of “allowable earnings”. However, the SGA dollar level was developed and is primarily applied under present law as an administrative tool that assists in the determination of whether a person is or is not disabled. In addition, many people erroneously equate disability with an impairment. However, the definition of disability requires first an inability to engage in substantial gainful activity (SGA) and second that such inability be due to an impairment. Therefore, a change in what constitutes SGA is clearly a fundamental change in the definition of disability. Consequently, since the bill proposes a change in the SGA concept for SSI, it is also proposing a change in the definition of disability for SSI.

The second idea which needs to be understood is that the SGA concepts and the definitions of disability under the SSI and DI programs are highly interrelated. To date, the same adjudicators have administered both programs in the same way and have applied the same definition of disability. Under the bill, the situation will still be the same, except that the SGA concepts and hence the definitions of disability under the two programs will be different. We see this as posing a practical problem in the administration of the programs. Although we are not sure how this will be resolved, our best judgment is that the liberalizations in the SSI program under the bill will lead to a more liberal DI program, which will result in additional DI costs.

Although no one can exactly predict how many individuals will be affected or what their additional DI benefits will be, on the basis of our judgment we estimate that the average long-range cost of the DI program will increase by 0.05 percent of taxable payroll (based on 1979 trustees reports intermediate assumptions). This would be equivalent to about $500 million in calendar year 1979. Most of this increase in costs is estimated to be due to the first reason stated above. We are assuming that only small additional costs will arise due to the practical side effect of the liberalization of the definition of disability in the DI program. These small additional costs that are estimated are based on the assumption that the application of the definition of disability in the DI program will be carefully monitored. If not carefully monitored, there would be very large cost impact on the DI program. For example, if the modifications proposed in the bill were to be made applicable to DI the long-range program cost would increase by at least 0.70 percent of taxable payroll. This would be equivalent to at least $7 billion in calendar year 1979.

G. S. 603, Introduced by Senators Javits, Stafford, Chafee, Schweiker, and Hayakawa

S. 603 is aimed at preserving medicaid eligibility for persons who are severely disabled but do not meet the requirements for disability benefits under the SSI program because they are performing substantial gainful activity.

Specifically, the bill would amend title XIX to allow States to provide coverage under medicaid for "severely disabled individuals who meet such criteria of medical severity of disability as the Secretary shall prescribe in regulations, notwithstanding such individuals' performance of 'substantial gainful activity' within the meaning of title XVI . . . " No cost estimate is available.

H. S. 1203, INTRODUCED BY SENATOR BAYH

S. 1203 would amend the title II disability insurance program to provide that the waiting period for disability benefits shall not be applicable in the case of an individual suffering from a terminal illness. Present law requires a 5-month waiting period before benefits may be payable.

Under the bill, terminal illness would be defined as "a medically determinable physical impairment which is expected to result in the death of such individual within the next 12 months." The amendment would be effective with regard to applications made after the enactment of the bill, or before the month of enactment (1) if notice of the final decision of eligibility for disability has not yet been given to the applicant, or (2) if the case has been appealed to a U.S. district court.

The cost of this bill is discussed in the following memorandum of the Social Security actuary's office:

MEMORANDUM FROM STEVE GOSS, OFFICE OF THE ACTUARY, SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION ON EFFECT OF ELIMINATING THE DI WAITING PERIOD FOR THE TERNIMA LLY ILL

Senator Birch Bayh has drafted a bill that will eliminate the 5 month waiting period for disabled workers who are "terminally ill." Terminal illness is defined as "a medically determinable physical impairment which is expected to result in death . . . within the next 12 months."

The bill does not specify whether death must be expected to occur within 12 months of onset of disability or within 12 months of the disability determination. For the purpose of the cost estimates that follow in this note, it is assumed that death must be expected to occur within 12 months of onset of disability.

Due to the difficulty involved in predicting whether an illness will result in premature death, especially within a limited time of 12 months or less, the level of accuracy of determinations of terminal illness cannot be expected to be very good. It is expected that many persons will be found reasonably likely to die within 12 months of onset who will in fact survive the year. Similarly many persons will die within 12 months of onset who will not have been expected to do so. For persons who die unexpectedly, retroactive payments will be made for the up to 5 waiting period months during which they will actually have been entitled under this provision. However, it is assumed that for persons who survive unexpectedly, no return of benefits for the five months during which they were not entitled will be required.

The long-range DI program cost for this bill as drafted is estimated at .03 percent of taxable payroll. However, if benefits for the waiting period months are only paid retrospectively following the death of the disabled worker when death occurs within 12 months of his onset date, the long-range DI cost is estimated at .01 percent of taxable payroll. These estimates are based on the intermediate assumptions of the 1979 trustees reports.

I. S. 1643, INTRODUCED BY SENATOR DURENBERGER

S. 1643 includes the following provisions designed to encourage disabled title II beneficiaries to return to work despite their impairments. These provisions would:

1. Permit a deduction of extraordinary impairment-related work expenses, attendant care costs, and the cost of medical devices, equipment, and drugs and services (necessary to control an impairment) from earnings for purposes of determining whether an individual is engaging in substantial gainful activity, regardless of whether these items are also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions.

2. Extend the present 9-month trial work period to 24 months. In the last 12 months of the 24-month period the individual would not receive cash benefits, but could automatically be reinstated to active benefit status if a work attempt fails. The bill also provides that the same trial work period would be applicable to disabled widow(er)s. (Under present law, when the nine-month trial work period is completed, three additional months of benefits are provided. The bill does not alter this aspect of present law.)

3. Extend medicare coverage for an additional 36 months after cash benefits cease for a worker who is engaging in substantial gainful activity but has not medically recovered. (The first 12 months of the 36-month period would be part of the new 24-month trial work period.) Under present law medicare coverage ends when cash benefits cease.

4. Eliminate the requirement that a person who becomes disabled a second time must undergo another 24-month waiting period before medicare coverage is available to him. This amendment would apply to workers becoming disabled again within 60 months, and to disabled widow(er)s and adults disabled since childhood becoming disabled again within 84 months. In addition, where a disabled individual was initially on the cash benefit rolls but for a period of less than 24 months, the months during which he received cash benefits would count for purposes of qualifying for medicare coverage if a subsequent disability occurred within the aforementioned time periods.

5. Authorize waiver of certain benefit requirements of titles II and XVIII (medicare) to allow demonstration projects by the Social Security Administration to test ways in which to stimulate a return to work by disability beneficiaries.
