

Notice of Decision – Partially Favorable

I carefully reviewed the facts of your case and made the enclosed partially favorable decision. Please read this notice and my decision.

Another office will process my decision [the following language will be included only for Title XVI or concurrent claims: and decide if you meet the non-disability requirements for Supplemental Security Income payments]. That office may ask you for more information. If you do not hear anything within 60 days of the date of this notice, please contact your local office. The contact information for your local office is at the end of this notice.

If You Disagree With My Decision

If you disagree with my decision, you may file an appeal with the Appeals Council. This notice will explain how to file an appeal.

Special Review Procedures Under the Padro et al. v. Astrue Class-Action Settlement

On [date of final approval], the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York approved a settlement in the class-action lawsuit Padro et al. v. Astrue. This lawsuit challenged decisions on disability claims made by certain administrative law judges.

Under the settlement agreement, if you appeal my decision, my decision will be reviewed using special review procedures. These special review procedures include: (1) assigning your claim to be reviewed by a specified group of staff at the Appeals Council, and (2) if your claim is returned for a new hearing and decision, it will not be assigned to me but instead will be assigned to an administrative law judge who was not involved in the Padro et al. v. Astrue class-action lawsuit. We call these special review procedures “Padro review.” If you appeal my decision, we will apply these procedures unless you write and tell us you do not want Padro review. If you do not want Padro review, you must tell us when you file your appeal.

How to File an Appeal

To file an appeal you or your representative must ask in writing that the Appeals Council review my decision. You may use our Request for Review form (HA-520) or write a letter. The form is available at www.socialsecurity.gov. Please put the Social Security number shown above on any appeal you file. Please also refer to the Padro et al. v. Astrue settlement. If you file an appeal, we will assume that you want Padro review unless you tell us you do not. If you need help, you may file in person at any Social Security or hearing office.

Please send your request to:

Appeals Council
Office of Disability Adjudication and Review
Padro Staff
5107 Leesburg Pike
Falls Church, VA 22041-3255

Time Limit to File an Appeal

You must file your written appeal within 60 days of the date you get this notice. The Appeals Council assumes you got the notice 5 days after the date shown above unless you show you did not get it within the 5-day period.

The Appeals Council will dismiss a late request unless you show you had a good reason for not filing it on time.

If You Tell Us You Do Not Want Padro Review

If you appeal and tell us that you do not want Padro review, the settlement relief and limitations will not apply to you. You will have the right to appeal as if there were no class-action settlement.

This will mean that (1) your claim may not be assigned to a specified group of staff at the Appeals Council, and (2) if your claim is returned for a new hearing and decision, it may be assigned to me or to one of the other administrative law judges who were involved in the Padro et al. v. Astrue class-action lawsuit.

What Else You May Send Us

You [the following language will be included only if the claimant is represented: or your representative] may send us a written statement about your case. You may also send us new evidence. You should send your written statement and any new evidence with your appeal. Sending your written statement and any new evidence with your appeal may help us review your case sooner.

How an Appeal Works

The Appeals Council will consider your entire case. It will consider all of my decision, even the parts with which you agree. Review can make any part of my decision more or less favorable or unfavorable to you.

Under the terms of the Padro et al. v. Astrue settlement, we will assign your case to a specified group of staff within the Appeals Council if you appeal. We will do this unless you tell us you do not want Padro review. This staff will use the same rules for considering your case that would apply if you tell us you do not want Padro review. The rules the Appeals Council uses are in the Code of Federal Regulations, Title 20, Chapter III, Part 404 (Subpart J) and Part 416 (Subpart N).

You must appeal my decision if you want us to assign your case to a specified group of staff within the Appeals Council.

The Appeals Council may:

- Deny your appeal,
- Return your case to me if you decline Padro review, or, if you accept Padro review, return your case to another administrative law judge for a new decision,
- Issue its own decision, or
- Dismiss your case.

The Appeals Council will send you a notice telling you what it decides to do.

Under the terms of the Padro et al. v. Astrue settlement, if the Appeals Council returns your case for a new decision, your case will be assigned to an administrative law judge who was not involved in the Padro et al. v. Astrue class-action lawsuit. Any subsequent hearing will be conducted by that other administrative law judge.

If you tell us you do not want Padro review, and the Appeals Council returns your case for a new decision, your case may be assigned to me or to another administrative law judge who was involved in the class-action lawsuit. If the Appeals Council denies your appeal, my decision will become the final decision.

You must appeal my decision if you want a new hearing and decision to be made by an administrative law judge who was not involved in the Padro et al. v. Astrue class action lawsuit should the Appeals Council grant review and remand your case.

The Appeals Council May Review My Decision On Its Own

The Appeals Council may review my decision even if you do not appeal. They may decide to review my decision within 60 days after the date of the decision. The Appeals Council will mail you a notice of review if they decide to review my decision.

When There Is No Appeals Council Review

If you do not appeal and the Appeals Council does not review my decision on its own, my decision will become final. A final decision can be changed only under special circumstances. You will not have the right to Federal court review.

[The following language will be included only if the claimant is unrepresented:

Your Right to Representation

You may choose to have an attorney or other person help you. Many representatives do not charge a fee unless you win your appeal. Groups are available to help you find a representative or, if you qualify, to give you free legal services. Your local Social Security office has a list of groups that can help you in this process.

If you get someone to help you with your appeal, you or that person must let the Appeals Council know. If you hire someone, we must approve the fee before he or she is allowed to collect it.]

New Application

You have the right to file a new application at any time, but filing a new application is not the same as appealing this decision. If you disagree with my decision and you file a new application instead of appealing, you might lose some benefits or not qualify for benefits at all. My decision could also be used to deny a new application for benefits if the facts and issues are the same. If you disagree with my decision, you should file an appeal within 60 days.
