

Securing today
and tomorrow

Disability Benefits for Wounded Warriors

SSA.gov

What's inside

Introduction 1

What types of benefits can I receive? 1

What is Social Security's definition of disability? 2

Can I receive benefits for a past disability if my health has improved? 2

How does military pay affect eligibility for disability benefits? 4

How do I apply? 4

What information do I need? 5

How does Social Security make the determination? 6

How long does it take? 6

What can I do to speed up the determination? 7

Can my family get benefits? 7

When do I get
Medicare coverage? 8

How does Medicare affect my TRICARE?	8
What if I remain on active duty?	10
What should I know about working?	11
Do I need to report my work activity?	12
What happens next?	13
What are the work incentives?	14
Contacting Us	16

Introduction

Military service members can receive expedited processing of disability claims from Social Security. Benefits available through us are different from those available through the Department of Veterans Affairs and require a separate application.

The expedited process is used for military service members whose disability occurred while on active military duty on or after October 1, 2001. This process applies regardless of where the disability occurs.

What types of benefits can I receive?

We pay disability benefits through 2 programs. The Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) program pays benefits to you and certain members of your family if you are “insured.” This means that you worked long enough and paid Social Security taxes. The Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program makes payments based on financial need.

The rest of this booklet is about the SSDI program. Other helpful publications also are available online at www.ssa.gov/people/veterans.

What is Social Security's definition of disability?

By law, we have a very strict definition of disability:

- You must be unable to do substantial work because of your medical condition(s).
- Your medical condition(s) must have lasted, or be expected to last, at least 1 year or to result in death.

While some programs give money to people with partial disability or short-term disability, we do not.

Can I receive benefits for a past disability if my health has improved?

That depends. If we find that you meet our disability criteria and your application was filed within a specified timeframe, we will consider whether you are eligible for a closed period of disability. A closed period of disability specifically requires:

- The medical evidence to establish that you were unable to engage in substantial work for a continuous period of 12 months. By the time the disability decision is made, your condition had improved to the point where we find you no longer have a disability.
- You must file an application within 14 months after the disability ended.

- A 5-month waiting period before your 1st monthly benefit can be paid if you meet the requirements for disability benefits. You can receive up to 12 months of retroactive benefits from the date you file an application with us.

Example: You file an application for Social Security disability benefits in December 2024. After reviewing your claim, we find that your disability started on April 15, 2023. We also find that your condition improved to the point that you no longer had a disability as of September 2024. We refer to this as a closed period of disability.

Your 5-month waiting period begins May 2023, the first full month you have a disability. The months in your waiting period are May, June, July, August, and September. Thus, the first month for which you are entitled to disability benefits is October 2023.

You could receive benefits for October 2023 until September 2024, the month your disability ended. Based on the application you filed in December 2024, you would receive 10 months of retroactive benefits for December 2023 through September 2024.

How does military pay affect eligibility for disability benefits?

Active-duty status and receipt of military pay don't necessarily prevent payment of SSDI benefits. Receipt of military payments should never stop you from applying for disability benefits. If you receive treatment at a military medical facility and work in a designated therapy program or on limited duty, we will evaluate your work activity to determine your eligibility for benefits.

You can't receive SSDI benefits if you engage in substantial work for pay or profit. We count the actual work activity and not the amount of pay you receive, or your military duty status.

How do I apply?

You may apply for disability benefits at any time while in the military or after discharge. You may do so whether you are still hospitalized, in a rehabilitation program, or undergoing outpatient treatment in a military or civilian medical facility. You may apply online at www.ssa.gov/disability, by phone, or in person at your local Social Security office.

You may call 1-800-772-1213 to schedule an appointment. If you are deaf or hard of hearing, you may call our TTY number, 1-800-325-0778. We also have a "disability starter kit" available online to help you complete your application.

What information do I need?

To apply for benefits, you or your representative must provide information and documentation about your age, employment, proof of citizenship, and information regarding all impairments and related treatment. We will make every reasonable effort to help you get the necessary medical evidence.

Important: You should file the application for disability benefits as soon as possible with any documents readily available. Don't delay filing, even if you don't have all the documents mentioned below:

- Original or certified copy of your birth certificate or proof of U.S. citizenship or legal residency if foreign born.
- Form DD 214, if discharged from military service.
- W-2 form or income tax return from last year.
- Proof of military pay or workers' compensation.
- Social Security numbers of your spouse and minor children.
- Account number for checking or savings account, if you have one.
- Name, address, and phone number of a contact person, in case you are unavailable.
- Medical records that you have or that you can easily obtain from all military and civilian sources.

How does Social Security make the determination?

Your claim is sent to a state Disability Determination Services (DDS) office. The state DDS will make the disability determination. The state has medical and vocational experts who will contact your doctors and other places where you received treatment to get your medical records. The state agency may ask you to have an examination or medical test. You won't have to pay the costs of any additional exams or tests you are asked to take. If the state does request an examination, make sure you keep the appointment.

How long does it take?

The length of time it takes to receive a determination on your disability claim can vary, depending on several factors. Primary factors are:

- The nature of your disability.
- How quickly we obtain medical evidence from your doctor or other medical sources.
- Whether it is necessary to send you for a medical examination to obtain evidence to support your claim.

What can I do to speed up the determination?

You can speed up the determination on your application for benefits by being prepared. We can take prompt action on your claim if you:

- Let us know right away that your disability occurred while on active military duty.
- Give us all information available for all the doctors you have seen and the addresses of any treatment facilities where your records are kept.
- Notify us if your address changes while we are working on your claim.
- Inform us about any changes in doctors, hospitals, or outpatient clinics where you receive treatment.

After we receive your application for SSDI benefits, we'll identify it as a military service member claim and expedite its processing, both at Social Security and the DDS.

Can my family get benefits?

Certain members of your family may be eligible for benefits based on your work. They include:

- Your spouse, if they are age 62 or older.
- Your spouse, if they are caring for a child of yours who is younger than age 16 or has a disability.

- Your unmarried child, including an adopted child or, in some cases, a stepchild or grandchild. The child must be younger than age 18 or younger than age 19 if in elementary or secondary school full time.
- Your unmarried child, age 18 or older, if they have a disability that started before age 22. The child's disability also must meet the definition of disability applied to adults.

NOTE: In some situations, a divorced spouse may be eligible for benefits based on your earnings. This may apply if they were married to you for at least 10 years, are not currently married, and are at least age 62. The money paid to a divorced spouse doesn't reduce your benefit or any benefits due to your current spouse or children.

When do I get Medicare coverage?

You will get Medicare coverage automatically after you have received disability benefits for 24 months.

How does Medicare affect my TRICARE?

For active-duty service members and their families who are entitled to Original Medicare Part A (hospital insurance) and Part B (medical insurance), TRICARE is the primary payer. Medicare serves as a supplement providing secondary coverage.

For military retirees, who are entitled to Medicare Part A and Part B, Medicare is the primary payer and TRICARE provides “wraparound” coverage. TRICARE serves as a supplement, paying the Medicare deductible and patient cost share.

If you are entitled to Medicare Part A based on disability or End-Stage Renal Disease (permanent kidney failure), contact the Department of Defense. They can inform you about how this may affect your TRICARE benefits. You may need to be enrolled in Medicare Part B to keep your TRICARE coverage. For general information about TRICARE, please visit www.tricare.mil.

People who are awarded retroactive disability benefits may also become entitled to Medicare Part A before they receive the disability award notice. Effective October 2009, TRICARE beneficiaries who are awarded retroactive benefits based on disability or End-Stage Renal Disease don't have to enroll in Part B for those months in the past. They can keep their TRICARE coverage as long as they enroll in Part B when they are awarded benefits. You should contact the Department of Defense to find out whether you need to enroll in Medicare Part B so you can keep your TRICARE.

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act of 2010 provides for a 12-month Medicare Part B special enrollment period for TRICARE beneficiaries who are entitled to Medicare Part A. These are parties who didn't enroll in Medicare Part B during their initial enrollment period. The Department of Defense will notify eligible people about this period.

For more information about TRICARE and recent changes in the law, please visit www.ssa.gov/legislation/tricareinfo.html.

What if I remain on active duty?

You may receive our disability benefits and remain on active duty. You should contact us immediately if there is a change in your:

- Military Occupational Specialty code (MOS).
- Air Force Specialty Codes (AFSC).
- Navy Enlisted Classification (NEC).

A permanent change of station (PCS) move from one duty station to another is also an indicator that you may be going back to work and should contact us.

Tell us right away about changes in your work or active-duty status that may affect your SSDI benefits.

If you plan to change your PCS, MOS, AFSC or NEC, you can request a Benefits Planning Query from us. This query contains information about the status of your disability benefits, work history and current work status, health insurance, scheduled medical reviews, and representative payee data.

You can use the Benefits Planning Query as a tool to help you plan your return to work. Request your query by calling 1-800-772-1213 or visiting your local Social Security office.

What should I know about working?

We have special rules called work incentives that allow you to test your ability to return to work and still receive monthly SSDI benefits.

You also can get help with the education, training, and rehabilitation you need to work. Later in this publication, you will find a description of the work incentives and other programs that can help you return to the work force. For more information, please see our free pamphlets, Working While Disabled — How We Can Help (Publication No. 05-10095) or The Red Book (Publication No. 64-030), our guide to employment support programs. You can find them at www.ssa.gov/pubs and www.ssa.gov/redbook online. Or, you can visit www.ssa.gov/work.

Do I need to report my work activity?

Yes. If you take a job, let us know about it as soon as possible. You should tell us:

- When you start or stop work.
- If there is a change in your job duties, hours of work, or rate of pay.

Even if you are receiving full pay, you may still be eligible for disability benefits.

Once you let us know that you are working, you may use your personal my Social Security account to report your wages online. It's faster and easier than ever. When you create or sign in to your personal my Social Security account, you'll have access to this application on your desktop, laptop, and mobile device. If you don't have an account, creating an account only takes a few minutes.

After you have created your account, you'll have access to many of our services. Simply sign in, go to the Report Wages section, and follow the instructions on the screen. You can print or save a receipt of your wage report. This receipt is for your records and serves as proof that you told us about your current work situation.

If you still need to visit your local Social Security office, you can find it by going to the Office Locator on our website, at www.ssa.gov/locator. Enter your postal ZIP code to get the address, telephone number, and directions to your local office. Request a receipt showing that you reported your work activity.

What happens next?

When we receive notification that you have returned to work, we perform a work Continuing Disability Review (CDR). During this review, we look to see whether you are doing substantial work. For 2025, we consider you to be doing substantial work if your monthly earnings are over $1,620 ($2,700 if you are blind).

That amount may change each year. When we conduct a work CDR, we ask you to complete an SSA-821-BK (Work Activity Report — Employee). You should complete the form and provide as much detail as possible about your job duties.

Tell us whether you are in a designated work therapy program or whether you are assigned limited duty because of your disability. You may be receiving full military pay, but not performing work duties. Without this information, we can't properly evaluate your work, and your SSDI benefits may be suspended or terminated.

What are the work incentives?

Trial Work Period (TWP)

The TWP allows you to test your ability to work for at least 9 months. The months don't need to be consecutive. During your TWP, you will receive your full SSDI benefits, regardless of how much you earn. You will receive these benefits as long as you report your work activity and you continue to have a disabling impairment.

In 2025, a trial work month is any month in which your gross earnings are more than $1,160 or if you are self-employed, you earn more than $1,160 (after your work expenses). Any month you work in your own business for more than 80 hours, also qualifies as a TWP. The TWP continues until you have worked 9 cumulative trial work months within a 60-month period.

Extended Period of Eligibility (EPE)

After the TWP ends, you have 36 months during which you can work and still receive benefits for any month that your earnings are not "substantial."

For 2025, the substantial gainful activity (SGA) level is $1,620 in gross monthly wages for non-blind ($2,700 for blind).

During the EPE, your benefits are suspended for any month that you have earnings above the SGA level. However, you'll receive a benefit for any month your earnings fall below the substantial level. You don't need a new application or new disability determination to receive a Social Security disability benefit during the EPE.

More information on work incentives is available at www.ssa.gov/redbook.

Impairment-Related Work Expenses (IRWE)

We deduct the cost of certain impairment-related items and services that you need to work from your gross earnings when we decide if your work is substantial. Your work expenses may include the costs of any items or services you need to work, even if they are also useful in your daily living. Examples include: copayments for prescriptions; counseling services; transportation to and from work (under certain conditions); a personal attendant or job coach; a wheelchair; or any specialized work equipment.

Ticket to Work Program

Our Ticket to Work program offers support to help you return to work. Under the Ticket to Work program, you can receive vocational rehabilitation, training, job referrals, and other employment support services free of charge. These services are provided by Employment Networks and State Vocational Rehabilitation agencies. These are organizations that have contracts with Social Security to provide employment services and other support to beneficiaries with disabilities.

When you are ready to explore your work options, you can talk directly with us about work, benefits, or our work incentive programs. Just call our Ticket to Work Help Line at 1-866-YOURTICKET (1-866-968-7842), Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. EST. If you are deaf or hard of hearing, you may call our TTY number, 1-866-833-2967.

You also can visit the Ticket to Work website at choosework.ssa.gov for more information.

Contacting Us

There are several ways to contact us, such as online, by phone, and in person (by appointment). We're here to answer your questions and to serve you. For nearly 90 years, we have helped secure today and tomorrow by providing benefits and financial protection for millions of people throughout their life's journey.

Visit our website

The most convenient way to conduct business with us is online at www.ssa.gov. You can accomplish a lot.

Apply for Extra Help with Medicare prescription drug plan costs.

- Apply for most types of benefits.
- Start or complete your request for an original or replacement Social Security card.
- Find copies of our publications.
- Get answers to frequently asked questions.

When you create a personal my Social Security account, you can do even more.

- Review your Social Security Statement.
- Verify your earnings.
- Get estimates of future benefits.
- Print a benefit verification letter.
- Change your direct deposit information (Social Security beneficiaries only).
- Get a replacement SSA-1099/1042S.

If you live outside the United States, visit www.ssa.gov/foreign to access our online services.

Call us

If you cannot use our online services, we can help you by phone when you call our National toll-free 800 Number. We can also make a video, phone, or in-person appointment for you, if needed. We provide free interpreter services upon request.

You can call us at 1-800-772-1213 — or at our TTY number, 1-800-325-0778, if you're deaf or hard of hearing — between 8:00 a.m. – 7:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. For quicker access to a representative, try calling early in the day (between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. local time) or later in the day. We are less busy later in the week (Wednesday to Friday) and later in the month. We also offer many automated phone services, available 24 hours a day, so you may not need to speak with a representative.

If you have documents we need, they must be original or copies that are certified by the issuing agency.

Securing today
and tomorrow

Social Security Administration

Publication No. 05-10030

January 2025 (Recycle prior editions)

Disability Benefits for Wounded Warriors

Produced and published at U.S. taxpayer expense