

With you through life's journey...

Securing today
and tomorrow

Social Security is much more than a retirement program, we provide financial benefits, information, and tools to help you secure today and tomorrow. With retirement, disability, and survivors benefits, we improve the quality of life for millions throughout life's journey.

We're With You from Birth

Most parents apply for a child's Social Security number at birth, usually through the hospital. When the time comes for that first job, the number is already in place.

A fun byproduct of assigning Social Security numbers at birth is that we know the most popular baby names, which we announce each year. On our website, you can find the top baby names for the last 100 years.

We're With You When You Start Work

Your employer verifies your Social Security number with us at every new job. Doing so helps reduce fraud and improves the accuracy of your earnings records.

Employers collect FICA, or Federal Insurance Contribution Act withholdings, and report earnings electronically. This is how we track your earnings and is how you earn Social Security retirement, disability, and survivors coverage for you and your family. A worker earns up to four Social Security credits each year and needs 40 credits, or 10 years of work, to qualify for retirement benefits.

Visit ssa.gov/myaccount to sign-in or create a my Social Security account to verify your earnings and see an estimate of your benefits throughout your career and into retirement.

We're There for Your Wedding

Marriage is the start of a new chapter in your life. For some, a part of that new life is a new name.

If you legally change your name due to marriage, divorce, or any other reason, let us know so you can get an updated Social Security card — and so we can accurately keep track of your earnings. There's no charge for a Social Security card. ssa.gov/number-card

We're There to Help if Disability Strikes

Disability benefits provide modest coverage for severely disabled workers and their dependents, including our wounded warriors.

One in four of today's 20-year-olds will become disabled before they retire.

We're There to Provide Comfort During Difficult Times

The loss of a loved one can be both emotionally and financially difficult.

Some widows, widowers, and children may receive survivors benefits to help them cope with the financial loss.

The number of credits needed to provide benefits for survivors depends on the worker's age when he or she dies.

Unmarried children who are under age 18 (up to age 19 if attending elementary or secondary school full time) can be eligible to receive Social Security benefits when a parent dies.

We Wouldn't Miss Your Retirement Party

When most people think of Social Security, they think of retirement benefits — with good reason.

Social Security is a lifeline for most retirees, keeping tens of millions out of poverty. As you get closer to retirement or starting your next chapter, open a my Social Security account to estimate your future benefits at different ages when you may want to start receiving benefits. Lastly, when you are ready to retire, avoid the wait, visit ssa.gov/retirement and retire online.

The Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program is a different program that provides monthly payments to adults and children with a disability or blindness who have income and resources below specific financial limits. U.S. Treasury general funds, not the Social Security trust funds, pay for SSI.

You Can Count on Us to Be There

Social Security has two trust funds — Old-Age and Survivors Insurance (OASI) and Disability Insurance (DI). Historically, the OASI and DI Trust Funds have reached times where dedicated tax revenue fell short of the cost of providing benefits and also times where the trust funds have reached the brink of exhaustion of assets. However, Congress approved the Social Security Amendments of 1977 and 1983, which made substantial modifications that reversed the cash flow of the program to positive levels and caused the substantial buildup of assets that exists today.

Social Security has always changed to meet the needs of the people we serve and will continue to help support you and your family.
